THE TRANSLATORS TO THE READER.

Zeale to promote the common good, whether it be by devising any thing our selues, or reuising that which hath bene laboured by others, deserueth certainly much respect and esteeme, but yet findeth but cold intertainment in the world. It is welcommed with suspicion in stead of loue, and with emulation in stead of thanks: and if there be any hole left for cauill to enter (and cauill, if it doe not finde a hole, will make one) it is sure to bee misconstrued, and in danger to be condemned. This will easily be granted by as many as know story, or haue any experience. For, was there euer any thing projected, that fauoured any way of newnesse or renewing, but the same endured many a storme of gaine-saying, or opposition? A man would thinke that Ciuilitie, hole some Lawes, learning and eloquence, Synods, and Church-maintenance, (that we speake of no more things of this kinde) should be as safe as a Sanctuary, and shot off shor, as they say, that no man would lit vp the heele, no, nor dogge moue his tongue against the motioners of them. For by the first, we are distinguished from brut-beasts led with sensuality: By the second, we are bridled and restrained from outrageous behauiour, and from doing of iniuries, whether by fraud or by violence: By the third, we are enabled to informe and reforme others, by the light and feeling that we haue attained.

The best things have been calumniated.

FACSIMILE OF THE INTRODUCTION TO THE AUTHORIZED VERSION

It will surprise many to read the above beginning to the introduction of the King James Version, now in common use. Notwithstanding the influence of both Church and State, king and clergy, it took fifty years to displace the other versions then in use. This will serve as an apology for the Concordant Version. Below is a reproduction in modern spelling:

ZEAL to promote the common good, whether it be by devising anything ourselves, or revising that which has been labored by others, deserves certainly much respect and esteem, but yet finds but cold entertainment in the world. It is welcomed with suspicion instead of love, and with emulation instead of thanks: and if there be any hole left for cavil to enter (and cavil, if it does not find a hole, will make one) it is sure to be misconstrued, and in danger to be condemned. This will easily be granted by as many as know history, or have any experience. For, was there ever anything projected, that savored any way of newness or renewing, but the same endured many a storm of gainsaying, or opposition? A man would think that civilization, wholesome laws, learning and eloquence, synods and church maintenance (that we speak of no more things of this kind) should be as safe as a sanctuary, and out of shot, as they say, that no man would lift up the heel, no, nor dog move his tongue against the motioners of them. For by the first, we are distinguished from brute beasts led with sensuality; By the second, we are bridled and restrained from outrageous behaviour, and from doing of injuries, whether by fraud or by violence: By the third, we are enabled to inform and reform others, by the light and feeling that we have attained . . .

The chart on page 64 gives the number and order of the books. As the text is always referred to by chapters and verses, no page numbers are used. Each book, however, is paged to correspond with the number of Greek letters. There are a thousand on each leaf, fifty lines, twenty to a line. Thus every Greek letter is numbered, and the pages represent the number of thousands of Greek letters used thus far in any book. The first page is always 0<sup>001</sup>, the second 1<sup>001</sup>, for the first letter on the second page is number one thousand one.

TO THE BELOVED READER

THE CONCORDANT VERSION proposes to make it possible for any person of ordinary intelligence to discover for himself just what God has said, and to furnish him with facts sufficient to test any interpretation. It aims to be simple enough for the uneducated, sufficient for the needs of the student, and so accurate and comprehensive that the scholar will be satisfied. It is limited to the so-called "New Testament", at present. Much work has been done on the Hebrew text, also, and it may be published later.

The Concordant method places the work of translation on a permanent systematic and scientific basis. The probability of error is reduced a hundred fold. The facilities for further revision and correction are correspondingly increased.

This plan gives the Scriptures to the people, and removes the necessity of relying on human learning or authority in matters of the gravest moment, where it is of supreme importance that they procure the counsel of God, unclouded by the creeds and traditions which corrupt the current texts. The Version is intended to be read, the Interlinear and Concordance are for reference. When certainty becomes vital and imperative, the evidence is at hand. It is a supreme satisfaction to know that any fact in divine revelation can be checked at will.

A comparison of a few lines of the CONCORDANT VERSION with other translations will reveal many minute points which excel in accuracy, and fresh renderings which throw a new light upon difficult, obscure, and misunderstood passages.

Only by carefully reading the following INTRODUCTION will the reader be able to grasp the tremendous possibilities and immeasurable value of this plan, as a means of entering into the mind and heart of God.

PREFACE TO THE REVISED EDITION

SINCE the first edition was completed, the CONCORDANCE has been prepared for the press. In doing this each word and grammatical form, in the Greek, the Sublinear, and the Version has been checked again. The result is most gratifying. Only three letters of the Greek text were found to be incorrect. Few changes were needed in the Version. The alterations are nearly all such as would be entirely disregarded in other versions. Yet the immense labor bestowed on this revision brings the work still nearer that ideal perfection which should be the aim of every version of God's holy Word.

The publication of the CONCORDANCE, the GRAMMAR, and the WORD ELEMENTS places the CONCORDANT VERSION in a class by itself. Such works expose the inconsistencies of other translations. They are the best possible guaranty of the integrity, the accuracy, and the harmony of this version as a transcript of God's inspired revelation. The concordant method is receiving recognition in other lands. Now that the apparatus is ready, work will commence in several languages. We will supply all translators free with this means of making a faithful version or revision, and request that this offer be given every possible publicity, especially in missionary publications.

The Hebrew and Chaldee vocabulary has been assigned most of its English standards. In order to test some of these, a special journey to Palestine is contemplated. No effort will be spared to get actual evidence, so that the version will be in accord with the land as well as concordant within itself. The setting of such passages as the twenty-third psalm will be changed from an English countryside to the wilderness of Judea, where David dwelt, with great gain in coloring and accuracy and spiritual force.

Other methods of translation stereotype accepted error. The glory of the concordant principle is that it discovers and corrects venerable misconceptions, removes difficulties, solves mysteries, and allows the light to shine unhindered into our hearts. The version has fully met our expectations in this regard, for it solves some of the difficult theological problems simply and satisfactorily. No other method can compare with it in opening up the mind and heart of God, or in giving the profound conviction that the Scriptures are in very truth the Word of the living God.

The COMPILER takes this means of publicly expressing his gratitude and appreciation to the many friends who have graciously helped him in this undertaking. Without their aid the work would have been impossible. May our Lord Himself reward them in that day! The further progress of the work is entirely in the hands of God, and those whom He rouses to carry it on, for His glory, and the honor of His beloved Son, Christ Jesus, our Saviour and Lord, Who loves us, and Who is coming for us.

PURPOSE AND PLAN

GOD HAS SPOKEN. His word is the only revelation of divine light and life and love. Nothing can compare with a close acquaintance with His will and a clear apprehension of His grace. That the English reader may rest assured and the student be satisfied that he is enjoying the pure word of God, precisely as He has been pleased to reveal it, the CONCORDANT VERSION proposes to provide him with all the essential facts so that every point can easily be tested and the translation of any passage verified. The object of this work is to go to the very limits of fidelity in translating the word of God into English and to guarantee its truth by putting the reader in possession of all the evidence, so that he may check every detail for his own satisfaction.

This is accomplished by basing the work on definite laws of language rather than on the authority of scholars, and by the use of set standards, much as a carpenter uses his rule or square, or a merchant his scales. A merchant can work without a gauge, but his efforts would be unsatisfactory. A translation based on linguistic law and after a definite design has advantages which no other can claim.

The work divides itself into two principal parts, the Greek text and the English version. These are correlated by a Sub-linear, based on an analysis of the Greek into its Elements, and a Concordance, which shows where every form of every word may be found. Thus the English reader, who knows nothing of Greek, has somewhat the same advantage as the learned scholar. Anyone can readily refer to the Lexical Concordance to find the meaning and occurrences of any word, and those of the entire family of which it is a member, and satisfy himself as to the correctness and accuracy of any passage.

Uniformity or consistency is the keynote. This is attained by the use of a standard English expression for every Greek element of the original, and secondary standards which correspond to the words, and form the basis of the version. All is uniform when possible, and consistent, when uniformity is impracticable.

THE SCRIPTURES INSPIRED

The only possible apology for such an exhaustive and elaborate method of translating the scriptures is the profound conviction that they are the very words of God. It is a fact that considerable portions record the thoughts of God's enemies, and are not His sayings or declarations. But, while these are not themselves divine, the record of them is, for they serve as a foil for the positive revelations from the mouth of Deity.

All scripture is inspired by God (2 Ti. 3<sup>16</sup>). Since the spirit imparts life, we understand that the sacred writings are superior to other literature in the same way that God's living creatures surpass the inventions of man. The word of God is living; man's writings are dead. As, in nature, God alone can bridge the gulf between the organic and inorganic or living and non-living, so He has given us His words, which are spirit and are life, and which alone can impart life to dead humanity. No other book has the vitality and vivifying power of the book of books.

The CONCORDANT VERSION is the only one which practically acknowledges the inspiration or vitality of the Sacred Scriptures by using a method of translation based on the denial of human ability to sound its depths or scale its heights, and by insisting on its superhuman perfection even to the minutest detail. It is not the reiteration of any formula of "verbal" inspiration which counts with God, but the actual attitude of the heart, which confesses its own inability to transcribe His thoughts, and the intelligent appreciation of His words, which considers every element and listens to every letter.

The CONCORDANT is not a "private" version. Indeed, it is far less so than even the Authorized or Revised. While these do not express the private opinions of one man, they reflect the bias of a group and the tendency of the times in which they were made. The CONCORDANT VERSION is also the work of a group of men, for the assistants of the Editor tested all his work by the principles on which it is founded. Moreover, any one can do the same by means of the CONCORDANCE and ELEMENTS. No version which provides the tools for testing its translations by the laws of language can be anything but a "public" version. Other versions are artistic; it is scientific in the best sense of that word. It aims at truth and accuracy rather than literary elegance.

THE CONCORDANT METHOD

As an earnest Bible student, desiring to understand the word of God, I discovered that practically all solid progress in the recovery of truth during the last century had come through the use of the concordance. I found that those of my friends who based their study on a concordance made the surest and speediest advance in their knowledge of God. Hence I also began to test and correct my ideas as to the meaning of Bible words by tracing them through all their occurrences. The immense profit and pleasure of this plan awoke in me a strong desire to do all in my power to assist others in this safe and satisfactory method of assuring themselves of the real revelation which God has given.

But I found that even keen students of exceptional intelligence were not able to derive much benefit from concordances based on English translations. Only those who used concordances based on the original languages received real help. And even they were harassed by using a version which continually counteracted the benefits of their concordant study. So it gradually dawned on me that it was foolish to fill my mind with a discordant version if I hoped to advance in the knowledge of God. It would be just as sane to tangle up a ball of twine before trying to use it.

Thus it was that the idea of a concordant version suggested itself to my mind. Instead of correcting current translations occasionally by a concordance, why not make a version which is already concordant, so that the simple reading of it will give all the benefits otherwise won by prolonged and arduous study? Indeed, such a version might do far more to bring the unschooled reader into accord with the truth than would be possible by the patient and prolonged study of a concordance. For instance, it would be easy to explain what the soul is if our translators had never rendered it life. It would be an impossible task to correct all the mistranslations in the minds of Bible readers. Why not make a version in which psuchē is always soul, and zōē life?

A REVERENT METHOD

No one could honestly object to this method, for it is not based on human scholarship but on a worshipful recognition of the divine Author's ability to make Himself understood. Most versions always render zōē life, so that no one is at a loss to know the significance of the word. But how few know what soul means! That is because it is not uniformly translated. In the Hebrew Scriptures it is rendered by over forty different expressions, such as appetite, beast, body, breath, creature, ghost, heart, lust, man, mind, pleasure, but especially by life. The Greek word is rendered mind, heart, and life (more than thirty times) besides soul.

A SANE PRINCIPLE

I appeal to the sanctified common sense of the saints, "the spirit of a sound mind" (2 Ti. 17). If the holy spirit intended us to understand life in so many places where the original has soul, why was not the word for life used? I came to the definite conclusion, which has been strengthened by tests extending over a quarter century of study, that, wherever possible, each word in the original should be represented in translation by only one English word. Then the English reader, seeing this English word in all of the correct contexts, subconsciously acquires its exact signification and force and color.

Another principle I found to be of just as great importance. The same illustration will serve. Even the word life has lost its distinct meaning by being used for soul. No one would tolerate such a translation as "The first man Adam was made a living life." Why, then, translate "Take no thought for your life"? (Lu. 12<sup>22</sup>). Why not "Do not worry about the soul"? No English word should do duty for more than one word of the original. This is quite as necessary as using only one English word for each Greek or Hebrew expression. Between the two we have the best possible safety device for insuring purity, clarity, and accuracy in the translation of God's holy word.

A SIMPLE SHORT CUT

The CONCORDANT VERSION is not another burden for the student to bear, but an easy, simple, short cut to knowledge which would cost him more than a lifetime of study by any other method. Instead of giving him a puzzle to solve, it gives him the solution. He does not need to study a concordance of the original to find out the exact meaning of any word. First, he is assured that he has the nearest English equivalent. Second, he knows that when he sees it he may depend upon it that the light of the context is true and not a false beacon to lead him astray.

The greatest benefit will come, not to the student as such, but to the humble reader who will simply use the version and allow the contexts to color each word and define its force for him. He will be a constant attendant in the school of God, quite independent of human learning or scholarship.

NOT A MODERN VERSION

The CONCORDANT is not a "modern" version. Neither is it archaic. The method is such that little regard could be paid to the outward embellishment of thought. All appearances are subordinated to truth. Yet truth is itself so desirable and beautiful that only the superficial and unbelieving will prefer error because it is arrayed in robes rich and venerable. The living Word was not clothed in sumptuous garb to entice the eye. He had no form or comeliness. There was no beauty, that they should desire Him. So is the written word. The desire to dress it up is of the world and not of God. Those who despise its meanness ally themselves with the throng who crucified the Lord of glory.

We are warned that, in the latter eras, religious men will want their ears tickled rather than their hearts aroused (2 Ti. 4<sup>3</sup>). They will prefer the musical to the true. Familiar, finely phrased error will appeal to their ears rather than inspired facts to their minds. But truth has a spiritual harmony and sweet accord which no dissonance can mar, and which is unutterably more pleasing to the anointed ear than all the music of mere sound.

BASED ON THE ORIGINAL

The concordant method of studying the scriptures uses a concordance to discover the meaning of a word, not in any version, but in the original. It is based on its occurrences in the Hebrew, Chaldee, or Greek, however it may be translated into English. The aim is to discover the usage and fix its signification by its inspired associations. It is in line with the linguistic law that the meaning of a word is decided by its usage. In this version the efficiency and value of this method has been greatly multiplied by extending it to the elements of which words are composed and by combining with it the vocabulary method, which deals with each word as a definite province of the realm of thought which must be carefully kept within its own boundaries.

WORD ANALYSIS

The evidence for the exact force of a given expression is multiplied many times if we separate it into its elements. Take one of the two words which are usually rendered "foundation". Its elements are DOWN-CAST, and the Greek has found its way into English in the word catabolism. The element DOWN brings in two hundred witnesses, while CAST commands over fifty. These we may call its near relatives. They arouse a suspicion in our minds that DOWN-CASTING is a strange and unlikely word for "foundation". It does not suggest building up but casting down. By testing this new thought in all the contexts we discover that DOWN-CASTING means disruption, not foundation.

THE ENGLISH-GREEK SUBLINEAR

Not only does the separation of the Greek vocabulary into its elements help in fixing its true meaning, but it enables us to build up an artificial English-Greek for use in the Sublinear which brings the two languages together in a most interesting and profitable way. The reader who knows no Greek is easily able to follow and grasp the idiom of the original, and to enjoy God's revelation in the very mold in which He cast it. There is the same relation between His thoughts and words, and between the words themselves that exists in the inspired autographs.

Such an English-Greek translation is by far the best instrument for making a version in which the thoughts, rather than the identical symbols of thought, must be used. The human mind at its best is limited. The keenest intellect needs this assistance. The mathematician might be able to count without the use of figures. But how far could the science of mathematics go if it had no numerals? So the Elements used in this version help to convey the precise values of the Greek into the English. Such a word as repentance is far more colorful when we find that, in Greek, it is called "after-MIND".

GRAMMATICAL STANDARDS

Still greater is the gain in the grammatical elements. Take the word usually rendered Who hath abolished (2 Ti. 1<sup>10</sup>). Now we know that death has not been abolished yet. From the ending of the word we see that its grammatical elements associate it with indefinite verbals, which do not state the time of the action. Hundreds of other passages, where this form is used, focus their light on this, and we are practically compelled to render it Who abolishes. The great value of this change is instantly evident, for we can literally believe it, though we could not believe that death has been abolished.

We unhesitatingly make two tremendous claims for concordant uniformity in transferring the grammatical elements into English. The probability of such renderings being correct is increased many fold, for all the evidence is continually before us, and subject to scrutiny. Moreover, even if a standard should be wrong, or, what is more likely, is not a perfect equivalent, the very fact that it occurs in all the divine contexts will tend to modify and correct it. Uniformity in rendering Greek grammatical elements into English is even more important than present exactness, for it is the only way to eventual exactitude.

We have taken the Greek grammatical elements and given to each a corresponding English form. Any one can see what confusion will result if we should not always translate a past by a past, a future by a future, and a present by a present. We must sort out our equivalents in this way or truth is turned into pious error. The very fact that there is a special form for the past proves that the indefinite is not a past. If the past can be rendered I wrote, the indefinite must be different. The existence of the present incomplete form, I am writing, bars the indefinite from this rendering. If we assign all available English forms except the Greek indefinite and have nothing but the English indefinite left, that alone goes far to prove the correctness of I write. No other method can be so safe or satisfactory.

THE VOCABULARY METHOD

The concordant method has been used in a fragmentary way for a century. So far as we know, the CONCORDANT VERSION is the first attempt to employ it systematically and exhaustively by applying it to the complete vocabulary of the sacred text. From this has sprung the complementary "vocabulary" method. It insists, not on uniformity, but the opposite. If PLACE-CARE means foundation, and its elements and contexts clearly agree with that meaning, then DOWN-CASTING, which our versions so translate, does not mean foundation. In some languages we may not always have enough words to cover all cases, but English certainly ought to furnish sufficient. In this extreme example, the words are totally unlike in elements, association and contexts. One means foundation, the other disruption.

The meaning or usage of one word is necessarily distinct from that of all other words. If we have placed all the words in the vocabulary of the Greek scriptures but one, we have a vast fund of information as to what it does not mean. This, of course, is not necessary with many words, but it is of the utmost value in dealing with words of similar or related meaning. Let any one study a passage in our accepted versions in which a number of synonyms are used together and he will find that our translators were forced to better work by the presence of words of nearly the same signification. What a pity they did not use such renderings elsewhere!

Let us take an example from the so-called Authorized Version. It translates twenty-one words depart. We will give the CONCORDANT standard of each and a passage, if possible, where they agree:

UP-LOOSE is both return (Lu.1236) and depart (Phil.123).

UP-SPACE, meaning retire, they render departed (Mt.212).

FROM-CHANGE, meaning clear, is departed (Ac.1912).

FROM-SPACE is always correctly depart (Mt.723 Lu.939 Ac.1313) as also in the CONCORDANT VERSION.

FROM-SPACEize they have tried to distinguish on one occasion by adding asunder (Ac.1539), but in its other occurrences departed (Un.614). It means recoil.

FROM-STAND, withdraw (1 Ti.65) is usually rendered departed (Lu.237).

THRU-SPACEize, sever, they make depart also (Lu.933).

THRU-COME, pass through (Lu.430) is once depart (Ac.1314).

OUT-BE, be off, is twice depart (Ac.1715).

OUT-COME, come out, (Mt.526) is depart (Mt.931) a few times.

OUT-GO, go out, is depart (Mt.2029).

DOWN-COME, come down (Lu.431) is once depart (Ac.134).

WITH-(after)-GO, proceed, is usually depart. WITH-LIFT, withdraw, is also depart (Mt. 133).

BESIDE-LEAD, pass by (Mk.214) is once departed (Mt.927).

Go (Mt.28) is occasionally varied to depart (Mt.29).

UNDER-LEAD, go away (Jn.1428) is rendered depart (Mk.633).

SPACEIZE, separate (Ro.835) they have, on good grounds, rendered depart when it refers to a place (Ac.14181,2), and the English seems to have no nearer term, and the Greek word differs but slightly from FROM-SPACE.

Is it not very evident that the translation of twenty words depart, when English has an abundant supply of synonyms, is in itself a departure from the dictates of reason and real reverence? How is it possible for the English reader to grasp twenty-one different ideas through the medium of one word? But the confusion is worse confounded by the fact that twenty different sets of contexts are throwing a false flood of light upon the word, and the light is darkness.

The vocabulary method, used in the CONCORDANT VERSION, insists that each of these distinct ideas be distinguished from each other by a special symbol, if that is possible. It will be seen that, in most cases, the Authorized Version itself uses the proper word on some occasions. No plea for pious or venerable diction will convince the honest truth seeker that their erratic renderings are justified.

In the trying task of transcribing the thoughts of another mind, which far transcends that of the translator, the ordinary methods of turning a human composition from one language into another are entirely inadequate. What a man has written a man can comprehend. The most effective course is to seize the foreign author's thought and express it afresh in a different tongue.

But once we acknowledge that God, and not man, is the Author of the revelation which we will call the Sacred Scriptures, we are face to face with a spiritual problem akin to that which the scientist encounters in the sphere of nature. He can apprehend some, but never comprehend all. It has been demonstrated mathematically that the distance from one branch to another of a very common weed cannot be measured by any human scale. It is in a ratio whose solution demands a square root which is incommensurable. Now if a mere weed baffles the human intellect, what shall we say of His highest and greatest work? The Scriptures are for our apprehension, but very far beyond our comprehension.

The ideal way of producing a perfect translation would be to find a man who could understand it all, fully and perfectly, and then have him turn it into English. But where is he? The staff of the CONCORDANT VERSION makes no claim whatever to such necessary knowledge and spiritual skill. On the contrary, the method employed is an admission on their part that such a task is entirely beyond the sphere of human attainment. The vital differences between the greatest of theologians make manifest the fact that no man or company of men can fully grasp divine revelation.

During the past decade an average of one new translation has appeared annually, yet all differ in numberless details. That there can be such variety in results shows that the translations partake largely of the mind which acted as a medium. The differences are not in the text.

Unless science had reduced its scattered facts into a system so that the human intellect could deal with its phenomena as the expression of law, it would still be groping in the dark domains of mediæval philosophy. It would still be teaching that the heavier a stone, the faster it will fall. One single experiment would have demolished that dogma, but, in those days, "truth" rested on tradition and authority, not on fact. Science has made enormous strides ever since, despite the hindrance offered by unfounded theories. It resorts to experiment and finds truth on the regular recurrence of facts, that is, on law.

But theology is still largely dominated by tradition and dependent on authority. The extent to which translations agree with such tradition and authority rather than with the inspired autographs is the measure of infidelity to fact and distance from truth.

A true transcript of a divine revelation must be based on the laws of language rather than on the bias of theologians. What are these laws? How can they be applied? We will briefly consider them in this connection. We must remember, however, that English is not a pure language. It is a conglomeration of fragments from several languages. Sacred Greek, on the contrary, is one of the most perfect and law-abiding of all tongues. In English the same letters and sounds have a dozen distinct meanings. Each thought has a variety of close synonyms. Such difficulties are practically absent from the first century Greek.

Everything in nature and revelation is known to us by its relation to other objects. We know nothing absolutely, only relatively. The same is true of the symbols, spoken or written, which we use to represent ideas. Hence, in studying words and their meanings, we are not so much concerned with the sign for a word, as with the relation this sustains to other signs. The meaning of a word depends on its usage, that is, the other words with which it is used; on its etymology, that is, the family from which it springs; and on the whole vocabulary of which it forms a part.

Certain simple and common-sense laws have been discovered and confirmed which are of the greatest help to the linguist, the infraction of which is fraught with the most confusing consequences. One is,

No word is the exact equivalent of any other word.

If a language, like English, is made up of several tongues, this rule seems to be contradicted. But such is the vitality of this law that such a condition refuses to be permanent. Many words once exactly alike, from the French and Anglo-Saxon, have gradually drifted apart, so that now no good writer will confuse them.

Pork and pig were once the very same. Now the pig is in the pen and the pork is on the table. One is a living animal, the other, the flesh of a dead one.

In the languages of inspiration such confusion is practically unknown. The few foreign words fill a vacant place. Each word stands for a definite idea. When, for instance, the divine Author wished to speak of life, what valid reason could be given if, occasionally, He should substitute the word soul? If He meant soul, why did He not use the symbols that expressed it? We are satisfied that He did not mean life when He used the symbols for soul.

THE LAW OF LOCATION

have its own English equivalent.*

If no two words are precisely alike in meaning in the original, it should not be necessary to prove that accuracy demands that each Greek word be supplied with a distinct English equivalent. This, however, cannot be successfully done without a comprehensive system. It is not sufficient that we have the same number of different words in each vocabulary. Each English word should be the one which comes nearest to covering the same domain of thought as the original, and, more particularly, sustains the same relation to the other words of the language.

To make this clearer, we will compare the world of thought to the surface of the earth, and the words to the geographical and political divisions. There is, indeed, a signal instance—the ancient province of Asia—which shows how confusing it is to use geographical names in English which do not correspond with those in the Greek. Asia now includes a vast continent, and the English reader, unless warned, must get the idea that the entire territory of Asiatic Russia, China, Japan, Korea, Siam, India, Persia, Arabia, Palestine, and Asia Minor are included. So we have translated it “the province of Asia”, for only a small part of the present Asia Minor is meant. In precisely the same way it is misleading to translate a general term for one that is specific.

Carrying out our figure, we will call this the Law of Location. If the geographer must not confound England with New Zealand, the lexicographer should not confuse yea and nay (A. V., 1 Co. 4:6<sup>8</sup>), or pour out and fill (A. V., Rev. 14:10<sup>18</sup>).

But such accidents are rare and easily avoided. It is when two words are similar in meaning that the danger is greatest. Great Britain covers three countries but there are times when it is most important to distinguish between England, Scotland and Wales. Similarly, though all are sin, it is of the highest value to discriminate between injustice and transgression and offense.

This is practically impossible when one of them, offense, is rendered sin (Eph. 1<sup>7</sup>), trespass (Eph. 2<sup>1</sup>), which is practically the same as transgression, as well as the usual word offense. The translators were restrained from rendering it sin in the first verse of the second of Ephesians by the immediate presence of the real word sin. In the vocabulary method of the CONCORDANT VERSION this restraint is always present, and debars it from following their example and lapse into sin in the fifth verse.

The only practical safeguard in apportioning to each Greek expression its most fitting English equivalent is to arrange the whole vocabulary in alphabetical order, so that any duplicates will immediately become apparent. If, for instance, we wish to translate FROM-LOOSING redemption, as it is ordinarily rendered, we will be confronted by the fact that this term is already appropriated by Loosing. We then find that we need, not merely another word, but one which will register the difference indicated by the prefix FROM-. The word deliverance admirably performs this function.

The vocabulary used by a translator should be such that, when superimposed on the vocabulary of the original, it will not only coincide as far as possible, but clearly define the boundaries between the words and their relation to one another. Such a task is necessarily imperfect in its results, due to radical differences in the idioms of language and also to the usage of words. The question arises whether these imperfections can be removed and, if so, how it is to be done.

It is not enough, that each word should harmonize with its contexts. If a single English word seems to suit different sets of contexts, in which the original uses two expressions, that is evidence that we have failed to grasp the finer phases of concord. The difference is there, though we may not be aware of it. The vocabulary method is the only means of discovering what our dull senses otherwise overlook. We must find a word for each set of contexts which will fit that and no other. We must compare it with the whole vocabulary and so prove that there is not a better word for the place it fills.

This leads us to consider the greatest and most powerful of all the laws of language.

THE LAW OF RECIPROCATION

Every thought symbol, the moment that it is placed in connection with others, both influences the meaning of its neighbors and is itself modified by them.

Words antagonistic to each other will not associate. We never read of hot ice. If we did the word hot would gradually become chilled and lose its present meaning. If we did not know the meaning of cold, its close company with ice would soon assure us of its signification.

Words get their color from their contexts. Without any dictionary whatever, it is possible to determine the meaning of almost any word if it is seen in a dozen sentences. From this we may deduce the notable conclusion that the actual and understood meaning of an English word in the Bible is not necessarily its current or dictionary meaning, but that which it absorbs from the passages in which it is found. A dictionary simply records the usage of words as employed by careful writers.

We find, then, that we have discovered a law which will practically adjust the minor differences which exist between Greek and English equivalents. An English word will expand or contract, color or blanch, become purified or tainted, to conform to the thought environments which surround it in the Scriptures. If an English word is not an exact counterpart of the Greek, the contexts in which it consistently occurs will correct its inaccuracies. It will take on a special scriptural signification. This is why the uniform renderings of the CONCORDANT VERSION are the most valuable yet simple means of transferring the truth into English.

THE PENALTY OF LAWLESSNESS

But, like all law, its benefits depend on its unvarying observance, and a penalty follows its infringement. If we inject into one English word all the virus of five false contexts, it will not only fail to furnish us with the truth, but it will reflect a false light when used in its proper place. A version which mixes its renderings subconsciously confuses its readers.

One example will suffice. The ecclesiastical meaning of "ordinance" is a religious rite or ceremony.

Another is always translated creation or creature elsewhere (1 Pt.2<sup>15</sup>).

In no case does it mean a religious rite. Yet it injects this meaning into almost every passage. If the translators had used some of their own renderings consistently, or even a synonym, we should have been saved untold confusion. It is a flagrant violation of the laws of language to render five different words by one word, and, in each case, to translate these words by other terms as well. The truth is lost in such a maze.

So valuable and vital is the law of reciprocation that we believe its observance puts the CONCORDANT VERSION in a class by itself. We urge all who are sincerely desirous of knowing God to test this matter fully. The continuous use of a version which obeys this law bridges the gulf between God's thoughts and human apprehension; the constant use of a lawless version puts an impassable chasm between us and God. One is clear concord; the other is subconscious confusion.

A TEST PASSAGE

What need is there for another version? Why change from the Authorized? Are there any vital improvements in the new version? What is the proportion of improvements? How can we know that the new readings are better? What authority is there for them? How does the Editor of the CONCORDANT VERSION plan to keep out his own opinions? These are the principal questions which arise in the minds of those who hear of the CONCORDANT VERSION.

We have told of the principles and the plan which underlie it. We now propose to give a concrete example, showing how its method works in practise, and give the reason for every "change from the Authorized", though, in the nature of the case, there can be no "changes", as the work is based on a concordance, not on any previous version.

In order to make this study instructive and helpful, we have chosen a passage of scripture which contains the very foundation of the evangel—Romans, chapter three, verses 19 to 28.

In this short passage there are about seventy points in which the CONCORDANT VERSION differs from the Authorized. We shall take up each in turn and tell why it is preferable. Some may seem trivial at first sight, but only to such as under-rate the preciousness of God's revelation. In a costly gem an almost imperceptible flaw greatly depreciates its market value. In the most precious treasure in all the universe we should welcome the most minute improvement.

As there are about two hundred words in this passage and we propose seventy improvements, two-thirds of the Authorized Version stands, while the remainder, half as much, is replaced by better renderings. The American Revision, either in its text or margin, makes or suggests about half of these betterments.

It is presumed that the reader has a great respect and reverence for the Authorized Version. Nearly all of the corrections made by the CONCORDANT VERSION may be based on the authority of the Authorized. All that needs to be done in most cases is to apply the best one of their own renderings consistently. Thus, in the passage before us they have translated a certain word conclude. Yet in five other occurrences in the same epistle they render this word reckon. Is it criminal or commendable to "change" to the rendering they themselves have used elsewhere?

The law of reciprocity, which is the foundation of all language, is continually violated in most versions of the Scriptures. A word is merely the sound or sign of an idea. We gather this idea from the surroundings in which we find a word. Every time we read a passage of Scripture we unconsciously clothe each word with a meaning appropriate to its context. Every new context adds to our knowledge of its meaning. If we find it where it should not be, we unconsciously burden it with wrong ideas and color it with false notions.

In practise, we absorb the meaning of a word, not from the dictionary, but from the use to which it is put in the Scriptures themselves. If this is in concord with the Greek word it represents, we unconsciously imbibe the correct thought beyond the power of any dictionary definition to impart. Conversely, should we use it in discordant contexts, the mental image becomes distorted and confused.

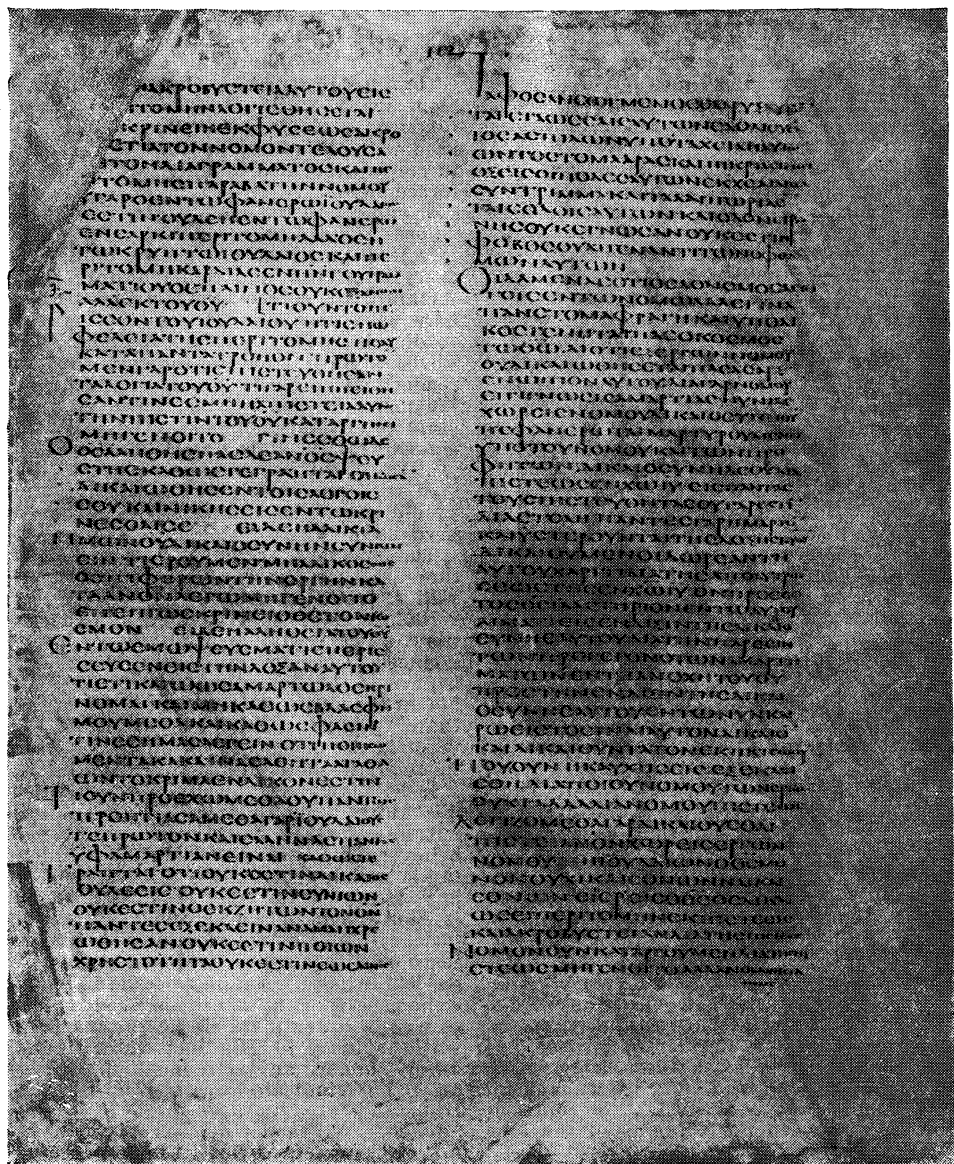

It is impossible to overestimate the gain in clearness and accuracy which a concordant translation imparts. An English word, being found in the same contexts as the Greek word for which it stands, takes on the same force and color. If it should occur in false contexts, as in the Authorized Version, then it would assume false and misleading tendencies.

There seems to be no valid reason for changing from the clear reading of the Greek simply because we cannot grasp a distinction. It is not the translator's duty to comprehend the minute differences in the original, but to pass them on to others, who may be able to discover those beauties which he has failed to observe.

19 Now we are aware that, as much

Now we know, that what things as the law is saying, it is speaking to soever the law saith, it saith to those under the law, that every them who are under the law: that every mouth may be barred, and the entire mouth may be stopped, and all the world should be becoming subject to world: may become the just verdict of God, guilty before God.

1. are aware for know] The A. V. uses the single word "know" for not less than six different terms, KNOW, PERCEIVE (perfect aware), recognize, be adept, fore-know, be conscious of. One of these it translates know 196 times out of 224 occurrences. The C. V. renders it know always as there is no reason for any change. This passage, however, uses a different term, which they have rendered aware in Lu. 12<sup>46</sup>, "at an hour when he is not aware". Thus they are authority that it has this meaning.

CODEX ALEXANDRINUS (A) ROMANS 226 TO 3<sup>21</sup>

This is the chief treasure of the British Museum in London, England. It is written on thin vellum, each page being about 10½x12½ inches in size. In the nineteenth line of the second column (fourth letter) will be found the added E noted in the superlinear (Ro.3<sup>21</sup>). A little lower in the twenty-third line (letters 8-13) is the reading "in Christ Jesus" (Ro.3<sup>22</sup>). Note the initial letters. These are sometimes the beginning of a new paragraph. But the break is usually found indicated by a space in the line above and the initial is the letter (even if in the middle of a word) starting the next line.

The sublinear has HAVE-PERCEIVED, and this word is rendered perceived, except when its form is in the complete or perfect tense, denoting the condition which follows an act, rather than the act itself. Then it is more agreeable to the English idiom to render it be aware or be acquainted. This, however, is done consistently. It refers to knowledge gained experimentally, through the senses. Both terms occur in Rom. 7<sup>i</sup>, which should read "I had not been aware of coveting". He knew of it, but not in his own experience. So here, Paul is aware from personal experience that the law speaks to those who are under it. We, who have never been under it, know that this is so, but have never felt the force of it as they have.

2. as much as for what things soever] Although this word occurs over a hundred times, the A. V. never translates it "what things soever" in any other passage. In Romans they render it as many as (2<sup>12</sup>, twice; 8<sup>14</sup>), so many as (6<sup>3</sup>), as long as (7<sup>1</sup>), in as much as (11<sup>13</sup>). They render it as much as in Jn. 6<sup>11</sup>. Hence we have them for authority in our consistent rendering.

3. is saying for saith] Saith has become archaic.

4. is speaking for saith] As is shown in the sublinear, this is quite a different word from the saith immediately preceding. Why, then, render it the same? The A. V. itself translates it speak, as we do, 241 times. Only 15 times do they use say. There is often a decided difference between these words, as there is between our English say and talk, as when men talk much but say little. The contrast here is between the contents of the law and its application.

5. those for them] Them is archaic.

6. Omit who are] There is no necessity for adding these words.

7. bar for stop] The usual meaning of stop is to bring from motion to rest. The word here used signifies to block up, hinder, dam. It seems especially fit to use barred here, because it is used of a moral and legal hindrance.

8. the entire for all the] When the word EVERY is followed by a noun preceded by THE, in Greek, it changes the sense from EVERY world to the entire world, taken as a single unit. The word all is used with the plural in English and fails to convey the idea of unity which is enforced here.

9. subject to the just verdict for guilty before] The A. V. rendering "guilty before God" has been challenged by almost every translator and commentator. It is certainly not correct, for the Greek word here used does not tell us whether the verdict is "guilty" or "not guilty". The Revisers have tried to indicate this by rendering "may be brought under the judgment of God". This, however, suggests an adverse judgment, even if it does not express it. It is unfortunate also, in that the word judgment is always associated with an entirely different term, and should never be linked with the word here used.

The apostle's argument has developed the fact that the entire world, Jews as well as gentiles, are subject to the just verdict of God. They have been tried, but the verdict waits. It has not been pronounced. Only in the case of those who believe is the Judge's decision given out, but in their case it is "not guilty", rather than "guilty". They are acquitted, or vindicated, or justified by His grace through the deliverance in Christ Jesus.

It is manifestly absurd to pronounce all "guilty" and then immediately, without any further explanation, pronounce believers "not guilty". The A. V. rendering is without foundation in the Greek, it is contrary to the apostle's argument, it is subversive of the grand doctrine of justification. One who is guilty cannot be justified. He may be pardoned or forgiven, but to justify a guilty person is to become a partner in his crimes. God is just, as well as a Justifier. He holds the entire world subject to His just verdict, and never, under any circumstances, does aught but vindicate any one who believes Him.

The A. V. rendering has given us a false impression of God's attitude toward the world. It creates a condition where justification is impossible. It has effectually robbed the saints of the truth of justification and substituted for it remission or pardon, which alone is possible for those who are guilty.

The value of this version lies in large measure in the fact that its foundation principles make it possible to translate beyond the translator's comprehension. His understanding or misunderstanding will not necessarily bar others from the truth. The common version, "guilty before God", is terse, vigorous English, which cannot be misunderstood. In fact, the translator himself was convinced that the sentence in this case was always "guilty" and he would assuredly have rendered it so if he had not been held in check by the law which does not allow him to import into a word what it does not contain in the Greek. A study of UNDER-JUST made it evident that it was the legal term for those subject to the decision of a judge, but it does not, in itself, give the slightest hint whether the verdict is for or against. It was not until after this reading had been challenged that the truth dawned on the mind of the translator. He was wrong in supposing that, in this passage, it amounted to the same as "guilty".

Thus it is the aim of the C. V. to give a clear transcript of the scriptures, so that earnest students will not be hampered by the limitations of the translator, but may discover what he has overlooked, but which he has endeavored to leave open for those who may have a keener insight into the truth.

10. because for therefore] Nowhere else does the A. V. render this therefore. Ten times they translate it because. They themselves are ten to one for this rendering. It does not introduce a new conclusion, but gives the reason for the previous statement. The world is subject to the just verdict of God because law fails to provide any ground for justification. The Revisers changed to because.

11. Omit the before works] It is not in the Greek, and English usage corresponds to Greek in this case. See 13 below. The Revised margin omits it.

12. Works for deeds] The A. V. has this very phrase works of law in Ro.9<sup>32</sup> Ga. 2<sup>16</sup>. Why change it here? The Revisers have corrected this. Deeds is the equivalent of another term, associated with the verb do. "Deeds of the law" suggests that the law itself is the actor, rather than that which characterizes the action.

13. Omit the before law] This is important. Throughout this passage and elsewhere the law [of Moses] is distinguished from the principle of law in general by means of the word THE. The statement here is a broad one. No one, either Jew or gentile under the dictates of conscience, can be justified by law, for through law (not the law of Moses only) is the recognition of sin. The A. V. has entirely obscured this vital point throughout this passage. The Revisers omit the in their margin.

14. Omit there] The Revisers also omit this useless addition.

15. through for by] The A. V. usually renders this word through. By is the efficient agent rather than the channel. The Revisers suggest through in their margin.

16. Omit the] See 13.

17. recognition for knowledge] The A. V. have recognized the special force of this word — ON-KNOWLEDGE — in Mt.14<sup>35</sup>, "when the men of that place had knowledge of Him", that is, recognized Him. So also Mk.6<sup>33</sup>, 54; Lu.24<sup>16</sup>, 31, etc. The law gives us a standard by which we can recognize sin.

18. Yet for but] The A. V. translates another disjunctive but 572 times. The word here used is much weaker than our but. In verse 19 the A. V. renders it Now. The C. V. renders it now and yet. It would be awkward to translate it now here, for it would read "Now now".

19. apart from for without] The Revisers agree in this change. Without means outside of. In Jn. 20<sup>7</sup> the handkerchief was not without the tomb, but in a place apart.

20. Omit the] With the Greek text we omit the. It is not the law of Moses merely but the wider principle of law which is intended.

21. Omit the] The righteousness of God" is too personal and narrow. The article is omitted in the Greek. It is a divine righteousness, for us as well as God. The Revisers made this correction.

22. has been for is manifested] The A. V. has rendered this very form of this word "hath appeared" (Heb.9<sup>s</sup>), showing that they recognized that it represents a state consequent on an action rather than a continuous action. Whenever the initial sound of a Greek verb is doubled, as in this case, the verb is in what may be called the perfect or complete tense, signifying the result of an action rather than the action itself. The Revisers have hath been.

23. testified to for witnessed] Witness is no longer used with an object in this sense. Testify to has replaced it in modern English.

22 Yet a righteousness of God,
Even the righteousness of God through Jesus Christ's faith, for all, which is by faith of Jesus Christ, unto and on all who are believing, for all and upon all them that believe: for there is no distinction,
there is no difference:

23 For all sinned and are wanting
For all have sinned, and come of the glory of God,
short of the glory of God;

24. yet for even] This is the same word which the A. V. translated but at the beginning of this paragraph, and we rendered yet. The word is a disjunctive, not a conjunctive, as even.

25. a for the] As 21.

26. Omit which is] It is without warrant and unnecessary. The Revisers also omit these words.

27. through for by] As 15 above. The Revisers make this change.

28. for for unto] The A. V. translates this word into 571 times, and idiomatically for, 87 times. Thus we are amply justified in our sublinear into, and the version for. The unto and upon suggests a distinction which does not exist, as though it came up to or as far as all, but only upon all who believe. In both cases it is the believer who is in question. It is into or for him and is on him.

29. on for upon] The A. V. renders this word both on and upon, without any apparent cause.

30. who for them that] Them that is not in good form. The A. V. uses who for this very phrase in Eph. 1<sup>19</sup>.

31. are believing for believe] The A. V. renders this form believed (Ac. 22<sup>19</sup>), believe (Ro. 3<sup>22</sup> 1 Co. 12<sup>1</sup>), do believe (1 Pt. 1<sup>21</sup>). It is evident that they had no system. We distinguish between the indefinite form (usually called the aorist) and the present active, which is used here.

32. distinction for difference] The A. V. uses distinction in 1 Co. 14<sup>7</sup>. There are many differences between men, even as to their sins. The Revisers make this change.

33. sinned for have sinned] The margin of the Revision suggests this change. Have sinned suggests a present state, the equivalent of being sinners. We who are justified sinned in the past, but, being acquitted, are no longer in the condition of those who have sinned. This distinction is important, especially when we realize the full import of justification.

34. are wanting for come short] The A. V. has only once again "come short" (Heb. 4<sup>1</sup>). In that characteristic occurrence (Lu. 15<sup>14</sup>) the prodigal began to be in want. See also 2 Co. 11<sup>9</sup>. Paul was in want. So here it is not that our efforts fail to reach the divine standard, but our condition is one of want.

24 Being justified gratuitously by Being justified freely by His grace through the deliverance
His grace through the redemption which is in Christ Jesus that is in Christ Jesus:

35. gratuitously for freely] The A. V. freely no longer has the sense of a gift, but now means liberally, abundantly. Gratuitously is the only English word which adequately conveys the causelessness of this gracious gift.

36. deliverance for redemption] The A. V. consistently translates the usual word for redemption (Lu. 1<sup>68</sup>; 2<sup>38</sup>; Heb. 9<sup>12</sup>) and the C. V. does the same. The word here used, however, is a strengthened form which they on one occasion, render happily by deliverance (Heb. 11<sup>35</sup>). This is used uniformly in the C. V. Its aptness can only be appreciated by seeing it in all its contexts.

25 (Whom God purposed for a Pro-cause of the passing over of the pen-the remission of sins alty of sins which occurred before in that are past, through the forbearance of God)

the forbearance of God;

37. purposed for set forth] This word may mean "set forth", but the connection indicates a past act with a present point, which is better satisfied by the usual rendering purposed. Thus it is always elsewhere in the A. V.

38. Propitiatory for propitiation] The A. V. correctly and consistently renders propitiation in its two occurrences (1 Jn. 2:24<sup>10</sup>). But this is a different form which they have translated mercy seat in its only other occurrence (Heb. 9<sup>5</sup>). It should, consequently, be mercy seat here, or better, Propitiatory, to preserve its connection with propitiation. This is not the act, but the place of propitiation, the meeting place of God with man. The propitiatory was sprinkled with blood, hence God could meet man between the cherubim. The passage is concerned with justification and a common ground where both God and man can be just. This is the blood stained Mercy Seat—the Propitiatory.

39. for for to] Very rarely indeed does the A. V. translate this word to, though it occurs hundreds of times.

40. a display for declare] This is a noun, not a verb. Elsewhere they translate it evident token (Phil. 1<sup>28</sup>) and proof (2 Co. 8<sup>24</sup>). The Revisers have changed it to show. The word display fits all of its occurrences better than the variety of the A. V. The evident thought is that God wishes to show openly that He is just.

41. of is added] The word righteousness is in the case which the A. V. usually indicates by prefixing of as in Ro. 4:15<sup>17</sup>.

42. because of for for] The A. V. often has this because of. The Revisers have changed it to this.

43. passing over for remission] This is quite a different term from remission elsewhere in the A. V. It does not involve nearly so much. Sin's penalty was not remitted before the sacrifice of Christ. It was merely covered or passed over. The use of remission here is a serious defect which was remedied by the Revisers.

44. the is added] The Revisers insert the here to define the particular sins or penalty referred to. It is in the Greek.

45. penalty of sins for sins] The word here rendered sin by the A. V. has a special ending which changes it from sin to the effect of sin. This is clearly seen in 1 Co. 6:18 where the penalty of sinning, not sin itself, is demanded by the context. It was the divine penalty of sins which was passed over when the sacrifices were offered in connection with the law.

46. which occurred before for that are past] The Greek, as shown by the sub-linear, is BEFORE-HAVING-BECOME. The A. V. is a loose paraphrase, which has led us to think that the apostle is speaking of our past sins as individuals. The Revisers have changed it to done aforetime, rather old-fashioned phraseology for a modern version, and almost as loose as the A. V.

47. in for through] The Revisers change this to in, as it should be.

26 Toward the display of His
To declare, I say, at this time His righteousness in the current era, for righteousness: that He might be Him to be just and a Justifier of the just, and the justifier of him one who is of the faith of Jesus.
which believeth in Jesus.

48. toward for to] The A. V. to declare suggests that this is a repetition of the same phrase in the previous verse. It is not. The connection here is quite different. The A. V. translates it toward in other places.

49. display for declare] See 40. The italicized "I say" is also omitted.

50. of added] See 41.

51. in for at] The A. V. translates this connective in, 1853 times, at, 106 times.

52. current for this] This is the usual word for now, which we translate current when the English idiom will not bear the usual rendering. The word this is too indefinite.

53. era for time] This is not the word usually translated time in the A. V. They often render it season. The Revisers have changed it to this. But it is better to speak of the present era than the present season, for the latter is used only of a short period of time, and the era here referred to has run nearly two millenniums already.

54, 55, 56. for Him to be for that He might be] There is no warrant for the word might and the idea of contingency. It is the simplest form of the verb to be, as the A. V. itself is witness (Ro. 12<sup>2</sup>). If this were turned back into Greek an entirely different phrase would be the result. That is the same word which they made unto in verse 22 and to in verse 25, which we have consistently given as for. He is in the objective case, Him.

57. a for the] It is His character as a Justifier which is pressed here. The insertion of the, which is not in the Greek, interferes rather than helps.

58. one who for him which] The Greek is simply THE in the singular, and though usually listed as masculine, is applied to both genders in common. Hence it is not well to limit this to the masculine him. No one would defend the which, though the Revisers retained it.

59. of faith for believeth] A reference to the sublinear will show that this is not a verb, believe, but a noun, belief. The A. V. has deliberately altered the sense of this passage, making our believing in Jesus the basis of justification instead of Jesus Christ's faith, as in verse 22. The point is that it is not His keeping the law which made Him a fit Propitiatory where we could meet God and be justified, but His faith which led Him far beyond the law's demands, in faith obedience, even to the death of the cross. From this faith springs justification. It is out of this faith for our faith (Ro. 11<sup>7</sup>). Whatever we may believe on this point, we are not warranted in deliberately altering the text to suit, as the A. V. has done.

60. of for in] See 59. The in is absent in the Greek.

27 Where, then, is boasting? It is Where is boasting then? It is debarred! Through what law? Of excluded. By what law? of works? No! but through faith's law.
works? Nay: but by the law of faith.

61. debarred for excluded] Literally this is LOCKED-OUT. Exclude is a mild term more suited to another Greek word. We no longer speak of excluding boasting. Usage and elegance are both better satisfied with debarred.

62, 63. through for by] As English will bear through as well as by, it is better to use the more precise term as in verse 20, and so distinguish this phrase from by the law in verse 21.

28 For we are reckoning mankind

Therefore we conclude that a man to be justified by faith apart from is justified by faith without the works of law.
deeds of the law.

64. for for therefore] The A. V. follows a different reading here, which is given in the superlinear as THEN. The better reading, which we follow, they have translated for 992 times.

65. we are reckoning for we conclude] Only here has the A. V. used conclude. Elsewhere they render number, account, count, reason, think, suppose, esteem, etc., and reckon (Ro. 4.4, 10611818). The tense is present active, not indefinite.

66. mankind for a man] This is not the word for a man as distinct from a woman, but a human being of either sex. This cannot always be expressed in English, as it has no noun corresponding to human except mankind and humanity.

67. to be for that . . . is] Why change the Greek when the same construction yields good sense in English? Besides there may be a subtle distinction which our dull minds fail to grasp.

68. apart from for without] See 19.

69, 70. Omit the twice] The works of the law confines the statement to the Jew and the law of Moses. The Greek omits both the's in order to include the principle of law wherever found.

The point we wish to press in this comparison with the Authorized Version is that, to a large degree, our work can claim the "authority" of these translators for the very variations which distinguish it from theirs. Their work was loose, with little system or order. We use much the same material but dispose it in accord with the fundamental law of language that the same word should always be used to express a given idea.

We wish also to show that, however much we may revere the version to which we are bound by ties of sentiment, there is real need for another. Everyone must acknowledge that some of these seventy corrections are vital, and that most of them are desirable. Very few of them can be questioned, because the translators of the Authorized have themselves set their seal to most of the corrections by their renderings in other passages.

There are at least seven improvements of vital value in this short passage. They affect our enjoyment of justification, our attitude toward law, our apprehension of the place of Christ Jesus as the Propitiatory, and His part in procuring justification. If the rest of the seventy seem unimportant, these alone ought to convince us of the vital value of a version based on a concordance rather than on human scholarship.

THE STANDARDS AND ELEMENTS

The great value of standards in the multitudinous affairs of life is gaining recognition. If the English alphabet were not standardized, few would be able to read these lines. If building material were not made to feet and inches the cost and confusion would be staggering. How much we owe to standard measures and weights and money is beyond estimate. The value of the CONCORDANT VERSION is largely due to the system of standards to which all is referred.

WORD ANALYSIS

At first it was thought sufficient to assign each word a standard English equivalent. Much as this helped, it fell far short of our ideal. So the whole vocabulary of the Greek scriptures was analyzed into its Elements, and to each of these was assigned a STANDARD. Thus, for example, two elements, FROM and COVERING, in combination, became FROM-COVERING, with a secondary standard, unveiling. Whenever possible, these elementary STANDARDS, which are printed in SMALL CAPITALS, appear in the sublinear, beneath the Greek word, commencing under its initial letter. They will be found delightfully suggestive and profitable.

The elementary standards, in SMALL CAPITALS, will associate a word, in the English reader's mind, with a host of relatives which only a Greek scholar would have otherwise observed. Thus the element FROM, in "unveiling", links it with scores of other words which also contain this element, but which have no visible relation to "unveiling" in English. There are about eleven hundred word-elements in the vocabulary of the Greek scriptures, besides the grammatical elements. These are used in many combinations to form the vocabulary which God has hallowed as His chosen means of revealing Himself.

The reverent reader will make many delightful discoveries as he notes the Elements of which words are formed. For example, the distinction between repentance and regret becomes clear when we see that the first is after-MIND, and the latter after-CARE.

It has not always seemed best to put the primary standard in the sublinear, for it could not be so readily understood as a secondary form. Thus UN-MARK, meaning miss the mark, has been uniformly replaced by "miss", with "sin" in the version. In a very few cases both primary and secondary standards have been used, as "after", for WITH, for this is its meaning when used with the accusative case, and "make" for DO in cases where DO would not be intelligible. A reference to the Concordance or Elements, in the companion volume to the Version, will make such points plain. One who wishes to study the standards should use the Concordance diligently, and in a short time he will be thinking the language of the scriptures just as though he were a Greek of the first century, even though he may not know a letter of the language.

A WORD FAMILY

As an example we will give the whole family of words which have the element ACT, and the resulting English words, as they appear in the Concordance. It will repay reading.

ACT, work, (verb)
 ACT, work, trade, (noun)
 ACTER, worker ACTION, vocation, income, make a business of
 ABOUT-ACT, meddle
 ABOUT-ACTER, meddler, meddling art
 DEFT-ACT, knavery
 DEFT-ACT-effect, knavery
 DOWN-ACT, effect, produce
 DOWN-UN-ACT, DOWN-idle, abolish, abrogate, discard, exempt, become inert, nullify, vanish, waste
 EVERY-ACTING, crafty
 EVERY-ACTION, craftiness
 EVIL-ACTER, malefactor
 GOOD-ACT, do good act
 GRAPE-VINE-ACTER, vineyardist
 HOME-ACTER, worker at home
 IN-ACT, operate
 IN-ACT-effect, operation
 IN-ACTING, active, operative
 IN-ACTION, operation
 LAND-ACT, farm
 LAND-ACTER, farmer
 PEOPLE-ACT, officiate, minister
 PEOPLE-ACT, officiation, ministry
 PEOPLE-ACTER, officer, minister
 PEOPLE-ACTIC, official, ministering
 PUBLIC-ACTER, architect
 SACRED-ACT, act as a priest
 TOGETHER-ACT, work together, fellow worker TOGETHER-ACTER, fellow worker TOGETHER-UNDER-ACT, assist together TOWARD-ACT, earn
 UN-ACT, be idle, inactive
 UN-ACTIVE, idle, inactive
 WELL-ACT, be a benefactor
 WELL-ACTER, benefactor
 WELL-ACTION, benefaction

GRAMMATICAL STANDARDS

We confidently assert that the grammatical standards have so simplified Greek grammar and have made it so comfortably accessible to students that no one of average intelligence need fear to attempt a study of this glorious speech of inspiration. This can be done by means of the GREEK COURSE and GRAMMATICAL ELEMENTS published in the companion volume. The assignment of an English standard equivalent to every grammatical form and the tests to which these have been submitted in actual practice has corrected the confusion into which the subject has fallen, and is by far the simplest, sanest and most satisfactory means of mastering this matter, which is popularly supposed to be most difficult.

There is an analytical Greek Testament which has an analysis of all the verbs in the margin. In this, for instance, opposite Ro. 15<sup>15</sup> we find "εγραψα aor. 1 ind., γραφῶ." The words in italics are in modern Greek characters which many do not know. "Aor." for aorist is foreign to most intelligent Bible readers. And "Aor. 1" needs a deal of learning to properly interpret. "Ind." for indicative ought to be easily understood. But how much easier it is to turn to the CONCORDANT VERSION and find that this word is I-WRITE. Of course, it comes from the element WRITE. Any one knows that is indefinite indicative, even though he does not understand these terms.

Each grammatical form is given a corresponding English STANDARD. This model simplifies matters much for those who do not take kindly to abstruse grammatical terms.

Number—When the plural is not fixed by the form of the English the italic letter p is added to it.

Person—First person, I and WE; second, you and YE; third person singular is usually apparent from the form of the English verb, plural THEY. The third person singular is it, he, or she, according to the context.

Case—The nominative and the objective cases take the place of the nominative and the accusative in Greek. The genitive case, which denotes source or character, answering the question whence? is noted by prefixing of-. The dative case, which denotes rest in, or location, answering the question where? is indicated by to-. The or- is understood after the connectives which denote origin, as THRU, FROM, etc. The to- is also omitted after characteristic connectives.

Gender—As this is usually of no import to the English reader, it will not always be found in the SUBLINEAR unless it has an English equivalent. When indicated, m is masculine, f is feminine, and c is common. The so-called neuter, or indefinite, forms really have no gender and are not marked.

Mood—The infinitive is rendered TO-, TO-WRITE. The indicative is I-AM-WRITING. The subjunctive uses I-MAY-BE-WRITING. The optative is MAY-I-WRITE. The imperative is WRITE and LET-him-WRITE. The participle ends in -ING, WRITING.

Tense—The so-called aorist or indefinite form is really not a tense at all, combining the marks of both past and future in its composition, unless it may be called a past-future. It corresponds with the indefinite present, I-WRITE. It is used of all three tenses in Ro. 8<sup>30</sup>: He designates beforehand (past), He calls and justifies (present), He glorifies (future).

The past is as ours, I-WROTE.

The present in Greek presents an action as actually under way, and is best rendered by the English present participle, I-AM-WRITING.

The future is marked by -SHALL- in the first person and -WILL- in the second and third. As it is a modification of the present it becomes I-SHALL-BE-WRITING, YOU- or he-WILL-BE-WRITING.

The complete or "perfect" tense denotes the state resulting from an action. The standard is I-HAVE-WRITTEN. English idiom often uses special forms, as, "what you bind on earth shall be binding (have been bound) in heaven" (Mt. 16<sup>19</sup>).

The past-complete, or "pluperfect", is I-HAD-WRITTEN.

Voice—The Active and Passive are I-WRITE, it-IS-WRITTEN. The Middle is indicated by the passive in italics, when it is not involved in the meaning of the word. Actions which affect the actor, as coming and going, have a special form in Greek. The LEXICON deals with each word separately.

It is common, in Greek grammars, to list many verbs which have the form of the Middle, as Passive. After a thorough investigation, we have fully satisfied ourselves that the form of a Greek verb determines its voice, and those which are Middle in form are actually Middle in usage. To call them Passive has no warrant and is unnecessarily confusing. This classification greatly simplifies the Greek verb. All the forms and their English standards will be given in full in the GRAMMAR.

As the method employed in this work has forced us to settle on standards which are not in full accord with current Greek grammars, we deem it our duty to offer a full explanation for at least one of the changes, so as to show why we differ. We have purposely chosen the most difficult problem of the Greek verb, for its solution should justify us when varying slightly on other points, without further explanation than that, in each case our position is practical, is under continuous test, and actually works.

THE GREEK AND ENGLISH INDEFINITE

To the casual critic, the renderings of the verbs in the CONCORDANT VERSION sometimes seem erratic and pedantic. Until one has become accustomed to them, the changes appear unreasonable and capricious, instead of being consistent or uniform. It is like one who steps out at night and stares at the stars, scattered hither and thither on the blue vault of heaven without any apparent system. Yet, just as the heavens are marvelous manifestations of order and law to the astronomer, so the patient student will find that the verbs are rendered in accordance with divine law, and seek to manifest the exactitude of the great Author of the sacred scrolls.

CONCORDANT VERBS CONSISTENT

The entire scheme of the CONCORDANT VERSION founds itself upon a desire for unvarying consistency in setting forth the mind of God. The Greek language is capable of expressing with precision the finest and most delicate shades of meaning. With proper care it is possible to set over into English most (if not all) of the excellences of the God-given original.

RESEARCHES IN GRAMMAR

In effecting a faithful reproduction of God's thoughts it was found necessary to consider each Greek word in all of its contexts in order to determine its scope and its most satisfactory English equivalent. A similar process, though more arduous, was called for and diligently performed, in arranging these words in a proper grammatical setting to accord with the language of inspiration.

The consideration of the nouns and adjectives did not present many very serious problems. The Greek verb, which tradition had invested with almost insuperable difficulties, required a great deal of preliminary analysis and dissection before it finally yielded up its complex structure. Certain forms of the verb were found to contain within themselves invariable signs of time, or tense, and state.

GRAMMATICAL CONFUSION IN TRANSLATION

At the first attempt to apply the prime principle of consistency to the rendering of the Greek verb, according to accepted grammatical doctrines, we soon found ourselves in clouds and chaos. This was especially true of the so-called Voices and Tenses. There seemed to be no correspondence between form and force. The Middle form was usually called Passive. The Aorist was either past, present or future. It seemed a hopeless task to create order out of such confusion.

This condition of affairs is recognized by the greatest scholars in this field, as the following facts and extracts from their writings show. The "Analytical Greek Lexicon", published by Bagster's, was first intended as a basis for our Analytical Concordance. But when one word was found which, in its three persons, I, you, and he, was listed first as a past and then as a present and also as a future, this work had to be discarded. If one form of a verb, differing only in the matter of personal endings, which do not affect the tense, can be rendered in all three tenses, there is an end of all significance to the Greek verb so far as time is concerned.

AN UNSOLVED PROBLEM

In "A Grammar of the Greek New Testament in the Light of Historical Research" Prof. Robertson has this to say regarding the translation of the Aorist into English: "The Greek Aorist ind., as can be readily seen, is not the exact equivalent of any tense in any other language. It has nuances all its own, many of them difficult or well nigh impossible to reproduce in English. We merely do the best we can in English to translate in one way or another the total result of a word, context and tense. Certainly one cannot say that the English translations have been successful with the Greek aorist . . . (Page 847). The English past will translate the Greek aorist in many cases where we prefer 'have' . . .

(Page 848). The Greek aorist and the English past do not exactly correspond. The Greek aorist covers much more ground than the English past. . . . The aorist in Greek is so rich in meaning that the English labors and groans to express it. As a matter of fact the Greek aorist is translatable into almost every English tense except the imperfect . . ." Again, "The aorist is, strictly speaking, timeless."

THE LATEST AUTHORITY

As this is the latest and most authoritative work on the grammar of the New Testament, it is evident that Dr. Weymouth's suggestion has not been deemed a satisfactory solution and that the translation of the aorist into English is in a most unsatisfactory state notwithstanding all the efforts of modern scholarship.

In view of this self-confessed failure, any attempt at the solution of so grave a defect in our method of translation should be welcomed and examined on its own merits.

THE REVISION NOT ENGLISH

Dr. Weymouth, in his pamphlet "On the Rendering into English of the Greek Aorist and Perfect" criticises the Revised Version for its treatment of the aorist. They regarded the aorist as referring to the past. Dr. Weymouth noted how often it makes poor English, and felt, in an indefinite way, that the aorist must not be confined to the past. He would have it rendered by the "perfect", as it often is in the Authorized Version, at the same time translating the perfect in this way as well. But if the aorist is I-HAVE-LOVED, and the perfect also is I-HAVE-LOVED, what is the difference between them? After all, the chief function of a translation is to preserve the distinctions of the original. If a painter should copy a picture of sheep and goats and draw them all alike, he may produce a pretty picture, but an unfaithful copy. There are sharp boundaries between all the forms of the Greek verb, as we shall see, and they should be distinguished as far as possible.

THE PERFECT AND AORIST

Weymouth pleads for the perfect as a rendering of the Greek aorist because it has a bearing on the present which the past has not. He protests that "it is too commonly believed and taught that the Greek Aorist Indicative . . . is equivalent to the Simple Past Tense in English (I wrote, I loved, I brought . . .)." He affirms that "the English Past, used according to the true English idiom, will largely fail to coincide with the Aorist . . ." He makes the startling discovery that we give the English Present the force of a Future, giving the following examples: "We start tomorrow," "The king comes to-night." He might have added the fact that this same "present" is used of the past also, as in "The king comes here since he was crowned."

He was on the verge of discovering that the English "Present" is not a present at all but a true past-future indefinite. He even gives examples where the present must be used, as, "The Chronicle states—", "Gibbons informs us—". The one instance he gives for the past in narrative is found in Acts 25:14: "Festus declared". But the Greek word here used has none of the characteristics of the true aorist at all except the sign of the past. Etheto is a simple past, and should be rendered "Festus submitted Paul's case to the king".

THE AORIST IS NOT THE PAST

To prove that the aorist is not a simple past he gives the following instances in which both the A. V. and the Revisers render it by the perfect: We add the C. V. rendering to show that it can usually be still better rendered by the so-called English "present".

Mt. 5<sup>21, 27</sup> Ye have heard that it was said
C. V. You hear that it was declared

Mk. 10<sup>20</sup> All these have I observed
C. V. All these I maintain

Rev. 14<sup>8</sup> Babylon is fallen, is fallen
C. V. It falls! It falls!—Babylon

The perfect limits the action to the past just as much as the past tense does. In these and all other instances of the aorist the action is not confined to the past.

AORIST MEANS INDEFINITE

Weymouth then makes the welcome admission that "aorist means indefinite, and we must bow to the authority of the Greek grammarians who held that name to be a suitable one . . .". This is precisely the point for which we contend.

He then gives examples where he thinks the aorist should be rendered by the pluperfect and the translators have so given it.

- Mt.12<sup>a</sup> As the angel had bidden him
 C. V. As the messenger bids him
 Mt.11<sup>1</sup> When Jesus had made an end
 C. V. When Jesus finishes
 Mt.26<sup>19</sup> As Jesus had appointed them
 C. V. As Jesus arranges with them
 Mt.27<sup>31</sup> When they had mocked Him
 C. V. And when they deride Him
 Mk.13<sup>2</sup> When the sun did set
 C. V. When the sun sets

The following is a step in the right direction: "The Aorist is often used where our idiom demands the Present . . . but this Gnomic Aorist (as in Jas. 11, "for the sun rises", etc.) and the Epistolary Aorist (2 Co.8<sup>18</sup>, "we send with him the brother") need not here be enlarged upon." Weymouth touches the true sense of the aorist here, but, alas, he did not enlarge upon it! He recognizes its use in the statement of general truths or proverbs (the Gnomic Aorist). The very fact that it can be used of things which are true at all times and that English uses the "present" for this purpose is sufficient to identify them.

Those who suppose that the English of our versions is beyond reproach will be shocked when he states that "the persistent rendering of the Greek Aorist by the English simple Past in the R. V. of the N. T. has one very undesirable effect—the translation is not English".

A DIFFICULT PROBLEM

Some conception of the difficulty of the problem before us is evident from the fact that Greek is one of the most difficult of languages, the verb is the most complex and elaborate part of Greek grammar, and of the verb the one unsolvable riddle has been the aorist. It is the most difficult of the most difficult. Yet we propose to make it so simple and easy that any one, with the understanding of an adult, will be able to grasp the essential facts, and thus open up a new and still unknown vista in God's revelation to readers of the English language.

A SIMPLE EXPLANATION

It should be understood that this attempt to explain the aorist is not intended primarily for scholars, but for the "unlearned and ignorant". Everything has been done with a view to making it so easy to understand that it will readily come within the range of the average intellect.

VERBAL STANDARDS

In planning a consistent version it is manifest that one of the most vital elements is the rendition of each verbal form by a fixed English equivalent. To investigate the possibility of such a course the verb was analyzed into all its forms and each was given its nearest English equivalent. In assigning these, the first form dealt with was the incomplete present. The tendency at first was to assign to it the so-called English "present", the simplest form of the verb, as I-LOVE. But repeated experiments showed the inadequacy of this form to express the fact that the action was actually in progress. For this, English has the special form, I-AM-LOVING, the "participial present". Exhaustive tests showed that this was the true equivalent of the so-called Greek "present", though the strenuous tendency of our idiom to shorten all forms often demands the indefinite.

THE ENGLISH INDEFINITE

After all the other forms had been assigned and tested, the indefinite past-future, or aorist, remained. What could be used for it? Nothing was left but the so-called English "present", as, I-LOVE, and it dawned upon the mind of the investigator that its name was a misnomer—it was not restricted to the present at all, but it, too, was indefinite, just like the Greek "aorist". We have named it the English aorist. Exhaustive tests have proved the correctness of this conclusion, and years of use in compiling the Version have confirmed the fact that the English "present" is a very close equivalent of the Greek "aorist". True, there are passages where it seems odd at first, but close investigation shows it to be correct, and when the initial queerness vanishes, it leaves a delightful sense of clearer vision into the realms of truth.

SEGREGATION NEEDED

The difficulties in regard to the aorist "tense" arise in part from the fact that a heterogeneous mass of forms are huddled together, either as "first" or "second" aorists, some of which have little in common except the name given to them by grammarians. We propose, then, to limit the present discussion to the true aorist, which we will presently define, and, to avoid confusion of thought, we will call this aorist by the equivalent English term—indefinite.

The indefinite form, in Greek, consists of verbs which have E—, the augment of the past, prefixed (or its equivalent), the symbol of the future (—C—) between the stem and the personal ending (or some compensation in the preceding vowel), and the connecting vowel (or ending) —A (except in the third person). The essential elements are

The student of Greek will understand that, for the sake of simplicity, the augment is always spoken of as a prefix E— though in practise it is often indicated by the lengthening of the initial vowel. The future —C— is understood, even when, for euphony's sake, it is represented by changes in the stem.

THE INDEFINITE DEFINED

The indefinite changes an act into a fact. It transforms deeds into truth. "John baptized in water" is a bald statement of an historical occurrence. "John baptizes in water" indicates the essential character of his ministry. It locates his action, not in the course of time, but in the wider sphere of truth.

When Peter charges the house of Israel with the crucifixion of Christ, it is not simply the act but the attitude which he condemns. "You have crucified" was true; "you crucify" is truth (Ac.2<sup>36</sup>).

AN ILLUMINATING DISCOVERY

Here we have a hitherto hidden combination to the great depository of divine truth. We do not need to guess in order to distinguish what is true, but transient, from that which is truth and permanent. God has deposited the truth in the indefinite. If we but glance at such high unfoldings as are found in the first chapter of Ephesians, this fact will force itself upon us. Like a string of pearls we read (Eph. 1) of the One Who blesses us (verse 3), Who chooses us (4) and designates us (5) and graces us (6) and lavishes on us (8), Who makes known to us (9) the secret of His will. Read the passage in the CONCORDANT VERSION at least a dozen times to wear off the strangeness, meditate on its unlimited scope in time, the aptness of its present application as well as its past and future place, then suddenly change the tense to the past and see what a chill falls upon the whole. Then change the verbs to the present incomplete, Who is blessing, Who is choosing, etc., and see how the thought shrinks.

THE PERFECT NOT SUITABLE

The translators of the Authorized Version felt this and tried to express it by the perfect or complete tense, hath blessed, hath chosen, etc. This, however, confines all action to the past, and denotes the condition consequent on that action. It is as though a father gave his son all that was coming to him and left him to make what he could of it. It puts God's active efforts for us into the past and leaves but a passive interest for the present and future. This is the very opposite of the truth and contrary to God's purpose, which is to draw us nearer to Himself by a constant flow of blessing. He does not start us off to go on alone. It is true that He has blessed us. But it is truth that He blesses us now and in the future as well.

To one whose eyes have been opened to see it, there is an exquisite beauty in this. God fills the whole horizon. His immanence is everywhere. He is not behind or before, but both. His care for us can be traced in His purpose and its accomplishment.

ENGLISH IDIOM

True, some of the expressions seem strange to those accustomed to stereotyped English phraseology. We would say He chose us, in the past. At first we miss the precious fullness of the fact that His choice of us is not affected by time or circumstance. He chooses us today and will choose us in all the eons to come. It is not a mere act in the past which may be repudiated should His attitude toward us change. It is a fact for all time. It is a guarantee that His gracious dealings with us do not alter. Time cannot modify nor state impair His settled beneficence toward the objects of His affection.

FIVE METHODS OF PROOF

We depend upon five distinct lines of evidence for our conclusion that the Greek "aorist" is indefinite as to state and tense, and corresponds to the so-called "present", as I-LOVE, in English.

Our first witness is the meaning of the word "aorist". This name was given to it by the ancients, who used this form continually in their conversation and literature, and who ought to have known what to call it. It comes from two Greek elements, A- UN-, and -OP- (or) SEE. As -OP- was usually preceded by the h sound, the verb horizō (see) is almost the same as our word "horizon". This gives us the true thought—without a horizon, indefinite.

THE AORIST IS INDEFINITE

Strange as it may seem, notwithstanding this form's name means indefinite, the usual definition in Greek grammars is "a definite action, complete in itself". Such works as Newberry's Bible indicate it by a dot, and explain it as "a point in the expanse of time". As, however, many forms were added to it which were in reality a primitive past tense (called the "second" aorist), it is usually translated by means of the past tense, as, I-LOVED. As the indefinite covers the past, this confusion of forms has strengthened the idea that it is, in some way, a past tense.

SIGNS OF INDEFINITENESS

Our second proof lies in the correspondence between the connecting vowel of the aorist and abstract nouns. If the vowel —A- is given to nouns to make them indefinite, it is striking, to say the least, that the personal endings of the aorist indicative and middle are, with few exceptions, this same letter.

The fact that the same analogy exists between nouns in —MA, which stand for the effect of an action, and the perfect or complete form of the verb, which also denotes the effect of an action, goes far to establish the connection between the indefinite nouns and verbs.

THE E— OF THE PAST

Our third reason for clinging to the ancient definition is found in the formation of all true indefinite verbs. It should be understood that Greek has a very simple yet effective method of indicating the past. It seems to be almost a matter of instinct which leads them to precede past action by the prefixed E—. In English, regular verbs add —ed to obtain the same effect. Thus call is changed to the past by adding —ed, called. The present and past of call (Greek kal) would be

ΚΑΛΕΩ
I-AM-CALLING

THE —C- OF THE FUTURE

Another easy method is employed in indicating the future. An C (corresponding to our letter S) was inserted as a link letter just before the personal endings. Where we must use the auxiliaries shall or will they simply inserted a sibilant sound near the end of the verb to change it to the future form. We say "I shall call", or "you will call", but they needed only to insert one letter, thus:

ΚΑΛΕΩ
I-AM-CALLING

ΚΑΛΕ CΩ
I'LL-BE-CALLING

A PAST-FUTURE TENSE

The striking and distinctive feature of all true aorists is that they contain the signs of past and future. It is difficult to illustrate this in English, for shall wrote is ridiculous. We cannot will called any one. Our tenses will not blend. The real reason is that we have no need for such combinations, for we also have a true aorist or indefinite form in English, as, I-WRITE, which is misnamed the "present". In Greek the word call will be as follows:

I-CALLED

ΚΑΛΕCΩ
I'LL-BE-CALLING

I-CALL

THE TEST OF USAGE

Our fifth, the final and conclusive proof that the "aorist" is indefinite and corresponds to our "present", is its application to test passages of scripture. If we find that it gives the true sense, that it removes difficulties, that it corresponds with the context, then let us gladly accept it. If, however, it creates difficulties, confuses the sense and wars with the context, then let us be rid of it. But we should not let our stereotyped mannerisms, which are a sign of the decadence of the English language, lead us to reject the truth. We are after sense, not sound. We want our hearts instructed, not our ears tickled.

THE VARIETIES OF THE VERB

The Greek verb (and the English as well) varies its form to indicate the state as well as the time of an action. It tells us whether the action is going on, or indefinite, or completed. So much stress has been laid upon the time element, in English grammar, that the state has been largely overlooked. The difference between I-WROTE and I-WAS-WRITING, both past, I-WRITE and I-AM-WRITING, both present, and I-SHALL-WRITE and I-SHALL-BE-WRITING, both future, receives but little consideration.

STATE IS INDICATED BY —A—

The state of an action, in Greek, is indicated by the form of the endings. Nouns in —A, using the —A— as a connecting vowel, are either abstract or denote the effect of an action. By adding —eia to the root for TRUE (alēth) we get TRUTH (alētheia). Add it to KING (basil) we get KINGDOM (basileia), to SLAVE (doul) gives SLAVERY (douleia).

The effect of an action, denoted by the ending —MA in nouns (as krima, the effect of judging, a sentence, or thelēma, will, as the effect of willing), has its counterpart in the so-called “perfect” or complete verb, which also registers the effect, or state consequent on an action. It has the vowel —A. Any one can see the close relationship between I-HAVE-JUDGED, and a JUDGMENT or sentence. Both indicate the state consequent on a past action. Hence both the noun and the verb have A in the ending.

THE ABSTRACT IDEA

The same correspondence may be traced between the true aorist, or indefinite, and that class of nouns which denote the abstract idea. Thus, both I-SLAVE (edouleusa) and SLAVERY (douleia) fail to call to mind any specific act, but suggest rather the abstract fact based on a series of acts. Such words almost always have A as a connecting vowel or end.

We may conclude, then, that the indefinite connecting vowel —A— suggests the abstract idea, that it is, in fact, as well as name, indefinite. It does not denote any specific act, or, if used of such, includes other such acts within its range. I-HAVE-WRITTEN and have a manuscript to prove it. I-AM-WRITING at this very moment. These are definite, and refer to distinct acts. I-WRITE, however, may refer to any act, or all.

As the passive endings are practically the verb TO-BE, which is itself indefinite, the connecting vowel —A— is not necessary.

Verbs change to indicate both state and time

PAST	PRESENT	FUTURE
Ε—		—C
INDEFINITE, the fact merely
Ε—ON I—ED	Ε—CA I—	[lacking] I'LL—
INCOMPLETE, going on, —ING
Ε—Ω I—WAS—ING	—Ω I—AM—ING	—CΩ I'LL—BE—ING
COMPLETE, the consequent condition, HAVE or HAD
Ε—R—KΕIN I—HAD—ED	R—KA I—HAVE—ED	[lacking] I'LL—HAVE—

As set forth in the table, verbs change their form to indicate the state as well as the time of an action. Any of these three states may be past, present or future. An action may be looked at as going on, hence is incomplete. I-WAS-LOVING, I-AM-LOVING, I-SHALL-BE-LOVING, all denote an action in progress. An action may be considered as performed, or complete, leaving a resultant condition. This we usually call the “perfect”. I-HAD-LOVED, I-HAVE-LOVED, I-SHALL-HAVE-LOVED, all put the action behind them and deal with the state consequent on the action.

THE INDEFINITES

The remaining class denote neither the progress nor the effect of an action. I-LOVED differs from I-WAS-LOVING and I-HAVE-LOVED in treating the action simply as a past fact without a definite occurrence or result. Perhaps another verb would be clearer. I-WORKED at printing in my youth. I-WAS-WORKING at printing when God called me. Transpose the verbs and note the result: I-WAS-WORKING at printing in my youth. I-WORKED at printing when God called me. The indefinite past “in my youth” demands the simple indefinite I-WORKED. The definite past “when God called me” calls for a definite verb, I-WAS-WORKING.

The same is true of the future. I-SHALL-WORK at printing for a livelihood. This is true at any future time. I-SHALL-BE-WORKING at printing when this is being printed. This defines the action as going on at some particular time.

THE INDEFINITE OR "AORIST"

We have now considered all the forms in the table except the one which is denoted by the formula E—C—A—. It occurs under the heading INDEFINITE, and is translated simply I-LOVE, or I-WORK. It is under the column-heading PRESENT, but it also invades the sphere of both the PAST and FUTURE. It is, in fact, a PAST-FUTURE. As this makes it indefinite as to time as well as to state, it is doubly indefinite. So we will call it simply the INDEFINITE.

INCLUDES ALL STATES AND TENSES

Consider the scope of the simple statement, I-LOVE. It may include any or all the other states and tenses! If I-WAS-LOVING, I-AM-LOVING, I-SHALL-BE-LOVING, I-LOVED, I-SHALL-LOVE, I-HAD-LOVED, I-HAVE-LOVED, or I-SHALL-HAVE-LOVED, then I-LOVE. It is at home in any condition at any date. It ignores both time and state. Test this conclusion (which is, generally speaking, quite as true in the Greek forms as in the English) with other words, such as WORK or BELIEVE. I-WORK at printing though, at the present moment I-AM-WORKING on an article dealing with the aorist. I-HAVE-WORKED at printing for nearly forty years. I-SHALL-WORK at it in the future. The one word I-WORK covers all the ground. So, I-BELIEVE God, that is, I-HAVE-BELIEVED, I-AM-BELIEVING, and I-SHALL-BE-BELIEVING — until faith vanishes in sight.

THE PAST-FUTURE SIGNS IN THE AORIST

The true aorist is not only indefinite as to state, but also as to time. This is incorporated into its form in a marvelously effective yet simple method. A glance at the column-headings in the table will show that the sign of the past is a prefixed E—. The sign of the future is —C—. The sign of the aorist, or past-future is a combination of both, or E—C—. No verb is a true indefinite which does not have these indications or their equivalent.

The presence of the signs of both past and future ought to settle the point so far as time is concerned. What form in English, except the simple present, as I-LOVE, refers to all time as this does? The perfect, I-HAVE-LOVED, will not do, for its action is confined to the past, its effect to the present. It has no direct bearing on the future.

THE TRUE AORIST FORMS

The following shows all the forms of the true aorist and the English equivalents, as they are set forth in the "ELEMENTS" of the CONCORDANT VERSION. The connecting vowel —A— is sometimes lacking or absorbed, and is not necessary in the passive, the endings of which are already indefinite.

THE PAST-FUTURE INDEFINITE VERB

Active	Middle	Passive
E—CA	E—CAMHN	E—CÖHN
I—	I— or I-am—ED	I-AM—ED
E—CAC	E—CÜ	E—CÖHC

TEST PASSAGES

Our final appeal is to the contexts in which the indefinite is found, in other words, to its usage in Holy Writ. We have already considered the opening sentence of Ephesians and noted the marvelous richness imparted to its transcendent doctrines by the unbounded scope of the indefinite. Now we will consider a few more texts, and then take up some words to confirm, if we can, the evidence we have already considered.

THE AORIST GIVES FACTS, NOT ACTS

For our first test we will take a text which refers to all time, past, present and future. In the A. V. Ro.8:30 reads as follows: "Moreover, whom He did predestinate, them He also called: and whom He called, them he also justified: and whom he justified, them he also glorified." This verse is full of difficulties to the close student. The "did predestinate" cannot be questioned, but how can Paul say that these were called (in the past) when Romans was penned? If this is strictly true, then we have no place in this scripture, for we were not called until the far future from that time.

WE WERE NOT GLORIFIED

The same difficulty applies to justification, but with far more force to glorification. If it was an error for some to teach that the resurrection was past already, why is the apostle allowed to teach that glorification, which is far more than resurrection, and includes it, is past? Of course, no one takes this as it stands, and thus this translation breeds that miserable habit of slovenly interpretation, in which all idea of accuracy and definiteness is decried. If glorified here means will glorify, then we have the best of reasons for suiting any tense of scripture to our own interpretation.

Now see how simply and grandly the whole passage responds to a true translation. "Now whom He designates beforehand, these He also calls, and whom He calls, these He also justifies: now whom He justifies, these He also glorifies." The whole transaction is taken out of time and circumstance into the higher realm of eternity and truth. There is now no confusion created by the time when the epistle was written. He justified some before that, He was justifying them then, He has been since and will be in the future. All this is concisely and elegantly embraced in the indefinite form, justifies.

And glorification, though future, is itself glorified when we receive it as a great truth, rather than as a future act. This rendering blends beautifully with the great thought of the chapter, and imparts permanence and majesty to God's method of drawing us to Himself.

DEATH HAS NOT BEEN ABOLISHED

Our next example has proven a hard puzzle to the greatest Bible scholars. They have written reams of "explanations" but the real difficulty remained. In 2 Ti.<sup>110</sup> the old version reads "Who hath abolished death . . ." With all due respect to the Bible, we may safely conclude from the sad evidence so abundant on every side, that death has not been abolished. It has been in the case of Christ. It will be for His own at His presence, and it will be for all at the consummation. The abolition of death is partly past but mostly future. How can we express this in English? By the very form by which we have chosen to render the Greek indefinite. All incongruity vanishes when we translate "Who, indeed, abolishes death . . ." Hath abolished will not be true until after death has been done away with as the last enemy (1Co.15<sup>26</sup>).

ALL DO NOT DIE

There is a negative test which proves our position as to the aorist, which supplies an interesting example. The statement "in Adam all die" (1Co.15<sup>22</sup>) was quite perturbing to the writer at one time, as he clings hopefully to the expectation of being alive at the Lord's presence and being changed without passing through death, as set forth in this very chapter (verse 52). It was a welcome relief for him when he noticed that die is not indefinite, but incomplete. It should be rendered are dying. This is strictly, literally, actually true, even of those who will not die when He comes. We surely may be pardoned if we are very fond of the correct rendering. The translation we once preferred has become most distasteful to us. Let us not be fascinated by the face, but edified by the heart of a rendering.

THE INDEFINITE PARTICIPLE

The verbal adjective or "participle" has no indefinite form in English, hence is especially difficult to translate. When preceded by the article, in the Greek, we can preserve the distinction thus: the [one]-calling may be rendered he who is calling, and, when indefinite, we may change it to he who calls. This effectually conveys the difference between them. The verbal ending -ING is especially expressive of incomplete present action, hence is not fitted to represent the indefinite Greek participle. It seems necessary to change it to a noun and express its verbal force by an auxiliary. As the participle is a verbal adjective, this is really a close method of translation.

THE PARTICIPLE WITHOUT THE ARTICLE

But when there is no article the case is not so readily solved. The nearest solution seems to be the addition of the indefinite when. There are times when the translator cannot ignore the distinct force of these forms. In Heb.<sup>610</sup> the sense of the final clause depends solely on drawing an accurate boundary between them. We cannot ignore the shade of difference and render this "serving the saints and serving". The old version attempts to define the difference thus: "in that ye have ministered to the saints and do minister". This rendering follows the interpretation, instead of guiding it. They sup- posed that the past and present acts of the Hebrews are before us and thus they produced a version which seemed to correspond closely with its context.

Its grave defect is that it has no bearing on the future. And this, of course, was especially on the writer's heart, for this is an exhortation. The true rendering broadens out the statement to its necessary extent. God will not forget when you serve—at any time in the past or future—and you are serving.

GOD LOVES (NOT LOVED) THE WORLD

Let us put our position to a different test. We will take the word "love" and discover, if we can, the distinction between the indefinite and other forms. Our first passage will be Jn.3<sup>16</sup>. The usual rendering is "God loved", which we change to "God loves". Which is best? Is God's love a thing of the past? Is God not loving the world now? Will He not love it in the future? Surely His love is timeless! He loved, He is loving, and He will be loving: in brief, He loves. Does not this appeal to our hearts as well as our heads? However precious the old text may be, is it not a thousand times more precious in the new form? Suppose it does offend our ears at first, is not the great spiritual gain worth some temporary pain?

CHRIST'S LOVE IS TIMELESS

Christ's love is like the Father's love. It is timeless. Hence we read (Jn. 15<sup>9</sup>): "According as the Father loves Me, I, also, love you." In contrast to this is the love of the saints for God, which is put in the present. "We are loving God, seeing that He first loves us" (1 Jn.4<sup>19</sup>). But, we hear our readers object, "The sentence is awkward; it does not balance. It should be the same form of the verb in both clauses. Either make it 'We love . . . He . . . loves . . . ' or 'We are loving . . . He . . . is loving.' The former is far preferable."

As the lack of "balance" is in the inspired original, the question is really not one of translation but of revelation. God did not "balance" the sentence. Shall we "improve" on His work? Or shall we let the "defect" appear in the English rendering? Shall we not rather break our jaws over the most cacophonous wilderness of words in the world, rather than disturb the very shading of truth? The sentence does not balance because it should not balance. God's love and man's are different in their quality. It is not a natural instinct but a divine compulsion which urges us to love Him.

GOD LOVES, WE ARE LOVING

Can we not see the beauty of His love in this contrast? Shall we not revel in the distinction drawn by our Lord when He charges His disciples: "A new precept am I giving to you, that you be loving one another, according as I love you, that you also be loving one another" (Jn.13<sup>34</sup>)? This distinction "cumbers" all of John's writings. We would always use the indefinite forms. But the very love which burns within us bids us tear off the veneer that hides the surpassing excellence of His affection, and raises it above the feeble flicker of our own.

MEN LOVE DARKNESS

This thought is further unfolded when the indefinite form is used of men. Though men do not love God, they love darkness rather than light (Jn.3<sup>19</sup>); they love the praise of other men (Jn.12<sup>43</sup>), they love the wages of unrighteousness (2 Pt.2<sup>15</sup>), they love their own souls (Un.12<sup>11</sup>). In contrast to this the Son of God loves righteousness (Heb.1<sup>9</sup>). The only time it is used of our love toward God it is in the negative: "Not that we love God, but that He loves us" (1 Jn.4<sup>10</sup>).

Further examples and contrasts are found in the following passages, which should help us to appreciate the surpassing love of God and of His Christ as well as the exquisite power of the aorist to express it (1 Jn.4<sup>11</sup>): "Beloved, if God loves us thus, we also ought to be loving one another." And again (Jn. 15<sup>12</sup>): "This is My precept, that you be loving one another, according as I love you." And (Eph.5<sup>25</sup>): "Husbands, be loving your wives according as Christ also loves the ecclesia. . ."

At first sight, the case of the woman who anointed our Lord's feet seems to be out of line with the indefiniteness of the aorist (Lu. 7<sup>47</sup>), for the Lord says "She loves much". Yet the near context shows that He does not refer specifically to her act, but to her character. Hence it should be in the aorist.

ALL THE EVIDENCE

The following references are given that those who wish it may have all the evidence. I love occurs in Jn.13<sup>34</sup> 15<sup>9,12</sup> Ro.9<sup>13</sup> Un.3<sup>9</sup>. We love: 1 Jn.4<sup>10</sup>. You love: Jn.17<sup>23,24,26</sup> Heb.1<sup>9</sup>. He loves: Mk.10<sup>21</sup> Lu.7<sup>47</sup> Jn.3<sup>16</sup> 13<sup>1</sup> 15<sup>9</sup> Eph.2<sup>4</sup> 5<sup>2</sup>, 25 2 Pt.2<sup>15</sup> 1 Jn.4<sup>10,11,19</sup>. They love: Jn. 3<sup>19,1243</sup> Un.12<sup>11</sup>.

THE IMPERATIVE

The imperative, likewise, cannot have any place in the past. A command is always future. Here, too, the indicator of the past tense is absent. See 1 Pt.1<sup>22</sup>, love-ye (agapēsate).

THE PAST ELEMENT

That the indefinite verb expresses past as well as future is strongly confirmed by this change which it undergoes outside of the indicative mode. Those modes which, by their nature, cannot be used of a past action, drop the augment E—, the sign of the past.

THE VERBAL ADJECTIVE

Yet the same great truth vibrates in the participle, where we translate it who loves and the present who is loving, when they are preceded by the article. Is it not infinitely better to say "Him who loves us", in Ro.8<sup>37</sup>? And Gal.2<sup>20</sup> is robbed of much of its sweetness in the old rendering, "Who loved me". The apostle's theme is not the past so much as the present and the future. "Who loves me" is full of solid satisfaction, entirely absent from the Authorized rendering. So in 2 Th. 2<sup>16</sup>, is not "Who loves us" more comforting than "which hath loved us"? The participle is found without the article in Jn.13<sup>1</sup>. Its indefiniteness is quite apparent, though it cannot be expressed in English.

GREEK VARIES ITS VERBS

The vivid and life-like changes of the verb in Greek offend our dull perceptions. Our minds are sluggish and do not respond to quick variations. We have a tendency to put everything in the past if it has already occurred, even if, for any reason, the fact rather than the act is in view. We would say (1 Pt.1<sup>21</sup>) "God Who raised Him from the dead and gave Him glory," instead of "God Who rouses Him from among the dead and is giving Him glory," as in the Greek. But Peter is not calling attention to past acts, but present conditions. God's character, as the God of resurrection, is in point, not merely the past deed. And it is especially appropriate that Peter should call attention to the One Who, indeed, suffered in the past, but Who is now actually obtaining the glory which follows. He is not reciting history but inculcating faith.

SOUNDNESS IS NOT A MATTER OF SOUND

We grieve over the fact that we all feel the infraction of current English mannerisms much more keenly than the violation of the inspired originals. Even the most godly seem to be content if the English follows in the ruts of the decadent intellects of this dark era, rather than ride roughly in the road of truth. Those who are willing to bear with a passing disgust will find that, after a little use, the new renderings will appeal to them far more strongly than the old, for the old had nothing but custom and usage to gild them, while the new will gradually get these as well as the vital advantage of conformity to the mind of God.

We stand upon the ground that the tenses of scripture are a vital part of its inspiration. We have no more liberty to change the tense than we have to alter the words. At times the tense of a word is of greater moment than its meaning. When we yield to current English custom, we do so under protest, with the comfort that the SUBLIN-EAR shows the true reading and exposes our departure from it.

"YE CANNOT BE COMING"

The distinction may not seem vital to us, but how must the disciples have felt if the Lord had really said to them, "Where I go ye cannot come"! (Jn.13<sup>33</sup>). Indeed, He immediately softens it by adding "at present", but that only shows that He did not say "come" but "be coming". Some certainly can go whither He went, but not at that time. In the case of the Jews (8<sup>21</sup>) this English rendering has given rise to the natural deduction that they never could come to Him. But surely that cannot be so when He applies the very same words to His own.

Both the A. V. and Revised quote the Lord as saying "I judge no man" (Jn.8<sup>15</sup>), notwithstanding that the Father has committed all judgment to the Son (Jn.5<sup>22</sup>). Both cannot be true. The discrepancy vanishes when we render it "I am judging", that is, at that time.

A DELIGHTFUL DISCOVERY

We have a strong conviction that, once students of the Scriptures grasp and enjoy the rich redundancy of wisdom and grace brought to light by the proper rendering of the past-future indefinite, their initial aversion will be turned to delight.

The value of this orderly disposition of the forms of the Greek verb cannot be over-estimated. The earnest searcher after truth will find a haze removed from his eyes, and he will be able to follow God's thoughts clearly and precisely, if he distinguishes where God has been pleased to put a difference.

THE PRACTICAL PROCEDURE

"If the shoe fits, put it on." This is the common-sense method of distributing the English verbal forms among the Greek. Traditional grammatical tenets must fall before the fact that this plan works.

An undoubted difficulty remains for discussion. Our mode of thinking offers no facilities for considering a past act as a fact. Let us take the most notable act in history, the crucifixion of Christ. Surely that was a past act and cannot be repeated. Yet this is the very point the apostle presses in the sixth of Hebrews. There were some who were crucifying Him for themselves again. English may wince under the statement of Peter (Ac.2<sup>36</sup>): "Jesus Whom ye crucify." Peter was pressing on them, not merely the past act, but the present fact of their attitude toward Him. Perhaps few of them had taken an active part in the act of crucifixion. All who refuse Him are guilty in fact. This distinction is a very practical one. In Gal.5<sup>24</sup> the A. V. tells us that "they that are Christ's have crucified the flesh". This has led to the logical deduction that this is a definite past experience, as was the case with Christ. It supports the doctrine of sinlessness in this life. The correct reading may grate on the English ear, but it conveys the truth. They crucify the flesh. It is a fact for the past, the present and the future. A knowledge of this distinction would have saved the saints from many a tremendous blunder and false step.

SOUND OR SENSE

The question is, shall we attempt to enlarge the scope of English idiom to express a past act as a fact, or shall we alter God's truth to fit the narrow confines of our craniums?

EXAMPLES AROUND

It would make this treatise too long and laborious to multiply examples. They may be readily found by any English reader by a reference to the CONCORDANT VERSION sublinear. Few are without point. Many are most precious. Even as this is being written Eph.4<sup>32</sup> comes up in our hearts. "... and become kind to one another, tenderly compassionate, dealing graciously among yourselves, even as God, in Christ, deals graciously with you." The contrast between dealing and deals fills our hearts to overflowing with thankfulness. His gracious dealings with us are timeless.

We have opened up a new vista in divine revelation. If true, it should be welcomed with open arms and published in every periodical, our grammars should be corrected and our versions revised. If it is true, it is an enormous stride toward the knowledge of God. If it is true, we should not allow the forms of speech or temporary idioms to rob us of its light. We should break our rigid molds of thought and recast them to include this new and precious vehicle of truth.

THE SCRIPTURAL TEST

If it is false, it should be condemned unsparingly. Let it be tested, however, not from the standpoint of current scholarship, or devout tradition, or any other thing than the evidence found in the form and context of the inspired originals. We are confident that these will support our position, yet we are prepared to abandon this stand just as soon as actual evidence from the original shows it to be unfounded.

No one who believes in divine inspiration can be neutral in this matter. To put it concretely, "God loved the world" is wrong: "God loves the world" is right.

THE CONCORDANT METHOD

Furthermore, if it is right it should be the best possible vindication of the method used in the CONCORDANT VERSION. If this method automatically solves the riddle of the Greek verb, does it not follow that it can solve many other problems of translation?

THE CONCORDANT GREEK TEXT

Conformity to the autographs is the one aim of the CONCORDANT TEXT. Should the documents which were penned by the sacred writers ever come to light, it is certain that, in many particulars, they would present an appearance quite unlike our modern editions. This text aspires to restore the sacred scriptures in all points, in form as well as fact, so that it may be a faithful copy and pure reproduction of the inspired writings.

LETTERS—Only capital letters were used in the first century and in all older manuscripts. The forms used are found in the best manuscripts as well as in inscriptions made about the time when the scriptures were penned.

IOTA SUBSCRIPT—Modern editions follow the later cursive manuscripts in adding a small iota, under certain vowels. In ancient inscriptions this letter was written on the line with the capital letters. Gradually, in the first century, it was dropped. On a Cæsarean coin struck about A.D. 67-68 (at about the time the scriptures were penned) the iota is absent. It is safer, therefore, to follow the most ancient uncial manuscripts, and omit this letter until evidence is presented which proves that it was used in the inspired autographs. It is not likely that all the copyists would conspire to leave out this letter (which is the only one not sounded in pronunciation) unless the original before them did not contain it. Could we prove that it was always used in the latter half of the first century, as appears to have been the case some centuries earlier, we might presume to restore it. But, as the first century was a period of transition, during which this silent letter gradually fell away, there is no evidence that it was ever present in the original documents, or that all the copies made from them deliberately omitted it in every instance. The later manuscripts, which have this letter, also contain many other features which could not have been present in the inspired originals.

SPACING—The best manuscripts do not have spaces between words or sentences. We dare not inject our own judgment by introducing any human divisions into a text which aspires to be a facsimile of the autographs. By putting the phrase

"now it is the evening of the sabbaths" at the beginning of Mt.28 instead of at the end of Mt.27 the passage becomes self-contradictory and the whole subject of the resurrection day has been thrown into confusion.

It is significant that sacred Greek has no such term as "word". The meaning of logos is "expression", often consisting of many "words". As English is divided into words, we have indicated the corresponding Greek by starting the English word, when possible, under the first letter of the Greek. Thus ANOINTED commences under X, the first letter of its equivalent. With a little practise this answers the purpose of our spaces without marring the inspired text.

ACCENTS, BREATHING, PUNCTUATION, etc., are not inspired, hence have no place in the text.

In order to put the text beyond the possibility of further mutilation and provide an exhaustive system to enable the student to readily refer to any letter, the Greek is printed with twenty letters to a line and fifty lines to a page, making just a thousand letters on each opening. After each line is a numerical check. Each group of a hundred is numbered 20, 40, 60, 80, and the groups numbered, 100, 200, etc., to 900. At the end of the page the thousands gather up the amount from all previous pages and give the full number of letters to this point. This is used in the heading of the next page. If we should say that there has been much discussion about 1 Ti.<sup>3782</sup>, any one can find the letter readily by turning to page 3001, beyond group 700, line 80, second letter. In case it is necessary to change the number of letters, only the numbers at the end of each line are altered.

A TOTALLY NEW TEXT

The CONCORDANT GREEK TEXT is entirely original in its methods and results. It is not allied with any of the conflicting schools of criticism. Because it is based on the most ancient evidence it seems to be built on the work of the greatest recognized "authorities", such as Tischendorf, Lachmann, Tregelles, Westcott and Hort, Nestle, etc. But it also agrees, on important points, with that school of criticism of which Scrivener is the representative, especially in the admission of much which is discarded in some quarters. We have aimed to construct, not to destroy. But, above all, we have given all the evidence of the texts on which the work is based. This makes the CONCORDANT the equivalent of four texts, three most ancient, and one most modern.

To explain our position we will mention the principal passages which have been omitted or changed in the Revised Version, in accord with the destructive criticism which is generally supposed to be based on the most ancient evidence such as we have used.

TEST PASSAGES

We do not omit the end of Mark's account, for, though it is not found in B and s, space is left for it in both, and it is found in A. In Lu.214 the C (which led the revisers to change "Good will toward men" to "among men in whom He is well pleased") is found only in A, for it has been erased in B and s. Hence, we omit it and render it more accurately "Delight among men".

We do not omit the two verses (Lu.2243-44) concerning the strengthening of our Lord by a messenger, for, though A, B, s* omit them, they are restored by s2.

We do not omit the prayer of our Lord for the forgiveness of His murderers (Lu.2334), for A has it and s restores it after cancellation.

We do not omit "strong" in Mt.1430, for B has it in the margin.

We have carefully investigated the evidence as to the reading "who" for "God" in 1 Ti.316. In s there can be no doubt that it originally read "who". A late corrector has added "God" above the line in small thick characters, and has inserted three dots before "who" in the line. The epistle is lacking in B. In A the passage is very blurred, but it seems clear that the two small horizontal strokes which change "who" into the abbreviation for "God" are there, but have been added by a later hand, for the ink is quite black. The vellum is so thin that it may be that a stroke on the opposite side came through, so starting the alteration. The ancient versions, in general, know nothing of the reading "God", while the cursive manuscripts, which were copied from the ancient uncials after they had been changed, all have "God". Besides this there is the story that Macedonius, Patriarch of Constantinople, was deprived of his office by Emperor Anastasius for having corrupted the evangel, especially in this passage, by changing one letter, so altering "who" into "God". The context overwhelmingly favors "who", for it is an exhortation to conduct, not a dissertation on the Godhead. The statement in Hebrews 1020 that the curtain which hung before the holy of holies and kept its contents from being manifest is figured by His flesh, is a direct contradiction of the teaching of this passage, if we read "God manifest in flesh". The antecedents being things, we use "which" in the version.

EVIDENCE, NOT THEORIES

Instead of formulating theories regarding the sacred text, we have sought to accumulate actual evidence and deal with it from a practical and spiritual viewpoint. A careful comparison of all the readings of the three manuscripts used with one another, with the "Received" text, and with the leading printed editions, will convince any one that, while no single ancient manuscript has the best text and may be regarded as better than the "Received", the combination of three divergent and supplementary manuscripts gives us a text superior to any obtained in any other way.

CONSTRUCTIVE, NOT DESTRUCTIVE

Hitherto the flaws in the most ancient manuscripts have usually been given prime consideration. The inadvertent omission of a clause has thrown suspicion on its right to a place in the text of other copies, whereas its presence in these should have supplied the evidence for its insertion. The combination of the most ancient evidence comes much nearer the "Received" text than does any single manuscript, and really composes the dispute as to whether the earliest or latest manuscripts are the best evidence. The "Received" is evidently such a composite text, but, having been subject to more human infirmity in its multiplied links of transmission, it can never aspire to the authority of the earliest evidence.

TEXTUAL PRINCIPLES

The principles on which the CONCORDANT text is based are drawn from the practical experience of printers, who are the copyists of today. When we know the nature of the errors most readily made by a modern compositor, we are ready to understand the mistakes of the ancient scribes and can correct them.

In applying these principles due regard must be given to the weight of each witness and the special facts in each case. These may modify the conclusions and even reverse the result.

The ancient corrector corresponds to the proof reader of the present day. No one thinks of issuing a work today before it has been read for errors, which are corrected before printing. An ancient manuscript, however, had to be used as it was written. Hence the corrector's marks should supersede the text.

It is found that present day printers, in "following copy" leave out a word or a phrase or a sentence much more frequently than they put anything in. In fact, an insertion is a rare thing. It is this we use Vaticanus 2066 (b), which is confined to the Unveiling. The various papyri are only short fragments.

FIRST CENTURY GREEK

In the interval between the last Hebrew prophet and the advent of the Messiah Whom they foretold, vast changes took place in the apostate nation. The fires of faith flickered feebly, yet flared up at times, especially under the leadership of the Maccabees. The Persian world empire was conquered by Alexander, who overran the holy land, taking Jerusalem without a struggle. As a result of his conquest the Greek language was spread among all nations and became the common medium of communication for the peoples dwelling near the Mediterranean sea. The constant turmoil in the land of Israel, either from enemies without or traitors within, led many of the Jews to seek a home in other lands. Multitudes went to Egypt and dwelt there. Not only the Jews of this dispersion but those who remained in the land gradually took up the Greek language. Hence, when the scriptures were translated into that tongue, the Hebrew text was soon left for the rabbis in the synagogues. The Greek translation took its place in common use. While some still retained a small smattering of the language of inspiration, the tongue of the Jews became Greek. Our Lord and His disciples spoke Greek. Only occasionally they used a familiar word or phrase from the Aramaic, which was probably a corruption of the ancient Hebrew. So that, even if Paul had never written to those outside the pale of Israel, the Jews themselves could be reached only by the use of Greek. Only the learned were sufficiently acquainted with Hebrew to read the prophets.

A UNIVERSAL LANGUAGE

Doubtless it was God's plan to use this change in language to reach the other nations as He afterward did through the apostle Paul. But the use of Greek was quite as necessary to reach the Jews themselves both in the land and among the dispersion.

The Greek found in the scriptures is that in common use in the first century. Many papyrus manuscripts have been discovered which show that it was the language of the common people. It is the language of the Septuagint, the Greek translation of the Hebrew scriptures.

The usual criticism of scholars that it is "bad" Greek is based on ignorance and faulty standards of comparison. It is an adaptation of one of the most perfect of human languages to the highest purpose for which speech can be used.

THE THREE WITNESSES

Our Lord laid down the law that the words of two or three witnesses are sufficient evidence to decide any matter. It surely is not a mere chance that, in the providence of God, there are two great witnesses to the text of Holy Writ and a third to call upon when these do not agree. Editors have examined thousands of later manuscripts, but the resultant text is practically the same as one derived from the three most ancient manuscripts alone. As we desire to avoid human opinions and found all on fact, we are compelled to draw our text directly from the most ancient sources possible. As we exhibit the evidence as well as the result, we are forced to confine ourselves to the chief witnesses. The effect of this course is a text which is in essential accord with that on which the consensus of critical opinion has placed its approval.

To insure accuracy the printed text has been carefully compared with photographic reproductions of the ancient manuscripts themselves, when possible.

The three most ancient and valuable manuscripts of the Greek Scriptures are the Codex Sinaiticus in Leningrad, the Codex Vaticanus in Rome, and the Codex Alexandrinus in the British Museum. It is a remarkable fact that, after centuries of study and comparison, the first two are the best texts of the scriptures which have come down to us. The influence of all other manuscripts of later date is very slight compared with these two texts.

The parts of the various manuscripts vary much in value. As the scriptures originally circulated as separate pamphlets and these differed from each other in their dependability, it is quite possible in some book, for a text like A, though usually regarded as inferior, to take first place. It is unwise to insist that any manuscript is always to be preferred.

The collations here given (except b, on which we lay no stress) do not conform to printed editions, in which the editor uses his own judgment in selecting readings and adds headings and other matter from other sources. They are an exact report on the facts as they exist in the ancient manuscripts themselves.

CODEX SINAITICUS (s)

Codex Sinaiticus (herein denoted by a small italic s) is the most complete and perfect manuscript we have. It is the latest great codex to be discovered. In 1844, Constantin Tischendorf, in search of ancient manuscripts, visited the monastery of St. Catherine on Mt. Sinai, in the desert of Arabia. While there he noticed several leaves of vellum in a waste paper basket. They proved to be part of a copy of the Septuagint, the Greek translation of the Hebrew scriptures. The monks were using these valuable books as fuel. He got possession of forty-three leaves, which he took to Europe and published. In 1853 he went back to recover the rest of the manuscript, but failed to find any trace of it. In 1859, under the patronage of Tsar Alexander II., of Russia, he was once more at Mt. Sinai for a few days. As he was about to leave he had a conversation with the steward of the monastery regarding his edition of the Septuagint. The steward said that he too had a copy of the Septuagint, and brought out a copy which included the Greek Scriptures in their entirety, wrapped up in a napkin. Here was the prize Tischendorf had sought for fifteen years! He persuaded the monks to let him take the manuscript to Cairo and have a transcript made, but was unable to get them to part with it except as a present to the Tsar, the protector of the Greek Church, to which they belonged. It was taken to the Russian Imperial Library, in St. Petersburg, where it remained.

The readings of Sinaiticus are of two classes. First there are the corrections made at the time the manuscript was written or soon afterwards. These are sometimes called the A or B readings. They are shown in the CONCORDANT VERSION as s*. The second class of corrections are editorial in nature and were made some centuries later. They are sometimes called the C readings. The CONCORDANT superlinear gives them as s<sup>2</sup>, s<sup>3</sup>, s<sup>4</sup>, and s<sup>5</sup>. A very few alterations were made much later and are known as F readings (s<sup>6</sup>).

So great do we deem this discovery that we offer some evidence to prove our position. The corrector in whom we have so much confidence is denoted by the symbol s<sup>2</sup>. Only s* gives us the long lost answer to the seventh chapter of Romans. In the margin he inserts the answer to the question, "What shall deliver me?" It is grace (Ro. 7<sup>25</sup>). This is so precious and important that we will inquire more carefully into the character of s<sup>2</sup>, who passed on this addition favorably.

He was an editor, endeavoring, not merely to correct the mechanical slips of the scribe, but to conform the text to the best ancient evidence. It is supposed that this editorial work was done at Cæsarea by comparison with Pamphilius' manuscripts, which in turn had been compared with Origen's Hexapla. If this be true, it is of the utmost importance that we recognize it and accord their readings the place they deserve.

It is important to note that the early corrections, like the addition to Romans seven, mentioned above, were all subjected to the scrutiny of the later editors. Thus they are not only the deliberate additions of the early scribe, but are confirmed by the later editorial revision.

Another point is of principal importance. Many of the mistakes in the ancient manuscript are omissions. Only those actually engaged in transcribing will realize how easy it is to leave out a few words or a line. A compositor on the CONCORDANT VERSION recently skipped from one line of his copy to the next, because the same word occurred in each. The principle hitherto followed, that the ancient scribes were anxious to add to the text and thus gave rise to spurious additions, must be abandoned. Just as an ancient sculpture does not gain, but rather loses in the course of time, and must be restored, so with the writing which is copied many times. There can be no doubt that the scribe of Sinaiticus skipped many words which were restored by the corrector. The Alexandrian manuscript has thus lost quite a few whole sentences and almost always the reason is apparent from the text itself.

READINGS RESTORED

As the corrector of Sinaiticus restores many omissions, in which it is supported by the other manuscripts, the question arises whether it may not be the sole remaining source of some readings which have fallen out of all the other manuscripts. This can be determined only by internal evidence. As Romans 7<sup>25</sup>, the particular passage in which we are interested, is in this class, we shall enlarge on this point and leave it to our readers' candid judgment. We feel sure all who investigate will come to the conclusion that, in the providence of God, the cor-rector and later editor of Sinaiticus has preserved for us the true reading in this notable text, and that grace (which has been largely absent from the lives of God's saints as well as from this passage) may now be restored to its place in the seventh of Romans and in our hearts and lives.

In an exhaustive survey, limited to the readings occurring in the first epistle to the Corinthians it was found that there are about three dozen places where the later editor of Sinaiticus supplies something absent not only from the first draft of Sinaiticus but from Vaticanus and Alexandrinus as well. We will examine these to see what motive prompted their addition. Did this editor try to force some of his own teachings into the text? Are the additions as good or better than the text without them? Is there any apparent reason why they might have been dropped in the transcription? We have sorted the passages into five classes. The first fourteen additions are all alike in character, in that they make no change in the sense of the passage, but are more precise and accurate—points which are highly commendable in the scriptures. In each of the subjoined passages the word added by the editor is in italics. It is omitted by the other evidence. The renderings are from the CONCORDANT VERSION, as other translations are not sufficiently exact to show some of the distinctions.

- 1 Co. 120 the wisdom of this world
 210 through His Spirit
 312 this foundation
 46 not to be disposed above what is written
 49 for I suppose that God demon*strates*
 57 clean out, then, the old heaven
 731 and those using this world
 922 I became as weak to the weak
 1013 To enable you to undergo it
 1023 All is allowed me (twice)
 1126 and drinking this cup 1212 yet all the members of the one body being many 1226 or one member is being esteemed
 1426 each of you has a psalm

Try the experiment of going over each of these, leaving out the italicized word. The sense remains, but its point is blunted. In fact, it is not strictly true that God makes the wisdom of the world stupid. The wisdom of the world to come will be in harmony with His wisdom. It applies only to the wisdom of this world. And God reveals it to us not merely through the spirit, but it is through His spirit.

And so, in almost every case there is a distinct gain in accuracy and emphasis. In no case can we charge the editor with the introduction of his own ideas.

JUSTIFIABLE ADDITIONS

We next present a list of fifteen more passages in which the editor of Sinaiticus adds to the sense yet never alters it. In almost every case the addition is not only undoubtedly true, but it is demanded by the context. How lacking is the statement "This is My body which is for you," spoken as the Lord is breaking the bread for his disciples! Is it not much more likely that the true reading is "Which is broken for you?" True, no bone of Him was broken, but not so His body.

The three other additions to this passage all appeal to our spiritual perception of the fitness of things. "Let him be testing himself first" adds point to the exhortation, "He who is eating and drinking unworthily" is surely demanded by the words that follow. Eating and drinking do not themselves call for judgment. "Not discriminating the body of the Lord" gives definiteness to an otherwise vague expression. So with "Is anyone planting a vineyard and not eating of its fruit?" The planter could hardly eat all of its fruit himself. Rather he eats of it and supplies his household as well. Love never falls is a usage of the word "falls" unknown elsewhere. It is weak. "Love never falls out, or lapses" is eminently fitting.

- 1 Co. 51 such prostitution as is not even named among the nations 57 Christ, our Passover, was sacri*ficed for our sakes*
 75 have leisure for fasting and prayer
 738 giving in marriage (out-marry- ing)
 739 A wife is bound by law for 84 that there is no other (different)
     God except One
 97 is any one planting a vineyard and not eating of its fruit 910 he who is threshing in expectation of sharing in the expectation 1124 this is My body which is broken for your sakes
 1129 not discriminating the body of the 1129 for he who is eating and drinking unworthily
 1129 not discriminating the body of the Lord
 138 love is never lapsing (or falling-out) for "falling"
 1615 Stephanas and Fortunatus
 1622 fond of the Lord Jesus Christ

That Christ our Passover was sacrificed for our sakes, none will deny, and it is far from trite to introduce it into the apostle's argument. So with the bonds of wedlock. They are legal bonds. It is likely that the sin spoken of in this epistle was committed among the nations though they probably refrained from mentioning it. The addition of Fortunatus' name was done deliberately and must have been based on earlier evidence. So also with the name and title of our Lord. The character of these additions impresses us as a genuine attempt to restore the text to its original completeness and vigor.

MINUTE BETTERMENTS

Our next group of passages is such as only one acquainted with Greek or who has an exact sublinear such as is given in the CONCORDANT VERSION can appreciate. The Greek language is very rich in particles and connectives which appear redundant to English ears.

- 1 Co. 5<sup>10</sup> And undoubtedly it is not 6<sup>19</sup> from the God
     8<sup>11</sup> is being destroyed also 11<sup>34</sup> Now if any one is hungry
     13<sup>11</sup> Yet when I have become a man 14<sup>13</sup> Wherefore let even him who is talking languages
     15<sup>38</sup> its own (the) body

"Yet when I have become a man" shows a disjunctive turn of thought better than if it were omitted. The same is true of "Now if anyone is hungry."

We next present two cases in which the particle AN is added by the editor of Sinaiticus. This interesting little word is seldom translated in the versions. It is the sign of indefiniteness, represented by EVER in the sublinear of the CONCORDANT VERSION. In the Version its presence is usually acknowledged by changing may to should. It is the key to that passage which has caused so much controversy (Mt. 24<sup>34</sup>): "Verily I say unto you, this generation shall not pass till all these things be fulfilled." All difficulties are removed if we render it concordantly, "Verily, I am saying to you, This generation may by no means be passing by till all these things should be occurring." It is not may, but may ever, which, in English, is should. Our Lord was careful to qualify His statement, which shows that, far from being positive that these things would be fulfilled, He evidently knew they would not. The two passages follow:

- 1 Co. 11<sup>26</sup> till He should (for may) be coming 15<sup>25</sup> until He should (for may) be placing

ONE DISCORDANT NOTE

Except the strengthening of the word not (9<sup>12</sup>), but one passage remains, the only one which seems to mar the text and quarrel with its context. Nevertheless we give it so that all the evidence will be before us and nothing hid.

- 1 Co. 14<sup>10</sup> not one of them is soundless (for "nothing is soundless")

The apostle seems to be speaking of voices or sounds. To say that no sounds are without sound seems senseless. To say that nothing is without sound is doubtless true though rather trite. Perhaps the root of the difficulty lies in the word "soundless". Our Common Version renders it "without signification", which the Revisers change to "without significance". While there is no external evidence for this rendering, it certainly responds to the context, for the apostle has been speaking of a variety of natural sounds, and he is pleading against senseless speaking in the ecclesia. Now if we insert a letter, P, which is the equivalent of our R, and read aphroonos for aphoonos, then the whole difficulty is solved and the corrector of Sinaiticus is right even in this passage. It would then read, "many voices in the world and not one of them senseless." But there is no documentary evidence for this, so we cannot stake anything on it.

We trust that the proof we have presented will convince all that we are justified in treating the readings of the editor of Sinaiticus with a grave measure of respect. There is not the slightest reason to impugn his motives, for in no case could he gain any doctrinal advantage by his additions. Most of his contributions strengthen or develop the sense already present and are supported by the context. As he very often agrees with the best manuscripts such as Vaticanus or Alexandrinus (where internal evidence is not needed to confirm his changes), we may readily come to the conclusion that the edited Sinaiticus is far superior to its first draft. Furthermore, even when the editor of Sinaiticus seems alone, his additions to the text are of such a solid, unbiased and helpful character, that they demand recognition far beyond what has been accorded them in the past.

When we remember, then, that the word "grace", added in the margin of Romans seven, is not only the correction of the contemporary scribes, but was passed as correct by the later editor, we have ample grounds for including it in the text without appealing to the strong prejudice created by the demands of the context.

RESTORATION, NOT MUTILATION

Every ancient work of art comes to us mutilated by the hand of time. When we find one in which there was an ancient attempt to restore it to its pristine perfectness we do not rid it of the restorer's work but rather rejoice that one has been before us, and carefully preserve and guard his efforts. So with the scriptures. The many corrections which seem to deface the Sinaitic text are its greatest glory. Speaking generally they probably give us the best evidence as to the original scriptures which we possess.

GRACE IN ROMANS SEVEN

We shall now return to the seventh of Romans and the reading which has prompted this digression. Without an acquaintance with the facts we have presented we would probably pass over the added word grace, as the answer to that chapter, as it is based almost entirely on this manuscript. It will be of more than ordinary interest to note the various ways in which this text has appeared in Greek manuscripts and other ancient sources as well as modern editors. "I am thanking the God" is the reading of one set of witnesses, which includes Sinaiticus uncorrected, Alexandrinus, two Syriac versions, the Peshitto and the Harkleian, the Gothic version of Ulfilas, and most other Codices. Origen has it so twice out of three instances and Chrysostom quotes it so once. "Thanks (or grace) to the God" is the reading of Vaticanus and is followed by the Coptic Sahidic version, Origen one out of three instances, Methodius, a Bishop of Olympus, and Hieronymus, once out of two occurrences. "Yet thanks (or grace) to the God" is the reading of c<sup>2</sup> (Codex Ephraemi), a few other Codices, a few of the Boharic and the Armenian versions, and is so quoted by Cyril of Alexandria. "The grace of God" is found in D (Codex Claromontanus), 32, a twelfth century manuscript in Paris, the Latin version, Hieronymus, once in two instances, and Origen's Latin in both of its occurrences. Weymouth gives the consensus of modern editors as favoring "Thanks (or grace) to the God", but most of them put "I am thanking" in the margin. Alexander Souter's recent edition reverses this, putting "I am thanking" in the text, and "Thanks.to" in the margin. The CONCORDANT Greek text will combine these readings. Once this is done the solution of the whole matter appears as clear as noonday. Probably a very early scribe, in copying this passage, came to the word grace, ΧΑΡΙC (charis) and lifted his eyes from the copy. Then turning to it again, his eyes fell on the same combination of letters ΧΑΡΙC in "I am thanking", a little further on. In this way, his copy skipped the word grace, for he had lost it in the word "thanking". This shifting from grace to thanks, in English, will be clearer if we explain that thanks, gratitude, grace, rejoice and bounty are all from the same element ΧΑΡ, in Greek, which means JOY. Sometimes we must translate grace gratitude (1 Co. 10<sup>30</sup>). Thanks is WELL-JOY. Surely all who are acquainted with the grace of God can see that there is a much deeper connection than a mere etymological one, for grace is the purest and most inexhaustible source of joy and thanksgiving.

WORD SKIPPING

The habit of skipping words found between recurring combinations of letters accounts for many of the omissions found in our modern texts. They should be restored. The compositor of the Greek text of the Unvelling had an experience of this kind in setting up the repetition "out of the tribe of . . . twelve thousand," and, he, like the scribe of Sinaiticus omitted two tribes by skipping, but was able to correct it, as it was in movable type.

The key to the sixth and seventh chapters of Romans lies in the fact that they are an expansion of the conclusion of the fifth chapter. "For even as through the disobedience of the one man the many were constituted sinners, thus also through the obedience of the One, the many shall be constituted just. Yet law crept in that the offense should be increasing. Yet where sin increases, grace superexceeds, that, even as Sin reigns in death, thus also Grace should be reigning, through righteousness, for eonian life, through Jesus Christ our Lord." Then comes that superlative insistence on grace which is rejected by almost everyone today. "What, then, shall we assert? That we may be persisting in sin that grace should be increasing?" It is evident from this that, even under such a supposition, grace would exceed. Who believes this today?

CODEX VATICANUS (B)

Codex Vaticanus (B) is generally held to be the oldest as well as the most valuable of all the manuscripts. Since 1481 it has been in the Vatican Library at Rome, except for a short period when Napoleon carried it to Paris. It was almost inaccessible to scholars until 1868. In 1889-90 a photographic fac-simile was published which makes it available to all. It contains all the Greek scriptures except the end of Hebrews, Paul's personal epistles and the Apocalypse.

In assigning this text a very high place as a witness to the truth we are supported by many eminent critics and students of diverse theories and methods. It impresses one as the result of a conscientious endeavor to protect the sacred text in contrast to other and later manuscripts which suffer from injudicious and deliberate changes. The corrector of Sinaiticus, who undoubtedly had much better evidence than is now available, unconsciously put his seal upon Vaticanus by correcting again and again to agree with this great witness. In this text Paul's epistles are placed after Jude, and Hebrews is inserted in them between second Thessalonians and first Timothy.

CODEX VATICANUS (b)

As Codex Vaticanus does not contain the Apocalypse, we have used Codex Vaticanus 2066, (046), which is attached to it, in its place, with the symbol b. It is not by any means as valuable as B, and may not have been written until the eighth century.

ALEXANDRINUS (A)

Codex Alexandrinus (A) has been long known to English scholars and was once the only early manuscript accessible to them. It came to England as a gift to James I. from the Patriarch of Alexandria through the Turkish ambassador. It is now the chief treasure of the British Museum. It has been repeatedly published and is now issued in photographic facsimile. In it Paul's epistles are placed after Jude, with Hebrews inserted after the second epistle to the Thessalonians.

The Codex Alexandrinus was probably written in the fifth century.

THE PAPYRUS FRAGMENTS

Some of the recently discovered fragments of Papyri have been added to our witnesses. They may be the most ancient of all the testimony we have. Those of the fourth or fifth century are in close agreement with B and S. They are found as follows:

The few papyrus fragments are not included in our collection for their critical value so much as for their sobering effect on so-called higher criticism. About three hundred years elapsed between the penning of the autographs of the Greek scriptures and the writing of the earliest of the manuscripts hitherto known. Skeptical critics were swift to assume that Constantine was really responsible for the Greek text as we have it and that we know nothing of the actual autographs. They did not hesitate to denounce everything. The idioms were foreign, the grammar crooked, the spelling strange—nothing was what it ought to be.

Now come the papyri and fall upon the great edifice of destructive "scientific" scholarship and crush all their ungodly theories in the dust. Pieces of papyri, though written not much earlier than our standard codices, record, not only a few fragments of the sacred text, but documents of all kinds from recipes to imperial proclamations, touching all classes of society and every variety of communication or memorandum.

The fact that all are written in the same language as that employed in the sacred scriptures, shows conclusively that these are composed in the Greek vernacular which was almost a universal language in the latter half of the first century. Instead of being wrong in all regards, they are immeasurably more accurate and correct than the critics ever could be. But critics cannot learn, even from a rebuke like this, for now they are trying to explain the remaining "blemishes" by blaming the men who wrote at the dictation of the authors. Nothing less than divine illumination will ever convince men of the absolute and inerrant perfection of holy writ, even down to the last letter.

Yet we must remember that, though the papyri prove, in a general way, that the language of the originals is just what is to be expected, these fragments are not by any means a safe guide to the meaning of words. They were written several centuries later and hundreds of miles distant from Palestine. If it is

CODEX VATICANUS (B) GALATIANS 6:12-18 AND EPHESIANS 1:1-18.

The chief treasure of the Vatican Library at Rome. This page is hardly a fair specimen of its appearance, as a later hand has added the large initial (the original MS. had the letter on the line where the blank space now is) and the ornaments. It is written on very fine vellum, nearly square in shape, about 10x10½ inches in size. The accents and other marks have been added by a much later hand. At the end of the third line of the center column will be seen the notable addition "in Ephesus". It is mostly in the margin, very evidently not a part of the original manuscript. The subscription to Galatians shows how these were added. The oval stamp between the last few lines of the second and third columns is the stamp of the Vatican Library at Rome. It reads BIBLIOTHECA APOSTOLICA VATICANA. It will be noted that this manuscript has three columns to the page, while Alexandrinus has two, and Sinaiticus four. It has no initials and practically no indications of words, sentences or paragraphs. The original is jealousy guarded because it is the greatest prize of the Papal library. The photographic fac-simile now issued gives all students access to its pages.

not good sense to determine correct current English usage by the documents of an obscure English shire three hundred years ago, neither is it sound policy to judge the language of Palestine in the first century by that in Oxyrhynchus, on the upper Nile, in the third century.

An earnest effort was made to use the evidence of the papyri in fixing the meaning of words used in this version, but the net result was far less than was anticipated. God has made His revelation self-sufficient. The value of a single divine context in determining the force of a word is immeasurably greater than a dozen usages in documents written by inaccurate, ignorant human hands.

The pages throughout this Version giving the Greek and Interlinear evidence of what God really inspired will be found the most accurate, the most comprehensive and instructive, the most useful and consistent reproduction of the sacred scriptures to be found in Greek or English today.

All are asked, even urged, to test this Greek text, and the English equivalent to be found just below each Greek word, for accuracy by comparison with actual photographs of each page of the MSS., A, B, and S, and for uniformity and consistency of rendering of any given Greek word in English with each separate occurrence. Only as it is tested and found true and exact, will its worth be realized and valued. And the English Version here given is based on the evidence as herein submitted.

THE SUPERLINEAR

When a line of Greek has no notation above it, the manuscripts all read alike, and there can be little, if any, question of the correctness of the text as it stands.

When they differ, the variations are noted immediately above the Greek. These notations in the superlinear enable any one to determine exactly how each manuscript reads. The following abbreviations are used.

A is Codex Alexandrinus

B is Codex Vaticanus

b is Codex Vaticanus 2066 (046), the substitute for B in the Unveiling

s is Codex Sinaiticus

The superior figure from 2 up, as B<sup>2</sup>, S<sup>2</sup>, indicates a later corrector or editor. With the Papyri it gives the catalogue number of the manuscript.

No note is made of the abbreviations commonly used by the scribes in making their copies. They used the first and last letters only for the names of God and Christ, Jesus, Master, spirit, Israel, while longer words, as heaven, humanity, father, Jerusalem are contracted to three, four or five letters. The manuscripts usually have a stroke above words so abbreviated.

Alterations are indicated by printing the Greek word to be substituted, beginning at the same point as the one which it displaces.

TO-BE-HAVING

In one instance we have referred the reader to the Introduction (1 Ti. 3:16). Ms. B is lacking, s has "God" added above the line, with three small dots to indicate its insertion, while A has evidently been changed in modern times from "who" to "God" by simply adding two small strokes. Although all the curative manuscripts read "God", none of the ancient manuscripts, versions or fathers (before editing) seem to have known of this reading. There is an old story that Macedonius, Patriarch of Constantinople, was deprived of his office by the Emperor Anastasius (506 A. D.) because he corrupted the evangel, especially by changing the reading here from "who" to "God".

THE SUBLINEAR

The special excellence of the CONCORDANT SUBLINEAR lies in its uniformity, its exactitude and its vivid reflection of the untransferable features of the Greek, such as the order of the words, their formation, and their relation to one another. It aims to be as nearly Greek as can be understood by an English reader. Those who enter into the spirit of it derive much profit and enjoyment, as they find themselves surrounded by the precise ideas and modes of thought which moved the apostles and prophets, and our Lord Himself, as they poured forth the Word in its pristine purity.

With very few exceptions (such as "after" for WITH and "make" for DO) the sublinear is uniform in its renderings. That is, wherever a given Greek word occurs, the same English word is beneath it at all times. Where the Greek is alike, the English is likewise. On the other hand it also registers almost all the differences in the Greek. For instance, there are two negatives, but they are never confused. One is always NO, the other is NOT. There are many forms of the verb, but they are carefully distinguished. Two different words, having the same grammatical form in Greek, have the same in English.

THE TYPE OF THE SUBLINEAR

SMALL CAPITALS, Roman letters and italics are used in the sublinear. The SMALL CAPITALS carry the reader as close to the elements which compose the Greek language as possible. Common type, called "lower case" by printers, is used for words when the STANDARD would not be intelligible. It is also used for parts of words where no true English standard can be found. The Concordance will enable any one to trace any word to its elements.

Jn. 17 (265)

OYTOCHABEN
this-one CASE

As English has no form for the Middle voice, which makes the subject the object of an action, as "I bathe [myself]", this form is either ignored or expressed in the passive with italic letters. It occurs often in the words it-HAS-been-WRITTEN (Mt. 44).

As the participle has no number in English, this is indicated by adding one for the singular and ones for the plural. Thus we have one-reading (Un. 13), in which the one denotes the singular and the -ING the participle of the verb "read".

Jn. 112 (506)

ones-BELIEVING

As English has no form for the indefinite participle, it is distinguished by putting the -ing in italics.

Jn. 122 (1416)

All of these matters are fully presented in the English equivalents found in the grammar.

Occasionally italics are used for words not in the Greek or special forms or explanatory matter, such as emphasis, or to distinguish words alike in English.

THE IDIOMATIC VERSION

The CONCORDANT VERSION recognizes the evident fact that various languages have their own peculiar forms of expression, so that it is impossible to produce a version by rendering each separate word uniformly and consecutively. Such a rendering is, however, of the utmost value to the student and everyone who desires to assure himself of the actual facts of inspiration. Hence the CONCORDANT VERSION gives both a literal uniform rendering in its sublinear, conforming accurately to the original in every possible detail, and a consistent version, conforming to the idiom of the language into which it is translated.

Yet even in the Version severe restraint is exercised that no variations from the sacred text are introduced which are not actually necessary for the sense. There is no attempt to tickle the hearing, for that is the failing which pleases those who will not tolerate sound teaching (2 Ti. 4<sup>3</sup>). The sonorous sweep and ravishing rhythm of a literary classic is specifically associated with those who turn away from the truth and will be turned aside to myths. There is a higher harmony than sound, a more entrancing music than our ears can hear. It is the spiritual accord of truth. Its cadences are marred, its notes are jarred by the tinkling of mere words and the booming of empty phrases.

UNIFORMITY AND CONSISTENCY

Whenever possible each Greek word is rendered uniformly throughout, but, when this is impossible, it is rendered consistently by means of a group of synonyms, none of which are used for any other Greek word, and which will be found grouped together at all times in the Concordance. Thus, UNFLAWED (which occurs seven times and is rendered by six variants in the Authorized Version) is always "flawless". [This certainly is one flawless rendering!] But FROM-COVERING needs two idiomatic equivalents, "revelation" for things, and "unveiling" for persons. The Authorized Version uses five distinct terms, lighten (Lu. 2<sup>32</sup>), revelation (Ro. 2<sup>5</sup>), manifestation (Ro. 8<sup>19</sup>), coming (1 Co. 1<sup>7</sup>), appearing (1 Pt. 1<sup>7</sup>), without any apparent discrimination.

ENGLISH IDIOM

There are occasions where we make distinctions for the sake of intelligible English which are not made in the Authorized Version. It uses "deny" of persons. But a man cannot deny Christ. He may disown Him (Mt. 10<sup>33</sup>). Nor can he deny himself. He may renounce himself (Mt. 16<sup>24</sup>). Peter did not deny His Lord. He renounced Him (Mt. 26<sup>34</sup>). In these cases the common version is uniform and the version of the CONCORDANT is not. So with the statement that Bar-Abbas was a notable prisoner (Mt. 27<sup>16</sup>). Was he not rather notorious? Inasmuch as we give a uniform rendering in the sublinear, we do not feel obliged to violate English idiom, as the Authorized Version does, in such cases.

There is one case where English usage demands as many as eight synonyms for a single Greek word. The Authorized Version uses eighteen. This is DOWN-UNACT, put out of action. Land which produces nothing is waste (Lu. 13<sup>7</sup>), laws are abrogated, people are exempted from them, faith is nullified, a body becomes inert, faithless men and foods are discarded, death is abolished, and in the middle it means vanish.

Another term which defies uniformity is REPLETEIZE. We pack a basket (Jn. 6<sup>13</sup>), soak a sponge (Mk. 15<sup>36</sup>), cram a thurible with fire (Un. 8<sup>6</sup>), water pots are filled to the brim (Jn. 2<sup>7</sup>), and the temple is dense with smoke. English uses five specific terms where Greek is content with one. The word fill, used by the Authorized Version is used for four other words, one of which is an exact equivalent. It falls far short of the intensive sense of REPLETEIZE.

These are extreme examples, and are presented principally to enforce the fact that the Version is not a literal translation, without regard to English idiom. For uniformity go to the sublinear, where it is given with nearly absolute fidelity. The Version is consistent, not uniform. But we depart from uniformity only when forced to do so to conform to the demands of good English.

The fact is that all is founded on settled principles and no literary license is allowed to give opportunity for decorative diction. Yet it has been a most agreeable surprise to find that the English is seldom unbearable, and, at times, is actually an improvement on unprincipled or lawless translations.

As an example we will take the passage which has been most in dispute since the Revision has been issued. We subjoin all three renderings (2 Ti. 3<sup>16</sup>):

- A. V. All scripture is given by inspiration of God . . .
 R. V. Every scripture given by inspiration of God . . .
 C. V. All scripture is inspired by God . . .

The Greek adjective theopneustos, God-spirited, cannot be rendered literally. To the impartial ear, "given by inspiration of God" is no more pleasing than "inspired by God". To the spiritual perception "given" is an unwelcome intruder. There is nothing in the original to indicate that scripture was merely given by inspiration of God at the beginning, and, for aught which is stated here, no longer possesses the divine afflatus. It is inspired by God now. It is vital with the presence and power of the living God.

The Revisers altered "all" to "every". This is literally correct, and it is so rendered in the CONCORDANT VERSION sub-linear. Idiomatically it can only be tolerated in case their subsequent change, involving the idea that some scriptures are not inspired, is correct. The only satisfactory way of testing their rendering is the concordant method. There are seven other passages of practically the same grammatical construction. We will do to them what the Revisers have done to this passage:

- Ro. 7<sup>12</sup> the holy precept is also just 1 Co. 11<sup>30</sup> many infirm are also ailing
 2 Co. 10<sup>10</sup> his weighty epistles are also strong
 1 Ti. 2<sup>3</sup> for this ideal is also welcome
 1 Ti. 4<sup>4</sup> Every ideal creation of God is also nothing to be cast away
 2 Ti. 3<sup>16</sup> Every scripture inspired by God is also profitable

Heb. 4<sup>13</sup> Now all naked is also bared

It is evident that we cannot consistently and intelligently follow their translation, even though we insist that there were "writings" (such as the apocrypha and secular literature) which were not inspired. As a matter of translation we must make it "All scripture is inspired."

Many a passage will be found more vitally virile in the new rendering. Compare

Mark 14<sup>38</sup>

- A. V. The spirit truly is ready, but the flesh is weak.
 C. V. The spirit, indeed, is eager, yet the flesh is infirm.

Some passages are actually little gems of literary art, even though no attempt was made to furbish them. Compare

1 Timothy 5<sup>18</sup>

- A. V. The laborer is worthy of his reward.
 C. V. The worker is worthy of his wages.

Not only is the alliteration an improvement but the truth is that a laborer or worker, does not get a reward, but wages.

But such literary excellence is a snare which traps readers in insidious error. A recent translation has beautifully rendered Jn. 3<sup>30</sup>: "He must wax; I must wane." The sense is the same as the Authorized. But both are wrong. John the baptist did not wane. He did not decrease. The moon waxes and wanes every month, but it is dimmed daily by the rising of the sun. Our Lord was like the sun whose rising put John in an inferior light. Compare

John 3<sup>30</sup>

- A. V. He must increase, but I must decrease.
 C. V. He must be growing, yet I am to be inferior.

A passage may be in line with its immediate context, and phrased in felicitous English so as to make an artistic appeal, and still be wrong.

Many a real difficulty is solved by the new renderings. A vast amount of energy has been expended in trying to explain how the generation in which our Lord lived should not pass away until His predictions should be fulfilled. Compare

- A. V. This generation shall not pass, till all these things be fulfilled.
 C. V. this generation may by no means be passing by till all these things should be occurring.

The Authorized Version ignores a little particle which makes the whole statement contingent on circumstances. Had the nation received Him, "these things" would have occurred.

The fact that "man" stands for humanity as well as for an adult male, has caused confusion. Much speculation has arisen as to "the number of a man". Compare

Unveiling (Rev.) 13<sup>18</sup>

- A. V. it is the number of a man; and his number is six hundred threescore and six.
 C. V. it is the number of mankind, and its number is six hundred sixty-six.

Many who are justified by faith fail to enter into peace. They will appreciate the new rendering of the following verse. It is often erroneously rendered in the imperative, "Let us have peace."

Romans 5<sup>1</sup>

- A. V. Therefore, being justified by faith, we have peace with God through our Lord Jesus Christ
 C. V. Being, then, justified by faith, we may be having peace toward God, through our Lord, Jesus Christ

Some passages are so obscure and contradictory that they call for continual "explanation". They really need a correct translation. We know that faith cannot be either substance or evidence. It is the opposite of these. Compare

Hebrews 11:1-3

A. V. Now faith is the substance of things hoped for, the evidence of things not seen. For, by it the elders obtained a good report. Through faith we understand that the worlds were framed by the word of God, so that things which are seen were not made of things which do appear.

C. V. Now faith is an assumption of what is being expected, a conviction concerning matters which are not being observed; for in this testimony was borne to the elders. By faith we are apprehending the eons to have been readjusted to a declaration of God, so that what is being observed has not come out of what is apparent.

Whoever could carry out the injunction to "take no thought for your life"? The soul, not the life, is in view. Compare

C. V. Be not worrying for your soul, what you may be eating, or what you may be drinking, nor yet for your body, what you should be putting on. Is not the soul more than nurture and the body than apparel?

Our word poem is practically the same as the Greek word which the Authorized Version has rendered "workmanship". It denotes a very high grade of effort.

Ephesians 2:10

A. V. We are His workmanship

C. V. We are His achievement

It is especially in the higher realms of truth, in Paul's later epistles, that the student will find the greatest advance in this version. Translators admit the difficulty of translating the Pauline epistles because they are so far above our spiritual apprehension. The Concordant method is the greatest help in this dilemma. The keystone passage of Ephesians is an example. Compare

C. V. Seeing that the secret is made known to me by revelation (according as I write before, in brief, to enable those who are reading to apprehend my understanding in the secret of Christ, which is not made known to other generations of the sons of humanity as it was now revealed to His holy apostles and prophets): in spirit the nations are to be joint enjoyers of an allotment, and a joint body, and joint partakers of the promise in Christ Jesus, through the evangel of which I became the dispenser.

Note the many particulars in which the following passage is improved in the CONCORDANT VERSION. Compare

Philippians 4:6,7

A. V. Be careful for nothing, but in everything by prayer and supplication with thanksgiving let your requests be made known unto God, and the peace of God, which passeth all understanding, shall keep your hearts and minds through Christ Jesus.

C. V. Let nothing be worrying you, but in every prayer and petition let your requests be made known to God with thanksgiving, and the peace of God, being superior to every mental state, shall garrison your hearts and your apprehensions in Christ Jesus.

The compiler's faith has not betrayed him into introducing his belief into passages that do not teach it, such as Tit. 2:11.

A. V. For the grace of God that bringeth salvation has appeared to all men.

A.R.V. For the grace of God hath appeared, bringing salvation to all men.

C. V. For the saving grace of God made its advent to all humanity.

The verb bring is not in the original. The statement is that grace which is saving in its character has made its advent dispensationally to all humanity, and there is no warrant for the statement that that advent brings salvation to all men.

The common version tells us that, with temptation, God will make a way to escape, that we may be able to bear it (1 Co. 10:13). How any one can escape a temptation in order to bear it is not clear. How much more reasonable is this: "God . . . together with the trial, will be making the sequel, also, to enable you to undergo it." It is God's way to reveal the sequel to His servants, as in the case of Joseph, to help them through the trials which lead to it.

"A measure of wheat for a penny" (Un. 6c) gives the impression of great plenty instead of fearful famine. "A chenix [1½ pints] of wheat a denarius [15.7¢, 7d 3]" gives nearly correct values. The vexed question of measures and coins is solved by using the Greek terms with their equivalents added in brackets.

To sum up, the CONCORDANT VERSION is not artistic but scientific, in the best sense of that word. It is a consistent scientific setting forth of the phenomena of divine revelation as true science should be of nature. It is not intended for an example of human art, nor a model of composition, but a faithful exponent of truth. Our temple is the open sky, lighted by the sun and all celestial luminaries, not the dim cathedral whose filtered light comes through stained glass windows or is furnished by ornate chandeliers.

EMPHASIS IN THE ENGLISH VERSION

Emphasis is indicated, in the Greek scriptures, in various ways: As in English, by INDICATION, REPETITION, MODIFICATION, CONTRAST; but more particularly and constantly by POSITION, which cannot be duplicated in English. The first four methods can usually be preserved in translation; the last cannot, for the position of a word in an English sentence determines its relation to the other words, not its force.

At times we are directly told what was uttered in a loud voice (Un. 1<sup>11</sup>, 5<sup>2</sup>, etc.). This we have indicated by printing the words so spoken in italic type.

"Worthy is the Lambkin which has been slain"

EMPHASIS BY REPETITION

When a word is repeated in Greek, we can usually do the same in English and preserve the effect. Thus the "Verily, verily" of John's account (1<sup>51</sup>), or the "Woe! woe! woe!" of the Unveiling (8<sup>13</sup>) preserve their emphasis in every language. But there are times when a word cannot well be repeated in English, especially if it is a pronoun. This is because the Greek verb has the pronoun in itself. There is no verb AM. It is always I-AM. Now if the pronoun is added we have I I-AM, which is not English. I is very emphatic. So we print it in italic letters.

"I am not the Christ."

When John the baptist refused to be mistaken for the Messiah he said (Jn. 1<sup>20</sup>), literally: I NOT I-AM THE ANOINTED. We can read the version, "I am not the Christ," with the principal emphasis on Christ, not, or I. If we put it on Christ, then he is repudiating an office; if on not it is a mere negation; but if we put it on I (where it belongs), it suggests that, while John is not the Christ, he is His forerunner. Hence the emphasis is most important in giving the right direction to the thought. This is shown only in emphatic versions.

EMPHASIS BY POSITION

God has not only given us words to convey His meaning, but has arranged them in such a way that we may get their relative force, just as if He spoke to us audibly and modulated His voice to bring out a contrast or emphasize the important point of what He is saying.

Emphasis is regularly indicated by the order of the words in a Greek sentence. What comes first is most emphatic. What comes last is fairly so. What is buried in the middle of a statement is of least importance.

The simplest form of emphasis is indicated by the order of a noun and its modifier. As a noun is normally more emphatic than its modifier, the Greek puts it first, contrary to English usage. Thus, while the word "great" occurs scores of times after the term it modifies, and we read of a sound great (Un. 1<sup>10</sup>) and a city great (Un. 18<sup>18</sup>), the word is stressed when we read of the great God (Ti. 2<sup>13</sup>).

the great God

In the simplest sentence

Christ died for our sins
according to the scriptures,

(1 Co. 15<sup>3</sup>), the English follows the order of the Greek, so the first word is double thin spaced (on each side of the i) and the last has one thin space (between the p and t). It should be read with some stress, either by swelling the tone, or dwelling on the syllable, according to the number of thin spaces, which we will exaggerate thus: "Christ died for our sins according to the scriptures."

But often the order of words must be changed in English. If we should say "Is finding Philip Nathanael" (Jn. 1<sup>45</sup>), no one would be able to say who did the finding. We must say "Philip is finding Nathanael". But in doing this we bury the emphatic word in the middle of the sentence. All we can do is to indicate the fact that finding is first in importance by thin spacing its emphatic syllable thus:

Philip is finding Nathanael

One more example will suffice to show the principle which governs the application of emphasis to the version. In Mk.

15<sup>39</sup> we read in the sublinear, TRULY this THE human SON of-God WAS. In this order truly is most emphatic and this and was are somewhat so. We might have printed them thus: "TRULY, this man was a Son of God!" But this would disfigure the page and exaggerate the stress. Hence we simply and unobtrusively spread out the emphatic words by thin spacing, thus:

Truly, this man was a Son of God!

INDICATIONS OF EMPHASIS

The method of indicating the relative emphasis in this version could hardly be more simple. Words in SMALL CAPITALS

- IN THE BEGINNING was the Word and italics take precisely the same stress

Who are you?

ordinarily given to them. The milder degrees of emphasis are indicated by thin spaces between the letters of a word. These are placed, if possible, where the voice would naturally halt and dwell if we wished to give the word prominence. They are after or on both sides of long vowels, but after the next consonant when the vowel is short, thus, "justified gratuitously" (Ro.3<sup>24</sup>), and thus aid in pronunciation as well.

As emphasis is never absolute, but depends on the relation of a word to its companions, and of a phrase, or clause to its neighbors, the process of determining it is a complex one, and largely a matter of judgment. Hence the critical student is referred to the sublinear, in which it appears in its purity. The test of true emphasis is oral reading. The stress indicated accords with the context and invigorates the sense. Place it elsewhere, as is so often done, and the loss is evident to the spiritually intelligent saint.

THE EXPOSITORY NOTES

It was no part of the original plan of the CONCORDANT VERSION to provide a commentary or interpretation, but, even after making the type of the version large and clear, it was found that it would take only half as much space as the Greek and Sublinear. It is most desirable that all concerned with any passage should appear on one "opening", so that it may seldom be necessary to turn the page to compare the version with the sublinear. This leaves a blank column, which, at the earnest solicitation of friends, the Editor has reluctantly filled with notes.

Nothing is farther from the spirit of the CONCORDANT VERSION than to impose the opinions of any man on his fellow saints. The whole plan is a protest against this. Years upon years of laborious effort on the part of the Editor and his associates (all of which were necessary because they wished to renounce all personal claims to authority) are more eloquent than any protestations they can make, and ought to satisfy everyone that the notes are merely suggestive. Their chief value lies in the fact that they are a frank avowal of the Editor's opinions, and, as such, are the final safeguard against the injection of his own judgment into the version. If he has been biased, all are entitled to know the direction in which he leans.

Let no one found his faith on the notes, which are his fallible findings, but on the unflinching foundation of the inspired originals. There is a sense in which the notes follow out the method used in the version. Just as the signification of a word is fixed by its contexts, so the interpretation of any passage depends on its place in an epistle, and of a book on its relation to the rest. Hence the notes stress the proper apportionment of the truth. Those who are interested in the teaching they contain may find further expositions along the same lines by consulting the CONCORDANT PUBLISHING CONCERN, 2823 East Sixth Street, Los Angeles, California, U. S. A., which publishes a line or scriptural literature.

THE COMPANION VOLUME

The key to the CONCORDANT VERSION is sometimes bound separately in a companion volume, hence an index of its contents is given herewith. It consists of three principal parts, a LEXICAL CONCORDANCE, the GREEK ELEMENTS, and a GREEK COURSE. For convenience these are referred to as "the Concordance".

These will enable any one to get a complete grasp of the word of God in the original as well as in English, for every word will be traced to all its occurrences, in all its forms, and associated with every word in its family. There will be a complete alphabetical index, both of the English and Greek vocabulary, and even of the grammatical forms. Such a tool has never been made for the scholar before, and it can be readily used by the ordinary student of English.

THE LEXICAL CONCORDANCE

All the words used in the Sublinear or Version are arranged in alphabetical order, so that any one can be located in an instant. If it is not STANDARD it will appear in ordinary type, along with all the other words which also represent the same Greek expression, and it is referred to its STANDARD. Thus "unveiling, revelation," is followed by FROM-COVERING, showing that the STANDARD is COVER. Turning to COVER, the whole family of sixteen members will be found, and among them, in alphabetical order, FROM-COVERING. This is defined, and all its occurrences are cited, grouped according to grammar, thus:

ΑΠΟΚΑΛΥΠΤΩ apo kal up'tō

THE GREEK ELEMENTS

Above every STANDARD in the Concordance will be found the corresponding Greek word and its pronunciation. After a few trials any one should be able to find this word in the GREEK ELEMENTS, especially as the alphabet is printed on the margin of each page. After each of the ELEMENTS, is given every word in which it is found, followed by its English STANDARD and idiomatic rendering. The following is a sample:

ΚΑΛΥ- ΚΛΕ- ΚΛΟ-	COVER
ΚΑΛΥΠΤΩ	COVER
ΚΑΛΥΜΜΑ	COVER-effect, covering
ΑΝΑΚΑΛΥΠΤΩ	UP-COVER, uncover, discover
ΑΠΟΚΑΛΥΠΤΩ	FROM-COVER, reveal, unveil
ΑΠΟΚΑΛΥΨΙΣ	FROM-COVERING, revelation, unveiling
ΕΠΙΚΑΛΥΜΜΑ	ON-COVER-effect, cover
ΕΠΙΚΑΛΥΠΤΩ	ON-COVER, cover over
ΚΑΤΑΚΑΛΥΠΤΩ	DOWN-COVER, cover
ΑΚΑΤΑΚΑΛΥΠΤΟΝ	UN-DOWN-COVERED, uncovered
ΠΑΡΑΚΑΛΥΠΤΩ	BESIDE-COVER, screen
ΠΕΡΙΚΑΛΥΠΤΩ	ABOUT-COVER, cover about
ΣΥΓΚΑΛΥΠΤΩ	TOGETHER-COVER, cover up
-ΚΛΕ- ΚΛΟ-	steal
ΚΛΕΠΤΩ	COVER, steal
ΚΛΕΜΜΑ	COVER-effect, stealing, theft
ΚΛΕΠΤΗΣ	COVERER, stealer, thief

REVERSE GRAMMATICAL INDEX

The most difficult feature of Greek grammar, for the beginner, is the great variety of forms, especially of the verb. As these variations are largely confined to the last few letters of the words, a special REVERSE INDEX has been prepared, in which all the forms are arranged in alphabetical order from the end. By consulting this, the student can quickly verify any form. It should be remembered, however, that the sublinear gives the grammar directly, so that this is not so much a necessity as a convenience for students who wish to explore for themselves. The variable letters are put in square brackets to warn the student where to expect irregularities.

Verb, indefinite I—	.....	[E]—[C]A
Noun, I, II, III, genitive plural of—s	.....	—ON
Verb, incomplete present, I-AM-ING	.....	—Ω or subjunctive I-MAY-BE-ING	.....

THE GRAMMATICAL ELEMENTS

The GRAMMATICAL ELEMENTS consist of all the augments and endings used in declension and conjugation with their English equivalents. These are grouped together in such a way as to help the student to a quick and clear apprehension of the normal forms and their euphonic variations. The following is a specimen of the active indefinite verb.

THE GREEK COURSE

The GREEK COURSE gives very brief instructions, methods of work, and exercises to enable any intelligent English speaking student to take advantage of the unparalleled opportunity offered by the CONCORDANT VERSION to grasp the fundamental features of first century Greek. With the Greek text, Sublinear, Elements and Grammar in his possession he is prepared for a life-long enjoyment of all he learns, and is able to advance comfortably and constantly in his knowledge of the original, and of its Author.

APPARATUS FOR CONCORDANT TRANSLATION INTO ANY LANGUAGE

THE basic principles of philology underlying the CONCORDANT VERSION are applicable, with modifications, to every language.

Realizing that the fruitfulness of our labors will be greatly multiplied by concordant versions in other languages, and considering the reflex value of such translations on the English edition, we propose to do all in our power to encourage and aid all who wish to apply concordant principles to the translation or revision of the Scriptures in any foreign language.

REVISION

One of the inherent weaknesses of the present system of translation is the fanatical reverence for the acknowledged defects of our "Authorized" version. Many years ago the compiler of the CONCORDANT VERSION was asked to pass upon a certain rendering by a publisher of the scriptures whose proofreader could not understand what a certain word meant. The matter was explained and another word suggested which was intelligible and correct. He received the thanks of the publisher, but the version was not altered! Every version should always be held in solution. Even though little more light should be shed upon the original text, all living languages are in a state of flux, and versions should be revised to conform to their alterations and adjustments.

There is also a reflex action of great value of which such a course should take advantage. There are lacks in our languages which hinder an exact and consistent rendering. For example, in English we have no name for human being. The word man usually is in contrast with woman. There is no word to distinguish men, women and children from higher or lower orders of life, such as the Greek anthrōpos or the German mensch. We should have one. We have, therefore, suggested the word human (noun) in the Lexicon and sublinear. Perhaps it will be welcomed in the version at no distant date.

At first, readers of the CONCORDANT VERSION object to accurate renderings. Later they prefer them. Finally they insist on them. It is probable that later editions of this version will find it possible to cleave still closer to the Greek, and we shall bear with such suggested changes as "human" for man, "commissioner" for apostle, "miss" for sin, or even "stake" for cross. The important point to be pressed is this, that all such improvements shall be uniformly or consistently made, not in a haphazard, unprincipled way, but in accord with the laws of language. It may be that some permanent committee or Bible Society will undertake a revision at stated periods.

ASSOCIATION FOR THE SPREAD OF SCRIPTURE TRUTH

God has mightily used the efforts of Bible Societies for the distribution of "uncorrupted" versions of the word of God. Very wisely, they do not distribute "private" translations. We confidently commend to them a thorough examination of the principles and methods of the CONCORDANT VERSION, with the conviction that, if they do so, they will acknowledge that it is as far removed as is humanly possible from the realm of private opinion, whether of individuals or companies of men, for committees are merely the multiplication of the private opinion of their members. And they will find it the most uncorrupt because it seeks to hide nothing, but puts all the evidence before the reader in such a way that deception is practically impossible.

It may take some time for Bible Societies to realize the advantages of distributing this uncorrupted public version. In the meantime the CONCORDANT PUBLISHING CONCERN, a purely philanthropic, non-profit-sharing association, consisting of all who are interested in its task of bringing the facts of God's word to the peoples of the earth, will welcome to its ranks all who wish to aid in its work, in the Lord. We hope to establish offices in many lands, but first contact should be made by writing to the headquarters at 2823 EAST SIXTH STREET, LOS ANGELES, CALIF., U.S.A. Those who wish to aid should state the talents, qualifications, or time they wish to devote to the work. All gifts will be duly acknowledged and applied as directed or as most needed. If desired, annuities can be arranged, with interest during life. Legal advice on all such matters will be freely given. But no consideration in the least affecting the integrity of the version will be entertained.

A CONCORDANT HEBREW VERSION

Many urgent requests have been made for a CONCORDANT VERSION of the Hebrew Scriptures. At this date (1930) most of the preliminary work has been done.

No promises can be made except that the work will be prosecuted as strength and support are received. Those who wish to actively encourage such an undertaking are asked to communicate with the CONCORDANT PUBLISHING CONCERN which will keep them informed, from time to time, of the progress of the work.

The following pages are a tentative attempt at a CONCORDANT VERSION of selections from the Hebrew scriptures, and will indicate, in some measure, the results to be expected. The idiomatic version alone will be published first.

IN THE BEGINNING

(Commonly called GENESIS)

IN THE BEGINNING God creates the heavens and the earth.

2 And the earth becomes waste and sterile, and darkness is on the surface of the abyss.

3 And the spirit of God is fluttering on the surface of the waters. And God is saying, "It shall become light." And it is becoming light.

4 And God is seeing the light that it is good. And God is separating the light from the darkness. And God is calling the light "day," and the darkness He calls "night".

And it is becoming evening, and it is becoming morning, one day.

6 And God is saying, "There shall come to be an atmosphere in the midst of the waters, and there shall come to be a separation between waters and waters." And God is making the atmosphere. And He is separating the waters which are under the atmosphere from the waters which are above the atmosphere. And 7 it is becoming so. And God is calling the atmosphere "heavens".

And it is becoming evening, and it is becoming morning, a second day.

9 And God is saying, "The waters under the heavens shall flow together into one place and the dry land shall be seen." And it is becoming 10 so. And God is calling the dry land "earth". And the confluence of the waters He calls "seas". And God is seeing that it is good.

11 And God is saying, "The earth shall bring forth verdure, herbage seeding seed, the fruit tree yielding fruit for its species whose seed is in it, on the earth. And it is becoming 12 so. And the earth is bringing forth verdure, herbage seeding seed for its species, and trees yielding fruit whose seed is in it for its species. And God is seeing that it is good.

13 And it is becoming evening, and it is becoming morning, a third day.

14 And God is saying, "Luminaries shall come to be in the atmosphere of the heavens, to separate between the day and the night. And they come to be for signs and for appointments and for days and years. And luminaries come to be in the atmosphere of the heavens to illumine the earth." And it is becoming so.

16 And God is making the two great luminaries (the great luminary to rule the day, and the small luminary to rule the night), and the stars.

17 And God is giving them in the atmosphere of the heavens to illumine the earth, and to rule by day and by night and to separate between the light and the darkness. And God is seeing that it is good.

19 And it is becoming evening, and it is becoming morning, a fourth day.

20 And God is saying, "The waters shall teem with living souls that teem, and the flyer shall fly on the earth on the face of the atmosphere of the heavens."

21 And God is creating the great monsters, and every crawling living soul which teems in the waters for their species, and every winged flyer for its species. And God is seeing that it is good.

22 And God is blessing them, saying, "Be fruitful and multiply and fill the waters of the seas." And the flyer is multiplying in the earth.

23 And it is becoming evening, and it is becoming morning, a fifth day.

24 And God is saying, "The earth shall bring forth the living soul for its species, the beast and crawling thing, and the living thing of the earth for its species." And it is becoming so.

25 And God is making the living thing of the earth for its species, and the beast for its species, and everything crawling on the ground for its species. And God is seeing that it is good.

<sup>26</sup> And God is saying, "We shall make a human in our image, as our likeness, and they shall sway over the fish of the sea, and over the flyer of the heavens, and over the beasts, and over all the earth, and over everything crawling on the earth."

<sup>27</sup> And God is creating a human in His image. In the image of God He creates him. Male and female He creates them.

<sup>28</sup> And God is blessing them. And God is saying to them, "Be ye fruitful and multiply and fill the earth, and bring it into subjection, and sway over the fish of the sea, and over the flyer of the heavens, and over all living things crawling on the earth."

<sup>29</sup> And God is saying, "Lo! I give to you all herbage seedling seed which is on the surface of all the earth, and every tree in which is the fruit of a tree seedling seed. To you it shall become food.

<sup>30</sup> And to every living thing of the earth, and to every flyer of the heavens, and to every crawling thing on the earth, which has in it a living soul, all green herbage is for food." And it is becoming so.

<sup>31</sup> And God is seeing all that He makes, and lo! it is very good.

And it is becoming evening, and it is becoming morning, a sixth day.

PSALM 17

XIX

A Davidic Psalm

Day to day is uttering a saying,

There is no saying, and there is no speaking,

Naught is heard of their voice,

And he is as a bridegroom coming forth from his canopy.

He is elated as a master to run the path.

And there is nothing concealed from its warmth.

The testimony of Jehovah is faithful, making wise the simple,

The direction of Jehovah is pure, lighting up the eyes.

The judgments of Jehovah are truth; they are righteous altogether;

And sweeter than honey and drips of the combs.

Keep me innocent from those which are concealed.

Then am I sincere and innocent from much trespass.

<sup>14</sup> Let the words of my mouth and the soliloquy of my heart

Become acceptable before Thee, Jehovah, my Rock and my Redeemer!

A POCKET CONCORDANT VERSION

As there is a demand for a small, cheap, portable edition, a POCKET CONCORDANT VERSION has been issued in handy size, in a small, clear black face Antique type, as indicated below. This edition contains nothing but the version—no Greek, super-linear or sublinear, or notes. There will be no indication of emphasis except such as demands italic type. It will be useful for all who have the Version, to carry with them at all times. Those who are not ready for the larger work will find this more accurate and consistent than any version yet attempted in English.

<sup>34</sup> Now the graziers, perceiving what has occurred, fled and <sup>35</sup> report it in the city and in the fields. Now they came out to perceive what has occurred, and they came to Jesus and they found the man, from whom the demons came out, garmented and sane, sitting at the feet of Jesus, and they
<sup>37</sup> demoniac was saved report to them. And the entire multitude of the country about the Gergesenes asks Him to be coming away from them, seeing that they were pressed with a great fear.

<sup>38</sup> Now He, stepping into the ship, returns. Now the man from whom the demons had come out besought Him to be <sup>39</sup> with Him, yet Jesus dismisses him, saying, "Be returning to your home and relate how much God does for you." And he came away to the whole city proclaiming how much Jesus does for him.

<sup>41</sup> Him, for they were all hoping for Him. And lo! a man came whose name was Jairus, and he possessed the chieftainship of the synagogue. And, falling at the feet of Jesus, he <sup>42</sup> entreated Him to be entering into his house, seeing that he had an only begotten daughter of about twelve years, and she died.

<sup>44</sup> strength to be cured by any one. Approaching from behind, she touches the tassel of His cloak, and instantly her hemorrhage was stanchd.

<sup>45</sup> And Jesus said, "Who touches Me?" Now, at all denying it, Peter and those with Him, said, "Doctor, the throngs are pressing Thee and jostling, and art Thou saying, 'Who <sup>46</sup> touches Me?'" Yet Jesus said, "Someone touches Me, for I <sup>47</sup> knew that power has come out from Me." Now the woman, perceiving that she did not elude Him, came trembling, and prostrating to Him, reports in front of the entire people for what cause she touches Him, and so was healed instantly.

<sup>48</sup> Now He said to her, "Courage. daughter! Your faith has saved you! Go in peace!"
<sup>49</sup> While He is still talking, someone of the chief of the synagogue is coming, saying to him that "Your daughter
<sup>50</sup> has died. Bother the teacher no longer." Yet Jesus, hearing it, answered him, saying, "Fear not, only believe, and she shall be saved."

<sup>51</sup> Now, coming into the house, He lets no one enter with Him except Peter and James and John and the father of the <sup>52</sup> girl and the mother. Now they were all lamenting and they grieved for her. Now He said, "Be not lamenting, for she <sup>53</sup> did not die, but is drowsing." And they ridiculed Him, being

PERSONAL EXPERIENCE OF THE COMPILER

During the later years of the nineteenth century I became intensely interested in the word of God, and determined to use every effort to master its message. I bought myself a small Greek Testament and kept it always with me. I sent for Wigram's Englishman's Concordances of the Greek and Hebrew. Both have had to be rebound since, I found them so useful. Indeed, the New Testament volume was rebound several times until finally it now lies before me as I write, a ragged loose-leaf relic, past the possibility of rebinding.

Realizing that I needed help with my Greek, I attended the Greek classes of Mr. Stiles, then a part of the course of the Los Angeles Bible Institute in California. But these did not continue long, so I was again thrown on my own resources. My continual use of the concordance impressed me with the need of more uniformity in translation, and I began to try to standardize my thinking by always using a certain English word when I had a Greek term in mind.

My next step was to register my conclusions in the concordance. I wrote the English word alongside the Greek, and went through all the passages to see if it would fit. If it did I went to the index and found all the other Greek terms so rendered and crossed them out. Turning to these in the concordance, I went through their occurrences and crossed out the word I wished to keep distinct. In this way I "cleaned up" (as I termed it) many of the important terms in the divine vocabulary, to my great satisfaction and profit.

Then I commenced to make trial translations, and issued some of these as I had time to put them into type. But I found myself hampered by inadequate tools. The concordance I had was good but not sufficiently exact. It did not distinguish between the various forms of each word, and the grammar needed investigation. I determined to start afresh.

THE CONCORDANCE

First I needed an exhaustive concordance which would analyze the vocabulary to the limit—every form of every word by itself. I also wished to associate all words having the same derivation.

I bought two copies of Bruder's Greek Concordance, crossed out all the odd pages of one and the even pages of the other and, with the help of my dear wife and several volunteers, pasted every line on a separate slip of paper. Then I did the same with Davidson's Analytical Lexicon, but used larger slips so that they would be visible above the occurrences. The principal forms of each word we pasted on still larger cards.

Then I made a large sorting rack and arranged all the forms of each word in order. Then the occurrences, on the smaller slips, were distributed and gathered up. This was the basis of my concordance. I had to build dozens of drawers, each about two feet long, to hold the cards and slips.

I then gathered all the words of similar derivation together, and thus had a complete and exhaustive Greek Concordance. I realized that this would not be of much use to any one but a scholar, so began the task of turning it into English.

THE ELEMENTS

As I took up this work I began to realize the great advantage of analyzing the vocabulary into its elements, and of grouping all words having the same element together. So I took small slips of various heights but the same width, as before, wrote the Greek Element and its English standard on the largest slips, and the words on the smaller ones. In this way I went through the whole vocabulary. The result was the GREEK ELEMENTS, which is published in the Companion Volume.

This was done while I was turning the Concordance into English and re-arranging it according to our alphabet.

THE GREEK TEXT

Next the question of a Greek text engaged my attention. After much study and deliberation I decided to base my work on actual evidence rather than on any text formed by modern scholars.

I had long been wishing to get fac-similes of the most ancient texts and had a copy of Alexandrinus. After I had tried for a year to get Vaticanus in Rome, my money was returned to me. Nevertheless, a friend secured both Sinaiticus and Vaticanus in England.

THE PASTED BOOKS

Meanwhile, I had taken two copies of the Resultant Greek New Testament and had it pasted line for line on a series of specially prepared books. Beneath each line about an inch of space was left for the sublinear to be written in. This was done by a beloved assistant, a retired physician, who has since gone to her reward.

The method was as follows: I took the concordance slips and, on each different form, wrote the standard which I wished to appear in the sublinear. This was then transferred to each occurrence in the pasted books. In this way the sublinear was made.

COLLATING THE TEXT

I was fortunate in enlisting the aid of two painstaking assistants who took a copy of the Resultant text and compared it, letter by letter, with photographic facsimiles of the ancient manuscripts. To keep them distinct, Sinaiticus was noted in red ink, Vaticanus in green, the papyrus in purple, and Alexandrinus in lead pencil. After this had been done, I altered the Resultant text to correspond with the evidence thus presented, and changed the sublinear to suit.

THE VERSION

With this as a basis I wrote the version in the space below the sublinear in the pasted books.

THE GRAMMATICAL INDEX

But before much of this could be done I spent a year or two trying to formulate standards for the Greek verb. As the accepted grammars would not work, I found it necessary to make another index. Two copies of Davidson's Analytical Greek Lexicon, which has every form of every Greek word, were worked up into a card index, so that every grammatical form was followed by all the words in which it occurs. This enabled me to examine as many occurrences of any given form as necessary, in order to fix its force. Finally, after years of work, I succeeded in unraveling it to my satisfaction. This is published in the GRAMMAR.

Of course, all of this work was revised and re-revised, time and again. When the version was written every word was added to the Concordance and referred to its standard. In this way I avoided using the same word twice for different Greek terms, for, if I found the word already filed in its order, I could not use it again.

I now had the vocabulary and grammar of the Greek at my command. By means of the three card indexes—the Concordance, the Elements and the Grammatical Forms—I could easily make investigations and come to satisfactory conclusions on almost any matter. The results were seen in the Pasted Books. So I determined to publish these, giving the Greek of all three ancient texts, the sublinear and the version.

During all these years I had been working hard at my vocation and accumulated a competence, so that I might give all my time to the work. But, by the good hand of God, this was taken from me, so that I faced the problem of printing the results of my labors entirely dependent on Him. To issue the entire work at one time was out of the question, so I proposed to issue it in parts, hoping that each part would finance the next.

Grave difficulties immediately arose. The war was on. I had designed a conventional font of Greek type, but the manufacturers were busy making war material and would not cut it. To make matters worse, I was thrown out of employment. But I took it as a signal to proceed. If I could get no other work, I would not waste my time, but get at the task that was on my heart. So I bought a length of soft steel, cut it into stubs and engraved the letters on the ends by means of an old file and nail set converted into a punch. After hardening the letters, I made a holder so that I could sink them into small copper discs. The hardest work of all was to smooth off these matrices so that the letter was sharply defined at the edges where the matrix meets the mold. This was finally accomplished, and I had the satisfaction of casting my own font of first century Greek. From a founder's viewpoint it was defective, but from the standpoint of representing the ancient manuscripts it has been very satisfactory. Later, when a lighter font was found necessary I had the dies cut by a die sinker, but made the matrices as before.

great interest attached to it and partly because it was shorter than the rest and would give me an opportunity to test my methods. I set the type of the Greek pages myself and had my son put the emphasis in the version. The strenuous, nerve-racking haste with which I sought to do all this was almost too much for my physical frame, so that at the last moment I lost confidence in my efforts and compared the first few pages of the Greek with a printed book in my possession, and rashly made many changes which afterward turned out to be wrong. As this was done only for the first two pages, it did not vitiate the whole work, but gave a very bad impression to any one who wished to test it, for they naturally examined those very pages, and seldom went further. We have since followed the photographs alone, being convinced of their superiority to any edition, no matter what other editors may say.

Nevertheless the work created considerable interest and the representative of a prominent religious publishing society approved of it and they promised to sell a special edition without notes. As I fell behind my schedule in preparing the next part for the printer, I published five thousand of their special edition first. I well remember the evening when I had finished putting it through the press. I was ill and almost too tired to stand. Yet I felt elated that I had finished my part of the work and would soon be able to sell several thousand of the new part to them. When I came home the first letter in my mail was a note countermanding the order! Strangely enough, I was strengthened, and felt better, for I realized that God's hand was in it. The early translators had all been persecuted. Why should I not suffer and enjoy it?

Of course, it was a severe financial blow. No reason has ever been given. No fault was found with the version. It was simply a change of policy due to a change in administration. The worst effect of the tremendous trials which have hindered (or helped) the publication of the version was to unfit me for that painstaking accuracy which ought to characterize it. But I realize that this is my thorn in the flesh, and I am able to largely counteract it by the greatly increased efficiency of my faithful and beloved assistants.

In spite of much slander and opposition, poverty and dire distress, the version has gone right on. One influential religious leader warned an inquirer not to read the version because it was being published to disprove the personality of the devil! As I have written much to the contrary, I could not help thinking that the Slanderer is not the only one who has a right to the title. Several insist that it is propaganda for universalism, and is supported by funds from that denomination. As I am not acquainted with a single member of that church, so far as I am aware, and have never received a single cent from any sect, this charge is as false as the first.

In neither case has any evidence been given to support the accusations. If there is any passage which has been perverted to prove that the Slanderer is not a personality, I wish to know it and correct it. If I have mistranslated any passage in order to teach universal reconciliation, I wish to be informed, so that I can set it straight. But I will not pervert the word of God to suit any sect, orthodox or unorthodox. I have suffered too much already to cringe before their anathemas. I tremble before God and His word: but I repudiate all human authority in matters of divine revelation.

Once I submitted the version to a publishing house. They refused to issue anything in instalments, because of the amount of labor and vexation which accompanies such a course. But this has been a benefit to the version, for it has enabled me to watch the reaction of those who received it and to make slight improvements in each part. It has been most encouraging. At first sight many are repelled by the new renderings. But practically all who really use it, appreciate it to a degree quite up to my fondest expectations.

As I write this I am being harassed by the slanders of those who do not understand either my motive or my method, who do not present any evidence, and who appeal to popular prejudice to support their opposition. For all such I pray to the God of all grace, Who cannot but deal graciously with them in Christ Jesus. But I also implore them to acquaint themselves with the principles on which my effort is based, with the method employed in its execution, and I doubt not that they must acknowledge that, while it degrades me to a mere workman, so that I do not care to be called a translator, it also redounds to the glory of God and conveys and displays the surpassing excellences of His holy word as no other version has even assayed to do.

THE GREEK SCRIPTURES

THE GREEK SCRIPTURES

CHRIST and His kingdom occupies the place of prominence in the Greek scriptures. They chronicle its refusal when proclaimed by the King Himself, its rejection when heralded by His apostles after His resurrection, its present abeyance, its reaffirmation and realization in the days to come.

Only a very small portion of the Hebrew scriptures was written to or for the nations, or gentiles. By far the greater part is concerning the nation of Israel. The same is true of the Greek revelation. Excepting Paul's epistles, all is directly related to the Circumcision. Christ confined His ministry to the people of the covenant. There was nothing but crumbs for aliens in the accounts of our Lord's life. The chief of the twelve apostles could with difficulty be persuaded to preach even to such a proselyte as Cornelius. From Hebrews to Jude all is limited to the twelve tribes. The Unveiling gives Israel the sovereignty of the earth.

Only Paul's epistles, from Romans to Philemon, are written to, or intended for, the Uncircumcision. While all blessing for the nations was planned to come through the sons of Israel, this channel is choked when they reject the testimony of the apostles, as recorded in the book of Acts. All blessing for the present is based on their apostasy, and comes to us, not through them, but through their defection, and is limited to the period of their rejection. Furthermore, the destiny in Paul's epistles is different. The Circumcision and their beneficiaries are blessed on earth. The Uncircumcision of this economy are blessed among the celestials.

This book is not the "New Testament" or covenant. The new covenant which Jehovah will make with His people Israel is to be found in the so-called "Old Testament" (Jer.31<sup>31-34</sup>), and is repeated in the "New" (Heb.8<sup>8-13</sup>). In both cases it is confined to the physical seed of Jacob, the same people who received the old covenant at Sinai, and its place is in the coming kingdom. The grand division in God's purpose is not between these two covenants, but rather between covenanted and uncovenanted blessings. The nations or gentiles will share some of Israel's good things when they are in favor once again, and are under the new covenant. But in the great parenthetic period between their past apostasy and future fullness we have the present grace. This is made known only in Paul's epistles and is entirely distinct from the message of the scriptures to the Circumcision.

We have enclosed Paul's writings in a parenthesis to indicate that they are an interlude. The great movements inaugurated in the Hebrew Scriptures are continued in the accounts of our Lord's life, in Acts, and in Hebrews, James, Peter, John and Jude, and especially in the Unveiling. But Paul's epistles reveal a secret purpose which antedates and transcends God's counsels for the earth, and the blessing which comes through them is based on grace so pure and unadulterated that it depends for its display on Israel's failure rather than their faithfulness. Hence the same thread of thought can be traced through all the scriptures, omitting Paul's revelations, and they form a complete system, suited to the regeneration of the earth, through Israel. But Paul has a higher mission. He is concerned with the heavens and their reconciliation to God.

The following outline will give a grasp of the Greek scriptures at a glance.

THE UNVEILING

MATTHEW'S ACCOUNT

MATTHEW manifests the Messiah as the Son of David and the Son of Abraham. He is the King of Israel and the Owner of the land. His genealogy is presented to prove His title to the throne and attest His inheritance from the father of the faithful. This account is occupied with the kingdom to Israel and the land of promise. It is concerned with the covenants made with Abraham and with David.

The four accounts or portraitures of Christ give four discriminated aspects of their common subject, and are not intended to be "harmonized". Each writer has his peculiar principles of selection and arrangement. Matthew's account, ever recognized as the Hebrew gospel, is the true commencement of the Greek scriptures, showing how they grow out of the Hebrew writings. It quotes at every step from the older scriptures. It is both a history and a fulfillment of prophecy. Matthew never rises above the plane of Israel's interests and hopes.

The characteristic phrase is "the kingdom of the heavens". This refers to Daniel's prophecy, "And in the days of these kings the God of the heavens shall set up a kingdom which shall not be harmed for the eon, and the kingdom shall not be left to another people. It shall crush and terminate all these kingdoms . . ." (Dan.244). "And the kingdom and the authority and the majesty of the kingdom under all the heavens is granted to the people of the saints of the supremacies . . ." (Dan. 727). It is a kingdom in the sense that Babylon, Medo-Persia and Greece were kingdoms; it is still future; it is the rule of one people over other nations; yet it will not be destroyed as its predecessors in world dominion, but will last for the eons.

Notwithstanding the fact that Messiah is sent only to the lost sheep of the house of Israel (1524) and that He forbade His apostles to go to the nations or Samaritans (105), the few instances in which the aliens are mentioned are most significant. Four gentile women enter the genealogy (135,6). Tamar's sin introduced her into the line of ancestry, Rahab came in by faith. In Ruth's case grace triumphed over the law that would ban a Moabite from the congregation of Jehovah. Bathsheba reminds us of David's great transgression and shows us grace reigning despite sin. The magi come to worship Him, while Herod seeks His life (21-12). The centurion exhibits a faith unknown in Israel (85-12). The Canaanitish woman is commended for her confidence in Christ (1521-28). Pilate and his wife refuse responsibility when the Jews seek to condemn Him (2710,24). The centurion at the cross acknowledges that He is the Son of God (2754). It is only at the end of the account, after all authority on earth is in the hands of the King, that the disciples are commissioned to go and make disciples of all nations. This cannot occur until the kingdom comes. Thus the proclamation of the kingdom of the heavens is restricted to the people of whom the prophet Daniel spoke.

The narrative is divided into two distinct periods, each of which begins with His acknowledgement as Son of God by a voice from heaven and closes by its acknowledgment by men, the first by the disciples, the second by the nations. The first extends from John's baptism (318,17), and closes with Peter's confession (1616). During this period the kingdom is proclaimed and rejected, so that He forbids its further proclamation. The second period is occupied with His priestly preparation for the sacrifice on Golgotha. It begins with the transformation on the mount (171-5) where Moses and Elijah spoke of His decease, and continued to the crucifixion, where the centurion said, "Truly this was the Son of God!" (2754).

1-6 Compare Lu.3:23-38.

6-11 Compare 1 Chr. 3:10-16.

12-16 Compare 1 Chr. 3:17-19.

This is the royal lineage of the Son of David as well as the title to the land granted to Abraham. In contrast to the genealogy given by Luke, we are given the actual physical descent by the male line to Joseph, the husband of Mary, the mother of our Lord. The three sections bring before us three distinct phases of rule and the failure of each. First we have the theocracy until David, which ended when the people clamored for a king (1 Sa. 8:22). Then comes the period of the kingdom, which was a series of failures, until the Babylonian exile. Since then the nations ruled Israel, until the birth of Messiah, when they were under the Roman yoke. It was a dismal descent, and proved conclusively that no male issue of this line would ever be competent to sit upon the throne of Messiah.

David was the greatest of the kings, yet his son Solomon was a living evidence of his terrible sin. And so degenerate did the line of his sons become that at the time of the exile Jechoniah drew down upon himself the curse of Jehovah:

"Thus saith the Lord,
Write this man bereft,
A master who shall not prosper in his days:
For no man of his seed shall prosper,
Sitting on the throne of David,
And ruling any more in Judah'."
(Jer.22<sup>30</sup>)

Neither Joseph, nor any of his progenitors since the exile, were eligible to the throne. If Christ were his natural son, He also would be debarred. The Messiah cannot be of the seed of Jechoniah. Hence the absolute necessity of the virgin birth. Being begotten by God, the sins of progenitors did not taint His blood, and the curse of Coniah had no claim on Him. Yet, as the Son of Joseph, He inherited the title to the throne and all the honors of the house of David.

<sup>8</sup> Between Joram and Ozias, there were three kings, Ahaziah, Joash, and Amaziah, but their names were blotted out according to the law (Deut.29<sup>20</sup>), because they introduced idolatry into Israel. Ahaziah (or Azariah or Jehohaz) walked in the ways of Ahab and was slain by Jehu (2 Chron. 22<sup>3,9</sup>).

Joash served Jehovah as long as the priest Jehoiada lived, but afterwards the princes of Judah served idols. He slew the son of Jehoiada, who remonstrated. Hence the servants of King Joash slew him and would not bury him in the tombs of the kings (2 Chr. 24<sup>17,25</sup>). Amaziah also bowed down to the gods of the sons of Seir, and was slain by the people of Jerusalem (2 Chr. 25<sup>15,27</sup>).

Jechoniah's name is shortened to Co-niah (Jer. 22<sup>24</sup>) to show that Jehovah withdrew His support from him. He is not included in the line of kings. None of his seven sons (1 Chr. 3<sup>17,18</sup>) succeeded to the throne. As no man of his seed can prosper, sitting on the throne of David, yet the regal rights are in his line, Messiah must be his Son, but not his seed.

<sup>17</sup> In each group there are fourteen generations. From Abraham to, and including, David, are fourteen. From David to and including Josiah are fourteen. From Jechoniah to and including Christ are fourteen.

14	Abraham to David	14	David to Exile	14	Exile to Christ
----	------------------------	----	----------------------	----	-----------------------

By this peculiar Hebrew system of enumeration, the true spiritual values are emphasized. David, as the most important progenitor, is counted twice. By substituting an event in place of a man for the link between the second and third group, Jechoniah is degraded to a place among the private persons of the third group. As a result the twenty kings of Judah are divided into two groups of ten each, the first seven of whom are counted and the last three are blotted out, as on the list herewith.

Each period began with a revival and closed in apostasy. At the end of the first the land was oppressed by the Philistines; at the end of the second it

<sup>19</sup> holy spirit. Now Joseph, her husband, being just and not willing to hold her up to infamy, intended to dismiss her covertly.

<sup>20</sup> Now at his brooding over these things, lo! a messenger of the Lord appeared to him in a trance, saying, "Joseph, son of David, you should not be afraid to accept Miriam, your wife, for that which is being generated in her is of holy spirit.

<sup>21</sup> Now she shall bring forth a Son, and you shall be calling His name JESUS, for He shall be saving His people from their sins."

<sup>22</sup> Now the whole of this has occurred that that which is declared by the Lord through the prophet may be fulfilled, saying:

<sup>23</sup> "Lo! the virgin will be pregnant, And will bring forth a Son, And they will be calling His name 'Emmanuel',

19 The law was very strict in an ordinary case of this kind, and demanded that the woman be taken to the entrance of her father's house and the men of her city be required to stone her until she died (Deut. 22<sup>21</sup>). Joseph could not bring himself to this, so intended to divorce her according to the law that when a man had taken a wife and has found some uncleanness in her then he was to write her a bill of divorcement and send her out of his house (Deut. 24<sup>1</sup>).

23 In Isaiah, the prophet does not use the usual word for virgin, but olme, damsel (Isa. 7<sup>14</sup>). It is not likely that it was a virgin when it first came to pass in the prophet's day. But in this, the proper fulfillment, the spirit changes the word to virgin, as it is in the Septuagint also.

1-6 Bethlehem, the House of Bread, can be traced back in the family of our Lord to the time of Boaz and Ruth (Ruth 1<sup>1,2</sup>). Here David dwelt. It was so insignificant that it is not even mentioned among the cities of Judah by Joshua or Nehemiah. This is seized on by the prophet Micah (5<sup>2</sup>) to form a background for its future greatness. Nor has any other event of importance transpired there. Its solitary and surpassing glory is the birth of the Shepherd of Israel.

1 The magi represent those who are learned in the lore of nature. All nature leads the true devotee to the worship of Him Whose handiwork it is. Many attempts have been made to explain the star of Bethlehem as a purely normal occurrence—a meteor, a comet, the conjunction of a number of planets, etc. But no such star could guide the magi for a long period and then take its place above Bethlehem, as distinct from Jerusalem. It is much easier to believe that it was an extraordinary star, for it heralded the birth of a most extraordinary Babe.

Which is, construed, 'God with us'."

24 Now Joseph, being roused from sleep, does as the Lord's messenger
 25 bids him, and accepted his wife, and he knew her not till she brought forth a Son, and he calls His name JESUS.

2 Now, Jesus being born in Bethlehem of Judea in the days of Herod the king, lo! magi from the east came along into Jerusalem, saying,
 2 "Where is He Who is being brought forth King of the Jews? For we perceived His star in the east and we came to worship Him."

3 Now when king Herod hears, he was disturbed, and all Jerusalem with him. And assembling all the chief priests and scribes of the people, he ascertained from 5 them where Christ is born. Now they say to him, "In Bethlehem of Judea, for thus it is written through the prophet,

6 'And you, Bethlehem, land of Judah, Are in no respect least among the governors of Judah, For out of you will come a Governor Who shall be shepherding My people Israel.'"

7 Then Herod, covertly calling the magi, ascertains exactly from them the time of the star's appearing.
 8 And, sending them into Bethlehem, he said, "While going enquire exactly concerning the little Boy. Now if you should ever be finding Him, report to me, so that I, also, may be coming and worshipping Him."

9 Now those who hear the king went, and lo! the star which they perceived in the east preceded them

<sup>3</sup> Herod the Great, as this king was usually called, may have been of Philistine extraction, his ancestors having been brought to Idumea as prisoners of war. He was the first sovereign of the Edomites who reigned over Judea, under Roman supremacy, and began about 40 B. C. His father, Antipater, had been procurator of Judea when Hyrcanus II., the Maccabean, was king. He died not long after these events. He received his kingdom from Antony and the Roman Senate. After the fall of Antony he found favor with the emperor Augustus. His actions tell us that he feared for his throne when the Messiah should come. In this he was in striking contrast with the Maccabean dynasty which he displaced. They took the royal authority with the express reservation of the rights of the Messiah (1 Macc. 14<sup>41</sup>). He massacred helpless infants in a futile effort to murder the Messiah.

<sup>7</sup> It is evident, from the anxiety of Herod to get the exact time when the star first appeared, and his order to kill all the babes under two years, that the magi did not visit Bethlehem when Christ was born, but a long time afterward. He is now a little Boy, and Herod does not consider it safe to allow any child under two years to live. It is probable that they saw the star in the east at His birth, and, after some time for preparation, took their slow journey to Judea.

<sup>12</sup> There is a startling contrast between the worshipful adoration of the magi, and the cruel conduct of His own people. The priests and scribes and populace should have exulted at His coming, but they are disturbed and uneasy. The priests should have worshiped Him, but they would not go a two-hours' journey to see Him. The magi traveled for months and brought Him presents. The scribes knew where he was born, but none went thither. The people followed their leaders. His own received Him not!

till, coming, it was stationed above
<sup>10</sup> where the little Boy was. Now, perceiving the star, they rejoiced with
<sup>12</sup> And, being apprised in a trance not to go back again to Herod, they retire through another way into their country.

<sup>13</sup> Now, at their retiring into their country, lo! the Lord's messenger is appearing to Joseph in a trance, saying, "Rouse! Take along the little Boy and His mother and flee into Egypt, and be there till I should speak to you, for Herod is about to be seeking the little Boy to destroy Him."

<sup>14</sup> Now, being roused, he took along the little Boy and His mother by night and retires into Egypt, <sup>15</sup> and He was there till the decease of Herod, in order that that which is declared by the Lord through the prophet may be fulfilled, saying,

"Out of Egypt I call My Son."

<sup>16</sup> Then Herod, perceiving that he was derided by the magi, was very furious, and, dispatching, he massacred all the boys who were in Bethlehem and in all its boundaries, from two years and below, according to the time which he ascertains exactly from the magi.

true Image of God would find the first objects to strike His dawning intelligence, and these would probably be the false images and gigantic temples of their idolatrous worship. Here was the center of the world's wisdom, but we do not read that any of the wise men recognized Him in Whom all the treasures of wisdom and knowledge are concealed (Col.2<sup>3</sup>). But here also was the home of the Septuagint, the Greek version of the sacred scrolls which He used in His ministry. From here He, like the nation before Him, was called out of Egypt (Hos.11<sup>1</sup>).

18 Compare Jer. 31<sup>15</sup>.

18 The name "Rama" was a common one for a site on a hill. There was probably such a place near Bethlehem beside the tomb of Rachel, who died there in sorrow (Gen. 35<sup>18-20</sup>). There is a beautiful connection between her sorrow and that of the bereaved mothers whose infants Herod slew.

23 "He will be called a Nazarene" was a spoken prophecy. There is no reason to believe it was written or is to be found in the Hebrew scriptures. Much that was spoken by the prophets was never committed to writing, but was preserved by tradition.

1-12 Compare Mk.11-8Lu.31-18Jn.16-8,10-34.

3 The wretched roads in the East were seldom repaired unless in preparation for some royal visitor. To see the peasants employed in removing the stones and straightening the road, and leveling its rough places was a sure sign that some one of high rank was expected. John the baptist was the herald of the King, calling on His subjects to prepare His path before Him (Isa. 40<sup>3</sup>).

4 There is no reason why this should not be taken literally. The Arabs of those regions still feed on locusts. The American Indians of the western deserts have been known to subsist for weeks on locusts alone. The insect was included among those which it was lawful for a Jew to eat (Lev.11<sup>22</sup>). The monks of the dark ages thought this incredible, so they planted locust trees near the grotto in the desert which was supposed to be John's home. The carob is also found in this region and pilgrims have given it the name "St. John's bread" in order to shield him from the charge of eating insects!

Rachel lamenting for her children,
And she did not want to be consoled,
For they are not."

19 Now at Herod's decease, lo! the Lord's messenger is appearing in a trance to Joseph in Egypt, saying,
20 "Being roused, take along the little Boy and His mother and go into the land of Israel, for those who are seeking the little Boy's soul have died."

21 Now he, being roused, took the little Boy and His mother along and came into the land of Israel.
22 Yet, hearing that Archelaus is reigning in Judea in the stead of his father Herod, he was afraid to go there. Now, being apprised in a trance, he retires into parts of Galilee. And coming, he dwells in a city termed Nazareth, so that that which is declared through the prophets may be fulfilled, that He will be called a Nazarene.

3 Now in those days John the baptist is coming along, proclaiming in 2 the wilderness of Judea, saying:
3 "Repent! for the kingdom of the heavens has drawn near!" For this is He Who is declared through Isaiah the prophet, saying,

"The voice of one imploring in the wilderness,
'Make ready the road of the Lord!
Be making His highways straight!'"

4 Now John himself had his apparel of camel's hair and a leather girdle about his loins. Now his nourishment was locusts and wild honey.

5 Then Jerusalem and entire Judea and the entire country about 6 the Jordan went out to him, and they were baptized by him in the

<sup>12</sup> The baptism of fire is the burning of the chaff. Such was the only baptism which the Pharisees and Sadducees deserved. Those whom He does not baptize in holy spirit, in grace, He will baptize in fire, in judgment. All of this is eonian, and does not determine their ultimate destiny after the eons have passed by.

<sup>13</sup> The Lord needed no cleansing, for He had no sin. But He needed to identify Himself with those who were cleansed. It was a foreglimpse of His baptism on Golgotha, when He became sin for the sake of His own.

Jordan river, confessing their sins.

<sup>7</sup> Now, perceiving many of the Pharisees and Sadducees coming to his baptism, he said to them, "Progeny of vipers! Who intimates to you to be fleeing from future indignation? Produce, then, fruit worthy of repentance. And you should not be presuming to be saying among yourselves, 'We have Abraham for a father', for I am saying to you that God is able to rouse children out of these stones to Abraham.

<sup>10</sup> Now the ax is already lying at the root of the trees. Every tree, then, which is not producing fine fruit, is being hewn down and cast <sup>11</sup> into the fire. For I indeed, am baptizing you in water for repentance, yet He Who is coming after me is stronger than I, Whose sandals I am not competent to bear. He will be baptizing you in holy spirit and <sup>12</sup> fire, Whose winnowing shovel is in His hand, and He will be scouring His threshing floor, and will be gathering His wheat into His barn, yet He will be burning up the chaff with inextinguishable fire."

<sup>13</sup> Then Jesus is coming along from Galilee to the Jordan to John to be <sup>14</sup> baptized by him. Yet John prohibited Him, saying, "I have need to be baptized by Thee, and art <sup>15</sup> Thou coming to me?" Yet answering, Jesus said to him, "By your leave, for the present, for thus it is behooving us to fulfill all righteousness." Then he is giving Him leave.

16-17 Compare Jn. 132-34.

16 As God's spirit has no material form it is figured to us in various ways, which suggest its force and significance. It is usually presented as a blast of air, for this is the primary meaning of the word pneuma, or spirit (Jn. 3<sup>s</sup> Ac. 2<sup>2</sup> Heb 1<sup>7</sup>). Other spirits are represented as torches (Un. 4<sup>5</sup>), and horns or eyes (Un. 5<sup>6</sup>) to indicate their power and perception. Unclean spirits are figured as frogs (Un. 16<sup>13</sup>). The exquisite picture presented to the spiritual Israelite by the descending dove is largely lost on us. Our Lord Himself commended their artlessness to the emulation of His disciples. But doubtless a deeper thought lay in its universal use for sacrifice, especially by the poor. When He was presented to the Lord they offered two squabs of the doves (Lu. 2<sup>24</sup>). The spirit of God endues Him with power for the proclamation of the kingdom, not by presenting Him with a sword and mace, not by mounting Him on a white horse or crowning Him with a diadem, but by investing Him with the far more godlike powers of gentleness, artlessness, and sacrifice.

1-11 Compare Mk. 1:12, 13 Lu. 4:1-13.

1 If Christ is to be the King of Israel, He must not only overcome the opposition of men, but first of all, He must conquer the spirit that operates in them and rules the darkness of this world. Christ came to save others, not to please Himself. He refuses to use His power to provide food for Himself, but depends on God alone. He will not go out of His way to try and see if God will perform a miracle to save Him. Neither will He avoid the suffering and shame which lie between Him and the kingdom by accepting it at the Slanderer's hands. The Dove meets the Serpent in the wilderness and conquers it. Utter dependence on God's provision, absolute confidence in His words and ways, and the fullest fealty to His love, are more than a match for the Slanderer.

4 Compare Deut. 8<sup>3</sup>.

6 Compare Ps. 91<sup>11,12</sup>.

7 Compare Deut. 6<sup>16</sup>.

8 Satan is evidently the real head of the fourth kingdom of Daniel's image. Rome's dominion was limited.

opened up to Him, and He perceived God's spirit descending as if it were a dove, and coming on Him. And lo! a voice out of the heavens, saying, "This is My beloved Son, in Whom I delight."

4 Then Jesus was led up by the spirit into the wilderness to be tried by the Slanderer. And, fasting forty days and forty nights, subsequently He hungers. And, approaching, he who is trying Him said to Him, "If you are God's Son, say that these stones may be becoming bread." Yet answering, He said, "It is written, 'Not on bread alone shall man be living, but on every declaration going out through the mouth of God'."

5 Then the Slanderer is taking Him along into the holy city, and stands Him on the wing of the sanctuary. And he is saying to Him, "If you are God's Son, be casting yourself down, for it is written that 'His messengers shall be directed concerning Thee,

And on their hands shall they be lifting Thee,
Lest at some time Thou shouldst be dashing Thy foot against a stone!'"

7 Jesus averred to him, "It is written again, 'You shall not be putting the Lord, your God, on trial'."

8 The Slanderer is taking Him along again into a very high mountain, and is showing Him all the kingdoms of the world and their glory. And he said to Him, "All these will I be giving to you if you should be prostrating and be worshipping me."

10 Then Jesus is saying to him, "Go, Satan, for it is written,

'The Lord your God shall you be worshipping,
And to Him only shall you be offering divine service'."

<sup>12</sup> It is not likely that John was "cast into prison" at this time. The Lord had not yet called His disciples, and John was not yet cast into prison (Jn. 3:24) until some time later. Several attempts seem to have been made to put him in ward. This is probably the first of these. Hence the Lord left Judea, and spent most of His ministry in Galilee. In John, His messenger, He was rejected in Judea before He even began His proclamation.

<sup>15</sup> Nazareth, Cana, and the region about, where the Lord commenced His ministry, were in Zabulon. This did not touch the sea of Galilee, but it bordered on Naphtali in the northeast, in which was Capernaum, "His own city," as well as Chorazin and Bethsaida, where so many of His mighty works were done.

<sup>17</sup> "The kingdom of the heavens" would mean but one thing to a Jew in the days of our Lord. In the explanation of the marvelous dream of Nebuchadnezzar, in which he saw a succession of world empires, Daniel says that the last kingdom shall be set up by the God of the heavens (Dan. 2:44). "And in the days of these kings the God of the heavens shall set up a kingdom which shall not be harmed for the eon, and the kingdom shall not be left to another people. It shall crush and terminate all these kingdoms, and it shall rise for the eon." Babylon fell to Medo-Persia, and Medo-Persia to Greece. Greece had broken up, and the fourth kingdom, in which the prophet's people under the figure of clay, were to be mingled with mankind, was due to appear. And this was to be followed by the indestructible kingdom of Messiah, for which all the Jews longed.

Again, under the figure of rapacious beasts, Daniel had portrayed the kingdoms of the end time (Dan. 7:2-27). They are displaced by the kingdom of the heavens. "And the kingdom and authority and the majesty of the kingdom under all the heavens is granted to the people of the saints of the supremacies. The kingdom is an eonian kingdom, and all authorities shall serve and hearken to it."

<sup>12</sup> Now when hearing that John was betrayed, He retires into Galilee, and leaving Nazareth, coming, He dwells in Capernaum, which is by the seaside in the boundaries of Zabulon and Nephthalim, in order that that which is declared through Isaiah, the prophet, may be fulfilled, saying,

The sea road the other side of Jordan,

Galilee of the nations—
<sup>16</sup> The people sitting in darkness
Perceived a great light,
And to those sitting in the province and shadow of death,
To them light arises."

<sup>18</sup> Now, walking beside the sea of Galilee, He perceived two brothers, Simon, who is termed Peter, and Andrew, his brother, casting a purse net into the sea, for they were fishermen. And He is saying to them, "Hither, after Me, and I will be making you fishers of men!"

"The kingdom of God" suggests subjection direct to the Deity, whether as individuals or nations. Its sphere cannot be circumscribed. "The kingdom of the heavens", is, however, always concerned with the sovereignty of Israel over the other nations. Just as Babylon ruled the whole earth, so Israel will be supreme. As Medo-Persia brought all nations beneath its sway, so Israel will subjugate every other dominion. As Alexander found no field for further conquest, so Messiah will rule all nations with a club of iron, and all peoples and languages and nations will serve Him and bring their tribute to the land of Israel and the nation He has chosen. This is the kingdom which Christ proclaimed.

The kingdom was proclaimed as "near". This does not imply that it must come soon. The nearness was only tentative. The same word is used of Epaphroditus (Phil. 2<sup>30</sup>), who draws near to death for the work of Christ, but God was merciful, and he drew away from death again. Nearness is a relative term, indicating that not much more is needed to cause contact. Israel was near the land of promise thirty-eight years before they actually entered. Had they believed Caleb and Joshua they would have drawn nearer instead of returning to the wilderness, far from its borders. So it was with Israel and the kingdom. As it was when their forefathers came out of Egypt, so they come near to the national hope, but for thirty-eight years they wandered in the wilderness of unbelief, and perished without entering the land of promise.

21-22 Compare Mk. 1:19, 20 Lu. 5:10, 11.

23 See Mk. 1:21-39.

25 Compare Mk. 3:7, 8.

1-2 Compare Lu. 6:20-23.

1 The "Sermon on the Mount" was probably varied and repeated many times. Luke gives one of these. That was given on an "even place" (Lu. 6:17) after His calling of the apostles. It is much abridged. Mark gives scattered allusions here and there. It is fitting that the fullest proclamation of the laws of the kingdom should be given in this account, for it is concerned with the Son of David.

synagogues and proclaiming the evangel of the kingdom, and curing every disease and every debility among the people.

24 And tidings of Him came out into the whole of Syria, and they bring to Him all those who are ill with various diseases and pressing torments, and demoniacs and epileptics and paralytics, and He 25 cures them. And vast throngs follow Him from Galilee and Decapolis and Jerusalem and Judea and the other side of the Jordan.

5 Now on perceiving the throngs, He ascended into the mountain. And when He is seated, His disciples came to Him. And opening His mouth, He taught them, saying,
3 "Happy, in spirit, are the poor, seeing that theirs is the kingdom of the heavens.

4 Happy are those who mourn now, seeing that they shall be consoled.

5 Happy are the meek, seeing that they shall be enjoying the allotment of the land.

6 Happy are those who are hungering and thirsting for righteousness, seeing that they shall be satisfied.

7 Happy are the merciful, seeing that they shall be shown mercy.

8 Happy are the clean in heart, seeing that they shall see God.

9 Happy are the peacemakers, seeing that they shall be called God's sons.

10 Happy are those persecuted on account of righteousness, seeing that theirs is the kingdom of the heavens.

11 Happy are you whenever they should be reproaching and persecuting you and saying every wicked thing against you, falsifying on

<sup>5</sup> The Beatitudes will find their fulfillment in the kingdom of the heavens, when Messiah comes again and establishes His millennial reign. Till then most of them prove to be a practical disappointment. The merciful often do not obtain mercy. The meek do not receive an allotment in the land or the earth. Not only that, but they never shall. A meek unbeliever will receive no allotment whatever. A meek believer is promised every blessedness among the celestials (Eph. 1<sup>3</sup>). It would be a bitter disappointment to him to have an allotment on the earth or in the land of Israel. There is no happiness in this beatitude for us.

<sup>12</sup> All blessing comes from heaven, but it is not all enjoyed in heaven. The kingdom will be the days of heaven on earth, for the blessing will be heavenly in source and character, though located on earth. The heavenly city, new Jerusalem, is heavenly but comes down out of heaven to the earth. English has no way of distinguishing that which is heavenly in character from that which has its place in heaven, so special care is needed to avoid confusion in thought on this theme.

<sup>13</sup> The salt of Palestine was usually gathered from marshes. Contact with the ground or exposure to rain or sun soon spoiled it, so that it lost its saltiness. As it was very harmful to growing vegetation it was carefully swept up and thrown into the street, and thus trodden under foot.

<sup>18</sup> The yod or iota was the smallest of the Hebrew letters. The ceriphs were probably the small projections which distinguished some of the Hebrew letters. The idea of the Massorah, that they were small meaningless ornaments like horns is hardly in line with the spirit of Christ's teaching. He denounced unwarranted, uninspired additions to the scriptures.

<sup>13</sup> You are the salt of the earth. Now, should the salt be made insipid, with what will it be salted? It is of no further avail except to be cast without, to be trampled by men.

<sup>14</sup> You are the light of the world. A city located upon a mountain cannot be hid. Neither are they burning a lamp and placing it under a measure, but on a lampstand, and it is shining to all who are in the house. Thus let your light shine in front of men, so that they may be perceiving your ideal acts and should be glorifying your Father in the heavens.

<sup>17</sup> You should not be inferring that I came to demolish the law or the prophets. I came not to demolish but to fulfill. For verily, I am saying to you, till heaven and earth pass by, one iota or one ceriph may by no means pass by from the law till all should be coming to pass.

<sup>19</sup> Whoever, then, should be annulling one of the least of these precepts, and should be teaching men thus, shall be called the least in the kingdom of the heavens. Yet whoever should be doing and teaching them, he shall be called great in the kingdom of the heavens. For I am saying to you that, except your righteousness should be superabounding more than that of the scribes and Pharisees, you may by no means be entering into the kingdom of the heavens.

<sup>21</sup> You hear that it was declared to the ancients, 'You shall not be murdering: yet whoever should be murdering shall be liable to the judgment.' Yet I am saying to <sup>22</sup> Gehenna, the valley of the son of Hinnom, just below the city of Jerusalem, where idolatrous worship was once carried on and where the city of-fal was burned, has once more become the incinerator for Jerusalem. In the kingdom it will consume the carcasses of criminals as well as the rubbish of the city. It should not be confounded with the unseen, or hades, which is often translated "hell", or with tartarus, similarly translated. Neither is it the lake of fire (Un. 20<sup>14</sup>), which follows the great white throne judgment for the wicked. Its operation is confined to the temporal judgments of the millennial kingdom. It does not fix ultimate destiny, for it disappears long before the consummation.

<sup>23</sup> Instead of removing His hearers from beneath the thunders of the law (as grace has since done), He makes its precepts more pressing, its prohibitions more searching. The appearance counts for nothing with Him unless the heart is also right. He will not even allow them to approach God by means of an oblation, unless they are on terms with their brethren. There is no lenience in this kingdom proclamation. Those who are cast into jail are not delivered until the demands of righteousness have been fully met. A lustful look is a sin of the heart which will not be tolerated in His dominions. The criminals of that day will be executed and their corpses consigned to the vale of Hinnom, where the offal of Jerusalem is burned. So stringent is this law that if a member of the body sins, the whole is in danger of death in the kingdom.

you that everyone who is angry with his brother shall be liable to the judgment. Yet whoever may be saying to his brother, 'Raca,' shall be liable to the Sanhedrin. Yet whoever may be saying, 'Stupid,' shall be liable to the Gehenna of fire.

<sup>23</sup> If, then, you should be offering your oblation on the altar, and there you should be reminded that your brother has aught against you, leave your oblation there in front of the altar and go away. First placate your brother, and then, coming, be offering your oblation.

<sup>25</sup> Be humoring your plaintiff quickly while you are with him on the way, lest at some time the plaintiff should give you up to the judge and the judge to the deputy, and you should be cast into jail. Verily, I am saying to you, 'You may by no means be coming out thence till you should be paying the last quadrans' [about .39¢, .75f].

<sup>27</sup> You hear that it was declared, 'You shall not be committing adultery.' Yet I am saying to you that every man looking at a woman to lust for her commits adultery with her already in his heart. Now if your right eye is snaring you, wrench it out and cast it from you, for it is expedient for you that one of your members should perish and not your whole body be cast into Gehenna. And if your right hand is snaring you, strike it off, and cast it from you, for it is expedient for you that one of your members should perish and not your whole body pass away into Gehenna.

<sup>34-37</sup> From our Lord's time down to the present, cursing and swearing have been so common in Palestine that little notice is taken of it. They continually profane the name and attributes of God, and swear by anything that comes into their minds. In fact, to swear fluently and artistically is considered quite an accomplishment which deserves cultivation.

case of prostitution) is making her commit adultery, and whoever should be marrying her who has been dismissed is committing adultery.

<sup>33</sup> Again, you hear that it was declared to the ancients, 'You shall not be perjuring yourselves, yet shall be paying your oaths to the Lord.' Yet I am saying to you not to

<sup>43</sup> You hear that it was declared, 'You shall be loving your associate <sup>44</sup> and hating your enemy'. Yet I am saying to you, Be loving your enemies, and be praying for those who <sup>45</sup> are persecuting you, so that you may be becoming sons of your Father Who is in the heavens, seeing that His sun is rising on the wicked and the good, and it is raining on the just and the unjust. <sup>46</sup> For should you be loving those lov-

The kingdom will be, in a special sense, the display of God's goodness on earth; we will be the highest exhibition of God's grace among the celestials (Eph. 27). Hence it is most fitting that conduct, in each case, should correspond to the sphere and character of God's operations. The standard for us is as far beyond these precepts as these are beyond the law. The law demanded love, but limited it to neighbors. In their hard-heartedness they inferred that others should be hated. The Lord does not hesitate to enlarge the law. God is good to all. But we look to the cross and know that there are none righteous in His sight, and see His sacrifice for all. Here alone do we find the motive which should control our conduct. God's perfection in nature is not sufficient to provide the sweet smelling perfume which pleases Him today. It seems to be without any practical effect on the hard hearts of humanity.

<sup>1</sup> The Pharisees deemed alms-giving, prayer and fasting the three most eminent exhibitions of piety, for alms was the ideal expression of their relation to their neighbor, prayer of their intercourse with God, and fasting of self-discipline. Hence the Lord takes up these three and exposes the hypocrisy which performs them in public and provokes the applause of men, rather than the praise of God.

<sup>5</sup> These instructions regarding prayer come very close to us, for our abhorrence of hypocrisy should be much more pronounced than theirs. Perhaps a succinct way of putting it is, Never say your prayers; always pray them. Real prayer is possible only under the urge of the holy spirit, and shuns the possible approbation of men, for it is meant for God alone.

ing you, what have you for wages? Are not the tribute collectors also <sup>47</sup> doing the same? And should you be greeting your brothers only, what are you doing that is excessive? Are not the nations also

<sup>6</sup> Yet take heed not to be doing your righteousness in front of men to be gazed at by them, otherwise you surely have no wages with your Father in the heavens.

<sup>2</sup> Whenever, then, you may be doing alms, you should not be trumpeting in front of you, even as the hypocrites are doing in the synagogues and in the streets, so that they should be glorified by men. Verily, I am saying to you, They have their wages in full.

<sup>5</sup> And whenever you may be praying, you shall not be as the hypocrites, seeing that they are fond of praying standing in the synagogues and at the corners of the squares, so that they may be appearing to men. Verily, I am saying to you, They have their wages in full.

<sup>6</sup> Now you, whenever you may be praying, enter into your closet, and, locking your door, pray to your Father in hiding and your Father, Who is observing in hiding, will be paying you. Now, in praying, you should not be wordy, as the nations. For they are supposing that they will be hearkened to

9-13 Compare Lu. 11:2-4.

9 This is not the Lord's prayer, but His model for the disciples' petitions. Since He has just been condemning wordiness and loquacity in prayer, He gives them an example of how to say much with few words. It was far from His intention that this should become a form for repetition, especially in this day of grace when part of it is meaningless and contrary to present truth. "The forgiveness of offenses in accord with the riches of His grace" (Eph. 1:7) is far, far beyond the measure in which we forgive others. Moreover, our forgiveness is not at all dependent on our extending this favor to others. With them it was probational and temporary; with us it is irrevocable and eternal. The prayers for our emulation are found in Ephesians. The latter half of the first chapter and the whole of the third chapter of that epistle will teach us what to pray for. It is all concerned with a later outpouring of grace which was a profound secret during our Lord's sojourn on earth.

This marvelous prayer is exquisite in its perfections. Its seven petitions are divinely divided into three for the glory of God, and four for the frailty of man. His name, His kingdom, His will. It is His future kingdom which will come when His will is done on earth. At that time we will have our portion in His heavenly administrations, so that our prayers should be much wider in scope than this. Man's needs are sustenance, release from past failures and future trials, and, especially in relation to the kingdom, deliverance from the power of that wicked one who will do his utmost to corrupt and destroy it.

Our Lord would not have them pray for that which God would not give. Every petition in it will be fulfilled, but not until the kingdom has come. Then, and not till then, will they be safe from the wicked one, for he will be bound in the abyss (Un.20<sup>3</sup>). Not till then will their trials be over, their debts remitted, their daily sustenance assured; not till then will His will be done on earth, or His name be hallowed by a holy nation. We may rest assured that every prayer indited by His spirit will be fulfilled in due course. The only uncertain element is time, and that is well known to God.

8 for their loquacity. Do not, then, be like them, for God, your Father, is aware of what you have need before you request Him.

9 Then you be praying thus: 'Our Father, Who art in the heavens, hallowed be Thy name. Thy kingdom come. Let Thy will come to pass, as in heaven, on earth also. Be giving us today our dole of bread, and remit to us our debts as we also remit those of our debtors. And bring us not into trial, but rescue us from the wicked one.'

14 For if you should be forgiving men their offenses, your heavenly Father will be forgiving you, also. 15 Yet if you should not be forgiving men their offenses, neither will your Father be forgiving your offenses.

16 Now whenever you may be fasting, become not as the hypocrites, with a sad countenance, for they are disguising their faces so that they may be appearing to men to be fasting. Verily, I am saying to you, They have their wages in full. Now you, in fasting, rub your head with oil and wash your face, so that you may not be appearing to men to be fasting, but to your Father in hiding, and your Father, Who is observing in hiding, will be paying you.

19 Be not hoarding your treasures on earth, where moth and corrosion are causing it to disappear, and where thieves are tunneling and stealing. Yet be hoarding your treasures in heaven, where neither moth nor corrosion are causing it to disappear, and where thieves are not tunneling or stealing; for

14-15 Compare Mk.11<sup>25,26</sup>.

14 Forgiveness now is according to the riches of His grace (Eph.17), not according to our forgiveness of others. The believers in Israel failed at this point. Their forgiveness was withdrawn because they refused the same mercy to the other nations. But the believers of the nations were never forgiven in this probationary fashion.

19-21 Compare Lu.12<sup>33-34</sup>.

19 Treasures were often hid in concealed pits in the ground, where thieves would need to dig to find them. But nothing is safe on earth. Only that which we give is ours beyond the possibility of loss.

22 The Pharisees tried to make the best of both worlds. They wanted treasure on earth as well as in heaven. Their eyes were afflicted with double sight, which is worse than blindness. They wanted to worship both God and mammon.

25 There is a blessed progression in the experience of God's saints as the purpose of His grace becomes more fully known. The Psalmist could sing (Ps. 55<sup>22</sup>):

"Fling what He grants you on Jehovah,
And He will sustain you:
He will not allow the righteous to slip for the eon."

Peter sounds a higher strain when he writes to the dispersion, "tossing your entire worry on Him, seeing that He is caring concerning you" (1Pt. 5<sup>7</sup>). But how much loftier is the position of Paul, as he exhorts us, "Let nothing be worrying you, but in every prayer and petition let your requests be made known to God with thanksgiving, and the peace of God, being superior to every mental state, shall garrison your hearts and your apprehensions in Christ Jesus" (Phil. 4<sup>6,7</sup>). The Psalmist struggled under a burden with the help of God, Peter got rid of the weight, but Paul prevents it, and replaces it with peace and thanksgiving.

25-34 Compare Lu.12<sup>22-31</sup>.

29 We cannot be certain of the exact flower intended by our Lord from the somewhat general term used, but the brilliant scarlet anemone, which flour-where your treasure is, there will be your heart also.

22 The lamp of the body is your eye. If, then, your eye should be single, your whole body will be luminous. Yet if your eye should be wicked, your whole body will be dark. If, then, the light which is in you is darkness, how dense is the darkness!

24 Now no one can be slaving for two lords, for either he will be hating the one and loving the other, or will be upholding the one and despising the other. You cannot slave for God and mammon.

25 Therefore I am saying to you, Be not worrying for your soul, what you may be eating, or what you may be drinking, nor yet for your body, what you should be putting on. Is not the soul more than nurture and the body than apparel?

26 Look at the flying creatures of heaven, that they are not sowing, neither are they reaping, nor are they gathering into barns, and your heavenly Father is nurturing them. Are you not of more consequence than they?

27 Now which of you by worrying is able to add one cubit to his stature? And why are you worrying about apparel? Study the anemones of the field, how they are growing. They are not toiling nor spinning. Yet I am saying to you that not even Solomon in all his glory was clothed as one of these. Now if God is thus garbing the grass of the field, which today is and tomorrow is being cast into the stove—not much rather you, scant of faith?

31 Then you should not be worrying, saying, 'What may we be eating?' or 'What may we be drinking?' or 'With what should we be clothed?' For for all these the ishes in all parts of Palestine in great profusion seems to be the only one which fully answers all the conditions. Its great abundance and rich beauty fit it perfectly for the illustration used by our Lord. The figure is full of spiritual refreshment. Clothing is that which meets the eye and corresponds to the character of the wearer. Solomon's robes were tokens of his royal station. Pharisaic righteousness He has shown to be a hypocritical pretense. The anemones suggest that God can supply His saints with divine apparel more beautiful than that of Solomon. In a word, He not only can clothe them in splendid style, but He can make them kings to rule the nations of the earth.

<sup>6</sup> Both dogs and hogs were unclean according to the law. The Lord Himself followed this principle when He spoke in parables to those without, and kept the holy and precious truth for His own disciples. We are hardly justified in "applying" these opprobrious terms to immature saints who are not yet able to bear more than milk.

<sup>7</sup> This, of course, is limited to prayer to God. He can and will respond to those who ask for what they need, or seek what is hid, or knock at closed doors. But the answer may not be realized until the kingdom comes. We have no right or reason to expect God to change His plans and purposes in order to carry out our whims. We are not aware what we should be praying for, but the spirit is pleading for us with inarticulate groanings (Ro.8:26).

nations are seeking. For your heavenly Father is aware that you <sup>33</sup> are in need of all these. Yet be seeking first the kingdom and its righteousness, and all these shall <sup>34</sup> be added to you. You should not, then, be worrying about the morrow, for the morrow will be worrying of itself. Sufficient for the day is the evil of it.

<sup>7</sup> Be not judging lest you may <sup>2</sup> be being judged, for with what judgment you are judging you shall be judged, and with what measure you are measuring, it shall be measured to you.

<sup>3</sup> Now why are you observing the mote in your brother's eye, yet are not considering the beam in your <sup>4</sup> eye? Or how will you be declaring to your brother, 'Brother, let me extract the mote out of your eye', and lo! the beam is in your eye?
<sup>5</sup> Hypocrite! First extract the beam out of your eye, and then you will be keen-sighted to be extracting the mote out of your brother's eye.

<sup>6</sup> You may not be giving that which is holy to the curs, neither should you be casting your pearls in front of hogs, lest at some time they be trampling them with their feet and, turning, they should be tearing you.

<sup>7</sup> Be requesting and it shall be given you. Be seeking and you shall be finding. Be knocking and it shall be opened to you. For every-<sup>8</sup> one who is requesting is obtaining, and he who is seeking is finding, and to him who is knocking it shall be opened.

<sup>9</sup> Or what man of you is there whose son shall be requesting bread—will he be handing him a

<sup>12</sup> To do as we would be done by is an ethical standard far above the world's attainment, yet far beneath the monitions of grace. The law and the prophets demand compliance with this code, yet supply no power to carry it out. Grace gives the ability, yet makes no demands, but rather entreats us to do as we have been done by in our dealings with God, rather than man.

<sup>15</sup> The law was exceedingly severe on false prophets. Death was their penalty (Deut. 13<sup>5</sup>). It is generally supposed that a prophet is false if his sign or prediction does not come to pass. Not so. If it comes to pass, yet leads away from the Lord, they were not allowed to hearken (Deut. 13<sup>1-5</sup>). This is being written at the very time when a modern prophetess predicts the end of the world. That prophetess is not false because her vision is not being verified, but because her dreams were not of God and led away from His word. This, however, is a day of grace, and false prophets are not stoned.

But the term prophet includes all who claim a direct revelation from God, apart from His written revelation. As prophets are only in the foundation of the ecclesia (Eph. 2<sup>20</sup>), the mere claim to a personal and direct message from God is evidence in itself that it is false. The word of God is complete (Col. 1<sup>25</sup>), and only those who do not fully apprehend what God has revealed crave further communications. The latest revelations given to the apostle Paul make all further prophecy useless and round out the whole realm of revelation.

<sup>11</sup> If you, then, being wicked, have perceived how to be giving good gifts to your children, how much rather shall your Father Who is in the heavens give good things to those requesting Him? All then, whatever you may be wanting that men should be doing to you, thus you, also, be doing to them, for this is the law and the prophets.

<sup>13</sup> Enter through the cramped gate, seeing that wide is the gate and spacious is the way which is leading off into destruction, and many there are who are entering through it.

<sup>21</sup> Not everyone who is saying to Me 'Lord! Lord!' shall be entering into the kingdom of the heavens, but he who is doing the will of My Father Who is in the heavens. Many

<sup>22</sup> will be declaring to Me in that day,

IN that THE DAY Master!

ernment of Messiah and the vine the spiritual cheer of His kingdom. In that day each one will sit under his own vine and fig tree (Mic. 4<sup>4</sup>). The kingdom of God is not only feeding on figs and drinking wine, but what these symbolize—righteousness and peace and joy in holy spirit (Ro. 14<sup>17</sup>). These are the fruits that do not grow on thorns and thistles, and that characterized the true prophet.

21 Many will need to read this passage twice, for it is the popular conviction that any one who can prophesy or cast out demons and do other supernatural deeds is necessarily in the highest intimacy with God. Many will claim these powers, yet He refuses to acknowledge them. In itself supernaturalism is no index of divine activity, for the powers of evil win their greatest triumphs in mimicking the manifestations of the holy spirit.

24 That the Lord has not been preaching the evangel of God's grace, but proclaiming the constitution of His kingdom, is convincingly clear from His conclusion. He is not seeking for faith but works. The prudent man is doing them, and the stupid man is not doing them. Now the evangel for us is for him "who is not working, yet is believing" (Ro. 4<sup>5</sup>). "Now if it is out of works, it is no longer grace, else work is no longer work" (Ro. 11<sup>6</sup>). The great storm of which our Lord speaks suggests the terrible judgments which usher in the kingdom. Then it will be "he who endures . . . will be saved".

29 Jewish scribes always say that Rabbi So-and-so says, or that he says that another Rabbi says, etc. All their teaching is tradition.

2 Our Lord cleansed many lepers, and probably dealt similarly with them all. The "parallel" accounts in Mark (14<sup>0-44</sup>) and Luke (5<sup>12-14</sup>) do not "disagree" in details, for they record different occurrences. Our Lord's first testimony must be to the priests. It is not a direct one, for the priests had already rejected the testimony of John the baptist, who was one of them—by birth, if not by office.

'Lord! Lord! Do we not prophesy in your name, and in your name cast out demons, and in your name do many powers?' And then will I be avowing to them that 'I never knew you. Be departing from Me, you who are working lawlessness!'

24 Everyone, then, who is hearing these sayings of Mine and is doing them shall be likened to a prudent man, who builds his house on a rock. And the rain descended, and the torrents came, and the winds blow and lunge at that house, and it does not fall, for it had been founded on a rock.

26 And everyone who is hearing these sayings of Mine and is not doing them shall be likened to a stupid man who builds his house on the sand. And the rain descended, and the torrents came, and the winds blow, and they dash against that house, and it falls: and great was the fall of it."

28 And it came to pass, when Jesus finishes these sayings, the throngs were astonished at His teaching, for He was teaching them as one having authority, and not as their scribes.

8 Now, at His descending from the mountain, vast throngs follow Him. And lo! a leper, coming toward Him, worshiped Him, saying, "Lord, if Thou shouldst be willing, Thou canst cleanse me!" And, stretching out His hand, He touches him, saying, "I am willing! Be cleansed!" And immediately his leprosy is cleansed. And Jesus is saying to him, "See that

 4 AND IS-saying to-him THE JESUS

They will not hear Him, so He sends these lepers to them, as a sign that He is the One Who can cleanse the leprosy of the sinful nation. They should have known that the One Who can do this is the long-desired Messiah. There is no intimation that they heeded this testimony, so that here we have, in a parable, the same truth with which John begins his evangel: His own people do not accept Him (Jn.1<sup>11</sup>). Indeed, this is more striking. For the priests had before them continually the lesson of the suffering sacrifice. If no other class in the nation could understand His rejection and sorrow and death, they should have recognized that this is the One Who was to be led as a lamb to the slaughter. But, in that deeper wisdom of God, they were also the ones who were ordained to be the slayers of the great Sacrifice.

5-13 Compare Lu. 7:1-10.

5 This is followed by an intimation that, though rejected by His own, He would be accepted by the nations, as is the case in the book of Acts. The priest was at one end of the religious scale, and the alien centurion at the other. Yet it was the far-off gentile who believed and received, without a sign, without even the Lord's presence, rather than the privileged priest, who had ample opportunity to examine the reality of His cures and to test His claims by the divine oracles of which the priests were the repositories.

10 Like the centurion's servant, the nations who believed, when the evangel went forth after His resurrection, as recorded in Acts, had no personal contact with Him, and never knew His presence. They are saved at a distance, by a faith unequalled in Israel. So, also, there will be many in the future who will find a place in the kingdom, while many even of the priests will be left out.

The paralytic who was healed is most appropriately delineated. He has no strength and needs none. He does nothing. All his salvation is outside his own efforts. It was, of necessity, not of works. It was all of God. Such was the salvation of the nations. In contrast with this the leper called on Him and entreated for the blessing. He came to Him and worshiped Him. Such was the case with the Jewish disciples.

you may speak to no one, but go away, show yourself to the priest, and offer the oblation which Moses bids, for a testimony to them."

5 Now at His entering into Capernaum, a centurion came to Him, 6 entreating Him and saying, "Lord, my boy is prostrate in the house, a paralytic, dreadfully tormented." 7 And He is saying to him, "I will come and cure him."

8 And answering, the centurion averred, "Lord, I am not competent that Thou mayest enter under my roof, but only say the word and 9 my boy will be healed. For I also am a man set under authority, having soldiers under me, and I am saying to this one, 'Go', and he is going, and to another, 'Come', and he is coming, and to my slave, 'Do this', and he is doing it."

10 Now Jesus, hearing it, marvels, and said to those who are following, "Verily, I am saying to you, With no one in Israel I found so much 11 faith. Now I am saying to you that many from the east and the west shall be arriving and reclining with Abraham and Isaac and Jacob 12 in the kingdom of the heavens, yet the sons of the kingdom will be cast out into outer darkness. There shall be lamentation and gnashing of teeth."

13 And Jesus said to the centurion, "Go! Let it occur to you as you believe!" And the boy was healed in that hour. And the centurion, returning into his house in the same hour, found the boy sound.

14-17 Compare Mk.120-34Lu.438-41.

14 There is considerable marshy land near Tell Hum, the probable site of Capernaum. This might account for the fever.

17 Compare Isa. 534. See 1 Pt. 224.

18 Compare Mk.438Lu.822.

19-22 Compare Lu. 957-62.

20 This, the first time He takes the title "Son of Mankind", is full of deep pathos. After He has become wearied with His works of healing, a scribe knows no better than to call Him his "Teacher". How little had he apprehended of His power and glory! His words have shown Him to be capable of coping with all that Adam's sin has brought into the world. He is his greater Son. He has regained the sovereignty lost by the first man. His realm extends over all mankind, and over the beasts of the field and the birds of heaven. They are among the lowest of His subjects. The jackals have their burrows and may retire to rest; the winged denizens of heaven have their roosts on which to spend the night, yet His weary head, Whose dominion includes all earthly creatures, was denied even the possession of a place of repose! What a contrast is this to the last time we meet this title in the sacred records! Then we see His holy head wreathed with the chaplet of a conqueror (Un. 1414). The victor's wreath adorns the brow they crowned with thorns. And then, as Daniel had foretold, will be given Him authority, and esteem, and a kingdom, that all peoples, races, and languages should serve Him, for His authority is an eonian authority, which shall not pass away (Dan.714).

The title "Son of Mankind" is significant in every occurrence, even though our dull minds may miss it. It is always suggestive of the dignities which devolved on Adam as the sovereign of all earthly creatures and head of the human race. He inherits all these glories and restores them to far more than their pristine perfection in the coming eon.

24 This event probably occurred at an earlier date than the similar accounts in Mark and Luke. The cause here was an earthquake which started immense tidal waves. In the other cases it was a squall (Mk.435-41Lu.823-25).

home, perceived his mother-in-law
15 prostrate and feverish. And He touches her hand, and the fever leaves her. And she was roused and waited on Him.

16 Now as it is becoming evening, they bring Him many demoniacs, and He cast out the spirits with a word, and all who are ill He cures, 17 so that which is declared through Isaiah the prophet may be fulfilled, saying,

"He got our infirmities,
And bears the diseases."

18 Now Jesus, perceiving vast throngs about Him, gives an order to come away to the other side. And one scribe, approaching, said to Him, "Teacher, I will be following Thee, wherever Thou shouldst come away."

20 And Jesus is saying to him, "The jackals have burrows, and the flying creatures of heaven roosts, yet the Son of Mankind has nowhere that He may be reclining His head."

21 Now a different one of the disciples said to Him, "Lord, permit me first to come away and entomb my father." Yet Jesus is saying to him, "Be following Me, and leave the dead to entomb their own dead."

23 And as He is stepping into the ship, His disciples follow Him.

24 And lo! a great quaking occurred in the sea, so that the ship was covered by the billows, yet He drowsed. And approaching, they rouse Him, saying, "Lord! Save us! We are perishing!" And He is saying to them, "Why are you timid, scant of faith?" Then, being roused, He rebukes the winds

<sup>28</sup> Vaticanus reads this "Gadarenes". Sinaiticus reads "Gazarenes", but the editor (§2) changed this to "Gergesenes", as we have it. Gadara was a well-known city, but is so far from the shores of Galilee, that it was quite impossible for the narrative to have been enacted there. The hogs would have had to run down a mountain, cross the Jermuk river, itself enough to drown them, up its banks, then several miles across a level plain into the water. At one place on the eastern shore of the lake, at a ruined town called Chersa by the Arabs, all the topography is in perfect keeping with the narrative. Behind the town tombs were cut in the rock. A steep mountain rises almost immediately out of the water, so that the hogs, rushing down, could not stop on the narrow beach, but plunged headlong into the lake. It seems evident that this is the true locality and the name Gergesene seems most likely to have been the original of the traditional "Chersa", as it is now known. Gadarene seems misleading, hence we do not use it.

<sup>31</sup> As swine's flesh was unclean, the keeping of hogs was illegal, and no wrong was done to their owners by sending them to destruction in the waters of the lake.

1-8 Compare Mk. 2:1-12 Lu. 5:17-26.

and the sea, and there became a
<sup>27</sup> great calm. Now the men marvel, saying, "What manner [of Man] is this, that even the winds and the sea are obeying Him?"

<sup>28</sup> And while He is coming to the other side to the country of the Gergesenes, two demoniacs, very ferocious, so that no one has the strength to be passing by through that road, coming out of the tombs, <sup>29</sup> meet Him. And lo! they cry, saying, "What is it to us and to Thee, O Son of God? Didst Thou come here before the season to torment us?" Now far from them there

<sup>32</sup> And He said to them "Go!" Now, coming out, they come away into the hogs. And lo! the entire herd rushes down the precipice into the sea, and they died in the waters.

<sup>33</sup> Now the graziers fled, and coming away into the city, they report
<sup>34</sup> all, and as to the demoniacs. And lo! the entire city came out to meet Jesus, and, perceiving Him, they entreat that He may be proceeding from their boundaries.

<sup>2</sup> And lo! they brought Him a paralytic prostrate on a couch. And Jesus, perceiving their faith, said to the paralytic, "Have courage, child! Your sins are being pardoned!" And lo! some of the <sup>5</sup> Paralysis and all other human ills are but an effect, of which sin is the cause. Not, indeed, the personal sins of the paralytic, but the sins of mankind in general, for all men are born with a heritage of sin and live in an atmosphere heavy with wrong-doing. But the great truth here taught is that the physical blessings of the coming kingdom have a secure basis in the pardon of sins. So, in this scene, which suggests the believing remnant of Israel who receive Him as their Messiah, the Lord seems to overlook the paralysis at first, and pardons his sins. The delay, and the unbelief of the scribes, suggest the apostasy of the nation and the consequent postponement of physical blessings till the kingdom comes and the authority of the Son of Mankind to pardon sins is in full exercise, followed by the health, strength, and vigor which will be the portion of mankind in the millennium. If human governments would get beyond the outbreaks and symptoms and deal with sin they would not need to be concerned with all its evil effects. They can never bring health and righteousness.

9-15 Compare Mk.2:13-20 Lu.5:27-35.

<sup>9</sup> It is a most striking exhibition of God's grace and wisdom, that such a man as Matthew should be chosen for an apostle, and furthermore should be empowered to write this account of Israel's King. This was contrary to all the dictates of human wisdom. Matthew was a "publican" or tribute collector, a class more hated, perhaps, than aliens, and more despised than sinners. The Roman government did not collect its tribute from the nations under its yoke directly, but farmed it out to subordinates. A district was sold for what it would bring, and the collector received his wages by assessing as much more as he could get. Hence they amassed wealth at the expense of their poor countrymen and for the benefit of a foreign government. Yet God chose such a traitor to his country to describe the glories of the King! His fitness was not by birth but of God.

<sup>13</sup> See 12:7 Hos.6: Mic.6:8 1 Ti.1:15.

scribes say in themselves, "This man is blaspheming!"

<sup>4</sup> And Jesus, perceiving their sentiments, said "Why are you brooding wickednesses in your hearts?"
<sup>5</sup> For what is easier, to be saying, 'Your sins are being pardoned,' or to be saying, 'Rouse and walk'?
<sup>6</sup> Now, that you may be perceiving that the Son of Mankind has authority on earth to pardon sins"—Then He is saying to the paralytic, "Being roused, pick up your couch
<sup>7</sup> and go into your house." And, being roused, he came away into his house.

<sup>8</sup> Now, on perceiving this, the throngs were afraid, and they glorify God, Who is giving such authority to men.

<sup>9</sup> And Jesus, passing by thence, perceived a man sitting at the tribute office, termed Matthew, and He is saying to him, "Be following Me!" And rising, he follows Him.

<sup>12</sup> collectors and sinners?" Now when He hears it, He said, "The strong have no need of a physician, <sup>13</sup> but the ill. Now go, learn what this means: 'I am wanting mercy and not sacrifice'. For I came, not to call the just, but sinners."

<sup>14</sup> Then the disciples of John are coming to Him, saying, "Wherefore are we and the Pharisees fast-

<sup>14</sup> It is a most difficult lesson for the saints to learn, that God's dealings with His creatures change, and that their conduct should change accordingly. John's disciples thought that the Lord's followers should do as they did. But the coming of Christ entirely changed the circumstances. He was the Bridegroom. They were the Bride. John had introduced them. How unbecoming it would be for them to fast! They should feast! And this they did. The Lord appeared at Cana, and at many another feast.

16-17 Compare Mk.221-22Lu.536-39.

<sup>16</sup> John's ministry was the old cloak, the old wine skins. The Lord's ministry was the unshrunk cloth, the new wine skins. They cannot be associated without disaster. How much more true is this today! Since John's time and our Lord's teaching, transcendent truth has been revealed which He could not impart to them then. Our conduct should be conformed to this higher and later revelation. Yet most of the saints seem satisfied with doing as John's disciples, or as our Lord's. No wonder the cloth tears, and their covering is ragged. No wonder the wine bursts the skins, and their joy is spilled. Let us keep the new wine which we have received in the new containers God has provided. Let us live and act in accord with the highest revelation, given in Paul's epistles.

18-23 Compare Mk.522-43Lu.841-56.

20 See Nu. 1537-41.

<sup>20</sup> How often is there a significant interruption in the performance of a miracle! The dead daughter, representing Israel as a nation, waits for His coming. So Ezekiel portrays Israel before His glorious appearing. They are dead. But on the way a woman secretly touches the tassel of His cloak. The tassel speaks of that which finishes the cloak and corresponds to His work on Golgotha, where He finished the robe of righteousness which clothed Him. Contact with that finished work saved many a sinner during the interval between His promise to come again and His advent. While the present interval of grace was a profound secret, and was not even intimated in this touching scene, yet we have here a definite hint of the direction in which God's grace would flow if hindered by the apostasy of Israel.

ing much, yet your disciples are not <sup>15</sup> fasting?" And Jesus said to them, "Can the sons of the bridal chamber be mourning, inasmuch as the bridegroom is with them? Yet the days will be coming whenever the bridegroom may be taken away from them, and then they will be fasting.

<sup>17</sup> the rent is becoming worse. Neither are they draining fresh wine into old wine skins, yet if so, surely the wine skins are bursting, and the wine is spilled, and the wine skins are destroyed. But they are draining fresh wine into new wine skins, and both are preserved."

<sup>18</sup> As He is speaking of these things to them, lo! one approaching Him, a chief, worshiped Him, saying, "My daughter at present deceases, but come and place Thy hand on <sup>19</sup> her, and she shall live." And, being roused, Jesus follows him, and His disciples.

<sup>22</sup> cloak, I shall be saved." Now Jesus, being turned and perceiving her, said, "Courage, daughter! Your faith has saved you." And the woman was saved from that hour.

<sup>23</sup> And Jesus, coming into the house of the chief, and perceiving the flutists and the throng in a tumult, said, "Retire, for the maiden did not die, but is drowsing." And

<sup>27</sup> Blindness is to this day a very common affliction in eastern lands. The glare of the sun or lack of care in infancy costs many their sight. These men evidently had become blind physically, yet had spiritual sight sufficient to see their Saviour. Hence He casts the burden of belief on them. This is in marked contrast to the next case, for the deaf-mute was incapable of faith so long as he was obsessed by the demon.

<sup>34</sup> On another occasion we are told that this chief of the demons is Beezeboul (12<sup>24</sup>). This is the blasphemy against the holy spirit, which cannot be pardoned in this eon or that which is to come (12<sup>31</sup>). The reason for this is very easily seen. These signs were the powers of the coming eon, intended to convince the nation that Messiah was present, and induce them to believe on Him. Now, if the very signs which should have demonstrated His Messiahship are taken to indicate that He is in league with the powers of darkness, it is impossible that they should repent and believe. The unpardonable sin consists in ascribing to sinister spirits what is the work of God's holy spirit. In this day there is the opposite danger of ascribing all supernatural manifestations to the holy spirit. The spirits must be tested by the word of God. That their teaching and work is a very close imitation, so close as to deceive the great majority of the saints, is according to Paul's predictions concerning the end time. We know that, somewhere in Christendom today, the demons are deceiving the saints, and the fact that they do not know it does not alter it.

throng was ejected, coming in, He holds her hand, and the maiden <sup>26</sup> was roused. And the fame of this came out into that whole land.

<sup>27</sup> And as Jesus is passing by thence, two blind men follow Him, clamoring and saying, "Be merciful to us, <sup>28</sup> Son of David!" Now as He is coming into the house, the blind men come to Him and Jesus is saying to them, "Are you believing that I am able to do this?" They are saying to Him, "Yes, Lord." Then He touches their eyes, saying, "Let it occur to you according to your <sup>30</sup> faith." And their eyes were opened. And Jesus mutters to them, saying, "See! Let no one <sup>31</sup> know!" Yet on coming out they blaze Him abroad in the whole of that land.

<sup>32</sup> Now on their coming out, lo! they bring to Him a deaf-mute demoniac. And the demon being cast out, the deaf-mute talks. And the throngs marvel, saying, "It never <sup>34</sup> appeared thus in Israel!" Yet the Pharisees said, "By the chief of the demons is He casting out the demons."

<sup>35</sup> And Jesus led them about all the cities and villages, teaching in their synagogues and proclaiming the evangel of the kingdom and curing every disease and every <sup>36</sup> debility. Now, perceiving the throngs, He is compassionate concerning them, seeing that they were bothered and tossed as if <sup>37</sup> sheep having no shepherd. Then He is saying to His disciples, "The harvest, indeed, is vast; yet the

1 Compare Mk.3:13-19 Lu.6:12-16. See Lu.9:1.

2 There is some variation in the order of the names, as well as of the names themselves, in the lists of the twelve apostles, but they are always found in three groups, headed by Peter, Philip and James, as follows:

Mt 10:2	Mk.3:16	Lu.6:14	Ac.1:13
Simon	Simon	Simon	Peter
Peter	Peter	Peter
Andrew	James	Andrew	John
James	Zebedee	James	James
Zebedee	John
John	Andrew	John	Andrew
Philip	Philip	Philip	Philip
Bartholomew	Bartholomew	Bartholomew	Thomas
Thomas	Matthew	Matthew	Bartholomew
Matthew	Thomas	Thomas	Matthew
James	James	James	James
Alpheus	Alpheus	Alpheus	Alpheus
Thaddeus	Thaddeus	Simon the Zealot	Simon the Zealot
Simon	Simon	Judas	Judas
Cananite	Cananite	James	James
Judas	Judas	Judas	Matthias (Ac.1:26)
Iscariot	Iscariot	Iscariot

Bartholomew is usually identified with Nathanael (Jn.14:4-6 21:2). Judas James, in order to distinguish him from Judas Iscariot, was called Thaddeus, and Simon (not Peter), was termed the Zealot, or its Hebrew equivalent the Cananite (not Canaanite). Of course, Matthias takes the place of Judas Iscariot in Acts.

5 Compare Mk.6:7-15 Lu.9:1-11.

5 The Lord had been heralding the kingdom alone and had confirmed the proclamation by signs which indicated its nearness. Now He associates twelve of His disciples with Him in this work and dispatches them with authority over disease and death and the demons so that they could prove its proximity by both their words and their works. This is the first kingdom proclamation. The second is not given until after His resurrection (28:16-20). They differ on almost every point. This was to be exercised in the land alone. Not even Samaria was to hear it. It was strictly for the lost sheep of Israel's fold and included no others. The second kingdom proclamation is for all nations, except Israel.

This first kingdom proclamation was carried on until the crisis in our Lord's ministry when it became evident that the nation had rejected Him and His message. Then He charged His disciples that they should tell no one that He was Jesus, the Messiah (16:20).

38 workers are few. Be beseeching, then, the Lord of the harvest, so that He should be ejecting workers into His harvest."

10 And calling His twelve disciples to Him, He gives them authority over unclean spirits, so as to be casting them out, and curing every disease and every debility.

2 Now the names of the twelve apostles are these: First, Simon, termed Peter, and Andrew, his brother, and James of Zebedee, and 3 John, his brother; Philip and Bartholomew, Thomas and Matthew, the tribute collector, James of Alpheus and Thaddeus, Simon the Cananite, and Judas Iscariot, who is His betrayer also.

5 These twelve Jesus commissions, charging them, saying, "You should not go off into a road of the nations, and into a city of the Samaritans you should not be entering. Yet rather be going to the lost sheep of the house of Israel. 7 Now go and be proclaiming, saying, 'The kingdom of the heavens has drawn near.' Be curing the infirm, be rousing the dead, be cleansing lepers, be casting out demons. You got gratuitously: be 9 giving gratuitously. You should not be acquiring gold, nor silver, 10 nor copper in your girdles, nor a beggar's bag for the road, nor two tunics, nor sandals, nor club; for the worker is worthy of his nourishment.

11 Now into whichever city or village you may be entering, enquire who in it is worthy, and there remain till you should be coming out.

Even though Peter and John are given a foretaste of the kingdom on the mount of transformation, He charged them not to tell of the vision until the Son of Mankind should be risen from among the dead (17<sup>9</sup>). From this time until Pentecost this proclamation was interrupted.

Anticipating the renewal of its proclamation during His absence, our Lord gave the keys to Peter when he, in contrast to the apostate nation, acknowledged Him to be the Messiah, the Son of the living God (16<sup>19</sup>). The door to the kingdom is locked when its proclamation is forbidden. At Pentecost Peter uses the keys and once more proclaims the proximity of the kingdom, conditioned on the repentance of the nation. At first a small proportion of the people accept the message, but it is not long ere the nation, as such, by the murder of Stephen, and the attempts on Peter and Paul, signifies its rejection. At the end of Acts it is formally set aside by Paul's public proclamation of their apostasy.

When God once more turns to Israel in the future it will be proclaimed again and, in the midst of great affliction, the nation, represented by the hundred and forty-four thousand celibates (Un. 73-8) and the vast throng (Un. 79-17), will accept the proclamation and enter the kingdom. Then Peter's epistles will unlock the door. Then all Israel will be saved (Ro. 11<sup>26</sup>), and the presence of the kingdom will preclude its further proclamation.

This gospel of the kingdom is not concerned with sin or individual salvation. The pardon of sins, based on the sufferings of Christ, is in the commission for mankind in Luke's account (Lu. 24<sup>46-49</sup>). It was not confined to Israel. Christ had not suffered when this gospel of the kingdom was first proclaimed. It can refer to nothing else than the kingdom promised to Israel in the Hebrew scriptures.

<sup>12</sup> Now on entering into a house, salute it, and if the house should indeed be worthy, let your peace come on it. Yet if it should not be worthy, let your peace be turned back on you. And whoever should not be receiving you, neither be hearing your words, on coming outside that house or city or village, shake off the dust of your feet. Verily, I am saying to you, it shall be more tolerable for the land of Sodom and the land of Gomorrah in the day of judgment than for that city.

<sup>16</sup> Lo! I am dispatching you as sheep in the midst of wolves. Become, then, prudent as serpents and artless as doves. Now take heed of men, for they will be betraying you to Sanhedrins, and they will be scourging you in their synagogues. Now you shall be led to governors and kings also on My account, for a testimony to them and to the nations.

<sup>19</sup> Now whenever they may be betraying you, you should not be worrying about how or what you should be speaking, for in that hour it shall be given you what you should be speaking, for it is not you who are speaking, but the spirit of your Father which is speaking in you.

<sup>21</sup> Now brother shall be betraying brother to death, and father child, and children shall be rising up against parents, and shall be causing them to die, and you shall be hated by all because of My name. Now he who endures to the consummation, he shall be saved. Now, whenever they may be persecuting you in this city, be fleeing into a different one, for, verily, I am saying to you, You should under no

<sup>28</sup> The soul is the seat of sensation, but is popularly confounded with the spirit. A soulish man is one who is swayed by his senses. He may even be sensual, for such is the usual rendering of Jas. 3<sup>15</sup>. Those of the apostles who were killed later will lose nothing in the kingdom. Their souls will be surfeited with joy in that day. Their death will only add to their soul's delight in the resurrection. They, however, who come under God's judgment in the kingdom will not only have their bodies destroyed in the vale of Hinnom, just below Jerusalem, where the offal of the city is incinerated, but they will miss all the joys which their souls long for in the millennium. The martyrs who die for the sake of the kingdom have nothing to fear. So far as their souls are concerned, death gives them an immediate entrance into the delights of that earthly paradise, even though at their martyrdom it was thousands of years in the future.

<sup>29</sup> The greatness of God is as evident in the minute details of His creation as in the vast immensities of stellar space. His microscopic care meets the needs of His creatures, and reaches their hearts. Nothing is too trivial for Him Whose presence pervades the universe. The ultimate electron is as much His providence as the cosmos in its entirety.

circumstances be finishing the cities of Israel till the Son of Man-kind may be coming.

<sup>24</sup> A disciple is not over his teacher, neither a slave over his lord. It is sufficient for the disciple that he may be becoming as his teacher, and the slave as his lord. If they surname the householder Beezeboul, how much rather those of his are of more consequence than <sup>26</sup> household? Then be not afraid of them, for nothing is covered, which shall not be revealed, and hidden, <sup>27</sup> which shall not be known. What I am saying to you in darkness, tell in the light. And what you are hearing in the ear, proclaim on the housetops.

<sup>28</sup> And be not afraid of those who are killing the body, yet are not able to kill the soul. Yet be fearing Him rather Who is able to destroy both the soul and the body in <sup>29</sup> Gehenna. Are not two sparrows being sold for a penny [1.57¢, 3.1¢]? And not one of them will be falling on the earth without your <sup>30</sup> Father. Now the hairs of your <sup>31</sup> head also are all numbered. Then fear not! You are of more consequence than many sparrows.

<sup>32</sup> Then everyone who shall be avowing Me in front of men, him will I also be avowing in front of My <sup>33</sup> Father Who is in the heavens. Now he who should be disowning Me in front of men, I also will be disowning him in front of My Father Who is in the heavens.

<sup>34</sup> You should not be inferring that I came to be casting peace on the earth: I came not to be casting <sup>35</sup> peace, but a sword. For I came to pit a man against his father, and

<sup>2</sup> John was the greatest of all the prophets. Yet even he was not fully aware of the mind of God. If Christ is Messiah, and this he does not doubt, why is he allowed to languish in pris-a daughter against her mother, and a daughter-in-law against her <sup>36</sup> mother-in-law. And the enemies of a man are his household.

<sup>37</sup> He who is fond of father or mother above Me is not worthy of Me. And he who is fond of son or daughter above Me is not worthy of
<sup>39</sup> not worthy of Me. He who is finding his soul will be destroying it, and he who destroys his soul on My account will be finding it.

<sup>40</sup> He who is receiving you is receiving Me, and he who is receiving Me is receiving Him Who commissions Me. He who is receiving a prophet in the name of a prophet shall be obtaining a prophet's wages, and he who is receiving a just man in the name of a just man shall be obtaining a just man's <sup>42</sup> wages. And whoever should be giving one of these little ones only a cool cup to drink, in the name of a disciple, verily, I am saying to you, he should by no means be losing his wages."

11 And it occurred, when Jesus finishes prescribing to His twelve disciples, He proceeded thence to be teaching and proclaiming in their cities.

<sup>4</sup> And answering, Jesus said to them, "Go, report to John what you are <sup>5</sup> hearing and observing. The blind are recovering sight, and the lame are walking, lepers are being cleansed, and the deaf-mutes are hearing, and the dead are being on? The Jews had difficulty in reconciling the prophecies concerning the Messiah. Some seemed to set Him forth as the Suffering One; others made Him a glorious King. So some looked for two Messiahs; one, Messiah ben Joseph, to suffer, and another, Messiah ben David, to reign. Perhaps some such thought came to John. He had openly rebuked Herod, but the Lord made no effort to get him out of Herod's hands, and did nothing to assert His own power. Was He the Suffering One, and was there to be another to rule with an iron club? We can now see that both Joseph and David were a combination of suffering and glory, and that there was in each case an interval between the two. But this could hardly be made known at the time He was sending out His apostles. It would have disheartened them to know that their proclamation was not destined to succeed. So our Lord does not give a definite reply to John's messengers, but bids them testify to what they saw. He hints that John might be snared by His course. Yet, however inexplicable it may appear to him, He assures him that it is his happy portion to trust where he cannot understand.

7 Compare Lu. 7:24-30.

7 The Lord might well have spoken disparagingly of John at this juncture. Instead, He gives him a eulogy which places him on the highest pinnacle of human fame. He gives him a name greater even than Moses and Elijah. The Jews have never accorded him this place, partly because he was the forerunner of the Messiah they have rejected, and partly because his career is eclipsed by the coming and presence of his Lord.

10 Compare Mal. 3:1.

12-15 Compare Lu. 16:16, 17.

12 John's methods were drastic and violent. He would have forced the kingdom on the nation, just as our Lord will do when the two witnesses will withhold rain, and turn waters into blood, and smite the earth with calamities (Un. 11:3-6). John came in the spirit and power of Elijah. For the time, our Lord was of an entirely different spirit.

14 See 17:10-13 Lu. 1:17 Mal. 4:5.

16-19 Compare Lu. 7:31-35.

roused, and the evangel is preached
6 to the poor. And happy is he who should not be snared by Me."

7 Now, at their going, Jesus begins to speak to the throngs concerning John. "What do you come out into the wilderness to gaze at? A
8 reed shaken by the wind? But what do you come out to perceive? A man in soft garb? Lo! those wearing soft things are in kings'
9 houses. But why do you come out? To perceive a prophet? Yes, I am saying to you, and exceeding-10 ly more than a prophet. This is he concerning whom it is written,

'Lo! I am dispatching My messenger before Thy face,
Who will be constructing Thy road in front of Thee'.

11 Verily, I am saying to you, Among those born of women there has not been roused a greater than John the baptist. Yet he who is smaller in the kingdom of the 12 heavens is greater than he. Now from the days of John the baptist hitherto, the kingdom of the heavens is being violated and the violent 13 are snatching it. For all the prophets and the law prophesy till 14 John. And if you want to receive him, he is Elijah who is about to 15 be coming. Who has ears to be hearing, let him be hearing!

16 Now to what shall I be likening this generation? It is like little boys and girls sitting in the markets, who, shouting to the others, 17 are saying, 'We flute to you and you do not dance! We wail and 18 you do not grieve!' For John came neither eating nor drinking, and they are saying 'He has a demon!'

<sup>16</sup> The difference between John's ministry and that of our Lord is further evident by the different charges against them. The people were sulky, like little children who will not play at any game, grave or gay. John wailed, yet they would not grieve. The Lord fluted, yet they refused to dance. John was an ascetic, and they charged him with having a demon. Our Lord was the opposite, yet they called Him a glutton and a tippler. They would not be suited. Yet it was the wisdom of God to play these opposites against one another, thus to manifest the incurable stubbornness of the people.

<sup>20</sup> The emphatic statement that Tyre and Sidon would have repented if they had been favored like the cities of Galilee makes it quite impossible to doom them to endless destruction without compromising the justice of God, quite apart from His mercy. The unqualified assertion that Sodom would not have been destroyed had it been privileged as Capernaum brings into question God's wisdom and love. Did He stint His favors so that these cities should not repent? The answer is that all is according to that deeper expression of His love which wisely provides for its ultimate display. God's justice will be vindicated in adjusting judgment to accord with privilege. In the consummation His love will be revealed in their salvation.

20-24 Compare Lu. 10:13-16.

<sup>23</sup> This is a most instructive illustration of the meaning of the word unseen, usually rendered hell or hades. Sodom had subsided to the unseen even in our Lord's day. And today the very site of Capernaum is uncertain. As a city it has passed beyond the sphere of human perception. The unseen is not confined to the death state, but is applied to invisible spirit powers and vanished cities. It is used here in the same sense as heaven in the preceding sentence.

25-27 Compare Lu. 10:21-24. See Ps. 8:1 Co. 1:19-27.

<sup>25</sup> Though His ministry seems to be a failure, the Lord recognizes the fact that this is in accord with God's unrevealed purpose. He acquiesces in God's evident delight in hiding the truth from those who were wise and intelligent in the things of this life. He does

<sup>19</sup> The Son of Mankind came eating and drinking, and they are saying, 'Lo! a gluttonous man and a tippler, a friend of tribute collectors and sinners!' And wisdom was justified by her acts."

<sup>20</sup> Then He begins to reproach the cities in which the most of His powerful deeds occurred, seeing that they do not repent. "Woe to you, Chorazin! woe to you, Bethsaida! seeing that, if the powerful deeds which are occurring in you occurred in Tyre and Sidon, they would repent long ago, sitting in sackcloth and ashes. Moreover, I am saying to you, It shall be more tolerable for Tyre and Sidon in the day of judgment than for you.

<sup>23</sup> And you, Capernaum! Are you not being exalted to heaven? You shall subside to the unseen, seeing that, if the powerful deeds which are occurring in you had occurred in Sodom, it should remain unto this day. Moreover, I am saying to you that it shall be more tolerable for the land of Sodom in the day of judgment than for you."

<sup>25</sup> At that season, answering, Jesus, said, "I am acclaiming to Thee, Father, Lord of heaven and earth, that Thou hidest these things from the wise and intelligent and Thou dost reveal them to minors. Yea, Father, seeing that thus it became a delight in front of Thee."

<sup>27</sup> "All was given up to Me by My Father, and no one is recognizing the Son except the Father, neither is any one recognizing the Father except the Son and he to whom the Son should be intending to unveil [Him]. Hither to Me, all who are toiling and laden, and I will be giving you rest. Lift My yoke upon you and be learning from Me, see-not fret because He cannot reach them, because God's work is apparently without the anticipated results, for He has the consciousness that, in the final analysis, it is God Himself Who is operating all for His own purpose and glory. It is not that those who rejected Him were blinded by some act of their own for which God disclaims responsibility. They do not see because God positively hides it from them.

<sup>28</sup> It is this God-consciousness, this recognition of His hand in all things, and more especially in that which is opposed to His apparent will, which gives His slaves heart's ease and rest in spirit. This is especially needed in days of apostasy. When we see the success of His enemies, the failure of His friends, when His own are enmeshed in the delusions of the last days, shall we blame those who must bear this load as they toil? How hard it is for their pride to be involved in failure! How great the temptation to throw off the yoke and insure success by methods of their own! O that they would learn to yoke themselves with Him, to bow humbly beneath the failure that is according to God's underlying purpose! Then they will acquiesce when He blinds, as well as when He blesses. Then the yoke will no longer gall, and the load will float from their aching shoulders. The false thought that failure is not of God and that success is His hall mark, has led His saints to imagine that any flagrant disobedience to His will is fully justified if it only results in apparent success. Let us remember that He has characterized these as days of apostasy, so that it is His will that many should depart from the faith, and, consequently, great success may result in great loss to any slave of His who does not contend lawfully. Our business is to please God by suffering rejection along with Him.

ing that I am meek and humble in heart, and you shall be finding rest

<sup>12</sup> At that season Jesus went through the sowings on the sabbaths. Now His disciples hunger, and they begin to be plucking the ears and to be eating. Now the Pharisees, perceiving it, say to Him, "Lo! Your disciples are doing what is not allowed to be done on the sabbath."

<sup>3</sup> Yet He said to them, "Did you not read what David does when he <sup>4</sup> hungers, and those with him: how he entered into the house of God and they ate the show bread, which he was not allowed to eat, neither those with him, except the priests only?"

<sup>5</sup> Or did you not read in the law that on the sabbaths the priests in the sanctuary are profaning the <sup>6</sup> sabbath and are faultless? Now I am saying to you that One greater

<sup>10</sup> into their synagogue. And lo! a man having a withered hand. And they inquire of Him, saying, "Is it allowed to cure on the sabbaths?" that they should be accusing Him.

<sup>11</sup> Now He said to them, "What man of you will there be, who shall have one sheep, and if this should be falling into a pit on the sabbaths, will not take hold of it and of stumbling them, it should have proved His Messianic claims. Moreover, the law of the sabbath was not operative in the sanctuary, and He was the real Temple of God.

10 Israel is the man with the withered hand. Instead of being punctilious about doing good on the sabbath, they should have been concerned with the fact that they could not work for God on any day. They will not be healed until the millennial rest, during which they will be busy "breaking" the sabbath.

11 See Ex.23:4,5 Deut.22:4.

14-21 Compare Mk.3:6-12 Lu.6:11,17-19.

16 Hitherto He wished to be known, but now He enters a new phase of His ministry, in accord with the fact that God had hid His proclamation from those who would have made it effective. Before this His voice was heard in the squares, so that Isaiah's prophecy could not be truly applied to Him then. Now, however, He is given a special token of God's approbation, not because He has succeeded, but because He has been faithful in failure. It is especially precious to appreciate the comforting fact that God preferred Him and delighted in Him when all the signs indicated that His marvelous ministry was almost unheeded. Only a crushed reed here, or a smouldering flax there, were the results of His efforts. Contrite hearts and feeble flickers of faith were all He could show, when His message, humanly speaking, should have aroused the whole nation and made them His ardent disciples.

18 Compare Isa. 42:1-4.

22-23 Compare Lu. 11:14.

22 It is a fact that all human ills have come to the race through the interference of outside malignant spirit forces. Satan introduced sin through Adam. He Who is superior to these invading forces is capable of curing all the ills which man is heir to.

24 Compare Mk. 3:22-26.

25 See 9:4 Jn.2:24,25 Un.2:23.

sequence, then, is a man than a sheep? So that it is allowed to be doing the ideal on the sabbaths."

13 Then He is saying to the man, "Stretch out your hand." And he stretches it out and it was restored, sound as the other.

14 Now, coming out, the Pharisees held a consultation against Him, so that they should be destroying Him. Now Jesus, knowing it, retires thence. And many follow Him, and He cures them all. And He warns them that they should not be making Him manifest, that that which is declared through the prophet Isaiah may be fulfilled, saying, 18 "Lo! My Boy Whom I prefer! My Beloved, in Whom My soul delights!

I shall be placing My spirit on Him,

And He shall be reporting judgment to the nations.

19 He will not be brawling, nor clamoring, Nor will any one be hearing His voice in the squares.

20 He will not be fracturing a crushed reed, And He will not be extinguishing the smouldering flax, Till He should be casting out judgment for victory.

21 And on His name the nations will be relying."

22 Then a blind and deaf-mute demoniac was brought to Him, and He cures him, so that the deaf-mute is talking and observing. 23 And all the throngs are amazed and said, "Is not this the Son of David?"

24 Now the Pharisees, hearing it, said, "This one is not casting out the demons except by Beezeboul, the chief of the demons."

25 Now, having perceived their sentiments, He said to them, "Every kingdom parted against itself is being desolated, and every city or <sup>24</sup> It is usual to associate this chief of the demons with the god of Ekron, called Baalzebub, Owner or Lord of Flies (2 Ki. 12). This the Septuagint renders Baal muian, Baal fly. But all the Greek texts have a different ending -boul. This is supposed to be derived from a Rabbinic word meaning dung. But it is not likely that a god of Ekron should be the chief of the demons, though doubtless he was one of them (1 Co. 10<sup>20</sup>). There is a Hebrew verb zabal (Gen. 30<sup>20</sup>) which means reside. It may be that the name of the chief of the demons is OWNER-RESIDENCE, the equivalent of Master of the House. Our Lord calls him a householder (10<sup>25</sup>). There is no real reason for identifying him with Satan, but rather, like Apollyon, he seems to be a subordinate, though head of that division of Satan's kingdom which includes the demons.

We cannot commit the sin against the holy spirit because our salvation is not based on miracles and signs. It follows faith, not sight. And we are not pardoned, but justified (Ro. 3<sup>24,26</sup>). Condemnation is impossible (Ro. 8<sup>1</sup>). Moreover, we are explicitly told that, in the latter eras, some will be withdrawing from the faith, giving heed to deceiving spirits and the teaching of demons. Any spirit manifestation not in perfect accord with the scriptures should be given the most severe tests, lest we be among those who are deceived by them.

house parted against itself will not stand. And if the Satan is casting out the Satan, he is parted against himself. How, then, shall his kingdom stand?

<sup>27</sup> Now if I am casting out demons by Beezeboul, by what are your sons casting them out? Therefore they shall be your judges.

<sup>28</sup> Now if I am casting out demons by God's spirit, consequently you have a foretaste of the kingdom of God. Or how can any one be entering the house of the strong one, and plunder his gear, if he should not first be binding the strong one? And then he will be plundering his house. He who is not with Me is against Me, and he who is not assembling with Me is scattering.

<sup>31</sup> Therefore I am saying to you, Every sin and blasphemy shall be pardoned men, yet the blasphemy of the spirit shall not be pardoned.

<sup>32</sup> And whoever might say a word against the Son of Mankind, it will be pardoned him, yet whoever might say aught against the holy spirit, it shall not be pardoned him, neither in this eon nor in that which is future.

<sup>33</sup> Either make the tree fine and its fruit fine, or make the tree rotten and its fruit rotten, for the tree is known by its fruit.

39. What sign can be given to those who attribute His wonderful works to the agency of the demons? No sign shall be given them. They, instead, will provide themselves with a sign by murdering the Messiah. His death, entombment and resurrection is the only sign He will give them. Briefly, they will have one more opportunity to repent after He has been roused from the dead. This is given them in the Pentecostal era.

40 Twelve times in the four accounts of our Lord's life we read that He would be roused "the third day". When speaking to Romans it is twice "after three days". Here only, quoting from the Hebrew, it is "three days and three nights". The designation of time varies much in all languages. Hebrew chronology always counts the smallest part of a year or a day as a whole. The twelve times repeated testimony of our Lord, besides Peter (Ac. 10<sup>40</sup>), and Paul (1 Co. 15<sup>4</sup>), shows that "the third day" is a literal and this phrase an idiomatic expression.

40 In Jonah this sea monster is called a large fish. The Greek name is now used as a scientific term for sea mammals, such as the whale. We are not told what species of sea monster it was, nor is there any good reason why we should know. Among the Greeks there was a tradition that it was a shark. There is a species in the Mediterranean, some of which are so large that a man could stand upright in their outstretched throat. Men have been found whole in their stomachs. There are marine monsters in the depths of the sea, which are seldom seen. These are so large that they could swallow several men at one time.

It is said that an English seaman, thrown into the water when a gigantic sperm whale capsized the boat, was given up for drowned. But two days later, when the whale was cut up, he was found in the stomach of the sea monster, unconscious, but alive. He recovered completely. In some ways this is more remarkable than Jonah's case, for his sea monster had been specially prepared for his reception.

to you that every idle declaration which men shall be speaking—they shall be rendering account concerning it in the day of judgment.

37 For by your words you will be justified and by your words you will be convicted."

38 Then some of the scribes and Pharisees answered Him saying, "Teacher, we want to see a sign from you."

39 Yet, answering, He said to them, "A wicked and adulterous generation is seeking for a sign: and a sign will not be given to it except the sign of Jonah, the prophet. For even as Jonah was in the bowel of the sea monster three days and three nights, thus will the Son of Mankind be in the heart of the earth three days and three nights.

41 The men of Nineveh will be rising in the judgment with this generation and will be condemning it, seeing that they repent at the proclamation of Jonah, and lo! more than Jonah is here.

42 The queen of the south will be roused in the judgment with this generation and will be condemning it, seeing that she came from the ends of the earth to hear the wisdom of Solomon, and lo! more than Solomon is here.

43 Now whenever the unclean spirit may be coming out from a man, it is passing through waterless places seeking, and is not finding, rest.

44 Then it is saying, 'I will be turning back into my house whence I came out.' And coming, it is finding it unoccupied, and swept and decorated.

<sup>43</sup> Actual idolatry had no place in Israel. That evil spirit had been cast out since the captivity. They were like the empty house, for the spirit of God had not displaced the unclean spirit. Though untenanted, like the temple on Moriah's mount, they kept to the outward form of cleansing and ceremony. But during the time of the end they will receive the false christ and will worship the miracle-working image, and bring down upon the apostates the judgments of the bowls (Un. 15<sup>4</sup>-16<sup>21</sup>).

<sup>3</sup> The removal of the kingdom to a distance in time is indicated by comparing it with the sowing and growing and harvesting of a crop. Had it still been imminent, He would not have called Himself a Sower, but a Reaper, as in the Unveiling, when the kingdom is about to appear (Un. 14:14).

The Lord is Himself the Sower, and the parable gives us the results of His past ministry. It shows us why His proclamation had not swept the whole nation into the kingdom. We must now wait until the sowing is ready for the harvest.

in, is dwelling there. And the last state of that man is becoming worse than the first. Thus will it be to this wicked generation also."

<sup>46</sup> While He is still talking to the throngs, lo! His mother and brothers stood outside seeking to talk to Him. Now some one of His disciples said, "Lo! Thy mother and Thy brothers stand outside. They are seeking to talk to Thee." Yet answering, He said to the one saying it to Him, "Who is My mother, and who are My brothers?" And, stretching out His hand over His disciples, He said, "Lo! My mother and My brothers! For whoever should be doing the will of My Father Who is in the heavens, he is My brother and sister and mother!"

<sup>13</sup> In that day Jesus, coming out of the house, sat beside the sea. And vast throngs were assembled to Him, so that He steps into a ship to be sitting, and the entire throng stood on the beach.

<sup>3</sup> And He talks much to them in parables, saying, "Lo! the sower came out to be sowing. And in his sowing some indeed falls beside the road, and the flying creatures came and devoured it. Yet other falls on rocky places, where it had not much earth, and immediately it shoots up, because it has no depth of earth. Now at the rising of the sun, it is scorched and, because it has no root, it is withered. Yet other falls on thorns, and the thorns come up and smother it. Yet other falls on ideal earth

The picture presented is true to the life of the Orient. The unfenced fields were allotted to farmers, and the roads ran right through the grain, so that it was quite impossible to avoid sowing some on the hard ground. There were often outcroppings of the country rock and shallow soil near it, and in many places thorns were so thick that the farmers despaired of eradicating them. As their soil, so the people. It takes the sun and rain of heaven to change the rocks into fertile soil. The heart of the people was still hard. It will take the storms of persecution and the fire of affliction to prepare it for the kingdom of Christ.

7-8 See verses 22 and 23.

10-13 Compare Mk.4:10-13 Lu.8:9,10.

11 It cannot be too strongly emphasized that our Lord's parables were not intended to explain, but to mystify. He veiled His message in figures lest they should understand.

12 Compare Mk.4:24,25 Lu.8:18.

13 This somewhat enigmatic statement must be understood in connection with its context. Our Lord's disciples had received spiritual gifts which enabled them to receive more. Those who had not believed on Him had no means of receiving what He was now dispensing, for they had no spiritual discernment. Not only would they lose these spiritual benefits but, as a result of the national apostasy, they would also lose the privileges which they had as the people of God.

14 This quotation from the sixth chapter of Isaiah is quoted more frequently than any other passage from the prophets. It occurs at the two great crises in the spiritual history of Israel, the rejection of the kingdom ministry of Christ, and the repudiation of its renewal by the holy spirit in Acts (Ac. 28:25-27). It always marks the cessation of the evangel of the kingdom. Henceforth He is not seeking to open their eyes, but to blind them. After Paul's pronouncement of Israel's doom the kingdom proclamation ceased. The history of the kingdom ended. It will not be resumed until the present administration of God's grace, in which the evangel goes direct to the nations apart from Israel's mediacy, is finished. Then once more the evangel will not only go to Israel, but through them to all the nations.

and gave fruit, some, indeed, a hundred, yet some sixty, yet some thirty fold. Who has ears to be hearing, let him be hearing."

10 And the disciples, approaching, say to Him, "Wherefore art Thou talking to them in parables?" Now answering, He said to them that "To you it has been given to know the secrets of the kingdom of the heavens, yet to those it has not been given. For any one who has, to him shall be given and he shall have a superfluity. Yet any one who has not, that also which he has shall be taken away from him. Therefore am I speaking to them in parables, seeing that, observing, they are not observing, and hearing, they are not hearing, neither are they understanding. And in them is filled up the prophecy of Isaiah, which is saying,

"In hearing, you will be hearing, And may by no means be understanding,

And observing, you will be observing,

And may by no means be perceiving."

15 For the heart of this people is made stout, And they hear heavily with their ears, And they shut their eyes, Lest at some time they may be perceiving with their eyes, And should be hearing with their ears, And should be understanding with their heart, And should be turning about, And I shall be healing them."

16 Now happy are your eyes, seeing that they are observing, and your ears, seeing that they are hearing. For verily I am saying to you that many prophets and just men yearn to perceive what you are observing, and perceive not, and to hear what you are hearing, and hear not.

<sup>24</sup> This parable is concerned with the future course of the kingdom proclamation before it comes. There is the same Sower as in the previous parable. There is no question of the kind of ground, but the kind of seed. The Sower put in ideal seed. His enemy sowed that which was similar in appearance, but poisonous. Darnel is so like wheat or barley before it heads out that it is practically impossible to separate them. It was customary to weed grain fields, but darnel was too like the good stalks to distinguish them. It is a strong soporific poison, and was winnowed and picked out of the wheat, grain by grain, before being ground up for meal.

The darnel represents the horde of hypocrites who took their place with true disciples. There was one even among the twelve apostles. Their number greatly increased in the later years of the Pentecostal era. They will flourish at the time of the end, and perish in the judgments which usher in the kingdom.

<sup>19</sup> sowing. At everyone hearing the word of the kingdom and not understanding it, the wicked one is coming and snatching what has been sown in his heart. This is he who is being sown beside the road.
<sup>20</sup> Yet he who is being sown on the rocky places, this is he who is hearing the word and straightway is getting it with joy. Yet he has no root in himself, but is temporary. Now when affliction or persecution is coming because of the word, <sup>21</sup> straightway he is snared. Now he who is being sown in the thorns, this is he who is hearing the word, and the worry of this eon and the seduction of riches are stifling the word, and it is becoming unfruitful.
<sup>22</sup> Now he who is being sown on ideal earth, this is he who is hearing the word and understanding it, who is bearing fruit by all means, and is producing, some, indeed, a hundred, yet some sixty, yet some thirty."

<sup>25</sup> Yet while the men are drowsing his enemy came and sows darnel over amidst the wheat, and came away.
<sup>26</sup> Now when the blade germinates and produces fruit, then the darnel also appeared.

<sup>27</sup> Now the householder's slaves, approaching, said to him, 'Master, do you not sow ideal seed in your field?
<sup>28</sup> Whence, then, has it darnel?' Now he averred to them, 'A man, an enemy, does this.' Now the slaves are saying to him, 'Do you, then, want us to come away that we <sup>29</sup> should be culling it?' Yet he is averring, 'No; lest at some time, while culling the darnel, you should be rooting up the wheat at the same

31-32 Compare Mk. 4:30-32 Lu. 13:18,19. See Dan. 4:10-12.

31 Mustard, like darnel, is a menace to the grain farmer. It is not a healthful food but a condiment. Its quick growth from a small beginning is in striking contrast to the parable of the Sower. Its sinister import is confirmed by the place it gives to the birds. In the first parable these represent the wicked spirits in their opposition to our Lord's proclamation. Now they actually take their place in the branches. At the time of the end there will be an exceedingly rapid development of the kingdom among the Jews, which will head up in false Babylon, which becomes the cage of every hateful bird (Un.18<sup>3</sup>), and supports the wicked spirits who once opposed the kingdom proclamation.

33 Compare Lu. 13:20,21. See Zech. 5:5-11.

33 Leaven, in scripture, is always a symbol of evil and corruption. The Jews cleanse all leaven out of their houses once a year at the festival of Unleavened Bread (26:17 Ex. 11:15). This the apostle calls evil and wickedness (1 Co. 5:6). All types of Christ had to be without leaven (Ex. 23:18 34:25 Lev. 2:16:17). The meal was good. But the woman covertly introduces evil, which causes it to expand, and makes it palatable for men. The woman can hardly be any one but that false figure of the end time, great Babylon. The apostate nation will so corrupt the proclamation as to please the unregenerate in Israel. Instead of looking to Messiah to establish His reign and give them a place in it, they do as they did in the days of old, when they leaned on Egypt or Assyria, instead of on Jehovah. At the end time Babylon will be supported in millennial splendor by all the nations of the earth. It is true that the leaven of insincerity and falsehood is working in Christendom today, swelling it into a great world force, palatable to men but abominable in the sight of God, but this parable has reference to the kingdom only. Leaven typifies evil, and evil only, at all times.

34-35 Compare Mk. 4:33-34.

35 This refers to the disruption of the kingdom from the house of David. This is the subject of the so-called seventy-eighth psalm, from which this quotation is taken.

30 time with it. Leave both to grow up together until the harvest, and in the season of the harvest I shall be declaring to the reapers, Cull first the darnel and bind it into bundles to burn it up. Yet gather the wheat into my barn'."

31 Another parable He places before them, saying, "The kingdom of the heavens is like the kernel of mustard, which a man getting, sows in his field, which, indeed, is smaller than all the seeds, yet, whenever it may be grown, is greater than greens, and is becoming a tree, so that the flying creatures of heaven come and roost among its boughs."

33 Another parable He speaks to them, saying, "The kingdom of the heavens is like leaven which a woman gets and hides in three seahs [about 3 $\frac{1}{4}$  pecks] of meal, till the whole was leavened."

34 All these things Jesus speaks in parables to the throngs, and apart from a parable He spoke nothing to them, so that that which is declared through the prophet may be fulfilled, saying,

"I shall be opening My mouth in parables,

I shall be emitting what has been hid from the disruption."

36 Then, the throngs being let away, He came into the house. And His disciples come to Him saying, "Elucidate to us the parable of the darnel of the field." Now, answering, He said, "He Who is sowing the ideal seed is the Son of Mankind. Now the field is the world. Now the ideal seed, these are the sons of the kingdom. Now the darnel are the sons of the

<sup>44</sup> In a country subject to revolutions, invasions, and robbers, it was customary to hide money and valuables in secret cistern-like vaults in the fields. Such are not seldom found by accident, and often cause much excitement. It would be dangerous to dig in another man's field. Hence the buying. Israel is the treasure. The field is the world (see <sup>38</sup>). In order to possess Himself of the treasure, the Son of Mankind gives His all and purchases the world. He has overpaid its price by His blood.

There is no ground for the popular idea that Christ is the pearl, found by the sinner seeking salvation. He is, indeed precious, but sinners are not seekers. It is always the Saviour Who finds the lost. He is not lost nor hidden.

<sup>47</sup> Here is another aspect of Israel's dispersion among the nations. In the conclusion of this eon—still future—

<sup>39</sup> wicked one. Now the enemy who sows them is the Slanderer. Now the harvest is the conclusion of the eon. Now the reapers are messengers. Even as the darnel, then, is being culled and burned up with fire, thus shall it be in the conclusion of the eon. The Son of Mankind shall be dispatching His messengers, and they shall be culling out of His kingdom all the snares and those doing lawlessness, and they shall be casting them into a furnace of fire. There shall be lamentation and gnashing of teeth. Then shall the righteous be shining out as the sun in the kingdom of their Father. Who has ears to be hearing, let him be hearing.

<sup>44</sup> The kingdom of the heavens is like treasure hid in a field, finding which, a man hides it, and from the joy of it, is going away, and is selling all whatever he has, and is buying that field.

<sup>45</sup> Again, the kingdom of the heavens is like a man who is a merchant seeking fine pearls. Now, finding one very precious pearl, coming away, he has disposed of all, whatever he had, and buys it.

<sup>47</sup> Again, the kingdom of the heavens is like a dragnet cast into the sea and gathering of every species, which, when it was filled, they, hauling it up on the beach, and being seated, cull the fine into crows, yet the rotten they cast out. Thus shall it be in the conclusion of the eon. The messengers will be coming out and they will be sever-

Israel will be drawn from among all peoples. There will be a separation, such as was indicated in the parable of the darnel, and the bad will be destroyed in the terrible judgments of the seven bowls (Un. 15<sup>5</sup>-16<sup>21</sup>).

53-58 Compare Mk. 6:1-6.

53 Notwithstanding the treatment He had received when He visited Nazareth before (Lu. 4:15-30), when they had actually tried to put Him to death, and the fact that His own brethren had declared Him to be mad, He graciously returns to the home of His youth, staying this time as long as He desired, and meeting no open hostility. It may be that He wished to refute the rumors His brethren had spread concerning Him by His presence and by healing their sick. But the Nazarenes found it impossible to put aside their prejudices. How could He, a mere townsman of theirs, amount to anything? They knew all about Him and His family. So it was with the prophets, and continues to this day. No man of God need expect recognition from those with whom he is familiar.

54 See Jn. 7:16,17.

1-5 Compare Mk. 6:14-20/Lu. 9:7-9.

1 There are a number of the Herodian family referred to in the scriptures. This one, usually called Herod Antipas, was one of the sons of Herod the Great (Mt. 2:1/Lu. 1:5) who had sought to kill our Lord soon after His birth. Two of his half-brothers are also mentioned, Herod Philip I. who had first married Herodias (Mt. 14:3 Mk. 6:17 Lu. 3:19), and Herod Philip II. (Lu. 3:1). Archelaus (Mt. 2:22) was his full brother. Another half-brother, Aristobulus, was the father of Herod, king of Chalcis (Ac. 25:13), Herod Agrippa I. (Ac. 12:1-23), and Herodias, whose marriage, first to Herod Philip I., and then to Herod Antipas, was the cause of John the baptist's death. Agrippa II. (Ac. 25:13) was a son of Agrippa I. Bernice (Ac. 25:13) and Drusilla (Ac. 24:24) were his sisters.

Herod the tetrarch, here referred to, was a son of Herod the Great by a Samaritan woman named Malthace. After his father's death the Romans appointed him tetrarch of Galilee and Perea, so that by far the greater part of our Lord's ministry was carried on ing the wicked from the midst of 50 the just. And they shall be casting them into the furnace of fire. There shall be lamentation and 51 gnashing of teeth. Do you understand all these things?"

They are saying to Him, "Yes."

52 Now He said to them, "Therefore every scribe who is made a disciple of the kingdom of the heavens is like a man, a householder, who is extracting out of his treasure things new and old."

53 And it occurred, when Jesus finishes these parables, He withdraws 54 thence. And coming into His own country, He taught them in their synagogue, so that they are astonished, and are saying, "Whence has this one this wisdom and 55 powers? Is not this the son of the carpenter? Is not his mother said to be Miriam, and his brothers James and Joseph and Simon and 56 Judas? And his sisters, are they not all with us? Whence, then, has 57 this one all these?" And they were snared in Him.

Yet Jesus said to them, "A prophet is not dishonored, except in his own country and in his 58 home." And He does not many powerful deeds there because of their unbelief.

14 At that season Herod the tetrarch hears tidings of Jesus, and 2 said to his pages, "This is John the baptist. He was roused from the dead and therefore powers are 3 operating in him." For Herod then, holding John, binds and put him away in jail also, because of in his dominions. His first wife was a daughter of Aretas, king of Arabia, who made war with him and conquered him because he had repudiated his daughter in order to marry Herodias, his half-brother Philip's wife. This woman brought him to his ruin. She was exceedingly ambitious and induced him to go to the emperor at Rome and seek the title of king. But Herodias' brother, Herod Agrippa I., brought accusations against him, so that Caligula banished him to Gaul, where he seems to have died.

3 See Lev.18:16,20,21.

6-12 Compare Mk. 6:21-29.

13-15 Compare Mk.6:30-36 Lu.9:10-12 Jn.6:1-7.

13 Herod's insistence that the Lord was John the baptist was not very reassuring, for He was almost continually within Herod's jurisdiction, and nothing could be simpler than to arrest Him and imprison Him, as John the baptist had been. His time had not yet come, so He quietly retires to avoid further publicity. But the throngs follow Him into the wilderness.

16 Man shall not live by bread alone, but by the words which issue from the mouth of God. However great may be the marvel of providing food for such a multitude in the wilderness, it cannot compare with the miracle of which it was the sign. The kingdom has been rejected. The Lord's path is now a spiritual parallel with the interval between His rejection and His return to reign. His people will need to be sustained in the wilderness, just as Israel of old needed the manna after they had left Egypt and could not enter the land because of unbelief. The kingdom had come very near to them, just as their fathers had come to Kadesh, only to turn back into the wilderness for forty years. Then they needed physical food. Now they need spiritual sustenance. This provision is supplied by means of twelve cakes of bread, five on this occasion, and seven a little later, representing the twelve portions of scripture which have been given the Circumcision during the period which precedes the kingdom. The two fishes suggest that there is a testimony to the sons of Ham and Japhet who are proselytes in the nations.

In these writings there is more than sufficient to sustain the believing Israelites and a considerable surplus for Herodias, his brother Philip's wife.

4 For John said to him, "It is not 5 allowed you to have her." And, wanting to kill him, he was afraid of the throng, seeing that they had him as a prophet.

6 Now at the coming of Herod's birthdays, the daughter of Herodias dances in the midst and pleases 7 Herod. Whence, with an oath, he avows to give her whatever she 8 should be requesting. Now she, being egged on by her mother, is averring, "Give me here, on a platter, the head of John the baptist."

9 And the king, being sorry, yet because of the oaths and those lying back at table with him, orders it 10 to be given. And sending, he be-heads John in the jail.

11 And his head was brought on a platter and given to the maiden, and she carries it to her mother.

12 And his disciples, approaching, take away his corpse and entomb
it. And coming, they report to Jesus.

13 Now, hearing it, Jesus retires thence in a ship into a wilderness place privately. And hearing of it, the throngs follow Him afoot from 14 the cities. And, coming out, He perceived a vast throng, and has compassion on them and cures those 15 of them who are ailing. Now, as it is becoming evening, the disciples come to Him, saying, "The place is a wilderness and the hour passed by already: then dismiss the throngs that, coming away into the villages, they should be buying themselves food."

16 Yet Jesus said to them, "They the nations. It does not, however, make any direct provision for the nations, such as is suggested at the end of Acts (28<sup>28</sup>). We are no longer called upon to eat the left-overs from Israel's feast (Eph. 2<sup>19</sup>). The writings to the Circumcision, represented by the twelve cakes, are not for the nations. The Lord has given us a banquet such as Israel never knew. We have thirteen of Paul's epistles which, if we would only satiate ourselves with them, would keep us from so much as tasting the scraps which they refuse, or trying to purloin what pertains only to them.

22-23 Compare Mk.645,46Jn.614,15.

23 His ascent into the mountain alone, while His disciples are sent into the midst of the sea, is a lovely little likeness of His ascension and session in the heavens while His disciples are left to the mercy of the nations. Not for naught is the word "torment" used here. It may not fit the effect of the billows, but it certainly is a forceful description of the fearful trials which are the portion of His followers during His absence.

24-27 Compare Mk.647-50Jn.616-20.

25 The Romans divided the night into four watches. There is a hint here that the Lord's absence will be prolonged until near morning. For them it will be night until the day of the Lord dawns.

26 No one will question the actual reality of this miracle who realizes how much greater is the wonder of His control over the turbulent peoples who threaten to swallow up His disciples during His absence in heaven. Some have tried to explain such prodigies on purely natural grounds. Nature is itself a continuous miracle to which we have become accustomed. Even in our present debased condition there are feeble intimations of powers we will possess in resurrection. It is said that consciousness decreases the weight of the body. It is heavier when asleep. It would seem that a sufficiently great increase in its vitality or power would overcome the force of gravitation. This is seen in a much intensified form in His ascension, where He practically became able to walk on air.

have no need to be coming away. You give them something to eat."

17 Yet they are saying to Him, "We have nothing here except five cakes 18 and two fishes." Now He said,
19 "Bring them here to Me." And, ordering the throngs to recline on the grass, taking the five cakes and the two fishes, looking up into heaven, He blesses them, and, breaking them, gives the cakes to the disciples, yet the disciples to the 20 throngs. And they all ate and are satisfied, and they pick up twelve panniers full of surplus fragments.
21 Now those eating were about five thousand men, apart from women and little children.

22 And immediately He compels His disciples to step into the ship and to be preceding Him to the other side, till He should be dismissing the throngs. And, dismissing the throngs, He ascended into the mountain privately to pray. Now, as it is becoming evening, He was there alone.

24 Now the ship was already many stadia [about 607 feet each] distant from the land, in the midst of the sea, being tormented by the billows, for the wind was contrary.
25 Now in the fourth watch of the night He came to them, walking on 26 the sea. Now the disciples, perceiving Him walking on the sea, were disturbed, saying that it is a phantom. And they cry out from fear.
27 Now straightway Jesus speaks to them, saying, "Courage! It is I. Fear not!"

28 Yet Peter, answering Him, said, "Lord, if it is Thou, order me to <sup>28</sup> Peter here symbolizes the sovereignty of Israel over the turbulent gentiles in the time to come. They are made afraid by the spiritual power of evil, typified by the wind. Peter's cry will be theirs when He reappears in glory. Then all Israel shall be invoking the name of the Lord and shall be saved (Ro.10<sup>13</sup> 11<sup>26</sup>). Then Satan will be bound (Un.20<sup>2</sup>), even as the wind flags. And then the nation as a whole will worship Him as they never have done before.

36 See Lu.6<sup>19</sup>.

<sup>36</sup> As millennial bliss follows the terrors of the end time, so this lovely scene of abounding blessing succeeds the night of stress and storm. His presence dispels disease. They simply touched the tassel of His robe. This is not merely indicative of the most casual contact or a sign of the strength of their faith. It had a deeper significance, derived from Jehovah's instructions in the law (Nu.15<sup>38-40</sup>). The garment of an Israelite was bordered by a fringe or tassel, in which was a ribbon of blue. The word blue is from the root meaning to finish. It was to remind them to do all His precepts. It may well be the sign of His complete obedience, especially of its finish on Golgotha. Contact with the cross is the basis of all blessing.

1-6 Compare Mk. 7<sup>1-13</sup>.

<sup>1</sup> Our Lord came to fulfill the law. When He taught that which seemed to be other than its precepts it was because He was above it. He could make it more searching (5<sup>27-48</sup>). Being the Temple of God, He and all in His presence could profane the sabbath (12<sup>1-8</sup>). Now, however, He is charged with violating the oral precepts which the Rabbis had not only added to the law, but actually placed above the law. In fact, while they rejected His supremacy above Moses, they arrogated it to themselves. Their choice of a test is most unfortunate for them. While they were hypocritically concerned with the ceremonial cleansing of their hands, their mouths were defiling themselves and all about them with thoughts dishonoring to God. The Lord did not take them up on the subject of wash-be coming to Thee on the waters."

<sup>29</sup> Now He said, "Come!" And stepping down from the ship, Peter walks on the waters, to come to Jesus.

<sup>32</sup> And when they ascend into the ship the wind flags. Now those in the ship worship Him, saying, "Truly Thou art the Son of God."

<sup>34</sup> And ferrying over, they came to the land in Gennesaret. And the men of that place, recognizing Him, dispatch into that whole country about, and they bring Him all those having ills; and they entreated Him that they should only be touching the tassel of His cloak, and as many as touch were saved through it.

<sup>3</sup> Now answering, He said to them, "Wherefore are you also transgressing the precept of God because of your tradition? For God said, 'Be honoring father and mother,' and 'He who is speaking evil of father or mother, let him decease in death.' Yet you are saying, 'Whoever may be saying to a father or mother, "That which you should be benefited by me is an oblation", he shall by no means be honoring ing before meals. He may have thought it a harmless rite, to be complied with or not, according to the finer dictates of courtesy. But He does attack the very idea that a tradition is binding, and that He or His were obliged to conform to any human precept. So He chooses one of their traditions, which was nothing less than an attempt to elude their legal obligations, and exposes their hypocrisy in placing their own precepts above the divine enactments. They called it "a hedge around the law", but it was a dagger thrust at the revealed will of God. It did not guard the law, but explained it away. His law was just and good, their perversions of it were unjust and bad.

The fifth precept was a most salutary provision for both parents and children. It is a sign of the degeneracy of our times that little honor is shown to father or mother. The law included in this the parental control of time or talent. The only way to avoid this was to claim that it was dedicated to God, the very One Who had demanded that it be dedicated to parents! The "corban" or approach offering was an oblation intended to win the favor of God. They thought to bribe Him with the results of their disobedience to His word! The same principle applies to all times. To hearken is better than sacrifice, to attend than the suet of rams (1 Sa.15<sup>22</sup>). Let no one suppose that He is pleased with their oblations, whether it be success in service, or even suffering for His sake, if it is not in fullest accord with His will. It is one of the most insidious and deceitful of delusions to imagine that, since His grace bears with such evil, and sends blessing through it, it receives His approval. Let us not take advantage of His grace or presume upon His love. Such is not the leading of His spirit. Our Lord not only denounces the oblations of disobedient sons, but plainly refutes the teaching that contamination comes from unwashed hands.

his father.' And you invalidate the word of God through your tradition. Hypocrites! Ideally Isaiah prophesies concerning you, saying,

8 "This people is honoring Me with the lips,
Yet their heart has its fill at a distance from Me.
9 Now in vain are they revering Me,
Teaching for teachings the directions of men."

10 And, calling to the throng, He said to them, "Hear and understand! Not what is coming into the mouth is contaminating a man, but what is going out of the mouth—this is contaminating a man."

12 Then the disciples, approaching, said to Him, "Are you aware that the Pharisees are shocked at hearing the word?" Now, answering, He said, "Every plant which My heavenly Father does not plant shall be uprooted. Desert them! They are blind guides of the blind! Now if the blind should be guiding the blind, both shall be falling into a pit."

15 Now, answering, Peter said to Him, "Decipher the parable for us." Yet He said, "Are you also unintelligent at this point? Are you not as yet apprehending that everything which is going into the mouth is becoming the contents of the bowels, and is being evacuated into the latrine? Now that which is going out of the mouth is coming out of the heart, and those are contaminating a man. For out of the heart are coming wicked reasonings, murders, adulteries, prostitutions, thefts, false witnesses, calumnies. These are what are contaminating a man. Now to be

21 Compare Mk. 7:24-30.

21 The incident of the Canaanitish woman is of surpassing interest to us, for it shows clearly what was the status of the nations in our Lord's ministry. Her very mistakes are instructive. The nations have no part in the Son of David. He is Israel's King. No matter how much she may implore the Son of David, He answers her not a word. Let no one suppose that His heart was not touched or that He did not wish to be gracious. She has come to the wrong door. Yet He will not dismiss her. Finally, He tells why He cannot help. The Son of David, the character she approached, has no commission outside the nation of Israel. An oriental king is considered the father of his people. They are his children. The Canaanitish woman had no claim on His bounty. This is the key to Christ's earthly mission. He was a Servant of the Circumcision, not of the Uncircumcision (Ro. 15<sup>8</sup>). During His ministry the nations did not even have the place they received in the Pentecostal era. Then, after much preparation, the apostles were taught that proselytes, such as Cornelius, could share a little of Israel's spiritual blessings (Ac. 10). Later, at Pisidian Antioch, the door was opened by Paul, to some who were not proselytes (Ac. 13<sup>46,47</sup>). But it was not until the end of the Acts era that the salvation of God is sent directly to the nations (Ac. 28<sup>29</sup>). The latter half of the second chapter of Ephesians (2<sup>11-22</sup>), is an elaborate statement showing that, in the present administration of God's grace, the nations are no longer in the inferior position accorded them in Paul's earlier ministry.

Christ is Lord of all (Ac. 10<sup>36</sup>). Under this title even the Canaanitish woman was within His jurisdiction. She worships and calls for help. Yet even thus, she is by no means on an equal footing with the favored nation. Only the scraps are for her. If she will take the place of a cur, she can have a little of the leavings. This is the place we gentiles have in the ministry of Christ. Our position was improved in the succeeding Pentecostal era. But it was not until Paul's imprisonment that we were brought nigh and enter the family of God (Eph. 2<sup>13,19</sup>). Until then we were still guests at Israel's table, if not puppies under it.

29-31 Compare Mk. 7:51-57.

eating with unwashed hands is not contaminating a man."

21 And coming out thence, Jesus retires into the parts of Tyre and 22 Sidon. And lo! a Canaanitish woman, coming out from those boundaries, cried, saying, "Be merciful to me, Lord, Son of David! My daughter is evilly ob-23 sessed by demons." Yet He answered her not a word. And His disciples, approaching, asked Him, saying, "Dismiss her, seeing that she is crying after us."

24 Now, answering, He said, "I was not commissioned except for the lost sheep of the house of Israel."

25 Yet she, coming, worships Him,
26 saying, "Lord, help me!" Yet, answering, He said, "It is not ideal to be taking the children's bread and to be casting it to the 27 puppies." Yet she said, "Yes, Lord. For the puppies also are eating of the scraps which are falling from their masters' table."

28 Then, answering, Jesus said to her, "O woman, great is your faith! Let it come to be with you as you are wanting!" And her daughter was healed from that hour.

29 And proceeding thence, Jesus came beside the sea of Galilee. And, ascending into the mountain, He 30 sat there. And vast throngs came to Him, having with them the lame, the blind, the deaf-mutes, the maimed, and many others, and they toss them at His feet, and He cures 31 them, so that the throng marvels, observing the deaf-mutes talking, the maimed sound, and the lame walking, and the blind observing,

32-39 Compare Mk. 8:1-10.

<sup>32</sup> The feeding of the four thousand on this occasion is the complement of His previous miracle, when five thousand were satisfied (14<sup>16</sup>). There are two great lessons to be learned from it which can only be discerned by carefully comparing the two. As a sign the seven cakes, added to the five, make twelve, which corresponds with the spiritual provision for Israel during their stay in the wilderness or before they enter the kingdom. The five cakes are for Israel in the past, being the first three accounts of our Lord's life, Acts and Hebrews. John's account was not written till later and is for the kingdom itself. The interval between the two miracles indicates the period of Israel's dispersion. The seven cakes are the seven epistles provided for their sustenance at the end of this eon. James, first and second Peter, the three epistles of John, and Jude will be their manna in the time of the end.

The need was much greater on this occasion, for the throng had been three days without food. They were faint and in danger of collapse. These conditions will be repeated in Israel in the time to come. Then the believers will be glad to avail themselves of the Circumcision epistles which meet their needs and minister to their wants.

It is sheer robbery for us to take this provision from God's covenant people. Should we purloin their spiritual provision it will not, indeed, diminish their store, but it will reduce our own enjoyment of the superabounding sufficiency supplied to us in Paul's epistles, for we cannot appreciate our own riches while we filch from them.

1-4 Compare Mk. 8:11-13. See 12<sup>38-40</sup> Lu. 12<sup>54-56</sup> 1 Co. 12<sup>2</sup>.

<sup>1</sup> Blind mouths! What was the feeding of the four thousand but a sign from heaven? But if they cannot read a sign from above, He will see that they provide themselves with a sign from beneath. Undoubtedly these very Pharisees and Sadducees were instrumental in putting Him into the heart of the earth. His death and burial and resurrection constituted the great sign to the unbelieving nation. Jonah was a type of their disobedience as well as of His passage through death and of blessing to the nations through Israel.

5-12 Compare Mk. 8:14-21.

and they glorify the God of Israel.

<sup>32</sup> Now Jesus, calling His disciples to Him, said, "I have compassion on the throng, seeing that three days already they are remaining with Me, and they have nothing that they may be eating, and I am not willing to dismiss them fasting, lest they may be fainting on the road. And the disciples are saying to Him, "Whence, in a wilderness, is so much bread for us, so as to satisfy so much of a throng?" And Jesus is saying to them, "How many cakes have you?" Now they said, "Seven, and a few small fishes."

<sup>35</sup> And, charging the throng to be leaning back on the earth, He took the seven cakes and the fishes, and, giving thanks, He breaks and gave to the disciples, yet the disciples to the throngs. And they all ate and are satisfied. And they pick up seven hampers full of the surplus fragments. Now those eating were about four thousand men, apart from women and little children. And dismissing the throngs, He boarded the ship and came into the boundaries of Magadan.

16 And the Pharisees and the Sadducees, approaching, trying Him, inquire to have Him exhibit a sign to them out of heaven.

<sup>2</sup> Now, answering, He said to them, "A wicked and adulterous generation is seeking for a sign, and a sign will not be given to it except the sign of Jonah." And leaving them, He came away.

<sup>6</sup> Leaven stands for corrupt doctrine (12). Our Lord was concerned that the disciples should not be tainted by digesting the teaching of His enemies. But all that they were concerned about was the possible lack of a meal! And this just after seeing Him feed such a multitude! Even if they had no bread a little calculation in highest mathematics would show them how well provided they were with Him on board. Leaving out of our reckoning the women and children, our Lord satisfied each man of the first five thousand with one-thousandth part of a cake, with a remainder of twelve packed panniers (14<sup>20</sup>). Now He distributes seven cakes among four thousand. Each man would get nearly two-thousandths, or twice as much as on the former occasion. Surely we may expect a much larger surplus! Not so. There are only seven hampers, probably not half as much as before! The more He had to work with, the less there is left! The less He had, the greater the surplus! If we develop these equations to their limits, there would have been no left-overs if they had bought the bread. But, on the other hand, no one can limit the amount of food remaining, if they had not found a single crumb for Him to bless! This is a form of infinitesimal calculus which our mathematicians cannot grasp, yet is well within the range of an infant in the school of God. God needs our lack to display the plenitude of His provision.

<sup>17</sup> We have come to the climax of our Lord's proclamation of the kingdom. The people know Him not. Only a few, led by Peter, recognize Israel's Messiah. These are the new ecclesia, called out from the nation, and separated from them by loyalty to Him. Our Lord's ministry commenced with the descent of the spirit in form as a dove. Peter is inaugurated into his new office by being named the "Son of a Dove". Then our Lord plays on the meaning of "Peter", which is "rock". As such this new ecclesia would be take heed of the leaven of the Pharisees and Sadducees!"

<sup>7</sup> Now they reasoned among themselves, saying that "We got no bread." Now, knowing it, Jesus said, "Why are you reasoning among yourselves, scant of faith, <sup>9</sup> that you have no bread? Are you not yet apprehending, neither remembering the five cakes of the five thousand, and how many panniers you got? Neither the seven cakes of the four thousand and <sup>10</sup> how many hampers you got? How is it you are not apprehending that I spoke not to you about cakes? Now take heed of the leaven of the Pharisees and Sadducees." <sup>12</sup> Then they understand that He said not to take heed of the leaven of cakes [of bread], but of the teaching of the Pharisees and Sadducees.

<sup>15</sup> He is saying to them, "Now who are you saying that I am?" Now, answering, Simon Peter said, "Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God."

<sup>17</sup> Now, answering, Jesus said to him, "Happy are you, Simon Bar-Jonah, seeing that flesh and blood does not reveal it to you, but My Father Who is in the heavens. <sup>18</sup> Now I, also, am saying to you that you are Peter, and on this rock I shall be building My ecclesia, and the gates of the unseen shall not <sup>19</sup> be prevailing against it. I shall be giving you the keys of the king-built on him. The forms Petros and petra differ only in gender. In the new Jerusalem the twelve will be associated with him in the foundation (Un. 21<sup>14</sup>). But he alone is the foundation in this ecclesia. He took this place in the Pentecostal era. This is the same ecclesia which will pass through the terrors of the end time, for whom Peter's epistles are especially intended. Then the great dragon and his hosts will not prevail against this ecclesia. Peter used the keys on the day of Pentecost to open the kingdom to Israel. From Peter's confession forward the doors into the kingdom were shut and the Lord no longer proclaimed it. As He would not be present when they were to be opened again, He gave Peter the keys. Peter's dealings with Ananias and Sapphira show the power he possessed. None of this has any connection with the present ecclesia, the body of Christ. We are not built on Peter. None of his teaching is for us. We are associated with Paul. Peter's keys would not be any service to us, for we do not enter that kingdom. Before the powers of the unseen hurl themselves against that ecclesia, we will be safely at home with our Lord (1 Th. 4<sup>17</sup>).

<sup>22</sup> Peter was doubtless elated at his wonderful honors, but his spiritual endowment had not yet enabled him to sympathize in his Lord's sufferings. Indeed, he would not hear of them. Herein he was imitating the very tactics of Satan, who proposed to give Christ the kingdom without the suffering. Hence Peter is called a satan, which is Hebrew for adversary.

Our Lord now proclaims the evangel of suffering. Those who shirk—these will save their souls in the meantime, but lose them in the kingdom. Those who suffer—these will reign. There is much in common between the interval reaching from our Lord's rejection to His crucifixion and the present administration. In both the kingdom proclamation gives place to the evangel of His sufferings. In both service is associated with suffering and rejection with reigning. It is never said that the successful servant will reign, but, if we are enduring, we shall also be reigning together (2 Ti. 2<sup>12</sup>).

dom of the heavens, and whatever you should be binding on earth shall be binding in the heavens, and whatever you should be loosing on earth shall be loosed in the heavens." Then He cautions the disciples that they may be saying to no one that He is the Christ.

<sup>21</sup> Thenceforth Jesus begins to show His disciples that He must be coming away into Jerusalem and to be suffering much from the elders and chief priests and scribes, and to be killed, and to be roused the third day. And Peter, taking Him, begins to rebuke Him, saying, "Be propitious to Thyself, Lord! This will by no means be for Thee!"

<sup>23</sup> Now, being turned, He said to Peter, "Go away behind Me, satan! You are a snare to Me, seeing that you are not disposed to that which is of God, but that which is of men."

<sup>24</sup> Then Jesus said to His disciples: "If any one is wanting to come after Me, let him renounce himself and pick up his cross and be following Me. For whoever should be wanting to save his soul will be destroying it. Yet whoever should be destroying his soul on My account will be finding it. For what will a man be benefited, if he should be gaining the whole world, yet be forfeiting his soul? Or what will a man be giving in exchange for his soul? For the Son of Mankind is about to be coming in the glory of His Father with His messengers, and then He will be paying each in accord with his practise. Verily I am saying to you that there are some of those standing here who

<sup>28</sup> This prediction was fulfilled about a week later when He took His most intimate disciples with Him and they saw His power and presence and were spectators of His magnificence (2 Pt. 1:16). It is fitting that, at this juncture, there should be some plain intimation of the postponement of the kingdom. In the record the promise is immediately followed by its fulfillment, but there is a week's delay. Another cycle must run its course before the proper conditions reappear which precede the kingdom.

<sup>1</sup> This was not merely a transfiguration but a transformation. Satan is, at present, transfigured into a messenger of light (2 Co. 11:14). We should be transformed by the renewing of our minds (Ro. 12:2). Transfiguration deals with the temporary fashion. Transformation is the permanent appearance. The Lord's flesh was a veil or curtain, which hid His innate splendor. On the mount, the glory shone out so that it became visible to mortal eyes.

<sup>3</sup> The mystery concerning Moses' body and the translation of Elijah explains their presence here. While this is a glorious kingdom scene, it is also a preparation for the "exodus" which He was about to complete at Jerusalem (Lu. 9:31). The scene was glory but the theme was shame. So we do not see David on the holy mountain, but Moses, the great mediator, who led the exodus out of Egypt, and who wrote so much concerning His sacrifice, and we see Elijah, the premier prophet, who must come ere the kingdom is an accomplished fact. These men sympathized with the sufferings which were before Him, but Peter has not yet learned the lesson. He wished to make this a permanent display and thus avoid the cross. But he foolishly places Moses and Elijah in the same class with our Lord. Just as Israel's unbelief dispelled the hope of the kingdom, so now his words draw down a cloud and the glory vanishes.

under no circumstances should be tasting death till they should be perceiving the Son of Mankind coming in His kingdom."

<sup>9</sup> And at their descending out of the mountain, Jesus directs them, saying, "Now you should tell no one of the vision till the Son of Mankind may be roused from among the dead."

<sup>10</sup> And His disciples inquire of Him, saying, "Then why are the scribes saying that Elijah must <sup>11</sup> come first?" Now, answering, He said to them that "Elijah is in-

<sup>10</sup> Though John the baptist was not Elijah, who will probably be one of the two witnesses at the time of the end (Un. 113-12), he came in the spirit and power of Elijah (Lu. 117), and could have performed his mission if the people had been ready to receive him.

<sup>22</sup> The gloomy shadow of the cross lies athwart the pathway of our Lord throughout the second period of His ministry. More than that, His disciples were blind to it. As the Jews did not understand or accept Him as their King, so now His disciples refuse to entertain the revelation of Himself as their Priest and Sacrifice. So today His own saints turn from Him as the Saviour and seek to press His kingdom, which is in abeyance.

deed coming, and will be restoring <sup>12</sup> all. Yet I am saying to you that Elijah came already, and they recognize him not, but they do to him whatever they will. Thus the Son of Mankind also is about to be suffering by them." Then the disciples understand that He spoke to them about John the baptist.

<sup>14</sup> And, coming to the throng, a man came to Him, kneeling to <sup>15</sup> Him, and saying, "Lord, be merciful to my son, seeing that he is epileptic, and is having an evil time, for often he is falling into the fire
<sup>16</sup> and often into the water. And I bring him to Thy disciples, and they could not cure him."

<sup>17</sup> Now, answering, Jesus then said to them, "O unbelieving and perverted generation, till when shall I be with you? Till when shall I bear with you? Bring him here to <sup>18</sup> Me." And Jesus rebukes him, and the demon came out from him, and the boy was cured from that hour.

<sup>19</sup> Then the disciples, approaching Jesus privately, said, "Why could <sup>20</sup> we not cast it out?" Now He is saying to them, "Because of your scant faith. For verily I am saying to you, Should you have faith as a mustard kernel, you shall be declaring to this mountain, 'Proceed hence—there!' and it will be proceeding. And nothing will be impossible for you."

<sup>24</sup> According to the law every one who was numbered in Israel, being over twenty years of age, paid half a shekel to shelter his soul (Ex.30<sup>12-14</sup>). It was used for the temple service, and was known as the temple tribute. This must not be confused with the tribute paid to Cæsar. There never was any question as to its payment by a patriotic Jew, until after the destruction of Jerusalem, when it was sent to Rome. The question is peculiarly appropriate at this time. It certainly was not incumbent on the Lord to support the empty forms of an obsolete sacrificial system, when He Himself was the true Temple of God and the real Sacrifice. He could justly demand the tribute, but give it, never. Peter has not yet learned the great truth of His coming sacrifice or he would not have consented so readily to pay such a tribute. Yet, while the Lord does not pay it from the funds, for the sake of His enemies He condescends to submit to a law which was far beneath Him. But, in doing so, He gives a little inkling of how the temple ought to be supported and how it will be upheld in the coming æon. The sea represents the gentiles. In that day the riches of the nations will flow to Jerusalem (Isa.49<sup>22</sup> 60<sup>5,11,16</sup>61<sup>10</sup>), and then they will come to the sacred festival of tabernacles each year (Zech.14<sup>16-19</sup>). The sons of the kingdom will be free from the payment of tribute or poll tax. They will be ransomed, not with corruptible silver or gold, but with the precious blood of Christ (1 Pt. 1<sup>18</sup>). So we see that the miracle was not only a marvel of practical power (for who else could catch a fish with exactly the proper amount in its mouth?), but is an even more marvelous sign, indicating the fiscal policy of the great King.

day He will be roused." And they were tremendously sorry.

<sup>18</sup> Now in that hour the disciples came to Jesus, saying, "Who, consequently, is greater in the kingdom of the heavens?" And, calling a little child to Him, He stands it in their midst, and said, "Verily, I am saying to you, should you not be turning and becoming as little children, you may by no means be entering into the kingdom of the heavens. Any one, then, who will be humbling himself as this little child, he is the greater one in the kingdom of the heavens. And whoever should be receiving one such little child on My name is receiving Me. Yet whoever should be snaring one of these little ones who are believing into Me, it is expedient for him that a millstone requiring an ass to turn it may be hanged

7 The application of these sayings apart from their context can only lead to confusion. The Lord is speaking of a place in the millennial kingdom. There will be much to hinder entrance there, hence He impresses on them the need of thrusting aside everything which would interfere. If anything done by the hand is in the way, it should be abandoned. If their foot is leading them astray, the path should not be longer pursued. If their perception is imperiling the prospect of eonian life, it should be repudiated.

8-9 Compare Mk.9:43-48. See 5:29,30.

9 Gehenna, just below the city of Jerusalem, where the city offal is incinerated, will receive the bodies of criminals in the kingdom (Isa.66:24).

10 Such a ministry of messengers is never hinted at outside the favored nation. Israel, in its physical standing, is the only nation, as such, which may claim angelic ministration.

12 See Lu. 15:3-7.

12 This is a beautiful picture of Israel at the time, and of the work in which He was now engaged. Let us not think that the ninety-nine lay safely in the fold. He left them out on the mountains, subject to the storms and to the attacks of wild beasts. Even thus had He left the nation while He went after the sheep which had strayed. To find it, He too must go into the dark ravine of death, where He went on Golgotha. Thus it was that He found the sheep which had gone astray. The rest of the self-righteous nation, who thought they were safe without Him, give Him no joy. But His bewildered, sin-sick disciples, with all their waywardness, are the joy and rejoicing of His heart. When the nations appear in the judgment which takes place at the commencement of the kingdom, they are called kids, in contrast to Israel. The nations are never known as sheep. Nothing in this illustration corresponds with God's present work of grace. The evangel of today is for all. None are left on the mountains. The parable is perfect only in its proper place.

15 Compare Lu. 17:3. See Lev. 19:17.

15 Our instructions, in such a case, are found in the latter parts of Paul's epistles (Gal. 6:1). There is no need to go about his neck, and he should be sinking in the open ocean.

7 Woe to the world because of snares! For it is a necessity for snares to be coming. Moreover, woe to that man through whom the 8 snare is coming! Now if your hand or your foot is snaring you, strike it off and cast it from you. Is it ideal for you to be entering into life maimed or lame, or, having two hands or two feet, to be cast into eonian fire?

9 And if your eye is snaring you, wrench it out and cast it from you. Is it ideal for you to be entering into life one-eyed, or, having two eyes, to be cast into the Gehenna of fire?

10 See! You should not be despising one of these little ones, for I am saying to you that their messengers in the heavens are continually observing the face of My Father Who is in the heavens.

12 What are you supposing? If it should be occurring to any man, with a hundred sheep, that one among them should stray, will he not be leaving the ninety-nine sheep on the mountains? And, being gone, he is seeking the one which is 13 astray. And if he should come to find it, verily, I am saying to you, that he is joying over it, rather than over the ninety-nine which 14 have not strayed. Thus it is not the will in front of your Father Who is in the heavens that one of these little ones should be perishing.

15 Now if your brother should be sinning, go and expose him between you and him alone. If he should be hearing you, you gain 16 your brother. Yet if he should not to the writings intended for the Circumcision under circumstances entirely foreign to us. It can only lead to confusion. This course of procedure is clearly confined to one nation, for there is no point to the punishment should we be treated as "one of the nations", or a gentile, for such we are. Neither is it unpatriotic or criminal to be classed among tax collectors. The ecclesia here spoken of was composed of His kingdom disciples who had been called out of the nation of Israel. They were just as prejudiced against the gentiles as the other Jews. And they were even more antagonistic to tribute collectors, though Matthew himself had been one.

<sup>19</sup> The Lord continues in the same vein. If we should attempt to apply these privileges and promises now it would only bring reproach on His name and His word. Our actions are not ratified in heaven. Two or three may solemnly agree in their request, yet now, in this secret administration of God's grace, of which our Lord breathed not a single syllable, and for which He gave no instructions, we sink our own requests and agreements in a profound appreciation of the will of God and acquiescence in the ways of God.

<sup>33</sup> The parable of the ten thousand talent debtor is a most graphic illustration of the true meaning of pardon or forgiveness. Though so great a debt was remitted, the pardon was afterwards recalled. The permanence of pardon depends on the conduct of the one receiving it. It may be withdrawn. Our "pardon" of sins is in the kingdom of the Son of His love.

be hearing, take still one or two more along with you, that at the mouth of two or three witnesses every declaration may be made to stand. Now, if he should be disobeying them, speak to the ecclesia. Now, if he should be disobeying the ecclesia also, let him be to you even as one of the nations, and a tribute collector.

<sup>18</sup> Verily, I am saying to you, Whatever you should be binding on earth shall be binding in heaven. And whatever you should be loosing on earth shall be loose in heaven.

<sup>19</sup> Again, verily I am saying to you that if two among you should be agreeing on earth concerning any matter of which they should be requesting, it shall come to be to them from My Father Who is in the heavens. For where two or three are assembled into My name, there am I in their midst."

<sup>21</sup> Then Peter, approaching, said to Him, "Lord, how many times shall my brother be sinning against me and I shall be pardoning him?" <sup>22</sup> Till seven times?" Jesus is saying to him, "I am not saying to you 'Till seven times', but 'Till seventy times seven'.

<sup>25</sup> Now, at his not having wherewith to pay, the lord orders him and his wife and children and all, whatever he has, to be disposed of, and payment to be made. Then, prostrating, that slave worshiped him, saying, 'Lord, be patient with me, and I <sup>27</sup> will pay you all!' Now the lord of that slave, being compassionate, dismisses him, and remits his loan.

We are justified or vindicated or acquitted, in our judicial standing, for there is no charge against us. God, as Judge, has cleared us of guilt by the blood of Christ (Ro. 3:24). A judge cannot pardon. That is the prerogative of a governor or king. Only when a kingdom is in view can the pardon of sins be proclaimed.

Justification puts us beyond the sphere of condemnation. It is based entirely on the blood of Christ, is received by faith, apart from works, in order that it may accord with grace (Ro. 8:14<sup>5,16</sup>). Pardon leads to probation. Unbecoming conduct causes it to be withdrawn. God cancelled it in every case where it was not extended to others.

Those who were pardoned in the Pentecostal era are the ten thousand talent debtor. They had crucified Christ, the Lord of glory, and were under incalculable obligations to God. Nevertheless, out of the compassion of His heart He pardoned their sins, as Peter proclaimed at Pentecost (Ac. 2:38). The nations, who had none of the light and privilege which was Israel's special portion, did not owe nearly so much. They are the debtor who owed only one hundred denarii. But the pardoned believers in Israel had no thought of sharing the mercy they had received with the despised aliens. It took much persuasion before Peter would go to Cornelius, a convert who was already a proselyte to Judaism (Ac. 10). And when he did he found his brethren most antagonistic to the very thought (Ac. 11:3). But they are far more antagonistic to Paul's ministry among the nations. At his final appearance in Jerusalem these pardoned believers sought to stone him for the very mention of the name of the gentiles. Paul in his speech to them gets as far as the word "nations" (Ac. 22:21), and they refuse to listen further. Consequently their pardon is revoked. It is important to note that this does not apply to the unbelieving part of the nation, for they had not been pardoned. It was true only of those who had "believed". Pardon is probational because it is based on behaviour. Justification is irrevocable because it is based on the blood of Christ, which is ever precious and potent.

1:2 Compare Mk.10:1Jn.10:40-42.

<sup>29</sup> Then his fellow slave, prostrating, entreated him, saying, 'Be patient with me, and I will pay you all!'

<sup>30</sup> Yet he would not, but, coming away, cast him into jail, till he may pay what is owing.

<sup>31</sup> Then his fellow slaves, perceiving what is occurring, were tremendously sorry, and, coming, elucidate to their lord all that is occurring.

<sup>32</sup> Then his lord, calling him, is saying to him, 'Wicked slave! I remit to you that entire debt since

<sup>33</sup> you entreat me. Was it not binding on you also to be merciful to your fellow slave, as I also am mer-

<sup>34</sup> ciful to you?' And, being indignant, his lord gives him up to the tormentors till he may pay all that was owing him.

<sup>35</sup> Thus will My heavenly Father, also, be doing to you, should not each one be pardoning his brother from your hearts."

19 And it occurred, when Jesus finishes these sayings, He withdraws from Galilee and came into the boundaries of Judea, the other side of the Jordan. And vast throngs follow Him, and He cures them there.

<sup>3</sup> And the Pharisees came to Him, trying Him, and saying, "Is it allowed one to dismiss his wife on any charge?"

3-12 Compare Mk. 10:2-12.

4 Compare Gen. 1:27. See Mal. 2:15.

4 Man was originally bi-sexual. Adam had both male and female functions (Gen. 1:27). Before the woman was taken out of Adam, the sexes were actually one flesh. Marriage is the reverse of this. The woman was not formed from a "rib". The Hebrew word is nowhere else so rendered. It is used of the chambers in the temple building (1 Ki. 6:5), and denotes a vault or cell. Hence the woman is the complement of the man, and both together constitute the human unit. One is incomplete without the other. The physical union, moreover, is not a mere legal agreement, but actual oneness of flesh, in which each is merged in the other. It is not the work of man merely, but of God. It is contrary to nature and to nature's God to destroy this unity. Originally no separation was contemplated. It is a concession to the hardness of their hearts. Only the infraction and destruction of the physical unity by union with another is given by our Lord as a just cause of separation (9), for, in that case, the unit is already marred beyond repair, in the offending party. It is in fullest harmony with the present grace, in which physical unity has no standing, that even the cause allowed by our Lord is not a valid basis for separation. This corresponds with the overflowing grace in which we are submerged. The only cause now given is where the unbelieving husband or wife gets a divorce. Then the believer is free (1 Co. 7:15). The believer today is to act in perfect grace even to the acknowledgment of a wrongful separation.

5 See Gen. 2:24 1 Co. 6:15 Eph. 5:31.

9 Compare Lu. 16:18 1 Co. 7:10, 11.

12 As we have no standing in flesh, such matters are not within our sphere. They do not affect our place in Christ. Not so with the kingdom. We read of a male son who will shepherd the nations in that day (Un. 12:5), and of the hundred and forty-four thousand who are celibates (Un. 14:4) out of the twelve tribes (Un. 7:3). It is more than likely that these are those to whom the special saying of which He spoke has been given.

13-15 Compare Mk. 10:13-16 Lu. 18:15-17.

the beginning makes them male and female? And He said, 'On this account a man will be leaving father and mother and will be joined to his wife, and the two will be one flesh'. So that they are no longer two, but one flesh. Then that which God yokes together, let not man be separating."

7 They are saying to Him, "Then why does Moses direct to give a scroll of divorce and to dismiss her?"

8 Jesus is saying to them, that "Moses, in view of your hardheartedness, permits you to dismiss your wives, yet from the beginning it has not come to be thus.

9 Now I am saying to you that whoever should be dismissing his wife (not for prostitution) and should be marrying another, is committing adultery, and one who has been dismissed, marrying, is committing adultery." see infernal Ed.

10 The disciples are saying to Him, "If the case of a man with a woman is thus, it is not expedient to marry."

11 Yet He said to them, "Not all are containing this saying, but those to whom it has been given.

12 For there are eunuchs who are born thus out of their mother's womb, and there are eunuchs who are emasculated by men, and there are eunuchs who emasculate themselves because of the kingdom of the heavens. Who is able to contain it, let him contain it."

13 Then little children were brought to Him, that He may be placing His hands on them, and He should be praying. Yet the disciples rebuke them. Yet Jesus said to them, "Let the little children be coming to Me, and be forbidding them not, for of such is the king-

14 dom of God."

<sup>16</sup> When Israel entered the land, each one received an allotment sufficient for a living. This could not be sold outright. It could only be mortgaged till the next jubilee. With some exceptions, no one could acquire much land without encroaching on the allotments of others. That is why it is so difficult for a rich man to enter the kingdom. He must of necessity lose his riches and enter poor. That is the position of this rich youth. He had great acquisitions. This was land which God had allotted to others for their living, but which they had lost through poverty. His superfluous wealth meant distress for them. He claimed to keep the law, and no doubt he had never murdered or robbed any one, for he had no provocation to commit flagrant offenses. He even maintained that he loved his associates as himself! The Lord very simply suggests that he act in accordance with his profession. He did not ask him to give up his own means of livelihood. He could never expect him to relinquish his own allotment, for that was given by God. All He desired was that he should return to others their allotments. This is what God's law does at the jubilee. This is what will occur when the kingdom is established. The believing disciples in the Pentecostal era, recognizing the impossibility of carrying possessions and acquisitions, over and above their inherited allotments, into the kingdom, sold all such property and put the proceeds into the common fund (Ac.245). None of these acts have any bearing on present conduct, for our allotment is among the celestials. The Israelite might possibly carry his allotment into the kingdom, but we can take nothing of earth into the realms above. The shrewdest saint is the one who exchanges his terrestrial real estate for celestial currency before it all is taken from him. He knows that his acquisitions on earth will all be forfeited and decrease his balance in the celestial bank.

<sup>16</sup> And lo! one coming to Him said, "Teacher, what good shall I be doing that I should be having eonian life?"

<sup>17</sup> Yet He said to him, "Why are you asking Me concerning the good? One is good. Yet if you are wanting to be entering into life, keep the precepts."

<sup>18</sup> He is saying to Him, "Which?"

Now Jesus said, "You shall not be murdering; you shall not be committing adultery; you shall not be stealing; you shall not be testifying falsely; be honoring father and mother; and you shall be loving your associate as yourself."

<sup>20</sup> The youth is saying to Him, "All these I maintain. In what am I deficient still?"

<sup>21</sup> Jesus averred to him, "If you are wanting to be perfect, go, sell your possessions and be giving to the poor, and you will be having treasure in the heavens; and hither, be following Me."

<sup>22</sup> Now, hearing this word, the youth came away sorrowing, for he had many acquisitions.

<sup>23</sup> Now Jesus said to His disciples, "Verily, I am saying to you that the rich squeamishly will be entering into the kingdom of the heavens. Now again, I am saying to you that it is easier for a camel to be entering through the eye of a needle, than for the rich to be entering into the kingdom of God."

<sup>25</sup> Now, hearing it, the disciples were tremendously astonished, saying, "Can any one, consequently, be saved?"

<sup>26</sup> Now Jesus, looking at them, said to them, "With men this is impossible, yet with God all is possible."

<sup>23</sup> As the political constitution of the Jewish commonwealth rendered it practically impossible to acquire great possessions without oppressing others, riches were a hindrance and are largely lost in the readjustments of that day. No rich man, as such, will enter.

<sup>27</sup> On the other hand, those sons of that kingdom who lose all, even the enjoyment of their own allotment for the time, will find an overflowing recompense in kind, in the kingdom, not only for the brief space of their mortal life, but for the whole of the coming eon. The apostles, who suffered most, will gain most. The government of the nation will be in their hands. This explains in part why there must be just twelve apostles, one for each tribe. The other nations will come under the jurisdiction of the male son (Un.12<sup>5</sup>), a company out of Israel distinct from the twelve. It will be seen that Paul has no place in the government of that kingdom. He and those connected with his ministry, have a celestial destiny and will judge messengers (Eph.1<sup>3</sup> 1Co.6<sup>3</sup>).

<sup>1</sup> Many of the explanations of this parable ignore the fact that it illustrates the kingdom of the heavens, and is not at all intended to be applied to our service for God. If so applied, it can hardly encourage aught but idleness in the hope that a little labor at the end of life will bring an equal, if not greater, reward than a long career of suffering service. The vineyard is Israel. Those who agree for a denarius a day were under law and got what was their due. The others were recipients of various degrees of grace. The third hour workers were under promise. Though they made no contract, yet they received more than they had a right to expect, because they had mixed their work with a little confidence in the householder. In the sixth and ninth hour we have the same circumstances, but less deserts. The eleventh hour workers do not seem to have had even a promise on which to base their expectations. They trusted the householder completely, and had

Him, "Lo! we leave all and follow Thee. What, consequently, will it mean to us?"

<sup>28</sup> Now Jesus said to them, "Verily, I am saying to you that you, who follow Me, in the renascence, whenever the Son of Mankind should be sitting on His glorious throne, you, also, shall be seated on twelve thrones, judging the twelve tribes of Israel. And everyone who leaves a home, or brothers, or sisters, or father, or mother, or wife, or children, or fields, on account of My name, shall be getting a hundred fold, and be enjoying the allotment of conian life. Yet many of the first will be last, and the last first.

<sup>3</sup> And, coming out about the third hour, he perceived others standing <sup>4</sup> in the market idle. And to those he said, 'You also go away into my vineyard, and whatever may be just I shall be giving you.' Now <sup>5</sup> they came away. Now coming out again about the sixth and ninth hour, he does similarly.

<sup>6</sup> Now, coming out about the eleventh, he found others standing, and he is saying to them, 'Why have you stood here the whole day idle?' <sup>7</sup> They are saying to him that 'No one hires us.' He is saying to them, 'You also go away into the vineyard.'

<sup>8</sup> Now, as it is becoming evening, the lord of the vineyard is saying to very little of their own works to offer him.

At this point we must insert another class, who do not appear in the parable, for the very good reason that they do nothing at all and are not associated with the kingdom. So far as salvation goes, our works have no part in it. We are the twelfth hour "laborers", who have done nothing (Ro. 4<sup>5</sup>), yet receive much more than those who toil under law. This is because we do not depend on our own efforts whatever, but upon the favor of the great Householder. We were lower than the last in the parable, and have become higher than the first. Such is the nature of grace. May we never seek to make a bargain with God! Let us work without a contract or any assurances, but rest wholly on the innate graciousness which He delights to display when His creatures give Him occasion.

Even in the kingdom, it is not the amount of work which determines the reward, but the amount of faith which is blended with it (Heb. 4<sup>2</sup>). Since those who worked the full day are displeased with His goodness, and have a wicked eye, and are last, we may well believe that they will have no part in the kingdom. They are not of faith but of law works. They stumble on the stumbling stone (Ro. 9<sup>32,33</sup>):

Lo! I am placing in Zion a stumbling-stone and a snare rock,
And one believing on Him will not be disgraced.

8 See Lev. 19<sup>13</sup>.

17-19 Compare Mk. 10<sup>32-34</sup> Lu. 18<sup>31-34</sup>.

17 Though the Lord is blinding the eyes of the people by parables, He is seeking to open the understanding of His disciples and to engage their hearts with His great sacrifice. It seems strange that they, who had been accustomed to the thought of blood propitiation all their lives, could not entertain His teaching concerning the great Antitype of all their offerings. He did not perplex them with parables, but spoke to them plainly and persistently, and still they do not seem to have grasped His meaning until all He foretold had occurred, and He was roused from among the dead.

his manager, 'Call the workers and pay them the wages, beginning from the last, to the first.'

9 And those coming about the eleventh hour got a denarius apiece. And those coming first infer that they will be getting more. And they also got a denarius apiece. Now, getting it, they murmured against the householder, saying, 'These last do one hour, and you make them equal to us who bear the burden of the day and the scorching wind.' Yet, answering one of them, he said, 'Comrade, I am not injuring you. Did you not agree with me for a denarius? Pick up what is yours and go away. Now, should I be wanting to give to this last one even as to you, is it not allowed me to do what I want with that which is mine? Or is your eye wicked, seeing that I am good?' Thus the last shall be first and the first last."

17 Now Jesus, being about to ascend into Jerusalem, took aside the twelve disciples privately, and on the road He said to them: "Lo! We are ascending into Jerusalem and the Son of Mankind will be betrayed to the chief priests and scribes, and they will be condemning Him to death. And they will be betraying Him to the nations, to deride and scourge and crucify, and the third day He will be roused."

20 Then the mother of Zebedee's sons came to Him with her sons, worshiping and requesting something from Him. Now He said to 20 James and John were the sons of Zebedee (Mk.10<sup>35</sup>). Our Lord called them "sons of thunder" (Mk.3<sup>17</sup>), to indicate their tempestuous and violent disposition. The gentleness and love of John's writings are not the reflection of his character, but of the restraint of the inspiring spirit. They certainly were the most ambitious and selfish of all the apostles. The request of their mother shows how little fellowship they had with His downward path to the shame and humiliation of the cross. They could not comprehend that this was the only path to glory. Only those who drink His cup can share His honors. So He grants them the boon of a sip of His sorrow. James was the first to follow his Lord. Herod put him to the sword (Ac.12<sup>1</sup>). But John remained alive for many years.

24 It is evident from the resentment of the rest that they also coveted the highest place, even if they could not follow Him to the lowest. So He gives them a sorely needed lesson on the true path to greatness. It consists in service, servility, and suffering, the very opposite of the course they were accustomed to associate with human honors. His own example was their cue. Only those who suffer are qualified to reign. The greatness of His glories finds its source in His service as a slave, and the sorrows of His soul, of which He spoke to them in vain.

29 The restoration of two blind men was in itself a marvelous manifestation of His messiahship, but we must not miss the deeper current of thought which lies beneath. He was going out of Jericho, the city of the curse. Does this not speak of His resurrection, the exit from the curse of the cross? Two is the number of testimony. He sent the seventy-two in pairs. He was accompanied on His journey by His apostles, who were to testify concerning Him, but they were blind! They could not see the great central sight of all her, "What are you wanting?" She is saying to Him, "Say that these, my two sons, should be sitting, one at the right and one at Thy left, in Thy kingdom."

22 Now Jesus, answering, said, "You are not aware what you are requesting. Are you able to be drinking the cup which I am about to be drinking?" They are saying to Him, "We are able." He is saying to them, "Of My cup, indeed, you shall be drinking. Yet to be seated at My right and at the left is not Mine to give, but is for whom it has been made ready by My Father."

24 And when the ten hear, they represent about the two brothers. Now Jesus, calling them to Him, said, "You are aware that the chiefs of the nations are lording it over them, and the great men are coercing them. Not thus is it among you. But whoever should be wanting to become great among you, let him be your servant. And whoever may be wanting to be foremost among you, let him be your slave, even as the Son of Mankind came, not to be served, but to serve and to give His soul a ransom for many."

29 And at their going out from Jericho a vast throng follows Him.

30 And lo! two blind men, sitting beside the road, hearing that Jesus is passing by, cry, saying, "Lord, be merciful to us, Son of David!"

31 Yet the throng rebukes them, that they should be silent. Yet they cry the louder, saying, "Lord, be merciful to us, Son of David!"

32 And standing, Jesus summons them and said, "What are you wanting that I shall be doing to you?"

23 They are saying to Him, "Lord, testimony, the cross of Christ. Hence they could not follow Him in spirit, though they accompanied Him in flesh. When shall their blindness be removed? When He emerges from the curse. And so it was. Not till then did He open up their mind to understand the scriptures (Lu.24<sup>45</sup>).

1-9 Compare Mk.11:1-10 Lu.19:28-44.

1 The animals on which our Lord was supported on His presentation to Israel were representative of the ransomed. The firstlings had to be ransomed with a lamb (Ex.13<sup>13</sup>). Thus the whole scene was a typical picture of spiritual truth. The ransomed had been bound, but He has them loosed and brought to own His sovereignty. Only on this occasion does He exercise His prerogative as King and commandeer a mount for His royal entry. He will come some day on a white horse (Un.19<sup>11</sup>), in might and majesty, and enforce His claims with a gory sword. But not so now. Only the lowly beasts of burden bear Him. Only His own support Him. They offer Him the humble honors and lowly loyalty of their station. Their garments pave His path. Their leafy offerings carpet the royal roadway. Their acclamations proclaim Him King. But what a feeble few they are! The citizens of His capital do not even recognize their Sovereign! They ask "Who is this?" And the best answer they could get was "This is the prophet." They should have said "This is Christ, the King, the Son of God!"

This is the day which Daniel predicted. Sixty-nine heptads had passed by, and the scribes, at least, should have known that Prince Messiah would present Himself to the people on that day (Dan.9<sup>25</sup>). But they did not expect Him or prepare for Him, so He leaves them until sore affliction shall have taught the nation to say "Blessed is He Who is coming in the name of the Lord." This is the secret of Israel's present plight. Through discipline they are being prepared for their Messiah. Their sorest trials are yet to come.

4-5 Compare Jn. 12:12-19.

5 See Zech. 9<sup>9</sup>.

8 See Lev. 23<sup>40</sup>.

9 Compare Ps. 118<sup>25,26</sup>.

10 Compare Mk. 11<sup>11</sup>.

that our eyes may be opened!"

34 Now Jesus, being compassionate, touches their eyes, and immediately they recover sight and follow Him.

21 And when they draw near to Jerusalem, and came into Bethphage, on the Mount of Olives, then Jesus dispatches two disciples, saying to them, "Go into the village opposite you, and immediately you will be finding an ass hitched and a colt with her. Loosing them, lead them to Me. And if any one should be saying anything to you, you shall be declaring that 'The Lord has need of them.' Now straightway he will be dispatching them." Now the whole of this has occurred that that may be fulfilled which is declared through the prophet, saying,

5 "Say to the daughter of Zion,
Lo! your King is coming to you,
Meek, and mounted on an ass,
And on a colt, the foal of a donkey."

6 Now the disciples, going and doing according as Jesus arranges with them, led the ass and the colt, and place garments on them, and He sits upon them.

8 Now the most of the throng strew their own garments in the road, yet others chopped boughs from the trees and strewed them in the road. Now the throngs which are preceding Him and which are following cried, saying, "Hosanna to the Son of David! Blessed is He Who is coming in the name of the Lord! Hosanna among the highest!"

10 And at His entering into Jerusalem, the entire city is aquake, 11 saying, "Who is this?" Yet the throngs said, "This is the prophet

The two cleansings of the sanctuary are typical of the two appearances of Christ. The first (Jn. 2<sup>13-22</sup>), was priestly in its nature, and is connected with His death and resurrection (Jn. 2<sup>19</sup>). It is found only in John's account. The second follows His presentation as Messiah.

The sullen, yet silent submission of these robbers is mute evidence of the moral majesty and might with which He did this deed. Violent passion on His part would have been met by physical force, and caused His undoing. It was the righteous wrath of the Shekinah glory overaweing these idolaters which made them flee from the sublime Presence.

<sup>14</sup> Having cleansed the sacred precincts, He puts them to their proper use by restoring blind eyes and healing lame legs, so that they can behold the holiness of God and walk in His ways.

Jesus, from Nazareth, of Galilee."

<sup>12</sup> And Jesus entered into the sanctuary and cast out all who are selling and buying in the sanctuary, and He overturns the tables of the brokers, and the seats of those selling doves. And He is saying to them, "It is written, 'My house shall be called a house of prayer,' yet you are making it a cave of robbers."

<sup>14</sup> And the blind and lame came to Him in the sanctuary, and He cures them.

<sup>15</sup> Now the chief priests and the scribes, perceiving the marvels which He does, and the boys crying in the sanctuary and saying, "Hosanna to the Son of David!",

<sup>16</sup> resent it, and say to Him, "Are you hearing what these are saying?" Yet Jesus is saying to them, "Yes. Did you never read that 'Out of the mouths of minors and sucklings, Thou dost attune praise?'"

<sup>17</sup> And, leaving them, He came outside the city into Bethany, and camped out there.

<sup>18</sup> Now in the morning, leading them back into the city, He hungers. And, perceiving one fig tree on the road, He came to it and found nothing on it except leaves only. And He is saying to it, "No longer, by any means, may fruit come of you for the con." And instantly the fig tree is withered.

<sup>21</sup> Now answering, Jesus said to them, "Verily, I am saying to you, If you should be having faith and not be doubting, not only will you be doing this to the fig tree, but should you be saying to this mounvine speaks of that which cheers the heart of God and man. Then will be joy. The olive speaks of light. The fig brings before us its goodness and sweetness. It is national in its scope, and is in contrast with Rome, represented by the wild fig tree (Lu. 17<sup>6</sup>).

Israel's doom is sealed. It is like a fig tree with leaves but no fruit. The fig tree forms some of its fruit before its leaves, unless it is barren. This fig tree had evidently anticipated the season, and put forth its leaves very early. So were Israel's national pretensions. The Lord's first coming was premature. They made a beautiful show of national righteousness, but there was no genuine reality to their claims. The doom of the fig tree is the doom of the nation. It was withered. But today its branch is tender and it is trying to put forth leaves. In the kingdom it will bear an abundance of luscious fruit.

21 Faith is not confidence in the fulfillment of our prayers, but of God's word. He had promised that the mountain of gentile supremacy should be removed from the midst of Israel. Had they believed Him, it should have occurred. Faith can move no mountains that God has not promised to move. It is His pleasure to accomplish far greater feats in fellowship with the faith of His saints.

23 The chief priests and elders imagined that they were the supreme spiritual authority in Israel. They should have been. When they challenged Him to present His credentials, He exposes theirs by asking a simple question. Had their authority been from above they would have believed John the baptist. That it was from beneath is clear from their fawning at the feet of the populace. The high priest should have been the eldest of the line of Aaron, tracing his priestly prerogatives back to the law. Instead he was appointed by political parties and Roman procurators.

26 See 14<sup>5</sup>Mk. 6<sup>20</sup>.

28 This parable was for the priests and elders. They made the greatest protestation of obeying the will of God, but did not do it. The sinners who made no tain also, 'Be picked up and cast into the sea!' it will occur. And all things, whatever you should be requesting in prayer, believing, you will be getting."

23 And at His coming into the sanctuary, the chief priests and the elders of the people came to Him, while teaching, saying, "By what authority are you doing these things, and who gives you this authority?"

24 Now, answering, Jesus said to them, "I also shall be asking you one word, which should you be telling Me, I also shall be declaring to you by what authority I am doing these things. The baptism of John —whence was it? Of heaven or of men?"

Now they reasoned with themselves, saying, "Should we be saying, 'Of heaven', He will be declaring to us, 'Wherefore, then, do you not believe him?' Yet if we should be saying, 'Of men', we are fearing the throng, for all are having John as a prophet." And, answering Jesus, they said "We are not aware."

He also averred to them, "Neither am I telling you by what authority I am doing these things.

28 Now what are you supposing? A man had two children. And coming to the first he said 'Child, go today, work in My vineyard.' Yet answering, he said 'I do not want to.' Yet subsequently, regretting it, he went forth. Now, coming to the second, he said similarly. Now answering, he said, 'I, Lord!' and he went not forth. Which of the two does the father's will?" They are saying, "The first." Jesus is saying to them, "Verily, I am saying to you that the tribute collectors and the prostitutes are preceding you into the kingdom of God. For profession, whom they despised, actually obeyed God's precept. By His parable He makes the leaders pronounce their own condemnation.

<sup>32</sup> The Lord now proceeds to show them His authority and to expose their abuse of the privileges entrusted to them. They were mere tenants of God's vineyard; He was the Owner's Son. Their predecessors had claimed such authority as they were arrogating to themselves. That is why the prophets were persecuted. These men and almost all of the rulers in Israel, whether kings or priests, chiefs or scribes, sought to use the nation for their own profit and not for the glory of God. Had they been faithful, no prophets would have been sent to them. They would have delivered to the Owner of the vineyard the joy and cheer which were His by right. Because they did not do this, because the priesthood was apostate and the rulers rebellious, He raised up men of God to remind them of their obligations to Himself. Israel boasted in Elijah and all the prophets, which were the badge of their shame. Moreover, their treatment of the prophets confirmed their apostate condition, for none of them escaped persecution at their hands.

But by far the most memorable part of the parable is the prediction of the rejection of His authority and His subsequent murder at their hands. That it was possible for them to proceed in their program of putting Him to death after He had given them this preview of their appalling crime proves the utter depravity of the priesthood, the hopeless immorality of religion when its light has become darkness, and its life turned to death.

<sup>41</sup> As before, they pronounce their own doom. In the kingdom their rule will be replaced by the sway of the twelve apostles under the Priest-King Whose authority they had dared to question. Then the Lord will enjoy the fruit of His vineyard.

John came to you on the road of righteousness, and you do not believe him; yet the tribute collectors and the prostitutes believe him. Yet you, perceiving it, did not even regret it subsequently, to believe him.

<sup>33</sup> Hear another parable: A man who was a householder plants a vineyard, and places a stone dike about it, and excavates a trough in it, and builds a tower, and leased <sup>34</sup> it to farmers, and travels. Now when the fruit season draws near, he dispatches his slaves to the farmers to be getting his fruit. <sup>35</sup> And the farmers, taking his slaves, indeed, lash one, yet kill one, yet pelt <sup>36</sup> one with stones. Again he dispatches other slaves, more than the first. And they do similarly to them.

<sup>41</sup> They are saying to Him, "Evil men! Evilly will he be destroying them, and will be leasing the vineyard to other farmers who will be rendering the fruits to him in their seasons."

<sup>42</sup> Not long after this these same chief priests and those with them question Peter's authority. He confirms the word here spoken by our Lord. "If we today are being examined concerning the infirm man's benefaction, by what he has been saved, let it be known to you all and to the entire people of Israel, that in the name of Jesus Christ, the Nazarene, Whom you crucify, Whom God rouses from among the dead, by this One, this man stands before you sound. This is the Stone which is being scorned by you builders, which is becoming the Head of the corner" (Ac.4<sup>9-11</sup>). Yet even this double witness fails to move their hard hearts to repentance.

<sup>45</sup> So long as the chief priests did not fear God the mob did not fear them and had small respect for their authority. Who fears not God fears man. The priests were in an impossible position. Between Pilate and the populace their vaunted authority practically vanished. All they could do was to appeal to Pilate and persuade the people.

<sup>1</sup> This parable should never be used to illustrate the evangel of today. In the first place, none of the nations are called to the wedding in this economy. It will take place in the kingdom, to which we are not invited. Neither is any one invited in the evangel today and subsequently rejected because of unworthiness. That is true of Israel as a nation, to whom our Lord is speaking. The parable refers to the various proclamations of the kingdom. The first was made by the apostles while He was still with them. It had been rejected when our Lord was speaking. The second was made in the Pentecostal era, after all preparations had been made by the sacrifice of Christ. That, too, is rejected, and calls for the destruction of Jerusalem. The last proclamation is still future, when the Lord will deal in judgment and compel them to come in. The apparel at such weddings was provided by the host. God will provide His people with a righteousness in that day. No one can remain, in his own righteousness.

you never read in the scriptures,

"The stone which the builders reject,

This came to be for the head of the corner:

This came to be from the Lord, And it is marvelous in our eyes?"

<sup>43</sup> Therefore I am saying to you that the kingdom of God will be taken away from you and will be given to a nation producing its fruits.

<sup>44</sup> And he who is falling on this stone shall be shattered, yet on whom-ever it should be falling, it will be scattering him like chaff."

<sup>45</sup> And the chief priests and the Pharisees, hearing His parables, know that He is saying this concerning them. And, seeking to hold Him, they were afraid of the throngs, since they had Him for a prophet.

22 And answering, Jesus said to them again in parables, saying,

<sup>4</sup> come. Again he dispatches other slaves, saying, 'Say to those invited, "Lo! my luncheon have I made ready, my bulls and grain-fed animals have been sacrificed, and all is ready. Hither, for the wedding <sup>5</sup> festivities!"' Yet, caring not, they came away, one, indeed, to his own field, yet one to his merchandise.

 those AND THE city OF-

It must be noted that this is quite a distinct figure from that of the bride. Those who accept the invitation here are the guests. The bride does not appear in the picture and should be left entirely out of view in the interpretation. The same saints who are elsewhere seen under the figure of the bride are here seen under the figure of guests, because the truth here is judgment rather than love, and could not be developed in the closer relationship. The main point is that those invited, or called, are not necessarily chosen. In the proclamation of the kingdom in our Lord's day and in the Pentecostal era many were invited, but few chosen. Some, in that day, came at first, and were later rejected because they fell away. The last invitation by no means goes out to the gentiles. It goes out in the same city. The parable of the virgins (25:1) takes up the relation of the other nations to Israel in the kingdom.

14 See 20:16.

15-22 Compare Mk.12:13-17 Lu.20:20-26.

15 Fulsome flattery has proven the undoing of many men, and seldom fails to throw them off their guard. The man of God should beware of it, for it is far more dangerous than calumny. But it did not deceive our Lord. Was He true? Was He unafraid to teach the way of God in truth? Was He unmoved by men? Were their wiles transparent to His gaze? If this was so, and it was, they did not believe it. But He soon demonstrated that their flattery was plain fact. He saw through their trap, and not only answered their question but convicted them of one of the crimes which they hoped to fasten on Him.

He has shown them how little authority they have. They know their helplessness. They must get Him into conflict with the people or with the government. Then they might manage His destruction. They formulate a leading question. If He says "Yes", the Pharisees will inform the people and His popularity will be forfeited. If He says "No", the Herodians will accuse Him to the government and He will be tried for sedition. So He avoids the catch in their question. So long as they accepted the Roman currency they were obliged to acknowledge Rome's ascendancy and pay taxes.

8 Then he is saying to his slaves, 'The wedding, indeed, is ready, yet they who have been invited were 9 not worthy. Be going, then, to the exits of the roads and as many as ever you may be finding call to 10 the wedding festivities.' And, coming out into the roads, those slaves assembled all whom they found, wicked as well as good, and the wedding is filled with those lying back at table.

11 Now the king, coming in to gaze at those lying back at table, perceived a man there who has not put 12 on wedding apparel. And he is saying to him, 'Comrade, how came you in here having no wedding apparel?' Yet he was still.
13 Then the king said to the servants, 'Bind his feet and hands and cast him out into outer darkness.' There shall be lamentation and gnashing
14 of teeth. For many are called, yet few are chosen."

15 Then the Pharisees, being gone, held a consultation, so that they should be trapping Him by word.
16 And they are dispatching to Him their disciples, with the Herodians, saying, "Teacher, we are aware that you are true, and are teaching the way of God in truth, and you are not caring about any one, for you are not 17 looking at the face of men. Tell us, then, what you are supposing, is it allowed to give poll tax to Cæsar, or not?"

18 Now Jesus, knowing their wickedness, said, "Why are you trying 19 Me, hypocrites? Exhibit to Me the poll tax currency." Now they 20 bring Him a denarius [15.7¢, 7d 3¢]. And He is saying to them,

The use of Roman currency denoted their subjection to Rome. So long as they were subject they should pay. The use of temple currency showed their subjection to God. To Him, also, they should give His due.

23 The Pharisees and Herodians having been silenced, the Sadducees tried their best argument on Him. Like many another theological deduction, it was based on two errors, ignorance of the scriptures and of the power of God. Yet they sought to find a foundation for it in the law. The principle of error which seemed to give weight to their reasoning is still very widespread. It is the lack of proper apporportionment of truth. What Moses said for their guidance in this life is transported into the life to come. Moses did not legislate for the resurrection, especially not in regard to matters which do not reappear in the life that is to be.

Let us by all means avoid their methods. Even if we think we can involve some passages of scripture in doubt and ridicule by a course of reasoning or questioning, it proves nothing except our lack of discernment and our ability to confuse things which are clear when left in their own place.

Moses made provision that a man's name should not be blotted out of Israel by death (Deut. 25<sup>5-6</sup>). What possible place can this have in the resurrection, where there is no death? Why provide for a contingency which cannot occur? Furthermore, what ground is there for the idea that the marriage state is resumed in resurrection? Nevertheless, a powerful sect in Israel was built on such flimsy bases!

32 Our Lord is proving the necessity of resurrection. Abraham and Isaac and Jacob are dead. God is the God of the dead, if they will not be raised. But He is not the God of the dead. The dead praise not the Lord (Ps. 115<sup>17</sup>). They know not anything (Ecc. 9<sup>5</sup>). In death there is no remembrance of Him (Ps. 6<sup>5</sup>). Apart from resurrection His saints are lost, our faith is vain, we are still in our sins (1 Co. 15<sup>16-19</sup>). The dead have no God. He is the God of the living. There must be a resurrection—which was to be proved (Ex. 3<sup>6</sup>).

"Whose is this image and inscription?"

21 They are saying, "Cæsar's".

Then He is saying to them, "Be paying, then, what is Cæsar's to Cæsar, and what is God's to God."

22 And hearing it, they marvel, and leaving Him, they come away.

23 In that day there came to Him Sadducees, who are saying there is no resurrection, and they inquire

24 of Him, saying, "Teacher, Moses said, 'If someone should be dying having no children, his brother shall be marrying his wife and shall be raising up seed for his

25 brother.' Now there were seven brothers with us, and the first, marrying, deceases. And having no seed, he leaves his wife to his

26 brother. Likewise the second also,

27 and the third, till the seven. Now subsequently to all, the woman

28 died. In the resurrection, then, of which of the seven will she be the wife? For they all have had her."

29 Now answering, Jesus said to them, "You are deceived, not be-

30 ing acquainted with the scriptures, neither the power of God. For in the resurrection they are neither marrying nor giving in marriage, but are as messengers of God in 31 heaven. Now concerning the resurrection of the dead, did you not read that which is declared to you

32 by God, saying, 'I am the God of Abraham, and the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob'? He is not the God of the dead, but of the liv-33 ing." And the throngs, hearing it, were astonished at His teaching.

34 Now the Pharisees, hearing that He stills the Sadducees, assem-

<sup>34</sup> From their subsequent course (Ac. 23<sup>8</sup>), it is evident that the Sadducees were not convinced. Their difficulty was deeper. It was in the heart. Though they could not answer, they could refuse to believe.

<sup>35</sup> The Pharisees had failed in fixing a political crime on Him. Now they try to involve Him in a theological heresy, which, to the Jews, was even worse. That He claimed to be the Messiah was bad, but not so blasphemous as calling Himself the Son of God. The expounder of the law hoped to get Him to convict Himself by quoting the first of the ten commandments, especially, "You shall have no other gods above My face" (Ex.20<sup>3</sup>). Or, at least the great rubric, "Hear, O Israel: Jehovah, our God, is one Jehovah!" (Deut.6<sup>4</sup>). He does not ask for the second greatest. The Lord significantly omits this and gives him the following precept: "And thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thine heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy might" (Deut.6<sup>5</sup>). They were prepared to do this in their own way by hating and killing Him. But He forestalls their deduction by quoting another passage which utterly frustrated their argument.

<sup>42</sup> He now confutes the fanatical element in their monotheism by showing them that they did not even know Whose Son Christ is! Had they known, they would not have accused Him of blasphemy when He claimed to be the Son of God. David, whose son the Messiah was to be, knew better than they, for he called Him his Adon, or Lord. If Christ was merely David's son, he assuredly would not call Him by such a title. Who could there be who was so far above David, yet seated at Jehovah's right hand? They had no room for Him in their theology. But He was in their scriptures. The Pharisees, also, are muzzled. They did not even know that the God of their scriptures was not the invisible Deity, but His Image (Col.1<sup>15</sup>), not the One Whose voice is inaudible to human ears, but His Word (Jn.1<sup>1</sup>), or Expression. Their Messiah was the Elohim Whom they feared, the Jehovah Whom they revered, the Adonai Whom they claimed to serve.

<sup>36</sup> Him, inquires, "Teacher, which is the great precept in the law?"

<sup>37</sup> Now He averred to him, "You shall be loving the Lord your God with your whole heart, and with your whole soul, and with your whole comprehension." This is the <sup>38</sup> great and foremost precept. Yet the second is like it: 'You shall be loving your associate as yourself.'
<sup>40</sup> On these two precepts is hanging the whole law and the prophets."

They are saying to Him, "David's."

<sup>23</sup> Then Jesus speaks to the throngs and to His disciples, saying, "The scribes and the Pharisees are seated <sup>3</sup> on Moses' seat. All, then, whatever they may be saying to you, do, and be keeping it. Yet be not doing in accord with their acts, for they are saying and not doing.

<sup>4</sup> Now they are binding loads, heavy and hard to bear, and are placing them on men's shoulders, yet they are not willing to stir them with

<sup>1</sup> Though the Sadducees were probably included in the term scribes, the Pharisees are especially singled out for this final denunciation. For a hundred and fifty years they had enjoyed the highest respect of the populace because of their zeal and rigid observance of the law of Moses. The Sadducees were comparatively few and lacking in influence. It is highly significant that our Lord seldom spoke harshly of the common people. He did not blame the sheep, but the shepherds.

In so far as the Pharisees followed the teaching of Moses our Lord did not censure them, but rather because they did not burden themselves with the observance of the law, but shifted it to the shoulders of others. Their whole religion consisted in self-adulation. It is highly important that we should recognize the fact that our Lord's woes were not directed against the vice and immorality and crime in the lower levels of the social scale. He did not denounce the corruption in politics, and the oppression and rapacity of rulers. The worst offenders, in His anointed eyes, were the acknowledged religious leaders, those who made the strongest protestations of serving God. It is ever thus. The most heinous criminals are not those who make no pretense of serving Him, but those who make a great profession.

<sup>13</sup> Our Lord commenced His ministry with a nine-fold benediction on the poor, the mourners, the meek, those who are hungering and thirsting for righteousness, the merciful, the clean-hearted, the peacemakers, those who are persecuted on account of righteousness, and those reproached falsely on His account (5<sup>3-11</sup>). Where is there the slightest feature of the Pharisees all their works to be gazed at by men, for they are broadening their amulets and magnifying the tassels. Now they are fond of the first reclining place at dinners, and the front seats in the synagogues, and salutations in the markets, and to be called by men 'Rabbi'.

<sup>8</sup> Now you may not be called 'Rabbi,' for One is your Teacher, yet <sup>9</sup> you all are brethren. And you should be calling no one your father on earth, for One is your <sup>10</sup> Father, the heavenly. Neither may you be called preceptors, seeing that One is your preceptor, Christ.

<sup>11</sup> Now he who is greater among <sup>12</sup> you shall be your servant. Yet any one who shall be exalting himself shall be humbled, and any one who shall be humbling himself shall be exalted.

<sup>13</sup> Now woe to you, scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites! seeing that you are locking the kingdom of the <sup>14</sup> heavens in front of men! For you are not entering, neither are you letting those entering to be entering.

<sup>15</sup> Woe to you, scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites! seeing that you are going about sea and dry land to make one proselyte, and whenever he should be becoming one, you are making him more than double a son of Gehenna than you are.

<sup>16</sup> Woe to you, blind guides! who are saying, 'Whoever should be swearing by the temple, it is nothing; yet whoever should be swearing by the gold of the temple is <sup>17</sup> owing.' Stupid and blind! for which is greater, the gold, or the temple which hallows the gold?

<sup>18</sup> And, 'Whoever should be swearing by the altar, it is nothing; yet whoever should be swearing by the ob-in these beatitudes? They were as unlike all this as they could be. Hence He closes His ministry with seven maledictions on the hypocrites who hinder others from entering the kingdom, who proselyte for their own party, who elevate that which is hallowed above that which hallows, who distort the proportions of God's precepts, who cleanse the outside but leave the inside full of filth, who outwardly appear just, but are lawless within, who feign themselves more righteous than their progenitors, yet excel them in iniquity.

<sup>13</sup> The kingdom of the heavens was locked at that time, not to be opened until Peter uses the keys entrusted to him, on the day of Pentecost. Then once more the Pharisees and scribes lock the kingdom by refusing the testimony of the apostles. It is locked now. It will not be opened until Christ comes again in glory.

<sup>16</sup> The Pharisees had practically annulled the scriptures by false interpretations and especially by human additions. Their commentaries were full of distinctions which destroyed the spiritual force of the law. Externals alone were important. The glitter of the gold on the temple blinded their eyes to the preciousness of the place hallowed by the presence of God. The offering on the altar was, to them, much more sacred than the altar that hallowed it. All the vital values created by contact with God had no appeal to their blind hearts.

<sup>23</sup> It is probable that these were grown in small quantities for home use and so hardly of as much value as the work involved in tithing them, yet it is well to be punctilious in what pertains to God. But to do this and evade the great moral obligations of the law came near the limits of hypocrisy.

<sup>19</sup> lation upon it, is owing.' Stupid and blind! for which is greater, the oblation, or the altar which is hallowing the oblation? He, then, who swears by the altar is swearing by it and by all which is upon it. And he who swears by the temple is swearing by it and by Him Who dwells in it. And he who swears by heaven is swearing by the throne of God and by Him Who is sitting upon it.

<sup>23</sup> Woe to you, scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites! seeing that you are taking tithes of mint and dill and cumin, and leave the weightier matters of the law, judgment and mercy and faith. Now these you must do; and not leave those.

<sup>25</sup> Woe to you, scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites! seeing that you are cleansing the outside of the cup and the plate, yet inside they are brimming with rapacity and incontinence. Blind Pharisee! Cleanse first the inside of the cup and the plate, that their outside also may be becoming clean!

<sup>27</sup> Woe to you, scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites! seeing that you are resembling whitewashed sepulchers, which outside, indeed, are appearing beautiful, yet inside, they are crammed with the bones of the dead and all uncleanness. Thus you, too, outwardly, indeed, are appearing to men to be just, yet inwardly you are distended with hypocrisy and lawlessness.

29-33 Compare Lu. 11:47-51.

31 See Ac. 7:51 Th. 2:15, 16.

32 Instead of refraining from the evil deeds of their fathers and thus reducing the measure of the nation's guilt, these religious Pharisees were about to go to the very limits of iniquity in the murder of Messiah. All evil is measured by God. When it attains dimensions beyond which it no longer contributes to His purpose, it is restrained.

34 See Ac. 5:40, 7:58, 59:2 Co. 11:24, 25.

34 The record in Acts fulfills this promise. James was killed by the sword (Ac. 12:2). Peter was probably crucified (Jn. 21:18).

35 See Gen. 48.

35 Judgment will be based on light and privilege. He who commits a crime which he has deliberately condemned is far more guilty than one who has little knowledge of its moral measure. These men who condemned and crucified Christ were not only killing Him but all who came before Him, for they make it abundantly evident that nothing would have restrained them from the actual act except their absence.

35 There was a Zechariah slain in the court of the house of the Lord in the days of King Joash (2 Chr. 24:20-22). But he was the son of Jehoiada, while we are expressly told by our Lord that He has reference to another Zechariah, whose father was named Berechiah. He was one of the minor prophets (Zech. 1<sup>1</sup>), and must have been murdered hundreds of years after the days of Joash. The Pharisees did not actually have a hand in His murder, nor, indeed, did they drive the nails that fastened Him to the cross, but they had the spirit of Cain and all who truly served God were their legitimate prey. The horrors which came upon that generation, up to the destruction of Jerusalem, have hardly had their parallel in the annals of history.

37-39 Compare Lu. 13:34, 35.

37 This affecting farewell closes His mission to the holy city. If they will not have Him, He must leave them exposed to the powers of darkness. With Him the Presence leaves the temple tenantless. Its empty grandeur continues for forty years and is then laid level with the dust.

are building the sepulchers of the prophets and adorning the tombs of the just, and you are saying, 'If we were in the days of our fathers, we would not be participants with them in the blood of the prophets.'

31 So that you are testifying to yourselves that you are the sons of those who murder the prophets. And you fill the measure of your fathers.

33 Serpents! Progeny of vipers! How may you be fleeing from the 34 judgment of Gehenna? Therefore, lo! I am dispatching to you prophets and wise men and scribes. Of them, some you will be killing and crucifying, and of them, some you will be scourging in your synagogues and persecuting from city to city, so that on you should be coming all the just blood shed on the earth, from the blood of just Abel to the blood of Zacharias, son of Barachias, whom you murder between the temple and the altar.

36 Verily, I am saying to you, All these things will be arriving on this generation.

37 Jerusalem! Jerusalem! killing the prophets and pelting with stones those who have been dispatched to her!—How many times I want to be assembling your children in the manner a hen is assembling her brood under her wings, and you will not! Lo! your house is left to you desolate, for I am saying to you, you may by no means be acquainted with Me henceforth, till you should be saying, 'Blessed is He Who is coming in the name of the Lord!'

24 And, coming out, Jesus went from the sanctuary. And His disciples approached to exhibit to

1-14 Compare Mk.13:1-13 Lu.21:5-19.

1 The sanctuary was doomed, for it was no longer even a nominal shrine after He had left its courts. It was almost unbelievable that such buildings, with such enormous stones, so highly venerated, should fall so suddenly into utter ruin. Its destruction was averted for forty years by His prayer upon the cross, and the subsequent Pentecostal proclamation of the kingdom, much of which took place within its walls. At the siege of Jerusalem, not only were the fanatical Jewish factions within the city anxious to save it from destruction, but the Roman general Titus was very desirous of preserving it without damage. But the divine decree had gone forth. Nothing could save it from its doom. And so it was leveled with the ground and no stone remained upon another.

3 This prophetic outline of events to come before the kingdom can be realized entirely ignores the present secret administration of God's grace, so that we must overlook all that occurs during Israel's unbelief (Ro.11) and consider the future time of the end as following immediately after the close of Acts. It is only as we keep the future before us and the present out of sight, that we can view these scenes aright.

4 Many false messiahs have come and will come, but the greatest of all will be the white horse rider who comes forth under the first seal (Un. 6<sup>2</sup>).

6-7 See Un. 63-8.

6 The wars correspond with the second seal (Un. 63<sup>4</sup>), when a red horse comes forth and takes peace from the earth.

7 The famine is the same one that occurs under the third seal, when wheat and barley will be worth about eight times their normal value.

9-14 See 10<sup>17</sup> 23 Jn.162<sup>3</sup> Un.69-11.

9 The great affliction occurs under the fifth seal (Un. 69<sup>5</sup>). It begins at that great chronological crisis, the middle of the last seven years of Daniel's seventy heptads, when the covenant with the false christ will be broken and the daily offering stopped. Many will be martyred. It is their blood which calls down vengeance on the world and leads to the awful judgments on the nations and Babylon.

Him the buildings of the sanctuary.

2 Yet answering, He said to them, "Are you not observing all these? Verily, I am saying to you, Under no circumstances may a stone here be left on a stone, which shall not be demolished."

3 Now at His sitting on the mount of Olives, the disciples came to Him privately, saying, "Tell us, when will these things be? And what is the sign of Thy presence and of the conclusion of the eon?"

4 And answering, Jesus said to them, "Beware that no one should be deceiving you. For many shall be coming on My name, saying, 'I am the Christ!' and shall be deceiving many. Yet you shall be about to be hearing battles, and tidings of battles. See that you are not alarmed, for it must be occurring, but not as yet is the consummation. For nation shall be roused against nation, and kingdom against kingdom, and there shall be famines and quakes in places. Yet all these are the beginning of travails.

9 Then shall they be giving you up to affliction, and they shall be killing you, and you shall be hated by all of the nations because of My name. And then many shall be snared, and they shall be betraying one another and hating one another. And many false prophets shall be roused, and shall be deceiving many. And, because of the multiplication of lawlessness, the love of many shall be cooling. Yet he who endures to the consummation, he shall be saved. And this evangel of the kingdom shall be proclaimed in the whole inhabited earth for a testimony to all the nations, and then the consummation shall be arriving.

15 The Septuagint of Daniel may be closely rendered as follows: "And he shall establish a covenant with many one heptad, and in the middle of the heptad My sacrifice and libation shall be suspended, and on the temple is the abomination of desolations, and till the conclusion of the era a conclusion shall be given to the desolation" (Dan. 9<sup>27</sup>). It seems evident that, coincident with the breaking of the covenant, the image spoken of in the Unveiling (13<sup>14</sup>) will be placed in the holy place as a signal for the greatest anti-Semitic outbreak of all time. Then it is that the dragon is cast out of heaven and persecutes the woman, who flees into the wilderness to be there for the remainder of the seventieth heptad (Un. 12<sup>1-10</sup>).

Through the terrible afflictions the faithful of that day will be gathered in the mountainous wilderness southeast of Judea near the scene of their wanderings of old, when they came out of Egypt. There they will be miraculously preserved for the twelve hundred and sixty days until the coming of Christ.

23 Then will the false prophet give spirit to the image of the wild beast and cause it to speak, and cause as many as should not be worshipping the image to be killed, and all must have the emblem of the wild beast on their right hand or their forehead before they will be able to buy or sell (Un. 13<sup>15-17</sup>).

24 See Jn. 10<sup>28-29</sup> Th. 2<sup>8-12</sup> Pt. 2<sup>9</sup> Un. 13.

26 The coming of Christ to the earth for Israel is not a secret, invisible event. That is the sign of the false prophets. His presence will be with the utmost publicity and swiftness. Like a lightning flash will His glory appear, so that no one will be unaware of its startling brightness, or fail to apprehend His presence. We can only enjoy His presence before this by being caught up to Him in the air the moment that He is present there.

28 See Lu. 17<sup>37</sup> Job 39<sup>30</sup>.

15 Whenever, then, you may be perceiving the abomination of desolation, which is declared through Daniel, the prophet, standing in the holy place (let him who is reading apprehend), then let those in Judea be fleeing into the mountains. 17 Let not him who is on the housetop be descending to pick up aught out of his house. And let not him who is in the field turn back behind to pick up his cloak.

19 Now woe to those who are pregnant and suckling in those days! 20 Now be praying that your flight may not be occurring in winter, nor yet on a sabbath, for then shall be great affliction, such as has not occurred from the beginning of the world till now, neither under any circumstances may be occurring. 22 And except those days were discounted, no flesh at all would be saved, yet because of those who are chosen, those days shall be discounted.

23 Then, if any one should be saying to you, 'Lo! Here is Christ!' or 'Here!' you should not be believing it. For false christs and false prophets shall be roused, and they shall be giving great signs and miracles, so as to deceive, if possible, even the chosen. Lo! I have declared it to you before.

26 If, then, they should be saying to you, 'Lo! He is in the wilderness!' you may not be coming out, 'lo! in the closets!' you should not be believing it. For even as the lightning is coming out of the east and is appearing as far as the west, thus shall be the presence of the Son of Mankind. Wherever the corpse may be, there will the vultures be gathered.

29 Now immediately after the affliction of those days the sun shall be

29 Israel goes through the great affliction, and watches for the Son of Mankind, Who will stand on the mount of Olives, from which He ascended. We have a prior expectation (Eph.1<sup>12</sup>) and wait (not watch) for the Son of God out of the heavens (1 Th.1<sup>10</sup>), not to come down to earth, but to meet us in the air (1 Th.4<sup>17</sup>), according to a secret, not revealed during the ministry of our Lord or His twelve apostles, which tells of the change of our bodies to suit a celestial destiny (1 Co.15<sup>52-54</sup>), when these bodies of humiliation will be transfigured to conform them to His glorious body (Phil.3<sup>21</sup>). In Israel, after His descent to earth, He sends His messengers to gather His saints about Him. Both events will take place with incredible speed. The lightning flash of judgment describes His advent to earth. The upward movement of the eyelid measures the time taken for our transfiguring and gathering together to Him in the air.

32 We do not watch for signs, for, except the apostasy, which is already at full tide, none are given. We look for Him. Israel is given indications of His approach. Among His last acts was the withering of the fig tree, indicating the national decadence of the Jews. Among the first signs to be looked for is their national rejuvenescence. The Zionist movement, the exodus to Palestine, the Jewish university on the top of mount Scopus, the cooperating organizations of Jews in many countries, are the leaves which sprout from the tender stem of Jewish national aspirations. Summer is near for that nation. The Lord's return to earth cannot be long delayed. But, as He must come for us some time before His descent to the mount of Olives, His coming for the members of His body is far more imminent than His later descent to earth for His Bride, the redeemed of Israel.

34 His coming to Israel should have taken place in that generation.

darkened and the moon shall not be giving her beam, and the stars shall be falling from heaven, and the powers of the heavens shall be shaken. And then the sign of the Son of Mankind shall be appearing in heaven, and then all the tribes of the land shall be grieving, and they shall be viewing the Son of Mankind coming on the clouds of heaven with power and much glory. 31 And He shall be dispatching His messengers with a loud sounding trumpet, and they shall be assembling His chosen ones from among the four winds, from the extremities of the heavens to their extremities.

32 Now be learning a parable from the fig tree. Whenever its bough should already be becoming tender, and the leaves sprouting out, you know that warm weather is near.

33 Thus you, also, whenever you may be perceiving all these things, you know that He is near—at the doors.

34 Verily, I am saying to you that this generation may by no means be passing by till all these things should be occurring. Heaven and earth shall be passing by, yet My words may by no means be passing by. Now concerning that day and hour no one is aware, neither the messengers of the heavens nor the Son; except the Father only.

37 For even as the days of Noah, thus shall be the presence of the Son of Mankind. For as in those days before the deluge, they were masticating and drinking and marrying and giving in marriage until the day Noah entered into the ark, 39 and they know not till the deluge came and takes them all away, <sup>36</sup> The probable time of the Lord's advent to Israel can only be known by the signs, but the exact time will never be known till it arrives. A day or an hour would have sufficed for many to enter the ark in Noah's day. But no date was given.

<sup>43</sup> For them there is not the joyous anticipation of being ever with the Lord (1 Th. 4:17), but a certain dread that, should they not be watching, instead of His coming as a Saviour, He may come as a thief. For us He does not come as a thief (1 Th. 5:4). Our conduct does not count in His coming for us. Whether we watch or are drowsy we shall live together with Him. The difference between the two events is pictured for us in Peter's recall of Dorcas from death (Ac. 9:36-41), and Paul's restoration of Eutychus to life (Ac. 20:9-10). Dorcas was deserving, but Eutychus (like many of His saints today) had nothing to commend him, but that he went to sleep while Paul preached. So it will be when we hear His shout. We may be drowsy or dead, yet grace demands that we live together with Him. We will be dealt with on the ground of His death, not of our deserts.

<sup>45</sup> The conduct of God's slaves is most vitally affected by their attitude toward the return of Christ. If it is an imminent expectation, their course will correspond. They will act as those who are about to give account. If it is far off, the restraining power of His expected presence will be wanting.

<sup>50</sup> We, also, must appear in front of the dais of Christ that each should be required for that which he puts into practise through the body (2 Co. 5:10), but, though fire will be testing the kind of work we have done, we shall all be saved (1 Co. 3:15). In Israel righteousness rather than grace will reign, so that they are subject to condemnation.

thus shall be the presence of the <sup>40</sup> Son of Mankind. Then two shall be in the field; one is being taken

<sup>43</sup> Now that you know, that if the householder had been aware what watch the thief is coming, he would watch, and would not leave his <sup>44</sup> house to be tunneled into. Therefore you also become ready, seeing that in an hour which you are not supposing the Son of Mankind is coming.

<sup>45</sup> Who, consequently, is the faithful and prudent slave whom the lord places over his household, to give them nurture in season?
<sup>47</sup> Verily, I am saying to you that he will be placing him over all his possessions.

<sup>48</sup> Now if that evil slave should be saying in his heart, 'My lord is <sup>49</sup> delaying,' and should be beginning to beat his fellow slaves, yet may be eating and drinking with the
<sup>50</sup> drunken, the lord of that slave will be arriving on a day for which he is not hoping, and in an hour which <sup>51</sup> he knows not, and shall be cutting him asunder, and shall be appointing his portion with the hypocrites. There shall be lamentation and gnashing of teeth.

<sup>1</sup> The parable of the ten virgins applies only to the kingdom at the time specified. When the Lord comes in glory to enter into covenant relationship with Israel at the commencement of the day of Jehovah, then the kingdom of the heavens will correspond to a marriage feast. The Lambkin is the Bridegroom (Un.19'), redeemed Israel is the Bride. Who are the virgins?

The wedding feast figures the millennium. The nations will be blessed through and with Israel according to the Abrahamic covenant. Hence they are represented as virgins, invited to share the blessings provided for the holy nation by the Lambkin. As in the parable of the sheep and the kids at the close of this chapter, the place of the nations in that day will depend on their treatment of Israel. Those that are sufficiently illuminated to await Messiah's coming will participate with the Bride in the feast that follows. They are invited to the wedding banquet of the Lambkin (Un.19; Ps.45:14). The action of this parable is limited to the period immediately preceding the coming of the Messianic kingdom. To "apply" it to individuals or classes at any other crisis is confusing and corrupts the scriptures.

The blessing which will come to the nations as brides-maids of Israel is in striking contrast to the present era of grace. They will wait until Israel is blessed and share her blessings with her. Now Israel is forsaken and divorced. She has no marriage feast to which we could be invited. She has no blessings to share with us. Our supernal bliss comes while she is thrust aside, and depends on her apostasy. Our felicity far transcends not only that of the virgins who attend the Bride, but that of the Bride herself. We have a nearer and dearer place than that which is figured by the marriage bond. We are members of Christ's body. Men may or may not love their wives, but no one ever hated his own flesh. So, in the very nature of things, we are dear to Christ as His own body. We are not called upon to watch for signs of His coming, but to wait for God's Son from heaven. We are blessed with every spiritual blessing among the celestials (Ep.1<sup>3</sup>).

<sup>3</sup> For the stupid, getting their torches,

<sup>7</sup> him!' Then those virgins were all roused, and they adorn their own
<sup>8</sup> torches. Now the stupid said to the prudent, 'Give us of your oil, seeing that our torches are going out.'
<sup>9</sup> Yet the prudent answered, saying, 'Not by any means, lest at some time there should not be sufficient for us and you. Go rather to those who are selling and buy for <sup>10</sup> yourselves.' Now at their coming away to buy, the bridegroom came, and those who are ready entered with him into the wedding festivities, and the door is locked.

<sup>11</sup> Now subsequently the rest of the virgins also are coming, saying,
<sup>12</sup> 'Lord! Lord! Open to us!' Yet answering, he said, 'Verily, I am saying to you, I am not acquainted with you!'

<sup>13</sup> Be watching, then, seeing that you are not aware of the day, neither the hour. For it is even as a man traveling. He calls his own slaves and gives over to them his <sup>14</sup> possessions. And to one, indeed, he gives five talents, yet to one, two, yet to one, one, to each according to his own ability, and immediately travels.

<sup>15</sup> A talent was a large sum of money, variously estimated at from one to two thousand dollars of our present currency. There is doubtless an intended reference to the well-known money-making propensity which the Jew has developed since this parable was spoken. Especially at the time of the end, many of the apostate nation will be immensely wealthy, while the faithful remnant will be poor in this world's coin. So the Lord confides to them large sums of spiritual currency, to be used in His service. He to whom God has given one precious truth may double it by communicating it to another.

There is nothing in this parable which can be applied to Christ's dealings with us in this present secret administration of God's grace. It fits perfectly when connected with the kingdom of which He was speaking. He was about to leave them. The nations were not called until long after He had left. There would be no point to His departure if we should seek to apply it now. Nor is it agreeable to the present grace to require service in this manner. And it is most thoroughly out of harmony in the case of the slave who received a single talent. No one who is now called into God's grace could think or act as he did, and no one who has a deposit from God will be condemned for his failure to be faithful. There was a Judas among the twelve apostles but there was no such character among those apostles who were associated with Paul in his later ministries. An administration which is an admixture of faith and works will also have a sprinkling of unbelievers. But an economy of purest grace can lead no one to such an outcome as the slave who hid his talent and hated his lord. For us there is no condemnation (Ro. 8<sup>1</sup>). We are not only saved by grace but for grace (Eph. 2<sup>s</sup>). No one who has ever known Him in this day of salvation will be thrust into outer darkness with lamentation and gnashing of teeth.

As our salvation is not based on work, the awards for service at the dais of Christ do not affect our destiny (2 Co. 5<sup>10</sup>). Our deeds will be tested by fire, to determine their quality. Yet even if our work burns up, we shall be saved, even though it be through fire (1 Co. 3<sup>13-15</sup>).

larly also the one with two; he also <sup>18</sup> gains another two. Yet the one getting one talent, coming away, excavates in the earth and hides his lord's silver.

<sup>19</sup> Now, after much time, the lord of those slaves is coming and settling <sup>20</sup> accounts with them. And the one getting five talents, approaching, brings five other talents, saying, 'Lord, you give up to me five talents. Lo! I gain five other talents <sup>21</sup> besides them.' Now his lord averred to him, 'Well done! good and faithful slave! You were faithful over a few: I will place you over many. Be entering into the joy of your lord!'

<sup>22</sup> Now, the one also getting two talents, approaching, said, 'Lord, you give up to me two talents. Lo! I gain two other talents besides <sup>23</sup> them.' His lord averred to him, 'Well done! good and faithful slave! You were faithful over a few: I will place you over many. Be entering into the joy of your lord!'

<sup>24</sup> Now the one also having gotten the one talent, approaching, said, 'Lord, I knew you, that you are a hard man, reaping where you do not sow, and gathering whence you <sup>25</sup> do not scatter. And, being afraid, coming away, I hide your talent in the earth. Lo! you have what is yours!'

<sup>26</sup> Now, answering, his lord said to him, 'Wicked and slothful slave! Were you aware that I am reaping where I do not sow, and gathering <sup>27</sup> whence I do not scatter? You were obligated, then, to be depositing my silver with the bankers, and on coming, I should recover what is mine <sup>28</sup> with interest. Then take the talent away from him and give it to him

<sup>31</sup> The many judgments in the scriptures should be carefully distinguished as to time and place and participants and the attending circumstances. There is no "general judgment", for the saints are judged in the cross of Christ. The individual judgment of the unbeliever for his sins does not take place in this life, but in resurrection. All mankind except those who are Christ's will be raised from the dead to stand before the great white throne, which is not set up until after the coming kingdom eon has run its course (Un. 20<sup>11</sup>). The judgment here presented differs in time, in place, in character and in purpose. It occurs at the commencement of the kingdom, at His coming in glory, while the great white throne session does not take place until after the thousand years. This judgment is on the earth. The earth will flee before the great white throne (Un. 20<sup>11</sup>). Living nations will appear before the Son of Mankind, but only the dead come before the later tribunal. The nations are judged as such, not for their sins, but according to their treatment of Israel during the time of their affliction.

When God is judging the earth no greater act of righteousness can be done than to feed and shelter His oppressed people. Each faithful Israelite stands in the place of Christ toward the nations. Those who help them do so at the greatest risk, for they may be called to account by the powers that oppose them. This tribunal is not concerned with their ultimate destiny, but with their place in the kingdom. The kingdom will be comprised largely of gentiles, subordinate to Israel politically and religiously, but nevertheless the recipients of much blessing. All that they receive comes to them through Israel, while the present grace which we enjoy comes to us because Israel as a channel is choked, yet the superabundance of the grace overflows all barriers. We have every reason to treat the Jews with the utmost grace, but our conduct toward them is not a factor in our destiny. We do not enter the kingdom, because we have a higher and more honorable allotment among the celestials.

<sup>29</sup> who has the ten talents. For to everyone who has shall be given and he shall have a superfluity, yet from one who has not, that also which he has shall be taken away <sup>30</sup> from him. And cast out the useless slave into outer darkness. There shall be lamentation and gnashing of teeth.'

<sup>31</sup> Now, whenever the Son of Mankind may be coming in His glory, and all the holy messengers with Him, then He shall be seated on <sup>32</sup> the throne of His glory, and in front of Him shall be assembled all nations, and He shall be severing them from one another even as a shepherd is severing the sheep from <sup>33</sup> the kids. And He will be standing the sheep, indeed, at His right, yet the kids at the left.

<sup>34</sup> Then shall the King be declaring to them at His right, 'Hither, blessed of My Father! Enjoy the allotment of the kingdom made ready for you from the disruption <sup>35</sup> of the world. For I hunger and you give Me to eat, I thirst and you give Me drink, I was a stranger and <sup>36</sup> and you took Me in, naked and you clothed Me, I am infirm and you visit Me, I was in jail and you come to Me.'

<sup>37</sup> Then the just will be answering Him, saying, 'Lord, when did we perceive Thee hungering and nourish Thee, or thirsty and we give <sup>38</sup> Thee drink? Now when did we perceive Thee a stranger and took Thee in, or naked and we clothed <sup>39</sup> Thee? Now when did we perceive Thee infirm, or in jail, and we came to Thee?'

<sup>40</sup> And, answering, the King shall be declaring to them, "Verily, I am saying to you, inasmuch as you

<sup>41</sup> The Slanderer and his messengers will be the chief instigators of the fearful anti-Semitic outbreak of the end time. It will be the greatest of all pogroms, and men will be urged on by malignant spirit powers to do all that is possible to exterminate the people who refuse to worship Satan's christ, or to bow down to his image. Being the Slanderer's dupes, they will share his doom. They have their portion in that lake of fire into which the Slanderer is cast more than a millennium later (Un. 20<sup>10</sup>).

do it to one of these, the least of My brethren, you do it to Me.'

<sup>42</sup> his messengers. For I hunger and you give Me not to eat, I thirst and <sup>43</sup> you give Me no drink, I was a stranger and you took Me not in, naked and you clothed Me not, infirm and in jail and you visit Me not.'

<sup>44</sup> Then shall they also be answering, saying, 'Lord, when did we perceive you hungering or thirsting, or a stranger, or naked, or infirm, or in jail, and we serve you not?'

<sup>45</sup> Then shall He be answering them, saying, 'Verily, I am saying to you, inasmuch as you do it not to one of the least of these, neither <sup>46</sup> do you it to Me.' And these shall be coming away into eonian chastening, yet the just into eonian life."

26 And it occurred, when Jesus finishes all these sayings, He said to <sup>2</sup> His disciples, "You are aware that after two days the Passover is occurring, and the Son of Mankind is being betrayed to be crucified."

<sup>3</sup> Then the chief priests and the elders of the people were assembled in the courtyard of the chief priest, <sup>4</sup> who is termed Caiaphas, and they plan that they should be getting hold of Jesus by guile and may be <sup>5</sup> killing Him. Yet they said, "Not in the festival, lest a tumult should be occurring among the people."

<sup>6</sup> Now at Jesus' coming to be in Bethany, in the house of Simon the leper, a woman came to Him having an alabaster vase of attar, very

 A ALABASTER OF-ATTAR HAVING
 to-Him WOMAN HAVING ALABASTER

<sup>10</sup> Now Jesus, knowing it, said to them, "Why are you affording the woman weariness? for she works <sup>11</sup> at an ideal work for Me. For you have the poor with yourselves always, yet Me you have not always. For she, spraying this attar on My body, does it with a view to <sup>12</sup> My burial. Verily, I am saying to you, Wherever this evangel may be proclaimed in the whole world, that also which she does shall be spoken for a memorial of her."

<sup>14</sup> Then one of the twelve, who is termed Judas Iscariot, being gone <sup>15</sup> to the chief priests, said, "What are you willing to give me? And I will be betraying Him to you." Now they weigh for him thirty <sup>16</sup> pieces of silver. And thenceforth he sought an opportunity that he may be betraying Him.

<sup>17</sup> Now on the first of unleavened bread, the disciples came to Jesus, saying to Him, "Where art Thou wanting we should be making ready for Thee to be eating the passover?"

<sup>18</sup> Now He said, "Go into the city to so and so, and say to him, 'The Teacher is saying, My appointed time is near. With you am I making the passover with My disciples'." And the disciples do as <sup>19</sup> Jesus arranges with them, and they make ready the passover.

<sup>26</sup> In Greek, the present tense of the substantive often indicates a figure of speech. If the Lord were speaking literally of His actual body and blood, He would have omitted the word is. It is a metaphor, in which one thing is not merely stated to be like another, but to be another. It is freely used in interpreting parables, as, "the field is the world" (Mt. 13<sup>38</sup>). Usually it is not used in stating matters of fact. It may be correctly rendered; means, or represents, in practically every place where it occurs. This distinction cannot be carried over into English, for we always express the verb.

ing, He said, "Verily, I am saying to you that one of you shall be betraying Me." And, sorrowing vehemently, each one of them begins to be saying to Him, "Is it I, Lord?"

<sup>23</sup> Now answering, He said, "He who dips his hand with Me in the dish, he will be betraying Me. The Son of Mankind is indeed going away, according as it is written concerning Him, yet woe to that man through whom the Son of Mankind is being betrayed! Ideal were it for Him if that man were not born!"

<sup>25</sup> Now answering, Judas, who is betraying Him, said, "Is it I, Rabbi?"

Jesus is saying to him, "You say it."

<sup>26</sup> Now at their eating, Jesus, taking the bread, and blessing, breaks it, and giving to the disciples, said, "Take, eat. This is My body." And taking the cup and giving thanks, He gives it to them, saying, "All drink of it, for this is My blood of the new covenant, being poured out for many for the pardon of sins. Now I am saying to you that I may under no circumstances be drinking henceforth of this, the product of the grapevine, till that day whenever I should be drinking it new with you in the kingdom of My Father." And, singing a hymn, they came out to the mount of Olives.

<sup>31</sup> Then Jesus is saying to them, "You all shall be snared in Me in this night, for it is written,

'I shall be smiting the shepherd, And the sheep of the flock shall be scattered.'

<sup>32</sup> Now after I am roused I shall be preceding you into Galilee."

<sup>33</sup> Yet answering, Peter said to

33 The Lord had said distinctly that all of them should be snared. Peter's fall began by refusing to believe that the Lord's all meant all. Of course, it could not include him! By exalting himself above the rest he invited the fate of all who walk in pride, who must be abased. The same spirit is rampant today. We hear the loudest protestations of loyalty and devotion to Christ, which, if carried out, would transform the whole world in one generation. There is no doubt that it is honest. Peter fully intended to stand by his Lord to the very death. But he did not know himself or the impotence of the human will. It is the creature and the sport of circumstance. No man can use the emphatic I, as Peter did, and not fall.

36 How different it was with our Lord! He was about to brave the most awful battle with the hosts of darkness and their human minions, yet not a boast proceeds from His lips. He shrank from it. He implored to be spared. It was not His will. Hitherto His will and the Father's had been in perfect accord. He acquiesced in it even though it meant failure and defeat. He delighted in it though it brought Him opposition and hate. Yet with all His unparalleled loyalty and devotion, the terrors of the curse, the abandonment by God, were beyond the concurrence of His will. But there is a deeper and more powerful force than this. The heart can subdue the will. Christ had not come to do His own will. So He prayed the prayer that befits us far more than Him, "Not as I will, but as Thou!" No man can use the emphatic "I", without the negative, and carry out his vaunting. It is the symbol of defeat, "not I" the banner of victory, though it should lead through the deepest depths to God.

Gethsemane should prepare our hearts for the deep unfoldings of the cross. It transforms it from a mere manifestation of human and satanic hate into a deliberate and foreordained act of God. Our Lord did not beg the chief priests for mercy, or Pilate for clemency. He recognized the fact that God alone could deliver Him from their power, and, since this was not His will,

Him, "And if all shall be snared in Thee, I shall never be snared!"

34 Jesus averred to him, "Verily, I am saying to you that in this night, ere a cock crow, you will be renouncing Me thrice."

35 Peter is saying to Him, "And if ever I must die with Thee, I will under no circumstances be renouncing Thee!" Likewise said all the disciples also.

36 Then Jesus is coming with them into the freehold termed Gethsemane, and He is saying to His disciples, "Be seated, till I come away and may be praying there." And taking along Peter and the two sons of Zebedee, He begins to be sorrowful and depressed. Then He is saying to them, "My soul is sorrow-stricken to death. Remain here and be watching with Me."

37 And, coming forward a little, He falls on His face, praying and saying, "My Father, if it is possible, let this cup be passing by from Me. Moreover, not as I will, but as Thou!"

40 And He is coming to the disciples and is finding them drowsing. And He is saying to Peter, "Is it thus, you have not strength to watch one hour with Me? Be watching and praying, lest you may be entering into trial. The spirit, indeed, is eager: yet the flesh is infirm."

42 Again, coming away a second [time], He prays, saying, "My Father, if it is not possible for this to pass by from Me except I should be drinking it, let Thy will be done!"

43 And coming again, He found them drowsing, for their eyes were heavy.

He makes not the slightest effort to appease them. Without in the least minimizing the guilt of man or the sin of Satan, we may look beneath all their hateful deeds and see God using them as His puppets in the preparation of the great Sacrifice which had been promised from the beginning. Though apparently and consciously doing their utmost to oppose the will of God, they were carrying it into effect with the same precision as their Victim Who had renounced His own will in favor of His Father's.

The cross of Christ is the touchstone of humanity. Not only is the cowardice of Pilate and the perfidy of the priests exposed to the gaze of all, but His own little band all find their true value in its vicinity. What should we not expect from His own apostles who have been with Him and have seen His mighty power and have felt the attraction of His love? Judas, who was entrusted with the funds, turns traitor. Boastful Peter forswears his Lord. And all the rest, who but a short time since were loud in their protestations of loyalty, desert Him at the first approach of danger.

51 It is most difficult to receive evil from the hand of God. The disciples evidently could not understand how this could be of God. Their highest thought was to escape evil through divine protection. But our Lord assures them that, however easy it might be to enlist the legions of heaven, it is not His present plan to escape the clutches of His enemies. Evil must needs be, and God controls it so as to accomplish His beneficent purpose.

53 See 2KI.6<sup>17</sup>.

44 And, leaving them again, coming away, He prays a third time, saying again the same word. Then He is coming to the disciples and is saying to them, 'Drowse on furthermore and rest, for lo! the hour has drawn near, and the Son of Man-kind is being betrayed into the hands of sinners—

46 Rouse! We may be going. Lo! My betrayer has drawn near!"

47 And at His still talking, lo! Judas, one of the twelve, came, and with him a vast throng with swords and cudgels, from the chief priests and elders of the people. Now His betrayer gives them a sign, saying, "Whomever I should be kissing, He it is. Hold Him."

49 And immediately, approaching Jesus, he said, "Rejoice, Rabbi!"

50 And he kisses Him fondly. Yet Jesus said to him, "Comrade, for what are you present?" Then, approaching, they laid hands on Jesus and hold Him.

51 And lo! one of those with Jesus, stretching out his hand, pulls his sword, and, smiting the slave of the chief priest, amputates the lobe of his ear. Then Jesus is saying to him, "Turn away your sword into its place, for all who are taking the sword shall be destroyed by the sword. Or are you supposing that I am not able to entreat My Father, and at present He will station by My side more than twelve legions of messengers? How, then, may the scriptures be fulfilled, seeing that it must occur thus?"

55 In that hour Jesus said to the throngs, "Do you come out with swords and cudgels to apprehend Me as to a robber? Daily was

55-56 Compare Mk.14:48-52 Lu.22:52,53.

55 In the daylight they were afraid. They wanted the mantle of darkness to hide their evil deeds. Nothing could have been simpler than to have the temple guards arrest Him in the sanctuary. Why all this show of force to take an unarmed Man Who never did anything but good? It is often difficult to account for the foolishness of human wisdom and action. Yet here we have the key. The scriptures of the prophets must be fulfilled. And they are given for the revelation of God. Every human action will one day be accounted for and justified by putting it in its right relation to God.

62 Can there be any greater contrast than comes before us in this scene before the chief priest? Christ, the Chief Priest after the new order of Melchisedec; sworn in by God Himself, holy, harmless, undefiled, and higher than the heavens, is about to offer Himself for the sins of the world. Yet He stood alone, forsaken even by His own, charged with blasphemy and liable to death. Caiaphas was appointed for political reasons by the Roman power. He was crafty, deceitful, blasphemous, unfit to officiate at God's altar. Yet such a man dares to condemn the Son of God! Quite shamelessly he seeks for testimony against Him, and accepts what everyone knew was false. No one had heard Him say that He would destroy the temple of God. He said that they would do it. And now their very accusation is itself the crime with which they charge Him! They tried to fasten on Him the destruction of the empty house on mount Moriah. They actually accomplish the destruction of the true Temple, His body.

57-60 Compare Mk.14:53-64 Lu.22:54-71 Jn. 18:12-24.

61 See Jn. 2:18-22.

62 As the Sacrifice, the Lord was a sign to the priests, for He acted as the animal they were accustomed to lead to the altar (Isa. 53<sup>7</sup>):

He is hard pressed, and He is humiliated.

Yet He is not opening His mouth: He is fetched as a flockling to the slaughter,

And as a ewe before its shearers is mute,

So He is not opening His mouth.

63 See Lev.5<sup>1</sup>.

64 See 24:30 Ps.110:1 Dan.7:13 Ac.7:55, 56 Un.17.

56 Me. Now the whole of this has occurred that the scriptures of the prophets may be fulfilled." Then all of His disciples, deserting Him, fled.

57 Now those who hold Jesus led Him away to Caiaphas, the chief priest, where the scribes and the 58 elders were gathered. Now Peter followed Him from afar, to the courtyard of the chief priest, and entering within, he sat with the deputies to see the consummation.

59 Now the chief priests and the elders and the whole Sanhedrin sought false witness against Jesus, so that they should be putting Him 60 to death, and they found none—of many false witnesses coming forward they found none. Yet subsequently two false witnesses, coming 61 forward, said, "He averred, 'I am able to demolish the temple of God and to build it during three days'."

62 And the chief priest, rising, said to Him, "Are you answering nothing? What are these testifying against you?" Yet Jesus was silent. And answering, the chief priest said to Him, "I am exorcising you by the living God that you may be telling us if you are the Christ, the Son of God."

64 Jesus is saying to him, "You say it! Moreover, I am saying to you, Henceforth you shall be viewing the Son of Mankind sitting at the right hand of power and coming on the clouds of heaven."

65 Then the chief priest tears his garments, saying that "He blas-

<sup>64</sup> When the chief priest invoked the presence of God, Christ was not slow in testifying to the truth. So that all the actual testimony against Him was the great truth to which the priests themselves and all their service in the sanctuary and the temple testified. But we must not forget the divine side. The scriptures must be fulfilled. God's purpose must be served. The business of the priesthood is to slay the sacrifice. All the victims hitherto had been vain repetitions that could only cover sin. They could not take it away. Shall not the priests, therefore, slay the great Antitype, the Lamb Whose blood will yet change all sin into righteousness, all enmity into reconciliation? In the wisdom of God their hatred and malice are simply a knife to slay the true Sacrifice. Can we not see that, in a very real sense, they were carrying out the will of God? And if this is true of the sin of sins, is it not quite possible that God will justify all sins in the same way?

<sup>69</sup> Poor Peter! Where is his bravado now? He was quite ready to defend his Lord against the world—but not against a serving maid. His very vehemence betrays him. Now was his opportunity of witnessing for his Lord, and of standing by Him in His trial. He should have shouted "Yes!" and moved forward to take his place beside his Master. But no. He refuses to acknowledge Him. He slinks back to the portal to escape further questioning. But another maid awaits him there, so he adds an oath to his denial, and by his Galilean brogue betrays himself again. And then his exasperation is so great that he actually damns and swears that He is not at all acquainted with the Lord. The cock crows. Its simple sound is the voice of God to Peter. He becomes acquainted with himself, and is sadly disillusioned. Instead of the brave, trusty, faithful disciple and apostle he thought he was, he finds himself to be a cringing, craven coward. He laments bitterly.

phemes! What further need have we of witnesses? Lo! now you hear his blasphemy! What are you supposing?"

Now they, answering, said, "He <sup>67</sup> is liable to death." Then they spit into His face and buffet <sup>68</sup> Him. Now they slap Him, saying, "Prophecy to us, Christ! Who is it that hits you?"

<sup>69</sup> Now Peter sat outside in the courtyard and one maid came to him, saying, "You also were with <sup>70</sup> Jesus of Galilee." Yet he disowns Him in front of them all, saying, "I am not aware what you are saying!"

<sup>71</sup> Now, at his coming out into the portal, another maid perceived him, and she is saying to them there, "He also was with Jesus the <sup>72</sup> Nazarene." And again he disowns with an oath, that "I am not acquainted with the man!"

<sup>73</sup> Now, after a little, those standing there, approaching, said to Peter, "Truly you also are of them, for your speech also is making you evident." Then he begins to be damning and swearing that "I am not acquainted with the man!"

And immediately a cock crows. <sup>75</sup> And Peter is reminded of the declaration of Jesus in which He declared to him that "Ere a cock crows you will be renouncing Me thrice." And, coming outside, he laments bitterly.

<sup>27</sup> Now, as it is becoming morning, all the chief priests and the elders of the people held a consultation against Jesus, so as to put Him to death. And binding Him, they led Him away and gave Him up to Pontius Pilate, the governor.

<sup>3</sup> Then Judas, His betrayer, perceiving that He was condemned, regretting it, turns back the thirty

3-8 The chief priests, by buying the freehold, which had previously been acquired by Judas, but not paid for (Ac. 1:16-19), join the betrayer of our Lord in an unlawful act which manifests their lack of faith in God. True believers, who were looking for the kingdom and the consequent redistribution of the land, would not waste money on a freehold which would be worthless in that day. Instead, they sold their freeholds (Ac. 4:34), and gave the money to the apostles. The account in Acts views this transaction from the standpoint of Judas, and tells why he was rejected from being an apostle. He made arrangements not only to betray His Lord (Who, he supposed, would use His power to circumvent His enemies), but he arranged to use the "wages of unrighteousness" for buying a freehold, contrary to the law. The chief priests and elders, instead of repudiating this illegal act, confirm it by hypocritically refusing to put the money in the temple offerings, and by using it to complete the purchase which Judas had begun. The death of Judas is likewise passed over briefly in Matthew, but elaborated in Acts. He hanged himself, but the rope broke and he fell so hard that his bowels spilled out. Thus worked the woe pronounced upon him by the Lord.

5-8 See Ac. 1:18, 19.

9 See Zech. 11:12, 13.

11 Compare Mk. 15:2-5 Lu. 23:2-12 Jn. 18:33-38. See 1 Ti. 6:13.

11 The priests should have been models of justice and truth, for they had the form of truth in the law. The governor had no divine light to guide his steps. Yet Pilate is far more just than the priests. He knew very well that they would not demand the death of a Jew who conspired against his government. They would aid him. His suspicions of their motive were confirmed by the Lord's silence. No ordinary man would stand and hear such charges against him without a reply. At no time did the chief priests deceive Pilate. He thought the easiest way out would be to put it to the people, who, he supposed, would release the prophet. He was so sure of their verdict that he was caught in his own device.

15-18 Compare Mk. 15:9-10 Lu. 23:13-17 Jn. 18:38, 39.

pieces of silver to the chief priests and the elders, saying, "I sinned in betraying innocent blood."

Yet they said, "What is it to us? You should be seeing to that!"

5 And tossing the pieces of silver into the temple, he retires, and, coming away, strangles himself.

6 Now the chief priests, taking the pieces of silver, said, "It is not allowed to cast them into the corban, since it is the price of blood."

7 Now, holding a consultation, they buy with them the Field of the Potter for a sepulcher for strangers.

8 Wherefore that field was called "The Field of Blood" till this day.

9 Then was fulfilled that which is declared through the prophet Jeremiah, saying,

"And they got the thirty pieces of silver,

The price of the Valued One,
Whom they value from the sons of Israel,

10 And they give them for the Field of the Potter, According as the Lord arranges with me."

11 Now Jesus was standing in front of the governor. And the governor inquires of Him, saying, "Are you the king of the Jews?"

Now Jesus averred to him "You are saying it!" And at His accusation by the chief priests and the elders, He answers nothing.

13 Then Pilate is saying to Him, "Are you not hearing how much they are testifying against you?"

14 And He answered him not one declaration, so that the governor is marveling very much.

15 Now at the festival the governor had been accustomed to release one prisoner—whom they wanted—to the throng. Now they then had a notorious prisoner termed Bar-Abbas.

17 Then, having assembled them; Pilate said to them, "Whom are <sup>17</sup> Bar-Abbas is another contrast with Christ. A murderer, a leader in sedition, he was just what the chief priests represented the Lord to be. His name is very striking. In Aramaic it means "son of the father". Christ was the Son of the Father, God. Bar-Abbas was the son of another father, the Slanderer.

<sup>19</sup> Of all the actors in this tragedy, only one really pleads the cause of Christ, and this one is the most unlikely that could be. It seems almost incredible, when His own nation is against Him, His own disciples afraid to speak a word in His favor, that an alien woman steps in to plead the cause of a just man she may never have heard of before. True, it was the direct effect of divine intervention. But every other act and attitude in this scene can, in its last analysis, be traced to God's foreordination. It must remain a marvelous intimation of God's ways that she alone should voice a solemn protest against the travesty of justice in which Pilate was weak enough to become involved.

<sup>20</sup> The chief priests were aware that they had failed to convince the governor by fair argument, so now they propose to foil his plan of freeing the Lord by persuading the people. It is not necessary to have facts or truth to move the mob. It is the most unjust and unreasonable appeal possible. Had the priests not interfered they undoubtedly would have shouted for His release, as Pilate anticipated.

you wanting I should be releasing to you, Bar-Abbas, or Jesus, who is termed Christ?" For he was aware that it was through envy they betray Him.

<sup>19</sup> Now at his sitting on the dais, his wife dispatches to him, saying, "Let there be nothing between you and that just man, for I suffered much today in a trance because of him."

<sup>20</sup> Now the chief priests and the elders persuade the throngs that they should be requesting Bar-Abbas, yet should be destroying Jesus.

<sup>21</sup> Now answering, the governor said to them, "Which of the two are you wanting I should be releasing to you?"

Now they said "Bar-Abbas!"
<sup>22</sup> Pilate is saying to them, "What then shall I be doing with Jesus who is termed Christ?"

They are all saying, "Let him be crucified!"

Yet they cried exceedingly, saying, "Let him be crucified!"

<sup>24</sup> Now Pilate, perceiving that it is of no benefit, but rather a tumult is occurring, getting water, washes off his hands in front of the throng, saying, "I am innocent from the blood of this just man. Be you seeing to it!"

<sup>25</sup> And answering, the entire people said, "His blood be on us and <sup>26</sup> on our children!" Then he releases to them Bar-Abbas. Now, whipping Jesus, he gives Him over that He may be crucified.

<sup>39</sup> The whole scene is vibrant with the presence of God, not only in the Victim and the feeble few who followed, but in the very words of those who hated Him. They spoke great truths which they could not comprehend. They were demolishing the true Temple of God. They needed salvation. But it could never come if He saved Himself or descended from the cross. The chief priest could not have uttered a more pregnant or more precious truth. How gladly we echo their words! We only change the note of derision into a song of triumph. "Others He saves: Himself He cannot save!" Surely they were inspired!

out of thorns, they place it on His head, and a reed in His right hand, and falling on their knees in front of Him, they deride Him, saying, <sup>30</sup> "Rejoice, king of the Jews!" And spitting on Him, they got the reed <sup>31</sup> and beat Him on His head. And when they deride Him, they strip Him of the mantle and put His garments on Him, and led Him off to crucify.

45 The dread darkness was but an indication of the withdrawal of the divine Presence from the silent Sufferer. This was incomparably more awful than the opposition of His enemies or the desertion of His friends. Until this darkness enveloped Him, He had always lived in the light of God's smile. Now He was hanging on a tree, and became accursed of God (Gal. 3<sup>13</sup>). Sinless, He became sin (2 Co. 5<sup>21</sup>). Then it was that fire from above entered into His bones (Lam. 1<sup>13</sup>). Then the Lord bruised Him (Isa. 53<sup>10</sup>). It was the travail of His soul in these dark hours which settled the question of sin. It is only as we see God against Him then that we can appreciate how much He is for us now. Crucified by man at the behest of Satan, and abandoned by God, He was the most forlorn and forsaken creature in the universe. Only after it is past and the light returns is He able to cry to God. And then He utters that most incomprehensible of all questions, unless, indeed, He suffered for the sins of others. For His own sake God would never have abandoned Him. For my sake (and yours, beloved reader), He endured, not merely the physical pain, the mental torture, the moral degradation which men inflicted, but the deeper, direr despair of the awful enmity of God.

50 His death was different from all others. He did not linger until life ebbed away, but laid down His soul while still strong by committing His spirit to God. His body was laid in the tomb. His soul went to the unseen. His work was done, and death was His portion until His resurrection.

51 See 2 Chr. 3<sup>14</sup>.

51 The flesh of Christ was figured by the curtain in the temple which hid the presence of God from the holy place. God was not manifest in His flesh, but in its rending. Our union with Christ does not commence until His crucifixion. We were crucified, entombed, raised, and are ascended and seated in Him.

Israel's king, let him now descend from the cross, and we will be believing on him! He has confidence in God. Let Him rescue him now, if He is wanting him, for he said that 'I am God's Son'!" Now the robbers also, who were crucified together with Him, reproached Him with the same.

45 Now from the sixth hour [about 12 M.] it became dark over the entire land till the ninth hour [about 3 P. M.]. Now about the ninth hour Jesus exclaims with a loud voice, saying, "Eloi! Eloi! lema sabachthani?" that is, "My God! My God! why didst Thou abandon Me?" Now some of those standing there, hearing it, said that "He is summoning Elijah." And immediately one from among them, running and getting a sponge, filling it with vinegar and, sticking it on a reed, gave Him a drink. Yet the rest said, "Let be! We may see if Elijah, coming, will be saving him." Now another, getting a lance head, punctures His side, and out came water and blood.

50 Now Jesus, crying again with a loud voice, lets out the spirit. And lo! the curtain of the temple is rent in two from above to the bottom, and the earth quaked, and the rocks are rent, and the tombs were opened. And many bodies of the reposing saints were roused, and, coming out of the tombs after His rousing, they entered into the holy city and are disclosed to many.

54 Now the centurion and those with him who are keeping Jesus, perceiving the quake and the occurrences, were tremendously afraid, saying, "Truly this was the Son of God!"

54 The kingdom proclamation closed with the acknowledgment of Peter that He is the Christ, the Son of the living God (16<sup>16</sup>). His priestly ministry closes with the centurion's declaration that He is the Son of God. Thus we are given a foretaste of the final effect of both of these ministries. In the day of His return, Israel will exultantly acclaim Him King and the nations of the earth will acknowledge Him their Lord.

57 The shame and ignominy, as well as the sufferings, are now over. Though they appointed His grave with the lawless, God put Him in a rich man's tomb. The Romans would have left His body till it wasted away or was devoured by birds of prey. The Jews would have put it in a felon's grave. God indicated His mind by providing two honorable men, Joseph and Nicodemus (Jn. 19<sup>39</sup>), to attend to His entombment. Joseph of Arimathea, translated, means "He adds the heights."

62 The morrow after the preparation was the great sabbath which began the festival of Unleavened Bread. But the religious leaders did not rest nor did they allow Pilate peace. They now realized that they had only fulfilled His own predictions, and that, should He rise from the dead, or even appear to do so, they would be in a worse predicament than ever. From the divine side it was important that they should have ample assurance of His resurrection. Nothing could be more convincing than the story of the guard. Their plan was an excellent one to prove, not disprove, His return to life.

64 Twelve times we are told that He would rise "the third day". Why do they tell Pilate "after three days", and then set the guard hardly more than a day after His death? Pilate was a Roman. They used the Latin idiom. Mark, who wrote for Romans, also uses this form (Mk. 8<sup>31</sup>; 9<sup>31</sup>; 10<sup>34</sup>). In Greek it is literal, "the third day". In Latin it is idiomatic, "after three days". In Hebrew it is an idiom which accords with all their chronological computations, "three days and three nights".

55 Now there were many women there also, beholding from afar, who follow Jesus from Galilee, dispensing to Him, among whom was 56 Mary Magdalene and Mary, mother of James and Joses, and the mother of the sons of Zebedee.

57 Now as it is becoming evening, there came a rich man from Arimathea, named Joseph, who himself also is a disciple of Jesus. This man, approaching Pilate, requests the body of Jesus. Then Pilate orders the body to be given back. 59 And, getting the body, Joseph folds it in a clean linen wrapper 60 and places it in his new tomb which he quarries in the rock. And rolling a large stone on to the door of 61 the tomb, he came away. Now Mary Magdalene was there and the other Mary, sitting in front of the sepulcher.

62 Now, on the morrow which is after the preparation, the chief priests and the Pharisees were assembled with Pilate, saying, 63 "Lord, we are reminded that that deceiver said while still living, 'After three days I am being 64 roused.' Then order the sepulcher to be secured till the third day, lest at some time his disciples, coming, should be stealing him and may be saying to the people, 'He was roused from the dead', and the last deception will be worse than the first."

65 Yet Pilate averred to them "You have a detail. Go, make it secure, as you are aware."

66 Now, being gone, they secure the sepulcher, sealing the stone, with

<sup>1</sup> "One of the sabbaths" is the only correct translation of the phrase usually rendered "the first day of the week". The word first is not there. It is simply one, and is applied to the eleventh hour (Mt.20<sup>12</sup>), which, in that case, was last, not first. The word day is not in the text at all. The word "week" is in the plural, and is precisely the same as the form in the preceding sentence. If it is rendered "sabbaths" there it must also be "sabbaths" here. So there is no recourse but to translate "one of the sabbaths."

The key to this expression lies in the law of the Firstfruits (Lev. 23<sup>9-14</sup>). Ending with the day before Pentecost there were seven sabbaths (Lev.23<sup>15</sup>) from the day before the waving of the "sheaf". These are referred to in the phrase "one of the sabbaths". Every mention of this phrase places it between the Passover and Pentecost, (1 Co.16<sup>2</sup> and <sup>3</sup> Acts 20<sup>1</sup> and <sup>6</sup>). And the other occurrences refer to our Lord's resurrection (Mk.16<sup>2</sup> Lu.24<sup>1</sup> Jn. 20:1-10). He was raised on a sabbath, not the first day of the week, which would be our Sunday. His res-

At the lighting up into one of the sabbaths came Mary Magdalene and the other Mary to behold the sepulcher. And lo! a great quake occurred, for a messenger of the Lord, descending out of heaven and approaching, rolls away the stone from the door and sat upon it. Now to the perception he was as lightning, and his dress white as if snow. Now from fear of him the keepers quaked and became as dead.

Now answering, the messenger said to the women, "Fear you not, for I am aware that you are seeking Jesus, Who has been crucified. He is not here, for He was roused according as He said. Hither! Perceive the place where the Lord lay. And go swiftly, say to His disciples that He was roused from the dead, and lo! He is preceding you into Galilee. There you will see Him. Lo! I told you!"

And coming away swiftly from the tomb with fear and great joy, they ran to report to His disciples.

Now as they went to report to His disciples, lo! Jesus also meets them saying, "Rejoice!" Now they, approaching Him, hold His feet and worship Him. Then Jesus is saying to them, "Fear not! Go, report to My brethren that they may be coming away into Galilee, and there they shall see Me."

Now at their going, lo! some urrection on the sabbath is a token that His work was complete. Redemption is now a matter of entering into His stopping, not the beginning of a new week of toil and labor.

9-10 Compare Mk.16<sup>9-11</sup>. See Jn. 20<sup>17</sup>.

<sup>18</sup> This account is principally concerned with the rejection of the kingdom. How fitting that it should close with a preview of its establishment in the coming eon! The place is significant. Satan took Him to a high mountain to show Him the kingdoms of the earth. The transformation was on a mountain. The place speaks of His exaltation. This will not be realized until He comes in glory. He has not yet taken His great power (Un. 11<sup>17</sup>). The apostles never went out to all nations. On the contrary, Peter was opposed when he went to the proselyte Cornelius (Ac. 11<sup>3</sup>). They never baptized in the name of the Father and of the Son and of the holy spirit. They used the titles of Christ intelligently when they baptized. They used "Jesus Christ" in baptizing Israelites, "Lord Jesus" for Samaritans (Ac. 8<sup>16</sup>). They never used "Christ Jesus", the title of His present heavenly glory. They never used the formula here given because they knew that it was reserved for the future kingdom proclamation. They never disciplined the nations, as such. The Lord was not with them till the conclusion of that eon, but left them soon after, when He ascended. This commission cannot be carried out until His return in power and glory to bless all nations through His people Israel.

of the detail, coming into the city, report all that occurs to the chief <sup>12</sup> priests. And being assembled with the elders, besides holding a consultation, they give a considerable sum of silver to the soldiers, saying, "Say that 'His disciples, coming by night, steal him as we are reposing.' And if this should be heard by the governor, we will persuade him and we will make you <sup>13</sup> to be without worry." Now they, getting the pieces of silver, do according as they were taught. And this word is blazed abroad among the Jews unto this very day. <sup>16</sup> Now the eleven disciples went into Galilee, into the mountain where Jesus arranges with them. <sup>17</sup> And, perceiving Him, they worship Him, yet they hesitate. And, <sup>18</sup> approaching, Jesus speaks to them saying, "All authority in heaven and on earth was given to Me. <sup>19</sup> Going, then, disciple all the nations, baptizing them into the name of the Father and of the Son and of <sup>20</sup> the holy spirit, teaching them to be keeping all, whatever I direct you. And lo! I am with you all the days till the conclusion of the eon! Amen!"

MARK'S ACCOUNT

MARK makes us acquainted with the model Servant. It presents a scene of intense activity. No sooner is a deed done than "straightway" we are engaged with another. The Servant is introduced without a genealogy, for His deeds are sufficient credentials. His birth, His childhood, and His youth are passed over, for in them He was not equipped for service. The account begins with His induction into active ministry by the forerunner, John the baptist.

In Matthew His regal relation to the royal nation, Israel, is emphasized. They are to rule the other nations. Luke's account is wider in its sympathies, and brings blessing to all mankind through the favored people. The scope of Mark is still broader, for it reaches out to all creation. Wherever there is work to be done He is ready with untiring zeal and humble obedience. Seldom is He called "Lord", for here He is in the place of a servant.

We are not so much engaged with Him as with His work. We are told what He did, and why and how. His own feelings are directly related to the results of His acts.

It is generally supposed that Mark is the writer of this account. If so, it is a striking instance of God's grace and wisdom, for Mark himself, as a servant, was the most notable failure of our Lord's followers. Though the son of a very godly mother, in whose home in Jerusalem the disciples met for worship and prayer (Ac. 12<sup>12</sup>), and the nephew of Barnabas (Col. 4<sup>10</sup>), and probably a convert of Peter (1 Pt. 5<sup>13</sup>), and once chosen to accompany Barnabas and Paul on their missionary journey, yet he deserted them at Perga and returned to Jerusalem. When he proposed to join their second journey, Paul would not have him and chose rather to separate from Barnabas than to take him along (Ac. 15<sup>36-38</sup>). Thus the traitorous tax gatherer Matthew tells us of the King; the selfish John gives us the loving Son; the unsuccessful physician Luke portrays the sympathetic Healer; and the discredited servant Mark sets forth the true and faithful Servant of Jehovah.

But we must look beyond Mark's failure to see its true significance. It was used by God to separate Paul from association with Jerusalem. When again they became friendly, Mark retained his physical standing as one of the Circumcision (Col. 4<sup>11</sup>), and thus effectually shut himself out of the new administration of God's grace which was introduced through Paul, which ignores all physical distinctions, and which is the truth for the present time.

This account, then, presents our Lord as a Servant of the Circumcision for the sake of the truth of God, to confirm the patriarchal promises (Ro. 15<sup>8</sup>). He never leaves the land. He does not give the children's bread to puppies (7<sup>27</sup>). Very few crumbs fall from the table for feeding those outside the narrow pale of Israel. And yet through them, after His resurrection, He reaches out with blessing for the whole creation.

Mark's account is characterized by some significant omissions. Except on two special occasions, the Servant is never addressed as Lord. Only after His resurrection is he so styled (16<sup>19,20</sup>). The word "law" does not occur, for though His service conforms to the law it is not measured by it but exceeds all legal demands. The Servant does not set forth the manifesto of the kingdom as in Mt. 5-7, and has no "Lord's prayer". The parables are fewer. Passages which set forth the majesty and glory of the Lord are omitted or abbreviated.

The Servant's shrinking from public notice is very evident in Mark as in such passages as 13<sup>37,24,36,8,26</sup>. This is exquisitely brought out in 9<sup>16-25</sup>. From the adoration of the overawed throng who perceive some lingering glory of the transformation on the mount He turns in the unresting continuity of filial service to heal the boy before a great multitude gathers, and then speedily withdraws to the privacy of the house. In this account His greatest glory is His humility, making Him the perfect Servant of Jehovah.

4 John the baptist was the son of a priest, so that he was entitled to exercise the priestly office and enjoy all its privileges, which assured him a life of ease and comfort. Yet, under the urge of the holy spirit, which filled him even before he was born, he gave up all this for the lowly and austere life of a Nazarite (Nu. 6:2-7). He was not permitted to eat anything which came of the vine, the symbol of that which cheers the heart of God and man (Jud. 9:13). Like Samson, he let his hair grow long, a symbol of weakness and dishonor (1 Co. 11:14). Instead of the linen ephod he wore coarse camel's hair. Instead of living of the altar and eating the best of the sacrifices, he subsisted on locusts and wild honey.

John the baptist was a continual contrast with the Lord. Christ was not a Nazarite. He drank wine, dressed as others did, never wore long hair, and dwelt with His parents until the time for His ministry arrived. John came in the spirit of Elijah, but when the Lord's disciples wished to call down fire from heaven and consume the Samaritans for offending them, as Elijah had done to the men who were sent against him (2 Ki. 1:10-12), He rebuked them. Christ did not come in the spirit of Elijah at that time. Elijah was an austere proclaimer of righteousness. Christ's message mingled grace with truth. He came, not to condemn sinners, but to save them. In Him conviction was coupled with compassion.

6 See Lev. 11:22.

7 Compare Jn. 1:15, 26, 27.

9-11 Compare Mt. 3:13-17 Lu. 3:21, 22 Jn. 1:32-34.

10 The dove is a symbol of peace, of judgment past (Gen. 8:12) and of sacrifice. (Wherever we read "pigeon" in the versions of Leviticus it should read "dove" as in all the other occurrences.) This is an index of the ministry to which it was the introduction. In contrast to John's fierce denunciations of judgment, He went about a meek, harmless, unresisting victim, until He is finally offered up to God. It was in this that God could delight. He was His Son, not merely by birth, but in His likeness to His Father.

12-13 Compare Mt. 4:1-11 Lu. 4:1-13.

THE BEGINNING OF THE EVANGEL OF JESUS CHRIST, SON OF GOD.

2 According as it is written in Isaiah the prophet,

"Lo! I am dispatching My messenger before Thy face,
Who will be constructing Thy road in front of Thee.

3 A voice of one imploring in the wilderness,
"Make ready the road of the Lord!

Be making His highways straight!"

4 John the baptist came to be in the wilderness and is proclaiming a baptism of repentance for the pardon of sins. And the entire province of Judea went out to him, and all the Jerusalemites, and they were baptized by him in the Jordan river, confessing their sins.

5 And John was dressed in camel's hair, and a leather girdle about his loins, and eating locusts and wild honey. And he proclaims, saying, "One stronger than I is coming after me, the thong of Whose sandals I am not competent to stoop and loose. I, indeed, baptize you in water, yet He shall be baptizing you in holy spirit."

9 And it occurred in those days that Jesus came from Nazareth of Galilee, and is baptized in the Jordan by John. And straightway, stepping up out of the water, He perceived the heavens rent, and the spirit, as a dove, descending and remaining on Him. And a voice came out of the heavens, "Thou art
My beloved Son: in Thee I delight."

12 And straightway the spirit is ejecting Him into the wilderness.

<sup>12</sup> The wilderness trial was especially intended to test His loyalty to God in connection with His royal claims to David's throne and as the obedient Man. Hence Matthew and Luke enlarge upon it. As it is not a record of service for others, Mark mentions it most briefly.

<sup>14-15</sup> Compare Mt. 4:12-17.

<sup>14</sup> Before this our Lord had performed miracles, such as that at the wedding in Cana of Galilee, and had gathered a following of disciples, but He waited until John's ministry was ended by his imprisonment before beginning His first evangelistic tour.

<sup>15</sup> The era of the nations' rule over Israel was nearing its end, as foretold by Daniel the prophet. Nearly four hundred and eighty years had run their course since Daniel had predicted that four hundred and ninety years should be "cut out" before the fulfillment of his vision (Dan. 9<sup>24</sup>). Normally, not much more than ten years would bring them into the kingdom, but this depended on the attitude of the nation.

It is true that Daniel cut the era into periods, and that there is very evidently some delay after the sixty-ninth heptad, in which Messiah was to be cut off. But no intimation is given that this would be any considerable length of time. So that we may consider that our Lord's ministry as a whole was, from the prophetic viewpoint, within something over seven years of the kingdom. This is the force of the oft-repeated expression which was the burden of His proclamation, "The kingdom of God has drawn near." The sixty-ninth heptad of Daniel ended with His triumphal entry (11<sup>8</sup>). Only seven more prophetic years remained, which begin with the confirmation of the covenant with the coming prince (Dan. 9<sup>27</sup>). That it did not come does not in the least disprove the fact that it was near. Epaphroditus draws near unto death (Phil. 2<sup>30</sup>) but he did not die at that time. This word is very carefully chosen. The Lord did not predict positively that the kingdom was "at hand" so that it must come in a short time, but relatively, that it needed little time to make it a reality.

<sup>13</sup> And He was in the wilderness forty days, being tried by Satan, and was with the wild beasts. And the messengers waited on Him.

<sup>14</sup> Now, after the betrayal of John, Jesus came into Galilee, proclaiming the evangel of the kingdom of God, saying that "The era has been fulfilled and the kingdom of God has drawn near. Repent, and be believing in the evangel!"

<sup>16</sup> And passing by beside the sea of Galilee, He perceived Simon, and Andrew, Simon's brother, purse-netting in the sea, for they were fishermen. And Jesus said to them, "Hither after Me and I shall be making you become fishers of men!" And immediately, leaving their nets, they follow Him. And advancing slightly, He perceived James of Zebedee and his brother John, and those in the ship, re-adjusting the nets. And straightway He calls them, and, leaving their father, Zebedee, in the ship with the hired men, they came away after Him.

<sup>21</sup> And they are going into Capernaum. And immediately, on the sabbaths, entering the synagogue, He taught. And they were astonished at His teaching, for He was teaching them as One having authority, and not as the scribes.

<sup>23</sup> And straightway a man was in their synagogue with an unclean spirit, and he cries out, saying, "Ha! what is it to us and to you, Jesus the Nazarean! Did you come to destroy us? We are aware who <sup>19</sup> Before a net is used it is important that it is not badly tangled or snarled. The work of these fishermen is a graphic commentary on the word "re-adjust", which has been rendered by such a variety as mend, perfect, fit, perfectly join, restore, prepare, and frame. We have used readjust, adapt, and attune.

<sup>24</sup> It is usually supposed that evil spirits would be the last to acknowledge the Lord, or make Him known, and that we should welcome any agencies if they only bear witness to the truth. But our Lord would not have the testimony of demons and bids them be still. It is no test of an evil spirit if he knows and acknowledges Him. A little later (<sup>34</sup>) we are told that He did not let the demons talk, not because of their ignorance of Him, but because they were aware that He is the Christ.

It is astonishing how much of demon possession was in the land in our Lord's day. We are tempted to suppose that there was unusual activity in the unseen world because of His presence and the nearness of the kingdom. A special outburst of demonism is due in the last days, and is undoubtedly present with us now. Their tactics are the same. They do not deny Christ, but seek rather to associate themselves with Him. Hence they have made marked inroads into the household of faith, under the guise of the holy spirit of God. Let us beware of every revelation or leading which displaces the Word of God or is in the slightest degree out of harmony with His written revelation.

<sup>27</sup> The Lord's authority over unclean spirits, even more than His control of disease, was the marvel of the people and the means of spreading His fame throughout Galilee. None of their teachers had done anything like this.

<sup>32</sup> The intense heat of an Eastern day was quickly over once the sun had set. Then it is that the town springs into life, the women go to the well for water and the men come in from work. On this occasion they probably waited until the sabbath was over at sunset before carrying the sick to Him.

you are—the holy One of God!"

<sup>25</sup> And Jesus rebukes him, saying, "Be still, and be coming out of him!" And, convulsing him, and shouting with a loud voice, the unclean spirit came out of him.

<sup>27</sup> And they were all awed so as to be discussing with themselves, saying, "What is this? This is some new teaching, seeing that with authority He is enjoining the unclean spirits also, and they are obeying Him!" And straightway tidings of Him came out everywhere into the whole country about Galilee.

<sup>29</sup> And straightway, coming out of the synagogue, they came to the house of Simon and Andrew, with <sup>30</sup> James and John. Now Simon's mother-in-law was lying down with a fever, and straightway they are <sup>31</sup> telling Him about her. And approaching, He rouses her, holding her hand. And the fever leaves her immediately, and she waited on them.

<sup>32</sup> Now as it is becoming evening, when the sun sets, they brought to Him all those who are ill and those <sup>33</sup> who are demoniacs. And the whole city was assembled at the door. <sup>34</sup> And He cures many who are ill of various diseases, and many demons He cast out. And He did not let the demons talk, seeing that they were aware that He is the Christ.

<sup>35</sup> And in the morning, rising very early while it was night, He came out and came away into a desolate <sup>36</sup> place, and prayed there. And Simon and those with him trail <sup>37</sup> Him. And they found Him, and are saying to Him that "All are

35-39 Compare Lu.4:42-44.

38 Curiosity probably drew many to see Him on the morrow after He did so many wonderful deeds. Yet our Lord did not come to be gazed at but to serve. Hence He eludes them. While it is yet night He leaves the town for private communion with God in preparation for the duties of the day. Nor does He return thither to receive the plaudits of the multitude. He goes on to new fields of labor.

40-45 Compare Mt.8:2-4; Lu.5:12-16.

40 It would be natural to suppose that the Lord's first efforts to proclaim the kingdom would be among the priests in Jerusalem. They were the religious leaders, and were of great political influence as well. Having gained their support He might hope to reach the lesser lights and the common people. Such would be man's way. But our Lord began with the people. He seemed almost to ignore the priests. But this incident shows the way in which He testified to them. Many lepers were cleansed by Him and His disciples. They would all report to the priests and tell the story of their cleansing.

As leprosy is a type of sin, and the priests were continually occupied with the typical covering of sin, it would require but little spiritual insight for them to recognize the One Who cleansed the lepers as the true Sacrifice Which could eliminate sin altogether. The Lord did not by any means leave the priests without a witness, even if He did not personally perform many miracles in Jerusalem.

44 See Lev. 14:1-32.

44 We cannot help sympathizing with the mistaken zeal of the healed leper. He knew Christ as his Saviour, but hardly as his Lord. He has many followers, who have zeal without knowledge. They say "How can we help telling abroad what is so precious to us? Surely the Lord will not be displeased, even if He has forbidden it!" What was the result? The Lord could not enter the cities as He had planned, but had to remain outside, to their inconvenience and His discomfort. Alas, that we serve Him so stupidly in return for His grace!

1-12 Compare Mt.9:1-8; Lu.5:17-26.

38 seeking Thee." And He is saying to them, "We may be going elsewhere into the next towns, that there also I should be proclaiming, 39 for I came forth for this." And He came into their synagogues in the whole of Galilee, proclaiming and casting out demons.

40 And a leper is coming toward Him, entreating Him, and falling on his knees and saying to Him, "Lord, if Thou shouldst be willing, Thou canst cleanse me!"

41 Now Jesus, being compassionated, stretching out His hand, touches him, and is saying to him, "I am 42 willing: be cleansed!" And at His saying this, straightway the leprosy came from him, and he is

43 cleansed. And muttering to him, 44 straightway He casts him out, and is saying to him, "See you may be saying nothing to any one, but go show yourself to the priest, and offer for your cleansing what Moses bids, for a testimony to them."

45 Now on coming out, he begins proclaiming it much, and to blaze abroad the word, so that He could no longer be manifestly entering a city, but was outside in the desolate places. And they came to Him everywhere.

2 And, during the days, entering into Capernaum again, it is heard 2 that He is in a house. And immediately many were assembled, so that there was no longer room at all, not even at the door. And He spoke the word to them.

3 And they are coming, bringing to Him a paralytic being lifted by 4 four. And, not being able to carry him to Him because of the throng, they unroof the roof where He was, and scooping it out, they <sup>4</sup> Eastern houses have flat roofs with battlements, easily accessible from the ground, and a place of resort, especially in the evening. The roof usually was covered with quite a thickness of earth, laid on wooden supports. All this could readily be replaced. The point in this story seems to lie in the contrast between the physical weakness of the paralytic and the efficacy of faith. A strong man might not have been able to force his way into the Lord's presence, but the faith of his friends is sufficient to bring him to a most favorable audience with Him. In response to this, the Lord seems to ignore the feebleness of his physical frame, and proposes a blessing in correspondence with their faith. Hitherto He had proven His power over demons and disease; now He first proclaims the pardon of sins. The scribes are quick to note this advance. They had not grasped the significance of His power over the spirits or over the ills of humanity, and did not see that they necessarily involved the operation of God's spirit, or they would have been prepared for the next step, the pardon of sins. It is not enough to bind Satan and remove ill health to establish the millennium. Sin must also be quelled. So long as sin separates man from God, the kingdom of God cannot come.

<sup>10</sup> Therefore, the Lord announces His authority as the Son of Mankind, to pardon sins. Sin paralyzes. The best sign that He can offer of His power to pardon it is to remove the physical paralysis, which the scribes can see with their physical eyes, and thus, if possible, open their spiritual eyes to the pardon of sins. No wonder that all were amazed and glorified God, for they had never perceived anything like this before. Let us note, then, that the pardon of sins followed the faith of the paralytic.

13-17 Compare Mt. 9:9-13 Lu. 5:27-32.

<sup>14</sup> The previously chosen apostles, Peter and Andrew, James and John, were ordinary fishermen. After the pardon of sins is first proclaimed our Lord goes lower in the social scale, and chooses Levi Alpheus, who is usually named Matthew, a collector of tribute for the Roman government. Patriotic, respectable citizens would have no con-

are lowering the pallet whereon
<sup>5</sup> the paralytic was laid. And Jesus, perceiving their faith, is saying to the paralytic, "Child, your sins have been pardoned you."

<sup>6</sup> Now there were some of the scribes sitting there, and reasoning <sup>7</sup> in their hearts, "Who is this talking thus? He is blaspheming! Who is able to pardon sins except <sup>8</sup> One—God?" And straightway Jesus, recognizing in His spirit that they are reasoning thus among themselves, is saying to them, "Why are you reasoning these <sup>9</sup> things in your hearts? What is easier to say to the paralytic, 'Your sins are being pardoned,' or to be saying, 'Rouse and pick up your pallet and walk'?"

<sup>10</sup> Now that you may be perceiving that the Son of Mankind has authority on earth to pardon sins"
<sup>11</sup> (He is saying to the paralytic), "I am saying to you, Rouse, and pick up your pallet and go into your <sup>12</sup> house." And he was roused, and, straightway, picking up the pallet, he came out in front of all, so that all were amazed and glorified God, saying that "We never perceived it thus!"

<sup>13</sup> And again He came out beside the sea. And the entire throng came to Him, and He taught them.

<sup>14</sup> And, passing along, He perceived Levi of Alpheus, sitting at the tribute office, and is saying to him, "Be following Me!" And rising, he nection with him or his kind, so he is forced to be friendly with sinners. It is impossible for us to apprehend the intense dislike of the Jews for those of their own nation who debased themselves by collecting tribute from their fellow countrymen for the Roman power which oppressed them. Besides, under these conditions, no patriotic and self-respecting Jew would do this work, so that, as a class, they were truly contemptible, though their extortionate methods made them well-to-do. Their only motive for engaging in this opprobrious occupation was sordid avarice.

The choice of Levi and the subsequent feast is a well-considered effort on the part of our Lord to gradually introduce the great truth that the nation needed a Sacrifice more than a King. To the religious heart His announcement that He came to call sinners, not the just, was incomprehensible. Only the just will have a place in the kingdom, according to the prophets. Sinners will be destroyed in the judgments that precede it. Yet the Lord seemed to teach the opposite. He seeks to open their hearts to see this by comparing sin with disease. He was not needed by the strong. On the part of those who think themselves just there is no conscious desire for the pardon of sins. The kingdom will not come until the whole nation has learned to say (Isa. 53<sup>6</sup>):

*All we, as sheep, are straying;
We countenance our own way to a man,
And Jehovah intercedes in Him for the lawlessness of us all.*

18-22 Compare Mt. 9:14-17; Lu. 5:33-39.

<sup>18</sup> The general impression that John's ministry was the same in spirit and method as that of our Lord has no foundation in the scriptures. It was right for his disciples to hunger. But it was most unfitting for the Lord's disciples to fast while He was with them. John came in the spirit of stern Elijah (Lu. 1<sup>17</sup>), but the Lord did not come in the spirit of Elijah (Lu. 9<sup>54</sup>).

<sup>21</sup> This is used to press home the difference between John's ministry and that of our Lord. But it may be applied with far more force to the futility of seeking to combine the truth for the present with that for the past.

lay back at table with Jesus and His disciples, for there were many, and they followed Him. And the scribes of the Pharisees, perceiving Him also that He ate with sinners and the tribute collectors, said to His disciples, "Wherefore is your teacher eating and drinking with the tribute collectors and sinners?" And Jesus, hearing, is saying to them that "The strong have no need of a physician, but the ill. I came not to call the just, but sinners."

<sup>18</sup> And the disciples of John and the Pharisees were fasting, and they are coming and saying to Him, "Wherefore are the disciples of John and the disciples of the Pharisees fasting, yet your disciples are not fasting?" And Jesus said to them, "Can the sons of the bridal chamber be fasting while the bridegroom is with them? As long a time as they have the bridegroom with them, they cannot be fasting."
<sup>20</sup> Yet the days will be coming, whenever the bridegroom should be taken away from them, and then they will be fasting in that day.

<sup>21</sup> Now no one is sewing a patch of unshrunk shred on an old cloak; yet if so, that which fills up is taking away from it, the new from the old, and the rent is becoming <sup>22</sup> worse. And no one is draining fresh wine into old wine skins; yet if so, will not the fresh wine be bursting the wine skins? And the wine is spilled, and the wine skins will be destroyed—but fresh wine into new wine skins."

23-28 Compare Mt.12:1-8 Lu.6:1-5.

23 In the law it was written, "For you shall come into that which was raised by your associate and pluck snips with your hand, yet you shall not swing a scythe on that which your associate raises" (Deut.23<sup>25</sup>). The disciples were perfectly justified in plucking the grain and eating it. What the Pharisees objected to was that they did this work on the sabbath. They had innumerable traditional by-laws as to what could or could not be done on a sabbath, making it a day of restraint rather than repose. The sabbath is for man's benefit, not man for the benefit of the sabbath. The Son of Mankind is Lord of the sabbath.

25 See 1 Sam.21:1-6.

25 It is notable how little the letter of the law was observed in the presence of God. The priests in the sanctuary profane the sabbath in their ministrations, yet are faultless (Mt.12<sup>5</sup>). David took the show-bread, fresh from the holy place. All this makes it evident that the law was not meant for those in His presence. It was not meant for the righteous, but sinners. Now the Pharisees are standing in the presence of the Lord of the temple and the Lord of the sabbath. It is they who are at fault with their impudent importation of the law into the precincts of the living Temple of Jehovah.

26 See Lev. 24<sup>5-9</sup>.

1-6 Compare Mt.12:9-14 Lu.6:6-11.

1 As the Pharisees are blind to His glories, He chooses another and a simpler method of enforcing the truth as to the sabbath. Here is a man who cannot work on the sabbath or any other day, for his hand is withered. Such was the sabbath keeping of the Pharisees, a withered, shrunken, spiritless, soulless form, of no benefit to either God or man. As the great miracle of the restoration of Israel takes place in the great sabbatism of a thousand years, of which all other sabbaths were but a type, and thus it is vital to the kingdom that Jehovah should do good on the sabbath, the Pharisees should have known and believed on Him because so many of His signs were done on that day.

6 See Mt. 22:15-16.

through the sowings on the sabbaths, and His disciples begin making a path, plucking the ears. And the Pharisees said to Him, "Lo! Why are they doing what is not allowed on the sabbaths?" And He said to them, "Did you never read what David does, when he had need and hungers, he and those with him—how he entered the house of God to Abiathar the chief priest, and ate the show bread, which no one is allowed to eat except the priests, and he gives also to those who are with him?" And He said to them, "The sabbath came because of mankind, and not mankind because of the sabbath, so that the Son of Mankind is Lord of the sabbath also."

3 And He entered again into the synagogue. And a man was there having a withered hand. And they scrutinized Him—if He will be curing him on the sabbaths, that they should be accusing Him.

3 And He is saying to the man having the withered hand, "Rise in the midst." And He is saying to them, "Is it allowed on the sabbaths to do good or to do evil, to save a soul or to kill?" Yet they were silent. And looking about on them with indignation, commiserating the callousness of their hearts, He is saying to the man, "Stretch out your hand." And he stretches it out, and his hand was restored. And, coming out, the Pharisees straightway had a consultation with the Herodians

<sup>6</sup> Now that the Pharisees had made up their minds to destroy Him, they are reminded of their own impotence. The governor would never countenance an assassination on purely theological grounds. The Jews were always quarrelling about their religious differences, and it would hardly do to make heresy a capital offense, for the various parties all hated one another. The Pharisees were against the Herodians, who were loyal to the base Idumean usurpers, who were foreigners quite as much as the Romans so far as their right to reign was concerned.

But what they needed was a political charge. If they could prove Him to be opposed to the powers in possession of the government, it would not be difficult to get Him out of the way. So they lay aside their differences with the Herodians and consult with them how best to accomplish His destruction. Just as Pilate and Herod were reconciled by their common condemnation of Christ, so those who were at enmity among themselves make common cause against Him.

7-12 Compare Mt.12:15-21 Lu.6:17-19.

13-19 Compare Mt.10:1-4 Lu.6:12-16.

<sup>14</sup> This first kingdom commission should be carefully compared with the creation commission at the close of this account. As twelve is the number of administration or government, there are just twelve chosen to proclaim the coming kingdom. And, when Judas Iscariot is deprived of his place, Matthias must be chosen to keep the full number (Ac.1:26). But the creation commission is given to the eleven (16:14). The kingdom heralds are limited to the land and the nation of Israel, the preachers of the creation message go into all the world (16:15). The former was confined to the apostles. In the latter the signs followed in the case of all who believed (16:17). The first was never completed. The last was proclaimed everywhere (16:20).

<sup>14</sup> The chief and foremost object of choosing the apostles is usually overlooked, yet it was deemed essential when a new one was to be chosen to take Judas' place. It was that they might be with Him.

<sup>7</sup> And Jesus with His disciples retires to the sea. And a vast multitude follows Him from Galilee, and <sup>8</sup> from Judea, and from Jerusalem, and from Idumea and the other side of the Jordan, and about Tyre and Sidon. A vast multitude, hearing how much He did, came to <sup>9</sup> Him. And He spoke to His disciples that a boat should be waiting on Him because of the throng, lest
<sup>10</sup> they should be crowding Him, for He cures many, so that they are falling on Him, that as many as had scourges should be touching <sup>11</sup> Him. And the unclean spirits, whenever they beheld Him, prostrated to Him and cried, saying that "You are the Son of God!"
<sup>12</sup> And He warned many of them, lest they should be making Him manifest.

<sup>13</sup> And He is ascending into the mountain and is calling whom He would, and they came away to Him.

<sup>14</sup> And He makes twelve, whom He also names apostles, that they may be with Him, and that He may be commissioning them to proclaim,
<sup>15</sup> and to have authority to be curing diseases, and to be casting out demons. And He makes twelve, and

<sup>18</sup> Simon was called "the Cananite" or "the Zealot" (which means the same) in order to distinguish him from Simon Peter. The term "Cananite" is easily confounded with "Canaanite", an inhabitant of Canaan. But no alien could possibly have been chosen to be an apostle.

<sup>19</sup> The choice of Judas Iscariot seems to be a mystery to many. But it is merely one manifestation of the wider problem of evil. Some have supposed that the Lord did not know at the time how he would turn out. But the scriptures assure us that the Lord was not ignorant and knew from the beginning that Judas was to be His betrayer (Jn. 13<sup>21</sup>). It must needs be that offenses come. It was part of God's plan that Christ should be betrayed, for it had already found a place in the prophetic scriptures. Why, then, should He not choose the instrument?

<sup>22</sup> It is significant that scribes from Jerusalem commit the "unpardonable sin", or, as it is also called, the eonian sin. This consists in ascribing the casting out of unclean spirits to their head, the chief of the demons. In the evangel of the kingdom there is not the appeal to pure, unsupported faith which characterizes the evangel of God or the conciliation, which is the evangel for today. A foretaste is given of the powers of the coming eon, by means of signs, which prove the ability of Christ to cope with the powers of darkness and disease, which must be overthrown before the kingdom can come. But if these are ascribed to the unclean spirits themselves, there is no possibility of repentance and pardon because of its very nature. The sin is eonian. It cannot be corrected for the eons. Such as committed it will have no place in the millennial reign or the subsequent kingdom of the Son in the new earth during the last eon. Their salvation waits until the eons are past. The "unpardonable sin" is not one of such enormity as to be beyond the ability of grace. In this economy grace has no limits. Where sin increases, grace superexceeds (Ro. 5<sup>21</sup>). Grace reigns, and no sin is sufficiently heinous to dethrone it. Its character is what determines the "unpardonable", eonian sin.

Thaddeus and Simon the Cananite,
<sup>19</sup> and Judas Iscariot, who also betrays Him.

<sup>20</sup> And they are coming into a house, and the throng is coming together again, so that they are not <sup>21</sup> even able to be eating bread. And hearing it, those with Him came out to hold it, for they said that <sup>22</sup> it was beside itself. And the scribes who descend from Jerusalem said that "He has Beelzeboul", and that "By the chief of the demons is He casting out the demons."

<sup>23</sup> And calling them to Him, He said to them, in parables, "How can Satan be casting out Satan?
<sup>24</sup> And if a kingdom should be parted against itself that kingdom is not <sup>25</sup> able to stand. And if a house should be parted against itself that house will not be able to stand.
<sup>26</sup> And if Satan rose against himself and is parted, he cannot stand, but <sup>27</sup> is having a consummation. But no one is able to enter the strong man's house to plunder his gear, should he not first be binding the strong man, and then he will be plundering his house.

<sup>28</sup> Verily, I am saying to you that the penalty of all the sins shall be pardoned the sons of mankind, and the blasphemies, whatever they <sup>29</sup> should be blaspheming, yet whoever should be blaspheming the holy spirit is having no pardon for the eon, but is liable to the penalty of an eonian sin"—seeing that they said, "He has an unclean spirit."

28-30 Compare Mt. 12<sup>31-32</sup>.

29 Compare Lu. 12<sup>10</sup>.

31-35. Compare Mt. 12<sup>46-50</sup> Lu. 8<sup>19-21</sup>.

32 The Lord's brothers would hardly have summoned Him had they believed on Him, or recognized His true dignity. We are not even told that He met them. Instead, He turns our thoughts to others who are summoning Him, and whose call He cannot but hear. He claims kinship with all who serve God and is too busy serving them to be drawn aside by natural ties.

1-9 Compare Mt. 13<sup>1-9</sup> Lu. 8<sup>4-9</sup>.

1 We now come to a distinct change in our Lord's ministry. He begins to use parables in speaking to the throngs. It is erroneous to suppose that He does this in order to illustrate and simplify the truth. The parable is used in order to put the truth into such veiled and obscure form that those who are not spiritual can never comprehend it. Even His disciples could not understand His parables until He explained them.

3 The parable of the sowing is a resumé of His ministry hitherto. He Himself was the Sower. The four classes were those in Israel who heard His word.

The usual trinity of evil, Satan, the flesh and the world, hinder its fruitfulness. Only one class out of the four, represented by His disciples, was really fruitful, and only a few of these in abundant measure. A farmer would say that this was a very poor crop. The proclamation of the kingdom has failed to produce the effect necessary for its realization.

His miracles and signs now take on a new note. There is often delay or danger, to indicate that the kingdom is no longer so near, and that it will not be established for some time, and then only after suffering on the part of the disciples.

9 The formula "who has ears to be hearing, let him be hearing!" is also significant. Though openly and apparently He speaks to all, it is couched in such language that only those who have spiritual perception will apprehend what He is saying. The rest hear the sound but do not grasp the sense. Parables are puzzles which only they can solve who have the key.

32 ing Him. And the throng sat about Him. And they are saying to Him, "Lo! Thy mother and Thy brothers and Thy sisters are outside seeking Thee." And, answering them, He is saying, "Who is My mother and My brothers?" And looking about on those sitting around Him, He is saying, "Lo! My mother and My brothers! For whoever should be doing the will of God, this one is My brother and sister and mother."

4 And again He begins to teach beside the sea. And the largest throng is being gathered to Him so that, to be sitting, He steps into the ship, in the sea. And the entire throng were toward the sea on the land.

2 And He taught them much in parables, and said to them in His teaching, "Hear! Lo! The sower

3 came out to sow. And it occurred in the sowing, some indeed falls beside the road, and the flying creatures came and devoured it. And

4 other falls on a rocky place where it had not much earth, and straightway it shoots up because it has no depth of earth. And when

5 the sun rises it is scorched, and, because it has no root, it is withered. 7 And other falls into thorns and the thorns came up and stifle it, and it

8 gives no fruit. But other falls into ideal earth, and it gave fruit, coming up and growing up, and brought forth, one thirty and one sixty and one a hundred fold." 9 And He said, "Who has ears to be hearing, let him be hearing!"

10.13 Compare Mt. 13<sup>10-17</sup> Lu. 8<sup>9-10</sup>.

11 The kingdom of God had been foretold and typified in their sacred scriptures, but now the Lord is unfolding a phase of its history which was unknown to the prophets. It is not a mystery, in the sense of something mysterious or inexplicable, but merely a secret, easily understood once we are initiated into it. The disciples imagined that the Lord's proclamation of the kingdom would continue until He would gain the support of the populace and then seize the sovereignty for Himself. He could not keep on proclaiming the kingdom and at the same time openly teach that the proclamation would be rejected, so He conveys this important fact to His disciples and those spiritual enough to understand, yet conceals it from the multitude by speaking in parables.

12 It cannot be reiterated too often that parables were not used by our Lord in preaching the evangel that they might receive the pardon of sins, but for the very opposite end. He spoke in parables lest the penalty of their sins should be pardoned. It is not gospel, but judgment. To "apply" it to the evangel for this day of grace is utterly contrary to the spirit of the conciliation which we should preach (2 Co. 5<sup>19</sup>). We seek to assure men that God is not imputing their offenses to them. We do not veil our message in figures which they cannot understand. The spirit of God has told us explicitly, not in veiled figures, that this economy will end in apostasy (1 Ti. 4<sup>1</sup>).

13 The twelve apostles themselves did not perceive the significance of the parable, so He explains its symbols to them. Every detail of the picture He paints was most familiar to them all. In the East there are no fences and the roads go right through the fields of grain. There is but one Sower, the Lord Himself. The figure is important, for it postpones the kingdom until the harvest. He has not been reaping, as the apostles supposed. The end is still far off. By that time three classes who have heard the word will fail of fruition. It is the old kingdom refrain: those who endure to the consummation shall be saved.

10 And when He came to be alone, those about Him, together with the twelve, asked Him the parables.

11 And He said to them, "To you has been given the secret of the kingdom of God, yet to those outside, all is occurring in parables,

12 that

'Observing, they may be observing
And may not be perceiving,
And hearing, they may be hearing,
And may not be understanding,
Lest at some time they should be turning about
And the penalty of their sins may be pardoned them'."

13 And He is saying to them, "Have you not perceived this parable? And how will you know all 14 parables? The sower is sowing the word. Now these are they beside the road, where the word is sown, and whenever they should be hearing, straightway Satan is coming and taking away the word which has been sown in them.

15 And these, likewise, are they being sown on rocky places, who, whenever they should be hearing the word, straightway with joy are getting it. And they have no root in themselves, but are before the season. Thereafter, when affliction or persecution occurs because of the word, straightway they are being snared.

18 And others are they being sown into the thorns. These are they who hear the word; and the worries of this eon, and the seduction of riches and the desires concerning the rest, going in, are stifling the word, and it is becoming unfruitful.

20 And those are the ones being sown on ideal earth, who are hearing the word, and assenting, and are bearing fruit, one thirty and one sixty and one a hundred fold."

21-23 Compare Mt. 5:14-16; Lu. 8:16,17; 11:33.
 21 It is evident that the light He has just given them is the lamp of which He speaks. He would not have them hide the light beneath self-satisfaction or indolence, which are suggested under the figure of a measure or couch. It would be very fine for them to enjoy the measure which had been given to them and repose in the illumination which had been granted to them, but that is not the purpose for which He had given them the light.

24-25 Compare Lu. 8:18. See Mt. 7:2 Lu. 6:38 19:26.

24 In this parable He carries on the previous thought concerning the measure. As they impart to others what they had received their own measure will be increased. Spiritual blessings, unlike the physical, increase the more they are distributed.

25 This enigmatical statement can only be understood in the light of the circumstances in which it was spoken. Those who had received spiritual blessing from Christ were to receive more: those who received none would lose even the physical privileges which they had as Jews.

26 Here they have an even more emphatic hint that the kingdom would not come immediately, but by a gradual process like the growing of grain. Later on in His ministry He postpones the harvest to the conclusion of the eon (Mt. 13:39). The disciples were anxious to put their sickle to the grain while it was in the blade. Even after His resurrection, when the grain was in the ear, the pentecostal era showed that it was not yet ripe. The kernels will not be full until the end time.

30-32 Compare Mt. 13:31 Lu. 13:18,19.

30 Ordinarily, wild mustard does not assume such dimensions, but, under favorable conditions, it might well grow into a tree. It was the smallest seed sown by the farmer and became the greatest of all his garden greens. This quick growth is quite in contrast to the previous parable, and the pungent mustard is not food, like grain. The flying creatures of heaven have a sinister significance, being interpreted as Satan in the parable of the sowing. Is not this a forecast of that false premature phase of the kingdom spoken of under the figure of great Babylon?

33-34 Compare Mt. 13:34-35.

21 And He said to them that "Is the lamp coming that it may be placed under a measure or under a couch? Is it not that it may be placed on a lampstand? For there is nothing hidden except that it should be manifested, neither did it become concealed, but that it may be coming into manifestation. If any one has ears to be hearing, let him be hearing!"

24 And He said to them, "Beware what you are hearing! In what measure you are measuring, it will be measured to you, and it will be added to you. For he who has, to him shall be given; and he who has not, from him also shall be taken away what he has."

26 And He said, "Thus is the kingdom of God: as if a man should be casting seed on the earth, and he may be drowsing and rousing night and day, and the seed may be germinating and lengthening, as he is not aware. Spontaneously, the earth is bearing fruit, first the blade, thereafter the ear, thereafter the full grain in the ear. Now whenever the fruit may be giving way, straightway he is dispatching the sickle, seeing that the harvest is present."

30 And He said, "How should we be likening the kingdom of God? Or by what parable may we be placing it? As a kernel of mustard, which, whenever it may be sown on the earth is smaller than all the seeds of those on the earth, and whenever it may be sown, is coming up and becoming greater than all the greens and is making great boughs, so that the flying creatures of heaven can roost under its shade." And in many such parables He spoke the word to them, according as they were able to be hearing it. Yet apart from

37 The lake of Galilee is subject to sudden squalls when the wind sweeps down from the mountains on the east. In a short time it changes from a placid mirror-like surface to a leaping, boiling cauldron, in which a small ship could hardly live. There must have been a marvelous calm in His own heart or He would have been roused by the pitching of the ship, or at least He would have been disturbed by the terror of His disciples. No mere man could have preserved his calmness in such danger. And how foolish for a mortal to take the wind to task and talk to the sea! But the wind and the waters were obedient to His will!

Again we have a picture of the career of the kingdom, now that its proclamation has not been received. The sea speaks of the nations (Un.17<sup>15</sup>), the storm of the time of the great affliction, the wind of the spiritual powers which will stir up the nations at the time of the end to persecute and destroy the people of the kingdom. When He comes to rescue His saints then He will say again, "Be still!" And there will be the millennial calm.

1-17 Compare Mt.8:28-34 Lu.8:26-37. This thrice-told story shows the fiercest display of the enemy's power entirely subject to the Lord. Mark dwells more fully than Matthew on the desperate condition of the man, in accord with the scope of this account in which service rendered to man is portrayed.

1 The name of this place is so variously given in the MSS. that we have appealed to the topography of the country to settle it, and come to the same conclusion as the editor of Sinaiticus (82). Alexandrinus has it Gadarenes, Vaticanus has Gerasenes, as also Sinaiticus, before being edited. This is probably a variant of Gergesenes. Gadara was a well-known Greek city, celebrated for its temples, its theater, and its warm baths, but it was several hours distant from the southern shore of lake Galilee. The little town of Gergesa, the ruins of which the Arabs call Chersa, is "on the other side" from Galilee, and is the only part of the shore line which combines all the features necessary to the narrative. A steep mountain dips almost immediately into the lake, with hardly any beach. Tombs are cut in the rock above the city. Every natural feature accords a parable He did not speak to them. Yet privately, to His own disciples, He explained all.

35 And He is saying to them on that day as it becomes evening, "We may pass through to the 36 other side." And, letting away the throng, they are taking Him along, as He was in the ship. And other boats were with Him.

37 And there is occurring a great storm of wind, and the billows dashed into the ship, so that the ship was already filled to the brim.

38 And He was in the stern drowsing on a cushion. And they are rousing Him and saying to Him, "Teacher! Carest Thou not that 39 we are perishing?" And, being roused, He rebukes the wind and said to the sea, "Be silent! Be still!" And the wind flags, and a 40 great calm occurred. And He said to them, "Why are you timid? How is it thus? Have you no 41 faith?" And they were afraid with a great fear, and said to one another, "Who, consequently, is This, that even the wind and the sea are obeying Him?"

5 And they came to the other side of the sea, to the country of the

2 Gergesenes. And at His coming out of the ship, straightway there meets Him a man out of the tombs,

3 with an unclean spirit, who had a dwelling among the tombs, and no one was able any longer to bind

4 him with chains, because, having often been bound with fetters and chains, the chains were pulled to pieces by him and the fetters crushed, and no one had the

with the inspired account. Hence we have chosen Gergesenes as the true reading.

<sup>8</sup> It is the unusual which should strike us in each of our Lord's signs and miracles, for therein lies the special lesson each of His recorded acts is intended to teach. Here we find a man obsessed with many demons, who do not come out at His first command, and they are sent into the sea. On another occasion the Lord speaks of Israel at the end time as possessing seven times as many demons as formerly (Mt.12<sup>43-45</sup>). Their last state will be much worse than their first. This is suggested here by the legion of demons who infested the unfortunate demoniac. A Roman legion was about six thousand strong. Israel has kept herself from idolatry for many a century, but when the great image is set up, many will worship the wild beast (Un. 13<sup>s</sup>). The first proclamation of the kingdom is unheeded even as His first charge to the legion who were in the demoniac. But subsequently they find their way into the sea, just as Satan will be sent into the abyss.

<sup>15</sup> The previous condition of the demoniac, restless, insubordinate, self-torturing, corresponds to their history under the law. The chains and fetters of the law never were strong enough to hold them. They were often engaged in insane internecine wars among themselves. Judah was fighting against Israel, one party was pitted against another, and to this very day they are inclined to torture themselves. What a change when they, like the demoniac, find rest and righteousness and reason at His feet in the day of the Lord!

<sup>16</sup> It is quite probable that there were other herds of hogs being kept contrary to the law, and that their owners feared that they, also, would be destroyed if the Lord remained in that country. It will be noted that the Lord's purpose was to send the demons into the abyss, but they begged to go into the hogs. He only gave His permission, for it was not a part of His mission at this time to enforce the law of Moses. Yet, by that inscrutable law of God which always conspires to carry out His will, both the keepers of the hogs and the demons were judged in accord with His purpose.

tinually, night and day, he was among the tombs and in the mountains, crying and gashing himself with stones.

<sup>7</sup> he runs and worships Him, and, crying with a loud voice, he is saying, "What is it to me and to Thee, Jesus, Son of God Most High! I am adjuring Thee by God: Thou shouldst not be tormenting me!"

<sup>8</sup> For He said to it, "Unclean spirit, <sup>9</sup> be coming out of the man!" And He inquired of it, "What is your name?" And it is saying to Him, "Legion is my name, seeing that <sup>10</sup> we are many." And it entreated Him much that He should not be dispatching it out of the country.

<sup>11</sup> Now there, toward the mountain, was a great herd of hogs, grazing.
<sup>12</sup> And all the demons entreat Him, saying, "Send us into the hogs, that we may be entering into <sup>13</sup> them." And Jesus immediately permits them, and the unclean spirits, coming out, entered into the hogs, and the herd rushes down the precipice into the sea. Now there were about two thousand, and they were choked in the sea.

<sup>14</sup> And those grazing them fled, and they report it in the city and in the fields. And they came to see what it is that has occurred.

<sup>15</sup> And they are coming to Jesus, and beholding the demoniac who had the legion, sitting and garmented and sane, and they were afraid.

<sup>16</sup> And those who perceived it relate to them how it came to be with the demoniac, and about the hogs. And <sup>17</sup> they begin to be entreating Him to

18-20 Compare Lu. 8:38,39.

18 Though they did not desire the Lord's presence in that region, He did not leave them without a witness, but sends the demoniac back among them to bear testimony to His mercy. Decapolis was a considerable district in the allotment of Manasseh, reaching as far as Syria, embracing ten cities of some size, the largest, according to Josephus, being Scythopolis (Wars of the Jews, 3, 9, 7). Gadara, Hippos, and Pella were also of the number.

21-24 Compare Mt. 9:1,18,19 Lu. 8:41,42.

22 Again we are treated to a delightful presentation of the course of the kingdom proclamation in an aspect hitherto untouched. The redemption of Israel in Egypt was by blood and by power. They were shielded from God's judgments by the blood on the door posts (Ex. 12:7). They were delivered from Pharaoh by the waters of the Red Sea. It is possible to have one without the other. The lack of response has made it evident that there will be some delay in the setting up of the kingdom. This is pictured by the time it took Him to reach the home of Jairus. But during the interval He gives us a type of blood redemption. While Israel as a nation lies dead, awaiting His coming, a remnant from among them, who, by faith, come into vital contact with His righteousness, receive the salvation of their souls long before His return in power to raise the nation from death.

25-34 Compare Mt. 9:20-22 Lu. 8:43-48 Lev. 15:19-27.

26 Israel had many physicians that promised to cure her. The various sects, such as the Pharisees, Sadducees and Essenes, all claimed to have a sovereign remedy for her ills. Time after time a saviour arose to deliver her from her enemies, but it always led to more bloodshed and severer tyranny.

The difference between this woman and the crowd which jostled Him and crowded Him on all sides was a conscious knowledge of her uncleanness according to the law and her faith. They could come into violent collision with Him and receive no benefit. She barely came into contact with His cloak and instantly received the boon which she craved. So today, His grace abounds to those who know their need.

come away from their boundaries.

18 And at His stepping into the ship, the demoniac entreated Him
19 that he may be with Him. And He does not let him, but He is saying to him "Go to your home, to those who are yours, and report to them whatever the Lord has done for 20 you and is merciful to you." And he came away and begins to proclaim in Decapolis whatever Jesus does for him, and they all marvelled.

21 And at Jesus' ferrying again in the ship to the other side, a vast throng was assembled about Him
22 and He was beside the sea. And lo! one of the chiefs of the synagogue, Jairus by name, is coming, and, perceiving Him, is falling at 23 His feet. And he is entreating Him much, saying that "My little daughter is at the last gasp!" that 24 "Thou, coming, mayest be placing hands on her that she may be saved and should be living!" And He came away with him, and a vast throng followed Him, and they crowded Him.

25 And a woman having a hemorrhage twelve years, and suffering much under many physicians, and spending her all and being nothing benefited, but rather coming to be
27 worse, hearing about Jesus, coming in the throng from behind, touches 28 His cloak, for she said "If ever I should be touching even His 29 garments I shall be saved." And straightway the spring of her blood is dried, and she knew in her body that she has been healed of the scourge.

30 And straightway Jesus, recognizing in Himself the power coming out of Him, turning about in

 THE OUT OF-Him ABILITY

The time and method and character of her salvation are most significant at this juncture in our Lord's ministry. It is, perhaps, the clearest intimation yet given that, while the nation will linger and die, and cannot be raised until His return, a remnant among them will have faith for the salvation which comes by blood, and know the blessedness and power of a personal contact with the Christ Who has not yet arrived at His intended goal—the resurrection of Israel.

Meanwhile, as in Lazarus' case, the delay is fatal. All hope of saving the life of the little girl is gone. He told His disciples that Lazarus was reposing. So here He tells them she is drowsing. He views it from the divine side, but they from the human. To the God of resurrection death is no more than sleep. His voice can as easily rouse the dead as we can awaken those who are slumbering.

There is a sharp contrast between these two miracles in all their details, all of which are suggestive of the differences between the salvation which comes to the faithful before His future advent and that which He will bring with Him when He comes. In one case there was diffident yet insistent faith, and the salvation is definitely founded on it. In the other, the little girl was beyond believing, and her father's faith was feeble, while the attendants were plainly dubious. In the former the woman pressed through the throng to reach Him. She comes to Christ. In the latter He goes to the little girl. Christ comes to her. In the former the healing is instantaneous. Such was the salvation by faith through His blood which His disciples enjoyed even though the kingdom did not come. In the latter the blessing was delayed until His arrival. Such will be the case when Christ comes again to restore all that the prophets have foretold.

We do not in the least lose our appreciation of His power and mercy as displayed in these signs when we see in them an intimation of much greater and more glorious achievements. To "apply" them to His present work of grace can only lead to confusion. Much of the action can have no proper parallel in His dealings with sinners today. He does not expect the sinner to come to Him. He actually prays the sinner to be conciliated (2 Co.5:20). He the throng, said "Who touches My 31 garments?" And His disciples said to Him, "Thou observest the throng crowding Thee, and art Thou saying, 'Who touches Me?'"

32 And He looked about to see the one who does this.

33 Now the woman, being afraid and trembling, being aware of what has occurred to her, came and prostrates to Him, and told Him
34 the entire truth. Now He said to her, "Daughter, your faith has saved you. Go into peace and be sound from your scourge."

35 While He is still talking, they are coming from the chief of the synagogue saying that "Your daughter died. Why are you still 36 bothering the Teacher?" Now Jesus immediately, disregarding the word being spoken, is saying to the chief of the synagogue, "Fear not, only be believing!"

37 And He lets no one follow with Him except Peter and James, and 38 John, the brother of James. And they are coming into the house of the chief of the synagogue, and He is beholding much tumult and la-
39 mentation and screaming. And entering, He is saying to them, "Why are you making a tumult and lamenting? The little girl did 40 not die, but is drowsing." And they ridiculed Him. Yet He, ejecting all, is taking along the father of the little girl and the mother and those with Him, and He is going in where the little girl 41 was lying. And, holding the little girl's hand, He is saying to her, "Talitha, coumi!" (which is, being construed, "Maiden, I am saying to does not delay conferring salvation until His coming. All these things are significant only when we associate them with the future course of the kingdom proclamation which He was then preaching.

35-37 Compare Lu. 8:49-50.

38-43 Compare Mt. 9:23-36 Lu. 8:51-56.

1-4 Compare Mt. 13:53-57 Lu. 4:16-30.

1 On a former occasion (Lu. 4:16) He had gone to Nazareth to speak, and found His old neighbors and friends actually hostile to Him, so that they sought to push Him over the precipice near which the city was built. At that time He simply walked away through the midst of them. Now He returns. They have doubtless heard of His fame and marvel at His wisdom. Yet such is the perversity of human nature that they could not bring themselves to believe that their townsman and relative could possibly be the Elect of God. It is even so with others who seek to speak the word of God. Spiritual values are at an enormous discount among familiars.

3 See Jn. 6:42 Ga. 1:19.

3 There is a delightful contrast between our Lord, the Servant of the Circumcision (Ro. 15:8) and Paul, His minister for the nations (Ro. 15:16). Christ was a carpenter, Who built permanent habitations on earth, since the Circumcision, to whom He ministered, will have their eonian dwellings on the earth. Paul was a tent maker, for those to whom he was sent have no allotment down here, but are merely camping, waiting for their eonian dwelling in the heavens. In fullest harmony with this is the fact that we do not know Christ according to the flesh. We are not related to Him by physical ties (as the Circumcision were) nor do we enter any but a purely spiritual association, not on earth, but in the heavens. How fitting, then, that we should make His acquaintance, not on earth, in humiliation, but in the heavens, whither we shall go to meet Him. God has wisely planned that all of these physical details shall be counterparts of spiritual truths. Even Paul's own career changed from an itinerant ministry, to an epistolary, spiritual one.

4 See Jn. 4:44.

5-6 Compare Mt. 13:58.

7-13 Compare Mt. 10:5-15 Lu. 9:1-6.

42 you, rouse!"). And straightway the maiden rose and walked about, for she was about twelve years. And straightway they were beside themselves with great amazement.

43 And He cautions them much that no one should be knowing this. And He told them to give her to eat.

6 And He came out thence and is coming to His own country, and His disciples are following Him.

2 And at the coming of a sabbath He begins to teach in the synagogue. And the majority, hearing, were astonished, saying, "Whence has this man all these things? And what wisdom is being given this man! And such powers are occurring by means of his hands!

3 Is not this the carpenter, the son of Mary and the brother of James and Josés and Judas and Simon? And are not his sisters here with us?" And they were snared by Him.

4 And Jesus said to them that "A prophet is not dishonored, except in his own country and among his 5 relatives and in his home." And He could not do one powerful deed there except that, placing hands on them, He cures a few who 6 are ailing. And He marvels because of their unbelief.

And Jesus led them about the 7 villages around, teaching. And He is calling the twelve to Him, and He begins to dispatch them two by two, and gave them authority over 8 unclean spirits. And He charges them that they should be picking up nothing for the road except a club

<sup>8</sup> The wisdom of these instructions is not apparent to us of the West. They were going to their fellow countrymen in the neighboring villages, and it would be much the best way to get to their hearts and gain their confidence to throw themselves wholly on their hospitality. It was a point of honor to entertain wayfarers. The villagers would gladly provide them all with bread, they were not to collect anything by begging, and even small sums of money would be refused for such hospitality as they would receive. An extra pair of sandals would only be a burden, and, as they slept in the same tunic which they wore during the day, one would suffice. Their main equipment was the lack of encumbrances which we regard as necessities.

<sup>10</sup> Indeed, so hospitable were the villagers, that each one wanted the privilege of entertaining a guest, and so much time would be wasted in useless entertainment, as each new host would insist on some special token of hospitality. So the Lord limited them to a single home in each village. Later, our Lord asked them if they had wanted anything, and they answered, "Nothing" (Lu. 22<sup>35</sup>).

<sup>14</sup> John the baptist did not perform miracles or wonders. He came in the spirit and power of Elijah. Now, if he was empowered to perform mighty deeds such as Elijah did, Herod might well be afraid. In that case fifty men might be sent to behead him and lose their lives in the attempt. It was well for Herod that John did no mighty deeds, since the baptist had not been slow to denounce him for his sins, and would not have hesitated to judge him accordingly. It seems that John himself was disappointed in the outcome of his work, especially that he should be imprisoned by the man whom he had denounced. He was an intermediate between the sternness of the prophet and the grace of Christ.

only; no bread, no beggar's bag,
<sup>9</sup> no coppers in the girdle; but having soles bound on; and not to be putting on two tunics.

<sup>10</sup> And He said to them, "Wherever you may be entering into a house, be remaining there till you <sup>11</sup> should be coming out thence. And whatever place should not be receiving you, nor yet they should be hearing you, going out thence, shake off the dirt which is underneath your feet for a testimony to them. Verily, I am saying to you, It will be more tolerable for Sodom or Gomorrah in the day of judgment than for that city."

<sup>13</sup> that they should be repenting. And they cast out many demons, and they rubbed many of the ailing with olive oil, and they were cured.

<sup>14</sup> And Herod the king hears, for His name became manifest, and he said that "John the baptist has been roused from among the dead, and because of this the powers are <sup>15</sup> operating in him." Yet others said that "He is Elijah." Yet others said that "He is a prophet <sup>16</sup> as one of the prophets." Yet Herod, hearing, said that "John, whom I behead, he was roused from among the dead."

<sup>17</sup> For Herod himself dispatches and holds John and binds him in jail, because of Herodias, his brother Philip's wife, seeing that he <sup>18</sup> marries her. For John said to Herod that "You are not allowed <sup>19</sup> to have your brother's wife." Now Herodias hemmed him in, and wanted to kill him, and could not, <sup>20</sup> for Herod feared John, being

 HEROD FEARED THE JOHN

<sup>21</sup> This is a royal scene. The tetrarch and the government of Galilee are present. It is doubtless inserted here to provide a contrast to the rightful King Who had been gathering His aides about Himself, and Who was proclaiming the kingdom of God. Herod demeans himself to such an extent as to have his own daughter dance before them. Such entertainment was usually provided by low class girls, for a self-respecting woman was not supposed to be seen in a company of men. The dancing consisted largely in a series of postures and attitudes which were often indecent. And, because this pleased the coarse taste of his guests, he promised the half of his kingdom! That kingdom could not have been worth much! Nor was the king worth any more. Instead of ruling his realm in righteousness, he himself was ruled by his passions and his pride. On account of his bombastic boast, he is afraid to do what is right. What a coward! What a contrast to that uncrowned King Who walks about his realm, unspotted, unafraid! He provides no entertainment but the truth. He attracts by His holiness. Instead of sacrificing a righteous man on the altar of His folly, He becomes the great Sacrifice for sinners.

aware that he is a just and holy man, and preserved him. And hearing him, he was much perplexed, and heard him with relish.

<sup>21</sup> And an opportune day came when Herod at his birthdays makes a dinner to his magnates, and captains, and to the foremost men of Galilee. And, at Herodias' daughter's entering and dancing, she pleases Herod and those lying back at table with him. Now the king said to the maiden, "Request of me whatever you should be wanting, and I will give it to you."

<sup>23</sup> And he swears to her that "Whatever you should be requesting me, I will give you, to the half of my kingdom."

<sup>24</sup> And, coming out, she said to her mother, "What should I be requesting?" Now she said, "The head of John the baptist." And entering straightway with diligence to the king, she requests, saying, "I want that you forthwith may be giving me the head of John the baptist on a platter." And the king, becoming sorrow-stricken, because of the oaths and those lying back at table with him, does not want to repudiate it.

<sup>27</sup> And straightway the king, dispatching, enjoins a life-guardsmen to bring his head. And, coming away, he beheads him in the jail, and carries his head on a platter, and gives it to the maiden, and the maiden gives it to her mother.

<sup>29</sup> And his disciples, hearing, came and take away his corpse, and they place it in a tomb.

30 Compare Lu. 9:10.

30 As Mark is especially concerned with service, it is in keeping with its character to give some details that particularly pertain to the servants' work. They acknowledged their Lord, as all good servants should, by giving Him a full account of their actions. He, as a reward for their labors, suggests retirement and rest. He and they would leave the multitude, and seek seclusion and refreshment in the wilderness. It is most significant to follow this thought, and see that, when they came to the private place, there were about five thousand men there, and, instead of finding leisure to eat, they feed this vast throng, and, rather than rest themselves, the people repose on the grass and the disciples wait on them. The Lord found rest and refreshment in serving others. Typically, this takes us to the time when the labors of the apostles will be over, and when they, as good shepherds, not only rule over the tribes of Israel, but lead them to verdant oases and to waters of rest. So great is His compassion that He will not refuse to serve until they are satisfied. In that day there will be scant dependence on human provision and foresight. The blessing of God will displace the arduous efforts of men. The very orderliness of the scene suggests the presence of a government which functions perfectly. The numbers used recall to mind the thousand years of His millennial reign, for there was one cake for each thousand men. But, more than all, we must note that the miracle is no strain on His beneficence. His resources are not exhausted by the effort. The fragments which remain fill twelve panners, incredibly more than the five cakes with which He began. So the millennial blessings are by no means the limit of God's power. They are but the prelude to greater glories in the succeeding eon, which will culminate in the consummation at its end, which will be the final demonstration of God's power and man's impotence. During the eons man toils to provide his own necessities but sinks into defeat and death. And it is in death alone that God can act unembarrassed by the aid of His creatures, and unhindered in the activities of His heart.

31-39 Compare Mt. 14:13-21 | Lu. 9:10-17 | Jn. 6:1-13.

30 And the apostles are gathering to Jesus, and they report to Him all, whatever they do, and whatever they teach. And He is saying to them, "You yourselves come hither into a private place in the wilderness and rest briefly", for many were coming and going, and they had not yet an opportunity to eat. And they came away in the ship into a private place in the wilderness.

33 And they perceived them going away, and many recognize them. And they ran together there afoot from all the cities, and they came before them and ran together to Him. And, coming out, Jesus perceived a vast throng, and He has compassion on them, seeing that they were as sheep having no shepherd, and He begins to teach them much.

35 And already coming to be a late hour, His disciples, coming to Him, said that "The place is a wilderness and the hour is already much advanced. Dismiss them that, coming away into the fields and villages around, they should be buying bread for themselves. For they have nothing that they may be eating." Yet, answering, He said to them, "You be giving them to eat." And they are saying to Him, "Should we, coming away, be buying two hundred denarii [$31.40, £6 9s 2d] of bread and give them to eat?"

38 Now He is saying to them, "How many cakes have you? Go and see." And knowing, they are saying to Him, "Five, and two fishes." And He enjoins them to make them all recline, company by company, on the green grass. And they lean back, plot by plot, by hundreds and by fifties.

43 To fully appreciate the import of this sign, it must be compared with a similar one which occurred some time later. The cumulative contrast cannot be fully seen in an inaccurate version, but is readily observed when it is noted that the numbers are confirmed by the kinds of "baskets" and that the twelve large panniers which were left after feeding five thousand with five cakes were packed (Jn. 6<sup>13</sup>) while the seven smaller hampers left after feeding the four thousand with seven cakes, were simply full. And yet, after seeing both of these signs, the disciples worry because they forgot to get bread! It is almost impossible for us to believe that God can do most when man's aid is least.

45 There is a new setting of the scenes. The separation from the disciples and ascent into a mountain for intercession with God pictures His ascension and priestly mediacy for Israel during their apostasy. Their torment in rowing corresponds to the fearful affliction of the time of the end, such as has not yet occurred, neither will occur again. The contrary wind gives us the cause of their torment, the terrible, yet unseen spiritual powers which will seek to destroy them, by stirring up the nations against them. His walking on the sea symbolizes His control of the turbulent upheavals of mankind. When He comes to them the wind dies down. When He comes to Israel the spiritual powers are seized and Satan is bound.

It is blessed to see, in this miracle, a proof of His power over the wind and the waves. It is wonderful to see Him walk on the water. But is it not more marvelous to see in all this a sign of His far greater power over the rebellious hordes of the unseen world and the surging masses of mankind? When He comes again, then He will indeed speak peace to the trembling hearts of His terrified disciples. Such scenes as this will give confidence to His saints in that awful time of trouble which is impending over the earth today. The powers of evil may swoop down upon them. They may stir the nations into still greater hatred of the Jew. Yet those of them who know Him will wait for Him to arise and calm His creatures.

41 And taking the five cakes and the two fishes, looking up into heaven He blesses and breaks up the cakes, and gave to His disciples, that they may place them before them. And He parts the two fishes 42 to all. And they all ate and are 43 satisfied. And they pick up twelve 44 pannierfulls of fragments, and 45 from the fishes. And those eating the cakes were five thousand men.
And straightway He compels
His disciples to step into the ship and precede Him to the other side to Bethsaida, till He is dismissing 46 the throng. And, taking leave of them, He came away into the mountain to pray.

47 And as it became evening the ship was in the middle of the sea, 48 and He was alone on the land. And perceiving them tormented in rowing, for the wind was contrary to them, about the fourth watch of the night, He is coming toward them, walking on the sea. And He wanted to pass by them.

49 Yet those who are perceiving
Him walking on the sea suppose that He is a phantom, and they cry 50 out. For they all perceived Him and were disturbed. Yet straightway He talks with them and is saying to them, "Courage! It is I!
51 Fear not!" And He stepped up to them into the ship and the wind flags. And they are amazed to very excess among themselves and mar-52 veled. For they understand not about the cakes, but their heart was calloused.

53-56 Compare Mt. 14:34-36.

53 The lake of Galilee was so named from its western shore, but it was also called Tiberias, for the city of that name, and Gennesaret, from the region on its northwestern strand. Josephus is eloquent in his praises of the natural advantages of this part of Galilee. Though far below sea level, the climate seems to have been most equable. All sorts of fruits flourished in its fertile soil. It was abundantly watered from copious springs and streamlets. Does not this suggest that this is another prophetic preview of the kingdom, in which the whole earth will produce abundantly of all good things? He has come down from above and rescued His own from the wind and the sea, just as He will save Israel from the clutches of Satan and the nations. Now the time of blessing is due. Hence we find Him in fertile and flourishing Gennesaret, carrying health and blessing wherever He goes. Happy, indeed, was that land, for He Who had stilled the fears of His people, now lays His healing hand on their afflictions, a prophecy of the day when the Sun of righteousness shall rise with healing in His wings (Mal. 4:2). The merest contact with His robe brings salvation. Touching the tassel entitles all to participate in His finished righteousness.

1-13 Compare Mt. 15:1-9.

1 It was the custom to eat with the fingers. No forks or spoons were used in conveying food to the mouth. Yet the Pharisees were not worried about cleanliness or table manners, but about conformity to tradition. Instead of cleansing the inside of the hands which touched the food, they rinsed the outside, clenching their fists when they washed. Going to market involved contact with others, which they deemed contaminating, hence they would not eat until they had been sprinkled. The baptizing of cups and ewers and copper vessels and couches, was not for cleanliness, but ceremonial purity, and the most perfunctory application of water in almost any way was deemed highly devout. The word baptism is really Greek, and differs from sprinkling or washing or bathing only in the fact that it was ceremonial rather than practical. Its cleansing was spiritual, not physical.

53 And ferrying to land, they came to Gennesaret and are moored.
54 And at their coming out of the ship, the men of that place straightway recognizing Him, ran about that whole country and begin to be carrying about those who are ill on pallets to where they heard that 55 He is. And wherever He went into villages or cities or fields, they place the infirm in the markets, and entreated Him that they should be touching even the tassel of His cloak. And as many as ever touch it were saved.

7 And the Pharisees and some of the scribes coming from Jerusalem
2 are assembling with Him. And perceiving some of His disciples, that they are eating bread with contaminated (that is, unwashed)
3 hands (for the Pharisees and all the Jews are eating not except they should be washing the clenched hands, holding the tradition of the 4 elders; and from the market, except they should be sprinkled, they are eating not; and there are many other things which they accepted to hold, the baptizing of cups and ewers and copper vessels and of
5 couches), the Pharisees also, and the scribes are inquiring of Him, "Wherefore are your disciples not walking in accord with the tradition of the elders, but are eating bread with unwashed hands?"
6 Yet He, answering, said to them that "Ideally Isaiah prophesies concerning you hypocrites, as it is written that

6-7 Compare Isa. 29<sup>13</sup>.

6 The religious Jew delighted in forms and ceremonies, pious ejaculations and protracted prayers, yet at heart he was not vitally concerned with the things of God. No better test could have been made than to bring them into the presence of Him Who was the Image of God and the Word of God. Instead of worshipping, they criticised Him.

7 The writer of these notes cannot help uttering a heartfelt prayer that they will never be taken for more than what they are intended to be—suggestive thoughts which lead to and not from the sacred text. He would rather they would all vanish than that they should stand between any one and the living oracles. May we never be tainted with the spirit of the ancient Rabbis who did not scruple to place their words above the sacred scrolls. In the Talmud we read: "The words of the scribes are more noble than the words of the law; for the words of the law are both hard and easy [to understand], but the words of the scribes are all easy." Another traditional saying was "He who deals with scripture does a thing indifferent; he who reads the Mishna has a reward; but he who devotes himself to the Gemara is most meritorious of all." In the same way the commentaries and confessions and creeds of Christendom have a stronger hold on the hearts of many of His saints, than the inspired scriptures. May He grant that many will return to the fountain undefiled!

8 Sad to say, even in this day some of the saints have been led to practically repudiate God's word for the tenets of those who propose to explain it. No teacher is worthy of the name who supplants the scriptures.

9 The "Corban" was the approach offering, by means of which the offerer sought the favor of God. All a young man had to do to be free from the support of his parents was to say this word and he was free from all further obligation. In theory he was giving God a greater place than his parents. In fact, he was not only dishonoring his progenitors, but God, and invalidating His law.

14-23 Compare Mt. 15<sup>10-20</sup>.

"This people is honoring Me with the lips

Yet their heart is having its fill at a distance from Me.

7 Yet in vain are they revering Me, Teaching for teachings the directions of men.'

8 For, deserting the precept of God, you are holding the tradition of men. Baptizing ewers and cups and many such like things you are doing."

9 And He said to them, "Ideally you are repudiating the precept of God, that you should be keeping 10 your tradition. For Moses said, 'Be honoring your father and your mother', and 'He who is speaking evil of father or mother, let him cease in death'. Yet you are saying,
11 'If a man should be saying to father or mother, "Corban (which is "oblation") whatever you should be 12 benefited by me"', you no longer are letting him do anything for his 13 father or his mother, invalidating the word of God by your tradition which you give beside, and many such like things you are doing."

14 And calling the throng to Him again, He said to them, "Hear Me
15 all, and understand. There is nothing outside of a man, going into him, which can contaminate him, but what is going out of a man is 16 what is contaminating the man. If anyone has ears to be hearing, let 17 him be hearing!" And when He entered into the house from the throng, His disciples inquired of 18 Him about the parable. And He is saying to them, "Are you also, thus unintelligent? Are you not yet apprehending that everything from the outside, going into a man, can-

<sup>20</sup> The supercilious Pharisees, who were so concerned lest they should be contaminated by contact with their inferiors, or by eating food with hands ceremonially unclean, were themselves the most contaminating of all. Their pride and evil reasonings were most defiling even when they complained of the disciples who ate with unwashed hands.

<sup>24</sup> Our Lord now comes near the borders of the land. This is most instructive and interesting to all who are outside the pale of the promises. Hitherto He had been blessing His own people and proselytes to Judaism. Now He comes into contact with a Greek, a Syro-Phenician woman. How will He act in the presence of this foreigner? He shows none of the arrogant hatred of the Jew, yet insists that she take the place to which the prophets assign the nations. She has no right at the table or to the food on it. This is for Israel. Our Lord was a Servant of the Circumcision (Ro. 15<sup>8</sup>). He was not sent but to the lost sheep of the house of Israel. He had nothing for this alien. Instead of defending her nation and claiming equality with the favored Jew, she acknowledges their priority and superiority. But she was satisfied that His blessing was so bountiful that Israel could not contain it, and would leave an overplus for the nations. Thus she glorified God and believed His word. Such is the blessing of the nations in the kingdom.

Even during Paul's itinerant ministry, the nations partook of Israel's spiritual things. They were debtors, (Ro. 15<sup>27</sup>). In the millennium they will be blessed with and through Israel. But, now that the secret of the present administration of grace has been revealed, we are no longer guests. We are not puppies, glad to get the scraps, but members of God's family (Eph. 2<sup>19</sup>). The Syro-Phenician woman's place was far below Israel's. The transcendent riches of God's grace which are ours in Christ Jesus place us immeasurably above them. During the period from the call of Saul to his imprisonment in Rome the nations were Israel's guests, but gradually, as Israel's provision failed, they were given food of their own, until they needed none from Israel.

<sup>19</sup> not contaminate him, seeing that it is not going into his heart but into the bowels, and is going out into the latrine—cleansing all foods?"

<sup>20</sup> Yet He said that "What is going out of a man, that is contaminat-

<sup>21</sup> ing the man. For inside, out of the heart of men, are going out evil reasonings, prostitutions, thefts,

<sup>24</sup> Now, rising thence, He came away into the frontiers of Tyre and Sidon. And entering into a house, He wants no one to know

<sup>25</sup> and He cannot elude them, but straightway, a woman, whose little daughter had an unclean spirit, hearing about Him, entering, prostrates at His feet. Now the woman

<sup>26</sup> was a Greek, a native of Syro-Phoenicia, and she asked Him that He should be casting the demon out of

<sup>27</sup> her daughter. Yet Jesus said to her, "Let the children first be satisfied, for it is not ideal to take the children's bread and cast it to the puppies."

<sup>28</sup> Now she answered and is saying to Him, "Yes, Lord. For the puppies also, underneath the table, are eating of the little children's scraps." And He said to

<sup>29</sup> her, "Because of this saying, go. The demon has come out of your daughter." And coming away in-

31-37 Compare Mt. 15:29-31.

32 The meeting with the Greek woman of Syro-Phenicia suggests a phase of kingdom service for which Israel, in our Lord's day, was utterly incapable. In Jehovah's day the Lord's word will go forth from Jerusalem. The evangel will be proclaimed in every corner of the earth. The knowledge of Jehovah will cover the earth as the waters cover the sea. It will be the greatest missionary program the earth has ever seen, and the first to be fully successful.

But the nation of Israel in our Lord's day was no more fitted to proclaim the evangel than a deaf-mute. They did not hear Him themselves, and they would not proclaim His message because they could not hear. This is the setting which suggests itself when they bring the Lord a deaf-mute, and He heals him. The peculiar method of healing has remained quite a mystery to theologians, who are at a loss why He should not heal him with a word, instead of putting His fingers in his ears and touching his tongue. Some have suggested that saliva is a healing agent! But the saliva was not put on his tongue. Little significance can be gathered from His actions unless we interpret their symbolism along rational lines.

There are three elements in their preparation for the millennial ministry: His works, His words, His sufferings. His works will force themselves on their attention. This is signified by His thrusting His fingers in the deaf man's ears. His words are signified by the saliva which came out of His mouth, and, accompanied by the touching of his tongue, enable them to talk. He will put His words in their mouths. His groan are the signs of His sufferings. Through them Israel will be saved. And the unrestrainable proclamation was but a small rehearsal of that glorious day when the glad tidings will be heard in every land. The Jews are the great missionary nation. They are now being schooled in the great university of experience for the future evangelization of the world. They are inured to every climate, familiar with every language, at home in every country. Sustained by the authority of the King of kings, they will carry out the first successful world missionary movement.

to her own house, she found the little girl cast on the couch, and the demon come out.

- 31 And again coming out of the boundaries of Tyre, He came through Sidon to the sea of Galilee, amidst the boundaries of Decapolis. And they are bringing to Him a deaf-mute and stammerer, and they are entreating Him that He may place His hand on him. And, getting him away from the throng privately, He thrusts His fingers into his ears, and, spitting, touches his tongue. And, looking up into heaven, He groans, and is saying to him, "Ephphatha", which is, "Be opened". And immediately his hearing was opened and straightway the bond of his tongue was loosed, and he talked correctly. And He cautions them that they may be telling no one, yet, as much as He cautioned them, they rather proclaimed it more exceedingly. And they were superexceedingly astonished, saying, "He has done all ideally, and the deaf-mutes He is making to be hearing, and the dumb to be talking."

- 8 In those days, there being again a vast throng having nothing they may be eating, He, calling to His disciples, is saying to them, "I have compassion on the throng, seeing that already three days they are remaining with Me and they have nothing they may be eating. And should I be dismissing them to their homes fasting, they will faint on the road, and some of them have arrived from afar."

1 Why were there two different occasions on which our Lord fed a great company of people? Why five cakes in one instance and seven in the other? Great as is the miracle performed on these two occasions, we are not satisfied until we can read the sign. What did it signify?

Man shall not live on bread only, but on every word which proceeds out of the mouth of God. The written and the living Word are the true bread of God. The living Word cannot be divided. But the written word is composed of separate books. These may well be represented by the cakes given to the multitude.

These signs are in the wilderness, hence cannot be in the kingdom, but give us His provision for His people before the kingdom comes. The kingdom testimony is divided into two distinct periods, one, in the first century, which is past, and one, still to come, at the end of the eon, which is future. The first sign, where there were five cakes, brings before us the past means of subsistence, of the kingdom saints, the first three "gospels", Acts and Hebrews. (John is intended for the kingdom itself.) It was this spiritual food that sufficed for so many, and left such an abundant surplus. May we not distribute these scraps to the nations, according to the previous sign? Nothing is said of what was done with them, but we know that the nations came in for some blessing, as recorded in the book of Acts.

God has made provision for the future wilderness needs of His kingdom people by means of seven epistles, corresponding to the seven cakes in the second sign. These are James, first and second Peter, first, second and third John, and Jude. Though the scraps are not so abundant, we know that there will be some among the nations who will find some crumbs even at that time.

6-10 Compare Mt. 15<sup>35-39</sup>.

11-21 Compare Mt. 16:1-12. See Lu. 12:1-3.

12 After giving them this marvelous sign they ask for a sign! His exclamation shows how hopeless He thought them. Suppose He should? They would not recognize it. It is useless to speak to the deaf or put a picture before the eyes of the blind.

that "Whence can any one satisfy these with bread here in a wilderness?" And He inquired of them, "How many cakes have you?"

Now they say "Seven". And He is charging the throng to be leaning back on the earth, and taking the seven cakes, giving thanks, He breaks and gave to His disciples, that they may place them before them. And they place them before the throng. And they had a few small fishes. And blessing them, He said, "Place these also before them." And they all ate and are satisfied. And they pick up seven hampers of the surplus fragments.

Now those eating were about four thousand. And He dismisses them.

And straightway He, stepping into the ship with His disciples, came into the parts of Dalmanutha. And the Pharisees came out and begin to discuss with Him, seeking to see a sign from Him from heaven, trying Him. And sighing in His spirit, He is saying, "Why is this generation seeking for a sign? Verily I am saying to you, If a sign shall be given to this generation—!" And leaving them, again stepping into a ship, He came away to the other side.

And they forgot to get bread, and, except one cake, they had none with them in the ship. And He cautioned them, saying, "See! Beware of the leaven of the Pharisees and the leaven of Herod."

And they reasoned with one another, saying that "We have no bread!" And, knowing it, Jesus is saying to them, "Why are you reasoning that you have no bread?"

<sup>19</sup> The comparison here suggested by our Lord is most striking and important. He is seeking to show them that God's blessing comes in inverse ratio to human provision. This is the highest mathematics, and quite beyond the powers of the unspiritual mind. If reasoning could devise a way to satisfy five thousand with five cakes and leave a remainder, then the remainder would be smaller than seven divided among only four thousand. But the opposite is true. Every word used, when carefully translated, emphasizes the great truth that the less of man's work in God's operations the greater the work and the larger the excess. The following list of words will help to fix this on our minds and in our hearts:

five cakes	seven cakes
five thousand	four thousand twelve panniers	seven hampers
packed (Jn. 6:13)	filled

Let us not be like the apostles who failed to figure out the formula for these equations, and could not apply it in their own experience.

<sup>22</sup> Many explanations have been offered for this most peculiar method of healing, all of which seem to be no clearer than the sight of the blind man at first. It is questionable whether any explanation can or ought to be offered on natural grounds. The Lord could have healed him completely in an instant, but He did not choose to do so. It is evidently another sign, and we will find its meaning in the restoration of Israel's spiritual sight. The cure was accomplished by that which proceeded out of His mouth—the word of God. As was so often the case there was an interval. At first the blind man's sight was blurred. Later he saw clearly. So it was with Israel. In the past they saw that there would be a gradual growth, like a tree, until the kingdom. But it will take another application of His hands in the future to restore them. Then they will no longer be puzzled by the course of events. Throughout the past proclamation of the kingdom, especially in the Pentecostal era, the prospect of the kingdom was vague. It will not be so at the time of the end.

27-31 Compare Mt.16:13-21 Lu.9:18-22.

Are you not yet apprehending, neither understanding? Is your <sup>18</sup> heart still calloused? Having eyes, are you not observing? And, having ears, are you not hearing? And are you not remembering?
<sup>19</sup> When I break the five cakes [of bread] for the five thousand, how many panniers full of fragments do you pick up?" They are saying <sup>20</sup> to Him, "Twelve". "And when the seven cakes [of bread] are for the four thousand, how many hampers filled up with fragments do you pick up?" And they are <sup>21</sup> saying to Him, "Seven". And He said to them, "How is it you are not yet understanding?"
<sup>22</sup> And they are coming to Bethsaida, and are bringing to Him a blind man and entreating Him that He should be touching him.
<sup>23</sup> And getting hold of the blind man's hand, He brings him outside of the village, and spitting into his eyes, placing hands on him, He inquired of him, "Are <sup>24</sup> you observing anything?" And looking up, he said "I am observing men, that I am seeing as trees, walking." Thereafter again He <sup>25</sup> places hands on his eyes, and he is keen-sighted and was restored and he looked at everything distinctly.
<sup>26</sup> And He dispatches him into his home, saying, "You may neither be entering the village, nor be speaking to anyone in the village."
<sup>27</sup> And Jesus and His disciples came out into the villages of Caesarea Philippi, and on the way He inquired of His disciples, saying to them, "Who are men saying that I <sup>28</sup> am?" Now those speaking say to Him, "John the baptist", and others 'Elijah', yet others that He

<sup>34</sup> Not only does the Lord now look forward to sufferings for Himself, but His followers also must taste of His cup. While proclaiming the kingdom, they anticipated wearing a crown. Now they must renounce all of self and bear a cross.

<sup>35</sup> Soul never means life. Life depends on spirit. Soul is the conscious sensation resulting from the union of the body with the spirit. He who wants to save his soul, will seek his own pleasure and comfort and shrink from self-denial and cross-bearing. In the kingdom there will be every delight the soul can crave. Hence the disciple that does not suffer for His sake and so loses his place in the kingdom, saves his soul for the time, but loses it in the kingdom. Anyone who should gain the whole world, yet not be able to enjoy it, loses his soul.

He inquired of them, "Now you, who are you saying that I am?"

And answering, Peter is saying to Him, "Thou art the Christ, the <sup>30</sup> Son of God." And He warns them, that they may be telling no <sup>31</sup> one about Him. And He begins to teach them that the Son of Mankind must be suffering much and be rejected by the elders and the chief priests and the scribes, and be killed, and after three days rise. <sup>32</sup> And He spoke the word boldly. And Peter, taking Him to him, begins to be rebuking Him. Now, <sup>33</sup> Jesus, being turned about and perceiving His disciples, rebukes Peter, and is saying, "Go behind Me, satan! seeing that you are not disposed to that which is of God but that which is of men."

<sup>34</sup> And, calling the throng to Him, together with His disciples, He said to them, "If anyone wants to come after Me, let him renounce himself and pick up his own cross and <sup>35</sup> be following Me. For whoever should be wanting to save his own soul, will be destroying it, yet whoever shall be destroying his soul on account of Me and of the <sup>36</sup> evangel, will be saving it. For what is it benefiting a man to gain the whole world and forfeit <sup>37</sup> his soul? For what may a man give in exchange for his own soul? <sup>38</sup> For whoever should be ashamed of Me and My words in this adulterous and sinning generation, of him the Son of Mankind also will be ashamed, whenever He may be coming in the glory of His Father, with the holy messengers."

<sup>1</sup> It is most fitting that the kingdom proclamation should close with a demonstration of its glory and power. It should have come immediately and for all, yet now it is put far into the future. Some should live to see it. This is shortened to six typical days, a week of work, leading up to the seventh day, or sabbatism, as the kingdom is called. Only Peter, James, and John are taken, for they represent three different classes in Israel who will enter the kingdom. James stands for those who died in faith in the past, for he was assassinated by Herod (Ac. 12<sup>1</sup>). Peter, by his epistles, ministers to those who will be in the great affliction of the end time. He also dies a martyr. John suggests those who will live through the end time and enter the kingdom alive (Jn. 21<sup>18-23</sup>). These all enter the kingdom and behold His glory, and meet Moses and Elijah, representatives of the two ministries, the law and the prophets.

The glory of the kingdom did not consist in the lightnings of Sinai, or spectacular scenes of bliss, but in the transformation of Christ. No longer was His glory veiled beneath the form more marred than any man's, but the immanent splendor of His person shone through His glistening garments.

<sup>5</sup> Alas, poor Peter! The presence of Moses and Elijah, who were held in highest veneration by the Jews, quite overcame his reason. The solitary sublimity of the transformed Christ should have so filled his vision that Moses and Elijah would hardly appear. The kingdom is not going to be a triumvirate. Moses and Elijah will be completely eclipsed by Christ. It is the same error that the unbelieving nation has made. They thought Him a prophet or even Elijah. Why should Peter put them on a level with Him? There must be only one tabernacle in Israel, and that one is Christ Himself, the embodiment of the complement of the Deity (Col. 2<sup>9</sup>). No wonder a cloud blotted out the vision, and a voice corrected his misconception. No longer were they to hearken to the prophets. "This is My beloved Son. Be hearing Him!"

<sup>9</sup> And He said to them, "Verily, I am saying to you, that there are some standing here who under no circumstances should be tasting death till they should be perceiving the kingdom of God having come in power." And after six days Jesus is taking aside Peter and James and John and is bringing them up into a very high mountain alone privately. And He was transformed in front of them. And His garments became glistening, very white, as snow, such as no fuller on earth is able thus to whiten. And Elijah, with Moses, was seen by them, and they were conferring with Jesus.

<sup>5</sup> And answering, Peter is saying to Jesus, "Rabbi, it is ideal for us to be here! And we should be making three tabernacles, for Thee one, and Moses one, and Elijah one." <sup>6</sup> For he was not aware what he should answer, for they became <sup>7</sup> terrified. And there came a cloud, overshadowing them. And a voice came out of the cloud, saying, "This is My beloved Son. Be hearing Him!" <sup>8</sup> And suddenly, looking about, they no longer perceived anyone, except Jesus only, with themselves.

<sup>9</sup> And at their descending from the mountain, He cautions them that they should not be relating to any one what they perceived, except when the Son of Mankind should be rising from among the <sup>10</sup> dead. And they hold the word, discussing with themselves what is the rising from among the dead. <sup>11</sup> And they inquired of Him, saying that "The Pharisees and the scribes

11-13 Compare Mt. 17<sup>10-13</sup>.

11 The Minor Prophets close with the promise (Mal. 4<sup>5,6</sup>):

Lo! I send you Elijah the prophet
Before the great and fearful day of Jehovah comes
And he restores the heart of the fathers to the sons,
And the heart of the sons to their fathers,
Lest I should come and smite the earth to its doom.

John the baptist came in the spirit and power of Elijah, and would have done his work had the people repented. But he did not exercise the destructive power of that prophet. So Elijah must come again, before the kingdom is established. There is little doubt that one of the two witnesses of the end time is Elijah (Un. 11<sup>3-12</sup>), for they perform similar prodigies. Both cause a drought for three and a half years. Both destroy their enemies by supernatural fire. Elijah did not die, but was taken up heavenward in a tempest (2 Ki. 2<sup>11</sup>). His appearance on the mount, an actual spectator of Christ's glory, qualifies Him for the testimony which the two witnesses will uphold.

14 Having descended from the mountain, the Lord now faces Golgotha. Instead of the power and glory, He speaks of weakness and shame. He will not allow them to even mention what they have seen, until the time to proclaim the kingdom once more arrives. The first symptom of this change has already been made manifest to the disciples He has left behind. They are unable to cast out the demon from the dumb boy. Their power over the unseen world is on the wane! The demons have perceived the unbelief of the nation, and are well aware of the great change which is coming over His ministry. He no longer wishes to display His power, or that of His apostles. Rather, He is laboring to teach them a far more difficult lesson—that of His weakness and death. He does not wish them to go about proclaiming the kingdom, so He withdraws the power that they had received over demons.

19 It is not that they had not faith enough to cast out the demon, but they refused to recognize the change which are saying that Elijah must come first." Now He avers to them, "Elijah, indeed, coming first, is restoring all. And how is it written of the Son of Mankind that He may be suffering much and may be scorned? But I am saying to you that Elijah, also, has come, and they do to him whatever they wanted, according as it is written of him."

14 And coming to the disciples, they perceived a vast throng about them, and scribes discussing with them. And straightway the entire throng, perceiving Him, were overawed and racing toward Him, 16 saluted Him. And He inquires of the scribes, "What are you discussing with yourselves?" And one of the throng answered Him, "Teacher, I bring my son to Thee, having a dumb spirit. And wherever it may be getting him down, it is tearing him, and he is frothing and grating his teeth, and is withering away. And I say to Thy disciples that they should be casting it out and they have not the strength."

19 Now, answering, He is saying to them, "O unbelieving generation! Till when shall I be with you? Till when shall I bear with you? 20 Bring him to Me." And they bring him to Him, and the spirit, perceiving Him, straightway violently convulses him, and, falling on the earth, he wallowed, frothing. 21 And He inquires of his father, "How long a time is it since this has come upon him?" Now he said 22 "From a little boy. And often it cast him into the fire also, and into waters, that it should be destroying him. But if Thou art anyway able, help us, having compassion on

His new attitude involved, which would keep them from attempting such a miracle. The great lesson in this sign is that the demon will not come out of Israel under the ministry of the apostles, as set forth in the book of Acts. Their effort is a failure. Even after that there is a delay, during which there are convulsions. The demon will go out of the nation in the midst of the severest throes, leaving it almost lifeless. The experience of the demoniac is a parallel to the experience of Israel, beginning with the renewed proclamation of the kingdom by the apostles, during the Lord's absence. Hence there is such insistence on faith and such a protracted period taken up in his healing. We may be sure that the apostles did not understand the significance of their own failure, neither could He explain this to them at that time without revealing secrets God had reserved. Had they known it they could not have entered wholeheartedly into their Pentecostal ministry. It is just such scenes as this, so meaningless and tedious to unbelief, yet so significant to the anointed eye, which overwhelm us with a sense of the divine presence on the sacred page.

30-32 Compare Mt.17:22,23 Lu.9:43-45.

30 How unlike his former journeys which were crowded with the powers of the coming eon! He spread abroad blessing with a lavish hand. The sick sought Him and were cured. The unclean spirits left at His slightest word. He scarcely had time to eat or sleep, so fully was He occupied in relieving the infirmities of the people. There is a season for every act under the sun; a time when it should, and a time when it should not be done. It had pleased God to testify to the proclamation of the kingdom by appropriate powers and signs. But now that season is past. The heralding has been hushed. The signs cease. He walks a lonely Wanderer, rejected, proscribed, threatened. Seeking to enlist the sympathy of His disciples, His words thrust them from Him, for they cannot comprehend, and His manner makes them afraid to ask. Lonely in the midst of His people! Lonely in the midst of His intimate friends! And so He sets His face toward the cross whose chill shadow is already casting its pall about Him.

23 us!" Now Jesus said to him, "If you are able to believe—all is possible to him who is believing."

24 Straightway, crying, the father of the little boy said, with tears, "I am believing! Help me in unbelief!"

25 Now Jesus, perceiving that the throng is racing on together, rebukes the unclean spirit, saying to it, "Dumb and deaf-mute spirit, I am enjoining you to come out of him, and by no means may you be entering into him any longer."

26 And crying and convulsing him much, it came out, and he became as if dead, so that the majority said that he died. Now Jesus, holding his hand, rouses him, and he rose.

28 And at His entering the house, His disciples inquired privately of Him, "Wherefore could we not cast it out?" And He said to them, "This species can come out by nothing except by prayer and fasting."

30 And coming out thence, they went along through Galilee, and He did not want any one to know.

31 For He taught His disciples and said to them that "The Son of Mankind is being betrayed into the hands of men, and they will be killing Him. And being killed, after three days He will rise." Yet they were ignorant of the declaration, and they were afraid to inquire of Him.

33 And they came into Capernaum, and, being come into the house, He inquired of them, "What did you reason with yourselves on the road?" Yet they were silent, for they argued with one another on the

33-34 Compare Mt.18:Lu.9:46.

34 While the Son of God was in sad contemplation of the deep humiliation of the cross, His disciples were puffed up with pride, arguing about their own greatness. They could hardly have been further removed from Him in spirit. He Who had been above all was now sinking beneath all. Higher than the archangels was His primeval position; lower than the lowest of sinners is the appalling place to which His path is winding. Higher! is the selfish shout of man, intent on his own exaltation, though he tread his fellows under foot to reach his proud pinnacle. Lower! was the cry of Christ, intent on the weal of others, though He be trodden in the mire to serve them. True greatness can never be attained by striving for self. It lies only in service for others.

35-37 Compare Mt.18:26Lu.9:47,4822:24-30.

38-41 Compare Lu. 9:49-50.

38 It was not long since the disciples had failed to cast out a demon. They were doubtless jealous of this man, for they wished to monopolize all the privileges of discipleship. The spirit of this act of the apostles has been a curse in Christendom. We are apt to think that only those who follow with us are countenanced by the Lord, or have a right to a place in His service. But the incident seems to point to a wider thought. The Lord evidently was not present when John used his authority to stop the offending miracle-worker. So, after His ascension, a whole group of men arose with Paul at their head, who did not follow with the twelve. It took much careful work to persuade the apostles that he had a ministry from the Lord as well as they (Gal. 2:2). There was a great work done, including the actual casting out of demons (Ac. 16:18), in which the twelve apostles had no part. We are not associated with the twelve apostles, but with this group. Because the believing Jews would not allow the nations a place in the kingdom or the pardon of sins, their own pardon was recalled. The work here hinted at and commended by our Lord in time displaced the ministry of the twelve apostles. It is only by a grasp of their dispensational application that we may read these signs.

35 road as to who is greater. And, being seated, He summons the twelve and is saying to them, "If any one wants to be first, he will be last of all, and servant of all." And taking a little child, He stands it in their midst, and clasping it in His arms, said to them, "Whoever should be receiving one of such little children on My name, is receiving Me: and whoever should be receiving Me, is not receiving Me, but Him Who commissions Me."

38 John averred to Him, saying, "Teacher, we perceived someone casting out demons in Thy name, who is not following with us, and we forbade him, seeing that he followed not with us." Yet Jesus said, "Be not forbidding him, for there is no one who will be doing powers on My name, and will be able swiftly to speak evil of Me. For who is not against us is for us. For whoever should be giving you a cup of water to drink in the Name, seeing that you are Christ's, verily I am saying to you that he should by no means be losing his wages.

42 And whoever should be snaring one of these little ones who are believing into Me, it were ideal for him rather if a millstone requiring an ass to turn it were lying about his neck and he were cast into the sea. And if your hand should ever be snaring you, strike it off. It is ideal for you to be entering into life maimed, rather than, having two hands, to come away into Gehenna, into the inextinguishable fire where their worm is not ceasing and the fire is not being extinguished. And if your foot should

<sup>45</sup> Gehenna, the valley of Hinnom just below Jerusalem, must not be confounded with the lake of fire, or Tartarus, or the unseen, commonly called "hell" or hades. Its fire and worms are quite as literal as can be, for the city offal is burned there. No living beings are cast into this incinerator. It is the worms, which feed on the carcasses of criminals, who do not die. The fire is kept burning at all times. This will be the place where bodies of executed malefactors will be cast during the kingdom era.

<sup>49</sup> Since the kingdom has been rejected, entrance into it is necessarily a path of judgment. Salt is a preservative. During the kingdom era corruption will be stayed. The salt that counteracts the corruption of that day will be fire, a judgment. As already elaborated, nothing that offends can enter that kingdom. It must be judged. If not, it will drag down those who harbor it into Gehenna and its fires.

<sup>1</sup> Our Lord is now in Perea, over which Herod held sway. Herod had dismissed his wife for no other reason than that he wanted to marry Herodias, his brother's wife. It was John the baptist's protest against this which really cost him his life. Hence the Pharisees hope to put the Lord on the horns of a dilemma. If He countenances Herod's act, that could easily be used against Him. If He condemns it, that could be used to inflame the Herodians, if not Herod himself. But the Lord is equal to the occasion. He is greater than Moses. He knew the hardness of their hearts. He, therefore, revokes the law, and bases the union of man and wife on the original creation. Adam was both male and female in one body when he was first created (Gen.1<sup>27</sup>). Later God took from Adam, not a rib, but a cell, and builded a woman. Marriage is the reversal of this. A male and a female are joined together to make one complete human being, as Adam was at his creation. God, Who took Eve out of Adam, and be snaring you, strike it off. For it is ideal for you to be entering into life maimed or lame, rather than, having two feet, to be cast into the Gehenna, into the inextinguishable fire where their worm is not deceasing, and the fire is not being extinguished. And if your eye should be snaring you, cast it out. It is ideal for you to be entering into the kingdom of God one-eyed, rather than, having two eyes, to be cast into the Gehenna of fire where their worm is not deceasing and the fire is not being extinguished. For every one will be salted with fire, and every sacrifice will be salted with salt. Salt is ideal, yet if the salt should be becoming savorless, with what will you be seasoning it? Have salt in yourselves and be at peace with one another."

<sup>10</sup> And rising from thence, He is coming into the boundaries of Judea and the other side of the Jordan, and again throngs are going to Him, and again, as He had been accustomed, He taught them. And the Pharisees, approaching, inquired of Him if a husband is allowed to dismiss a wife, trying Him. Yet answering, He said to them, "What does Moses direct you?" Yet they say, "Moses permits us to write a scroll of divorce, and to dismiss her." And answering, Jesus said to them, "In view of your hardheartedness he writes this precept for you. Yet from the beginning of creation God makes them male and female. On this account a man will be leaving his father and mother and will be joined to his wife, and the two will be for thus made the separation, yokes them together again in marriage. They become a physiological unit. No man should destroy such a union. Only one cause was given by our Lord as a ground for divorce (Mt.5<sup>32</sup>). In this day of grace even this is not valid. Only desertion by an unbelieving husband or wife breaks the bonds of matrimony (1 Co.7<sup>15</sup>). The reason for this lies in the character of this economy. It is the opposite of the administration of a stony law over hard hearts. God is now dealing in pure, unadulterated grace, which forgives offenses and pleads for reconciliation in the most desperate circumstances. This should be reflected in all our social relations, especially in the marriage bond.

<sup>13</sup> Children were not supposed to be capable of understanding Him, hence, hardly candidates for the kingdom. But they had the very essential which was so lacking among His disciples at this time. They had implicit faith in what they were told, and trusted those who told them. The disciples, alas, were also immature in understanding. They did not apprehend the need of the cross which He was seeking to sink into their hearts. Yet they lacked the child-like faith which believes, though it cannot comprehend.

<sup>20</sup> The incident of the rich man contains the line of thought suggested by the little children. He was their opposite. He had confidence in himself, in his accomplishments, in his ideas. He wanted to work his way into the kingdom. As a matter of fact what he had done so far had resulted in a condition quite the opposite of the kingdom. His many acquisitions, the result of his activities, meant so much loss to his poorer neighbors. He had been anything but good to them. Had the kingdom come at that moment, he must have lost all except his own allotment. If then, he really had faith in that kingdom, and wished to enter it and enjoy eonian life, the only practical way to prove it would be to do all he could to bring about kingdom conditions. It would be absolutely impossible to hold on one flesh, so that they are no longer two, but one flesh. What God, then, yokes together, let no man be separating."

<sup>10</sup> And in the house again, His disciples inquired of Him concerning this. And He is saying to them, "Whoever should be dismissing his wife and should be marrying another is committing adultery with her. And if she, dismissing her husband, should be marrying another, she is committing adultery."

<sup>13</sup> And they brought little children to Him that He should be touching them, yet the disciples rebuke them. Yet Jesus, perceiving it, resents it, and said to them, "Let the little children be coming to Me, and be forbidding them not, for of such is the kingdom of God. Verily, I am saying to you, whoever should not be receiving the kingdom of God as a little child, may under no circumstances be entering into it." And clasping them in His arms, He is placing His hands on them in benediction.

<sup>17</sup> And at His going out into the road, lo! one certain rich man, running toward Him and falling on his knees, inquired of Him, "Good Teacher! What shall I be doing that I should be enjoying the allotment of eonian life?" Now Jesus said to him, "Why are you terming Me good? No one is good except One, God. You are acquainted with the precepts, 'You should not be murdering; you should not be committing adultery; you should not be stealing; you should not be testifying falsely; you should not be cheating; be honoring your father and mother.'"

<sup>20</sup> Now he averred to Him, "Teacher, all these I maintain from my youth." Now Jesus, looking at

to his lands in that day, for it will be redistributed according to each one's need. The disciples in the Pentecostal era acted on the principles of the kingdom. They did not sell their own allotments, but disposed of the allotments of others which they had acquired, using the proceeds to help those who were in need (Ac. 245).

23 All human kingdoms have a high place for those who have wealth. They have no difficulty in entering. Indeed, it has come to the point where the wealth of the world is the controlling factor in government. Policies are dictated, laws are passed, treaties are made, wars are fought, all to protect invested capital or to promote the accumulation of wealth. The majority of mankind have become the slaves of the minority, who hold them by bonds of gold. There is no human remedy. In God's kingdom all this will be reversed. No rich man, as such, will enter, for his riches will have been destroyed in the previous judgment era, or will not be recognized. But the greatest hindrance is the lack of confidence in Christ.

24 See Job 3124Ps.496-91 Ti.617-19.

27 See Jer.3217Lu.137.

28-31 Compare Mt.1927-30Lu.1828-30.

30 This has proven a stumbling block to many, who seek to apply it to the present grace. They have left all, but do not receive either a hundred fold or indeed a hundredth part of what they have lost. The reference is strictly confined to the Jewish disciples in the era in which the kingdom was proclaimed. After Pentecost the disciples had all things in common, so that all had an interest in and enjoyment of hundreds of houses and fields (Ac. 244432), being bound by more than natural ties to thousands of fellow believers, who cared for their welfare, so that there were none indigent among them (Ac. 434). There was a daily dispensation which took in all, even the widows who might have been in sore straits under any other dispensation. But today there is no temporal profit in standing true. Our greatest privhim, loves him, and said to him, "In one thing you are still wanting. Go, sell whatever you have, and be giving to the poor, and you will be having treasure in heaven. And come hither: be following Me, 22 picking up the cross." Yet he, being somber at the word, came away sorrowing, for he had many acquisitions.

23 And, looking about, Jesus is saying to His disciples, "How squeamishly shall those who have money be entering into the kingdom of God!" Now the disciples were awed at His words. Yet Jesus, again, answering, is saying to them, "Children, how squeamish it is for those who have confidence in money to be entering into the kingdom of God! It is easier for a camel to come through the eye of a needle than for the rich to be entering into the kingdom of God." 26 Now they were exceedingly astonished, saying to Him, "And can 27 any one be saved?" Now, looking at them, Jesus is saying, "With men it is impossible, but not with God, for all is possible with God." 28 Peter begins to say to Him, "Lo! we leave all and follow Thee! What consequently, will there be 29 for us?" Jesus averred to him, "Verily, I am saying to you that there is no one who leaves a house, or brothers, or sisters, or father, or mother, or wife, or children, or fields, on My account and on account of the evangel, who should not be getting back a hundredfold now, in this era, houses and brothers and sisters and mothers and father and children and fields, ilege is to suffer. Our reward is in the heavens. It is most mischievous to "appropriate" such promises, for they cannot be fulfilled. The motive that underlies them is utterly foreign to the truth for today. Present advantage is not a bait to catch the unbeliever now, and future reward is not in lands, but in the celestial realms.

<sup>31</sup> Those who forsook all their worldly properties and prospects were the poorest and last, yet these are the ones who will become first in the kingdom. Even in the Pentecostal era this was true. Peter could truly say "Silver and gold I do not possess" (Ac. 3<sup>6</sup>). No one had less of wealth. The high priests controlled great stores of treasure beside their personal fortunes. Yet who was lower than they? Material and spiritual values are usually in inverse ratio.

<sup>35</sup> There were only two places of great honor next to the king in an eastern monarchy. One was at his right and the other at his left. But among our Lord's apostles three were foremost and privileged. These were Peter, James, and John. This is evidently a piece of petty diplomacy on the part of John and James, intended to prevent Peter from getting the first place. Such selfish insistence completely dissipates the usual conception of the "sons of thunder", as our Lord called them. John was not at all the meek, mild, gentle, amiable character he is popularly supposed to be. He was loud, egotistic, selfish. His writings do not reveal his natural characteristics, but rather the power of grace to counteract them. Would the apostle of love seek to supplant Peter? Yet the exquisiteness of that same grace is seen when it takes the boastings of the flesh and makes them good. They were not able to drink the cup which He was drinking. Yet the spirit later made them able. James was assassinated by Herod (Ac. 12<sup>2</sup>). It is quite possible that this passage supports the tradition that John also was killed by the Jews. The fact that his written ministry applies to the time of the Lord's return does not allow of a record of his death in the scriptures. See Jn. 21<sup>20</sup>.

What makes this request so terribly atrocious is its utter antagonism to the spirit of Christ, at this time.

with persecutions, and in the coming eon, eonian life. Yet many first will be last, and the last first."

<sup>32</sup> Now they were on the road, ascending into Jerusalem, and Jesus was preceding them. And they were awed, yet those following feared. And, again taking the twelve aside, He begins to tell them what is about to be befalling

<sup>33</sup> Him. "Lo! we are ascending into Jerusalem, and the Son of Man-kind will be betrayed to the chief priests and the scribes, and they will be condemning Him to death, and will be betraying Him to the nations, and will be deriding Him, and spitting on Him, and scourging Him, and killing Him, and after three days He will be rising."

<sup>35</sup> And James and John, the two sons of Zebedee, are going to Him, saying to Him, "Teacher, we want that, whatever we should be requesting of Thee, Thou shouldst be doing for us." Yet He said to them, "What are you wanting I shall be doing for you?" Now they said to Him, "Grant to us that we should be sitting, one at Thy right and one at Thy left, in Thy glory."

<sup>38</sup> Yet Jesus said to them, "You are not aware what you are requesting. Are you able to drink the cup which I am drinking, or to be baptized with the baptism with which I am being baptized?" Yet they say to Him, "We are able." Yet Jesus said to them, "The cup indeed which I am drinking shall you be drinking, and you shall be baptized with the baptism with which I am being baptized. Yet to be seated at My right or at the left <sup>41</sup> The other apostles are no better than the sons of Zebedee. They all want place, power, prestige. They little know the kind of kingdom they are to enter. They dream of some oriental despotism in which the whims of the ruling class, and their desires, are the only law. But in the kingdom all sovereignty will be based on service. None will rule there who have not suffered. They will rule the people as a shepherd tends his sheep. They will lead them and feed them and protect them. So the great King and Shepherd served them when He suffered for their ransom.

To this very day an accursed Christ, a suffering Saviour, is distasteful to the human heart. As a Leader or Example He is welcome and is accorded the place supreme among the sons of Adam. As such, He supports the self-righteous attitude of the sons of Cain. They are glad to enlist under His banner, as one like Him, ready to fight an external foe. But to find that foe in themselves, to see in His humiliation and shame an intimation of their own, and acknowledge His accursed death as their deserts, requires a miracle on God's part greater in its way than any He ever wrought. And he who knows the power of this in his own heart cannot doubt the lesser miracles of holy writ.

is not Mine to give, but is for whom it has been made ready by My Father."

<sup>41</sup> And when the ten hear, they begin to be resentful about James and John. And calling them to Him, <sup>42</sup> Jesus is saying to them, "You are aware that those of the nations who are presuming to be chief are lording over them, and their great <sup>43</sup> men are coercing them. Yet not thus is it among you. But whoever should be wanting to become great among you, will be your servant. <sup>44</sup> And whoever should be wanting to be foremost among you, will be the <sup>45</sup> slave of all. For the Son of Man-kind, also, came not to be served, but to serve, and to give His soul a ransom for many."

<sup>47</sup> And hearing that it is Jesus the Nazarene, he begins to cry and say, "Jesus, Son of David, be merciful <sup>48</sup> to me!" And many rebuked him, that he should be silent. Yet much rather he cried, "Son of David, be merciful to me!"

<sup>49</sup> And standing, Jesus said, "Summon him." And they are summoning the blind man, saying to him, "Courage! Rouse, He is <sup>50</sup> summoning you." Now, casting off his cloak, springing up, he came to <sup>51</sup> Jesus. And, answering him, Jesus said, "What do you want I shall be doing to you?" Now the blind man said to Him, "Rabboni, that I <sup>52</sup> should be recovering sight!" Now Jesus said to him, "Go. Your faith has saved you." And straightway

<sup>1</sup> Strange as it may seem, there are only seven recorded visits of Christ to Jerusalem. And it was the temple rather than the city which drew Him, for He came only to fulfill the law, and to keep the festivals. The first was His own dedication to God (Lu. 2<sup>22</sup>). The second was at twelve years of age, when He became "a son of the law" (Lu. 2<sup>42</sup>). The third and fourth were for the Passover festivals at the beginning of His public ministry. Then we find Him in the temple for the festival of Tabernacles (Jn. 7<sup>2,10</sup>) and Dedications (Jn. 10<sup>22</sup>). The last occasion, here referred to, was for the Passover festival. Only on this last visit is He spoken of as being in the city itself, once at Bethesda (Jn. 5<sup>2</sup>), and again in the upper room (14<sup>15</sup>). At His first visit a sacrifice was offered for Him, at the last He Himself became the Sacrifice.

But there is more than lowliness. There is salvation, or rather redemption. The firstling of an ass must be ransomed with a flocking (Ex. 13<sup>13</sup>). The animal He rode was a type of the ransomed who supported Him in His humiliation. Hence He does not go to the palace of the king, but to the sanctuary. There must be redemption before there can be a righteous reign. Herein lies the point of the whole picture. As King He comes with salvation.

he recovers sight and followed Him on the road.

<sup>11</sup> And when they are drawing near to Jerusalem and to Bethphage and to Bethany, toward the mount of Olives, He is dispatching
<sup>2</sup> two of His disciples, and He is saying to them, "Go into the village facing you, and straightway, going into it, you will be finding a colt hitched, on which no man as yet is <sup>3</sup> seated. Loose it and bring it. And if any one should be saying to you, 'What is this you are doing?' say that 'The Lord is having need of it, and straightway He is dispatching it here again.'"

<sup>4</sup> And they came away and found the colt hitched to the door outside on the encircling road, and they <sup>5</sup> are loosing it. And some of those standing there said to them, "What are you doing, loosing the <sup>6</sup> colt?" Now they told them according as Jesus said, and they let <sup>7</sup> them. And they are bringing the colt to Jesus, and they are casting their own garments on it, and He is seated on it.

<sup>8</sup> And many strew their own garments in the road, yet others, soft foliage, chopping it out of the fields, and strewed it on the road.
<sup>9</sup> And those preceding and those following cried, saying, "Hosanna! Blessed be the One coming in the <sup>10</sup> name of the Lord! And blessed be the coming kingdom of our father David in the name of the Lord! Hosanna among the highest!"

<sup>11</sup> And Jesus entered into Jerusalem and into the sanctuary. And looking all about, it being already

12-14 Compare Mt. 21<sup>18,19</sup>.

12 A beautiful figure of the condition of Israel at that time is found in the barren fig tree. On a fruitful fig tree the figs form before the leaves, and the first crop should be ready to eat when the tree is in full leaf. It was evidently too early in the season to expect figs, yet there was one tree which seemed to be in advance of its time. What a marvelously accurate delineation of the nation! God's due time had not yet come. Yet they pretended to all the righteousness and sweetness and goodness which will characterize the kingdom. They were a vain show. Love, joy, and peace were not to be found on the branches of their profession. They were a pious sham. This seems to be the only time He used His miraculous power for destruction. As we look upon Israel today, with even the leaves of their profession withered, let us remember that they are no less miracles than the fig tree by which they were prefigured. The cursing of the fig tree took place immediately after His formal presentation to Jerusalem as their King, and is a standing symbol of their rejection. The present movement to reestablish Zion is an effort of the fig tree to put forth leaves once again.

20 There is a close connection between the fig tree—Israel politically—and the mountain—Rome's oppressive tyranny—as well as between the cursing of the fig tree and the removal of the mountain into the sea. If Israel had believed, the Roman oppressors would have been scattered among the nations, whence they came.

the evening hour, He came out to Bethany with the twelve.

12 And on the morrow, at their coming out from Bethany, He hungers.

13 And perceiving one fig tree from afar having leaves, He came, if, consequently, He will be finding anything on it. And, coming to it, He found nothing except leaves, for it was not the season of figs.

14 And answering, He said to it, "No longer may any one be eating fruit of you for the con." And His disciples heard.

15 And they are coming into Jerusalem. And Jesus, entering into the sanctuary, begins to be casting out those selling and those buying in the sanctuary, and He overturns the tables of the brokers, and the seats of those selling doves, and did not give leave that any one should be carrying an article through the sanctuary. And He taught and said to them, "Is it not written that 'My house shall be called a house of prayer for all nations'? Yet you make it a cave of robbers."

18 And the chief priests and scribes hear, and they sought how they should be destroying Him, for they feared Him, for the entire throng was astonished at His teaching.

19 And whenever it came to be evening, they went outside the city.

20 And going by in the morning, they perceived the fig tree withered from the roots. And, recollecting, 21 Peter is saying to Him, "Rabbi! Lo! The fig tree which Thou didst curse has withered!" And answering,

22 Jesus is saying to them, "If
23 you have faith of God, verily, I am saying to you, that whoever should be saying to this mountain, 24 See Ja.15, 61 Jn.514, 15.

24 Whatever prayer is offered in accord with the will of God will be answered in His time. Whatever is not in line with His purpose need not expect to be fulfilled.

25 See Mt.614, 151835Col.313.

25 We have the forgiveness of offenses according to the riches of His grace (Eph. 17). There are no conditions, no qualifications, no demands that we cannot fulfill, in God's dealings with us. But with Israel nationally, forgiveness was on a much lower level. It depended on their response and could be revoked. The confusion which exists today would be largely dispelled if we would get a grasp of our own transcendent position in grace and revel in it, and refuse to drag it down to the precarious position here indicated. This is not grace, far less the rich and redundant favor which is ours in Christ Jesus.

26 See Ja. 213.

27 The chief priests were in supreme authority in the sanctuary. They should have cleansed its courts of this pernicious traffic. But it was probably their own covetousness that countenanced the desecration. They feel that He has gone beyond His rights, and think they can curb Him by demanding His credentials. But they were not only hypocrites, but cowards. He knew that they would not dare to question His acts if He were popular with the people. He knew that they would not dare question the authority of John the baptist, for the people never lost their faith in him. So He exposes their hypocrisy by a simple question. The proud priests confess that they are afraid to answer Him. Yet worse than this, they convict themselves of the utmost incapacity for their office. They should be able to discern whether John's baptism was of God or not, for it was their function to know the mind of God and to teach the people. Seeking to undermine His authority they effectually destroy their own. Man's every attempt to deny the authority of conscience or revelation can end only in the eventual unmasking of his own pretensions. His defiance only strengthens his ultimate conviction of the supremacy of God.

'Be picked up and cast into the sea', and should not be doubting in his heart, but should be believing that what he is speaking is occurring, it shall be his, whatever he may be saying. Therefore I am saying to you, All, whatever you are praying and requesting, be believing that you obtained, and it will be yours. And whenever you may be standing praying, be forgiving, if you have anything against any one, that your Father also, Who is in the heavens, may be forgiving you your offenses. Now if you are not forgiving, neither will your Father Who is in the heavens be forgiving your offenses."

27 And they are coming into Jerusalem again, and at His walking in the sanctuary, the chief priests and the scribes and the elders are coming to Him, and they said to Him, "By what authority are you doing these things, or who gives you this authority, that you may be doing these things?" Now Jesus, answering, said to them, "I also will be inquiring of you one word, and answer Me, and I will be declaring to you by what authority I am doing these things. The baptism of John—whence was it? Was it out of heaven or out of men? Answer Me!" And they reasoned with themselves, saying, "If we should be saying 'Out of heaven', he will be declaring, 'Wherefore, then, do you not believe him?'" But should we be saying 'Out of men'?" They feared the people, for all had it that John really was a prophet. And, answering Jesus, they are saying, "We are not aware." And answering, Jesus is saying to them, "Neither am I telling you by what authority I am doing these things."

1-12 Compare Mt. 21:33-46 Lu. 20:9-19.

1 This was a most familiar illustration for His hearers. Vineyards were usually planted on stony ground. After clearing, the stones were built into a broad stone fence, sometimes not much more than a carefully piled heap, without cement. The vat, into which the grapes were cast for pressing, was usually cut in the natural rock on a hillside, with an opening in the bottom for the juice to escape. When the grapes were ripe a watchman was on guard at all times, being stationed on the tower, which overlooked the whole vineyard.

Israel is the vineyard of Jehovah (Isa. 57). The parable describes the treatment accorded God's messengers and prophets, whom He sent to recall them to their duty to Him. It was one long story of rebellion and violence. Each generation prided itself that it would not persecute the prophets as its fathers had done, yet, when put to the test, exceeded them in their mistreatment of His slaves. The priests and scribes and elders were the farmers to whose care the vineyard had been committed. The Lord boldly predicts their course with regard to Himself, and, incidentally, He answers their question as to His authority. They were simply hirelings, with no authority whatever when He was on the scene. The vineyard was His Father's. They were answerable to Him. Perhaps nowhere is the darkness of man's mind and the hardness of his heart more apparent than when, in stubborn rebellion against God, he carries out the revealed will of God. Though this was a parable, they knew that He was speaking of them. Why, then, did they persist in doing what He said they would do? They will have no place or power in the kingdom.

10 Compare Ps. 118:22, 23. See 1 Pt. 2:4-8.

10 The capstone of the corner is usually the most ornate on a building. The very finest block of stone would ordinarily be reserved for it. But the rulers in Israel refused to give Him any place in the edifice. He was rejected and despised. But when it is finished He will have the highest and most glorious position. How blind they must have been, after this plain prediction, to go on in senseless rage to fulfill His words to the letter!

12 And He begins to talk to them in parables: "A man plants a vineyard and places a stone dike about it and excavates a vat and builds a tower and leased it to farmers, and travels. And he dispatches a slave, at the season, to the farmers, that he may be getting from the fruit of the vineyard from the farmers. And taking him, they lash him and dispatch him empty. And again he dispatches to them another slave, and that one, pelting with stones, summarily they dispatch in dishonor. And again he dispatches another and that one they kill, and many others, lashing these, indeed, yet killing these.

6 He still had one son, his beloved. He dispatches him also last to them, saying that 'They will be respecting my son.' Yet those farmers say to themselves that 'This is the enjoyer of the allotment. Hither! We may be killing him, and the enjoyment of the allotment will be ours!' And taking him, they kill him and cast him outside of the vineyard.

9 What, then, will the lord of the vineyard be doing? He will be coming and destroying the farmers and will be giving the vineyard to others. Did you not read this scripture?

'The stone which the builders reject,

This came to be for the head of the corner.

11 This came from the Lord, And it is marvelous in our eyes."

12 And they sought to hold Him, and they were afraid of the throng, for they know that He spoke the para-

13-17 Compare Mt.22:15-22 Lu.20:19-26.

13 There were many insurrections and disturbances in Palestine during the first century due to hatred of the foreign domination, and especially because of taxation. The poll tax was a practical pledge of allegiance to Cæsar, or rather a badge of subjection. Some of the Jews were in doubt whether it was right to pay it. But it was a most dangerous dilemma in which they hoped to place Him. His followers would soon desert a Messiah Who openly counseled subjection to a gentile tyrant, and the authorities would make no delay in executing any popular leader who spoke against the poll tax. The crafty hypocrites who planned this trap were careful to keep clear of it themselves, for they were afraid it might lead them into complications. So they sent some of the two opposing parties, one of whom, they were sure, would cause His downfall.

He first tears off their hypocritical mask. "Why are you trying Me?" Each word is worthy of separate emphasis. Their motive was wrong. They were not conscientious patriots seeking counsel from the true King of Israel, but false traitors seeking to assassinate Him. How pathetic was His next appeal! Cæsar was collecting coffers on coffers of denarii, yet He did not number a single one among His acquaintances! The usurper is satiated with tribute; the rightful Sovereign is penniless.

By accepting the Roman currency, they virtually acknowledged their subjection to Cæsar. It was only just that they should fulfill their obligations to him so long as it was God's will that they should suffer for their insubordination to Him. But the rest of the reply was not demanded by the question. It may refer partly to the payment of the temple taxes (Mt.17:24-27; Ex.30:11-16) for the services of the sanctuary, but, in a broader sense, included all their obligations to God. This would, of course, first of all involve paying Him the loyalty and honor due Him as God's King. They sought to show that He was a traitor to Rome. He exposed their disloyalty to God.

18-25 Compare Mt.22:23-30. See Lu.20:27-36.

18 See Ac. 23<sup>a</sup>.

19 See Deut. 25<sup>5,a</sup>.

Is it allowed to give poll-tax to Cæsar or not? May we be giving, or may we not be giving?"
- 15 Now He, having perceived their hypocrisy, said to them, "Why are you trying Me? Bring Me a denarius that I may make its acquaintance." Now they bring it. And He is saying to them, "Whose is this image and inscription?" Now they say to Him, "Cæsar's."

<sup>18</sup> Now that He has answered the hardest question of the Pharisees and Herodians, the Sadducees bring Him their best argument against the truth of resurrection. There is the constant tendency, even among the household of faith, to present practical difficulties in order to discredit the truth. And the answer is always the same. Those who do not believe God are deceived because they are not acquainted with the scriptures or the power of God. The difficulties are of their own making. The marriage state is not carried over into the resurrection.

<sup>26</sup> According to the Sadducees, Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob will never be raised from the dead, hence will never live, and God is the God of the dead. The Lord does not affirm that they are alive, for then they would not be raised. His argument demands that they be dead, and that resurrection be a necessity to bring them back to life. There were those in the Corinthian ecclesia who followed the Sadducees on this very subject (1 Co. 15<sup>12-28</sup>). They denied the resurrection of any: Paul proves the vivification of all. Not only will all be raised from the dead, but all will be given life beyond death at the consummation. Then it will be seen that God is indeed a God, not of the dead, but of the living. This could never be true if there were no resurrection. Far less could it prove the necessity of resurrection if there were no death.

<sup>24</sup> Jesus averred to them, "Are you not therefore deceived, not being acquainted with the scriptures, neither the power of God? For whenever they should be rising from among the dead, they are neither marrying nor being given in marriage, but are as the messen-

<sup>26</sup> gers which are in the heavens. Now concerning the dead, that they are roused, did you not read in the scroll of Moses, at the thorn bush, how God spoke to him, saying, 'I am the God of Abraham, and the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob'? He is not the God of the dead, but of the living. You, then, are much deceived."

<sup>28</sup> And one of the scribes, approaching, hearing them discussing, perceiving that He answered them ideally, inquires of Him, "What is the foremost precept of all?" Jesus answered him that

<sup>29</sup> "The foremost precept of all is 'Hear, Israel! the Lord our God is one Lord. And you shall be loving the Lord your God with your whole heart, and with your whole comprehension, and with your whole strength.' This is the foremost precept. And the second is like it: 'You shall be loving your associate as yourself.' Now no other precept is greater than these."

<sup>32</sup> And the scribe said to Him, "Of a truth, Teacher, Thou sayest ideally that He is One, and there is no other more than He, and to be loving Him with your whole heart and with the whole understanding and with the whole soul, and with the whole strength, and to be loving

<sup>35</sup> Now that the Lord has answered all His opposers, He propounds a question which they do not attempt to answer. The Messiah was the great central figure of prophecy. The scribes had many traditions about Him. Perhaps the best known title given Him was Messiah ben David, for the son of Jesse was the greatest national hero, and to him was given the kingdom covenant. But they utterly failed to see that He was also the Son of God, and was identical with the One David called his Lord. None of the theophanies, or manifestations of God, in ancient times could have been appearances of the one invisible God (Col.1<sup>15</sup> 1 Tim.1<sup>17</sup>). No one has ever seen God: the only begotten God... He unfolds Him (Jn.1<sup>18</sup>). Jacob saw Elohim at Peniel face to face (Gen.32<sup>30</sup>). Isaiah saw Jehovah Tsebahoth (Isa.6<sup>5</sup> Jn.12<sup>41</sup>). These and others of like nature can be no other than the One Who is the Image of the invisible God (Col. 1<sup>15</sup>; 2 Co. 4<sup>4</sup>). The God of the scriptures is one God. He has His spirit, which is identical with Him in personality. Otherwise Christ had two fathers, for He is the only-begotten of the Father (Jn.1<sup>14</sup>) and of the holy spirit (Mt.1<sup>18</sup>). Just as a man and his spirit are one, so God and His spirit are one. The Son of God is a distinct personality, as David shows when he says "The Lord said to my Lord." Yet there is the closest unity, the same as exists between an idea and its verbal expression, a person and his statue or image. God can be known to human creatures only through His Word and His Image, Who is Christ, the Son of God.

the associate as yourself, is excessively more than all the holocausts and the sacrifices."

<sup>34</sup> And Jesus, perceiving him, that he answered apprehendingly, said to him, "You are not far from the kingdom of God." And no one dared to inquire of Him any more.

<sup>35</sup> And answering, Jesus said, teaching in the sanctuary, "How are the scribes saying that the

<sup>36</sup> Christ is the Son of David? For David himself said, in the holy spirit,

"The Lord said to my Lord,
"Be sitting at My right,
Till I should be placing Thy enemies
For a footstool of Thy feet."

<sup>37</sup> David himself, then, is terming Him 'Lord', and whence is He his Son?" And the vast throng hears Him with relish.

<sup>38</sup> And in His teaching He said to them, "Beware of the scribes, who are wanting to walk in robes, and <sup>39</sup> salutations in the markets, and front seats in the synagogues, and the first reclining places at the din-
<sup>40</sup> ners, who are devouring the houses of widows and for a pretense are prolix in praying. These will be getting more excessive judgment."

<sup>42</sup> in much. And one woman, a poor widow, coming, cast in two mites, which is a quadrans [.39¢, .75f].

<sup>43</sup> And calling His disciples to Him, He said to them, "Verily, I am saying to you that this poor widow cast in more than all who are casting

<sup>2</sup> It took forty-six years to build the temple (Jn. 2:20). Our Lord had already hinted that it would be razed to the ground. While He was within the sacred precincts, it was the abode of God. Now that He has left it for the last time, it is a tenantless shell, forsaken by Jehovah. Hence He foretells its destruction. In the spiritual habitation which takes its place, Peter speaks of the saints of the Circumcision as living stones (1 Pt. 2:5). Hence these stones of the temple may well stand for the whole structure of the priesthood, for not only the sanctuary, but the whole Levitical system was demolished at the siege of Jerusalem, about four decades later.

<sup>5</sup> It must be remembered that the present interval of God's transcendent grace was an absolute secret, concealed in God (Eph. 3:9) and that even the times and eras of the kingdom could not be revealed at that time (Ac. 1:7). If these are left out of sight, the events here spoken of by our Lord go right on from His time to the time of the end, just before the kingdom comes. We are in the interval between the demolition of the sanctuary (about 70 A. D.) and the still future course of events which are given in fuller detail under the first four seals in the Unveiling.

The white horse rider (Un. 6<sup>2</sup>) is the false messiah who comes in His name, the fiery red horse brings on the battles, the black horse corresponds to the famine here foretold, while the fifth seal brings us the fate of those who testify in that day.

<sup>10</sup> This is not the evangel of God's grace which we proclaim, but the evangel of the kingdom, which will be heralded once again in the great judgment era which immediately precedes the coming of Christ to reign over the earth. It will be carried on by an elect company in Israel who, like the two witnesses (Un. 11<sup>3</sup>), will be upheld by divine power. His coming for us is not contingent on any missionary program of the "church".

<sup>44</sup> into the treasury. For all cast out of their superfluity, yet she, out of her want, cast in all, as much as she had—her whole livelihood."

<sup>13</sup> And at His going out of the sanctuary, one of His disciples is saying to Him, "Teacher! Lo! what manner of stones and what manner of buildings!" And answering, Jesus said to him, "Are you observing these great buildings? Under no circumstances may a stone be left upon a stone here which may not by all means be demolished."

<sup>3</sup> And at His sitting on the mount of Olives, facing the sanctuary, Peter and James and John and Andrew inquired of Him privately, "Tell us, when will these things be? And what is the sign when all this should be about to be concluded?"

<sup>5</sup> Now Jesus, answering, begins to say to them, "Beware that no one should be deceiving you!"
<sup>6</sup> For many will be coming on My name, saying that 'I am!' and they <sup>7</sup> will be deceiving many. Now whenever you should be hearing battles and tidings of battles, see that you are not alarmed, for it must be occurring, but not as yet
<sup>8</sup> is the consummation. For nation will be roused against nation, and kingdom against kingdom. And there will be quakes in places. And there will be famines and disturbances. These are the beginning of travails. Yet you be looking to yourselves. For they will be betraying you to the sanhedrins and you will be lashed in synagogues, and yet you will stand before governors and kings on My account, for a testimony to them.
<sup>10</sup> And the evangel must first be proclaimed to all nations.

was to intervene they never could have carried on their Pentecostal ministry, and God could not have used Israel's defection as the basis of a much greater and grander exhibition of grace than the kingdom contemplates.

35 While the Son did not know the day or hour, we can now see that He was aware that there would be a delay. He is the light of the world. His absence is night. He might have come at evening. This probably refers to the early Pentecostal proclamation (Ac. 3<sup>20</sup>). The great crisis, or midnight, was when Israel was repudiated (Ac. 28<sup>26</sup>, 27). Perhaps the present awakening in Israel is the cock-crowing. The darkest hour still lies ahead. But in the morning He will surely come. When these signs begin to come to pass then it will be possible to watch events. We, however, do not watch the events which accompany the wrath of God, but wait for God's Son to rescue us from the coming indignation (1 Th. 1<sup>10</sup>).

33-37 Compare Mt. 24:45-51.

1-2 Compare Mt. 26:1-5 Lu. 22:1-2.

1 The actual festival of Unleavened Bread did not commence until the day after the Passover (Lev. 23<sup>6,9</sup>), but, since all leaven was removed on the day of the Passover, and it was eaten with unleavened bread (Ex. 12<sup>8</sup>), it came to be included in "unleavened bread".

2 How blind they were! The Passover must be killed before the festival, not because it might create a tumult of the people, but because this was God's order. They were at great pains and trouble, in their rabid rebellion against God, that they might fulfill the will of God! So it is always. God's enemies are carrying out His will in their very opposition. The Lamb must be slain on the fourteenth, and God can use the fearfulness of the priests to fulfill it, so long as He cannot use their faithfulness.

3-9 Compare Mt. 26:1-13; Jn. 12:1-8. See Lu. 7:36-38.

3 How precious to the heart of our Lord must have been the intelligent, sacrificing worship of this woman! She alone seems to have understood Him concerning His impending death, or appreciated, in some measure, its preciousness. It is the time, the effort, authority, and to each his work, and he directs the doorkeeper that 35 he may be watching. Be watching, then, for you are not aware when the lord of the house is coming, at evening, or midnight, or cock-crow-

36 cing, or morning, lest, coming suddenly, he may be finding you
37 drowsing. Now what I am saying to you I am saying to all: 'Be watching!'

14 Now after two days was the Passover, and the unleavened bread. And the chief priests and scribes sought how, laying hold of Him by guile, they may be killing
2 Him. For they said, "Not in the festival, lest at some time there will be a tumult of the people."

3 And at His being in Bethany, in the house of Simon the leper, at His lying down, a woman came, having an alabaster vase of veritable nard attar, costly. And crushing the alabaster vase, she pours it down on His head.

4 Now some were resenting it to themselves and saying, "For what has this destruction of the attar occurred?
5 For this attar could have been disposed of for above three hundred denarii [$47.07, £9 13s 9d] and given to the poor."

6 And they muttered against her. Yet Jesus said, "Leave her! Why are you affording her weariness? For she works an ideal work in Me.
7 For you have the poor with you always, and whenever you may want you can always do well to them,
8 yet Me you have not always. She does with what she had. She gets beforehand to anoint My body
9 with attar for burial. Now verily I am saying to you, wherever this evangel may be proclaimed in the whole world, this also which she does shall be spoken of for a memorial of her."

the treasure, that we "waste" in our worship of Him that gains His gratitude and touches His heart. "Practical" religion provides for the poor; spiritual worship lavishes its all on Him. Benefactors receive their reward in the gratitude of those whom they help. But when has even such a costly gift been so richly rewarded? Men have given as much as a million times the sum she did for philanthropy. But whose name can be mentioned with hers? Yet she simply did with what she had. We do not need to have much, but only give our best and our reward will be beyond all calculation.

10 The woman gave, Judas got. They resented the woman's act and would have taken her treasure from her had they known. The chief priests rejoiced and promised Judas a substantial reward. Who would like to earn thirty pieces of silver? Religious men who know not Christ are always ready to pay for His betrayal.

12 "The first day of the unleavened bread" was not, as might be supposed, the first day of the festival of unleavened bread (Lev. 23<sup>7</sup>), but the day before, the day of the Passover proper. Similarly, the term Passover was often applied to the festival which followed.

12 The passover must be sacrificed on the fourteenth day of the first month "between [not in] the [two] evenings [of one day]" (Ex. 12<sup>6</sup>). This made it possible for our Lord to eat the passover and be the Passover all in one day, between the sunset which began the fourteenth of Nisan, and the sunset which closed it.

13 Bearing water jars was "women's work" and it was a singular sight to see a man with a water jar. There probably was not another in all Jerusalem. His household must have been small, hence he could accommodate so many extra guests at the Passover. It was the custom for families to join into groups large enough to eat a whole lamb (Ex. 12<sup>4</sup>).

17 With what mingled feelings would our Lord eat this passover! Joy to see the fruit of His labors, sorrow at the treachery of Judas, while over all was the shadow of the cross.

10 And Judas Iscariot, one of the twelve, came away to the chief priests that he may be betraying Him to them. Now, when hearing, they rejoiced, and promise to give him silver, and he sought how he may be opportunely betraying Him.

12 And on the first day of the unleavened bread, when they sacrificed the passover, His disciples are saying to Him, "Where dost Thou want us to come away and make ready that Thou mayest eat the passover?" And He is dispatching two of His disciples and is saying to them, "A man going into the city will be meeting you, bearing a jar of water. Follow him. And wherever he should be entering, say to the householder that 'The Teacher is saying, 'Where is My caravansary, where I may be eating the passover with My disciples?'" And he will be showing you a large upper room ready, with places spread, and there make ready for us." And His disciples came out and came into the city and they found it according as He said to them. And they make ready the passover.

17 And as it is becoming evening, He is coming with the twelve. And, at their lying back at table and eating, Jesus said, "Verily, I am saying to you that one of you, who is eating with Me, shall betray Me." Now they begin to be sorrowful and are saying to Him, one by one, "It is not I, Rabbi?" and another, "It is not I?" Now answering, He said to them, "It is one of the twelve who is dipping his hand in the dish with Me; seeing that the Son of Mankind is indeed 21 So atrocious was the treachery of Judas Iscariot that we sympathize with those who find it difficult to see how God's grace can ever reach him. But Paul was a greater sinner (1 Tim. 1<sup>15</sup>). Judas did not commit his crime until after the Slanderer had put it into his heart (Jn. 13<sup>2</sup>). He regretted his action (Mt. 27<sup>3</sup>). Not so Paul. We can have no sympathy, however, with the attempts to twist the translation to agree with their thoughts. The phrase "that man" refers to Judas in one sentence, so must also refer to him in the next. The Lord is thinking of His own sufferings and Judas' share in them, not of Judas' fate.

22 It is notable that in this account, as in Matthew, the last dinner is considered a part of the Passover and no mention is made of any memorial for their future observance. The simple figure of speech here used has caused much misunderstanding. The Greek and Hebrew substantive, to be, is not expressed when dealing with matters of fact. But when a figure is intended, the verb must be used. "This IS My body" means that the bread represents His body. "This My body" (without is) could be used only when He was actually speaking of His own physical frame. The sustenance and joy of all believers in Christ is symbolized by partaking of the bread and drinking of the cup. The flesh is benefiting nothing. The spirit is that which is vivifying (Jn. 6<sup>63</sup>). It is the spiritual and hearty appropriation of Christ's sufferings which brings satisfaction and delight. This will be ours in its fullness when we are with Him. Till He comes we are reminded of it by partaking of the broken bread and poured out wine.

going according as it is written concerning Him, yet woe to that man through whom the Son of Mankind is being betrayed! Ideal were it for Him if that man were not born!"

22 And at their eating, Jesus, taking bread, blessing, breaks it, and gives to them and said, "Take: this is My body." And, taking the cup, giving thanks, He gives it to them, and they all drank of it. And He said to them, "This is My blood of the new covenant being poured out for many. Verily, I am saying to you, that no longer under any circumstances may I be drinking of the product of the grape vine till that day whenever I should be drinking it new in the kingdom of God."

26 And, singing a hymn, they came out to the mount of Olives.

27 And Jesus is saying to them that "You all shall be snared in Me in this night, seeing that it is written, 'I shall be smiting the shepherd And the sheep shall be scattered.'

28 But after I am roused I shall be preceding you into Galilee. Yet Peter averred to Him, "And if all shall be snared, nevertheless not I!" And Jesus is saying to him, "Verily, I am saying to you that you, today, in this night, ere the cock crows twice, will be renouncing Me thrice." Yet Peter spoke still more extravagantly, "If ever I must die with Thee, I shall under no circumstances be renouncing Thee!" Now all also said similarly.

32 And they are coming into a freehold, the name of which is Gethsemane. And He is saying to His disciples, "Be seated here while I may be praying." And He is tak-

<sup>34</sup> The problem of evil is solved for us in the dark shadows of Gethsemane. No one will dispute that He did not deserve to drink the cup that His Father set before Him. No one will find fault with His will, though it was not in line with His Father's. How easily it might have passed from Him! A word would have sufficed to destroy all His enemies. But He had not come to do His own will. And now that the will of God led Him into the sorest suffering and deepest distress, He receives this evil from the hand of God, Who makes it the basis of boundless blessing, not only to mankind and all creation, but to Christ Himself and to His own glory and praise. The evil was short, sharp and temporary. The results will be without limits in time or space. The terrible treatment of the Holy One by the God Whom He so faithfully served is a far more perplexing problem than the introduction of evil into the creation. In both cases it is a temporary infliction fraught with infinite blessing for God and all His creatures.

<sup>36</sup> It was quite possible for God to have spared Christ the sufferings of the cross. But it could only be done at the cost of untold loss to God, to His creatures and to Christ Himself. God's love could never be known apart from this bitter cup. His grace could never flow forth apart from it. Let us thank Him that He is not doing merely what is possible and easy, but what is for our highest good and His greatest glory.

<sup>37</sup> The indifference of the apostles in this, His hour of deepest trial, seems unutterably sad. More and more He is becoming the Lonely One. His nearest friends are far from Him in spirit. God alone is with Him. And soon He also will abandon Him. Only the betrayer is active. He is not drowsing. Neither is the vast throng of His enemies. And then the apostles also become alert. His sufferings did not seem sufficiently serious to ward off sleep. But when they were in danger of suffering themselves, they are suddenly wide awake, and feel no more need of sleep.

ing Peter and James and John aside with Himself, and He begins <sup>34</sup> to be overawed and depressed. And He is saying to them, "My soul is sorrow-stricken to death. Remain <sup>35</sup> here and be watching." And coming forward a little, He fell on the earth and prayed that if it is possible the hour may pass by from <sup>36</sup> Him. And He said, "Abba, Father, all is possible to Thee. Have this cup carried aside from Me. But not what I will, but what Thou!"

<sup>37</sup> And He is coming and finding them drowsing. And He is saying to Peter, "Simon, are you drowsing? Have you not the strength <sup>38</sup> to watch one hour? Be watching and praying lest you may be entering into trial. The spirit, indeed, is eager; yet the flesh is infirm."

<sup>39</sup> And again, coming away, He <sup>40</sup> prays, saying the same words. And coming again, He found them drowsing, for their eyes were torpid. And they were not aware <sup>41</sup> what they may answer Him. And He is coming the third time and saying to them, "Drowse on furthermore and rest! It is having its fill. The hour came. Lo! The Son of Mankind is being betrayed into the hands of sinners.

<sup>42</sup> Rouse! We may be going. Lo! he who is betraying Me has drawn <sup>43</sup> near!" And straightway, while He is still talking, Judas Iscariot, one of the twelve, is coming along, and with him a vast throng, with swords and cudgels, from the chief priests and scribes and elders. <sup>44</sup> Now His betrayer had given them

<sup>45</sup> The perfidious kiss of Judas was the last token of affection He received from His apostles. Judas was among those who so recently vowed to stand by Him to the death, if need be. He had been entrusted with the funds (Jn. 12<sup>6</sup> 13<sup>29</sup>), though he was a thief. There is reason to believe that he was above the peasant class in the social scale, and so of superior breeding to the rest of the apostles. The betrayal of his Lord was an awful crime, and yet it seems ten times more terrible, the way he sought to conceal it under a show of affection. May God keep us from hypocrisy! It is ever so much better to be an open enemy of Christ than to cover an alien and avaricious heart with the cloak of Christianity.

<sup>48</sup> All this show of force was a symptom of fear. If they wanted to arrest Him, why did they not do it on the previous day when He was in their stronghold, the sanctuary? Nothing could have been simpler. There were temple guards, the Sanhedrin and the high priest's house were near at hand, and, if need be, the Roman soldiers were within call. That ought to suffice to arrest a harmless unarmed Man, even if He has a few followers. But they were afraid of the populace. It was a deed of darkness best done in the night. So the chief priests arm their followers, and hire the traitor, and get false witnesses, and stir up the people, and put political pressure on Pilate, all to secure the demolition of the true Temple and the murder of the true Messiah. How terrible is religion apart from the grace of God! Yet beneath it all we can see that, unconsciously, they are carrying out the purpose of God. Though they fail to worship their God, they do not fail to sacrifice the Lamb of God. It was the work of the priests. No one else could do it. Such is the wisdom of God that He uses their hatred to fulfill His will.

<sup>52</sup> Linen, used as clothing, typifies righteousness. No one could fly from Him in His hour of need without exposing his own shame and utter lack of righteousness.

a signal, saying, "Whomever I should be kissing is He. Hold Him, and lead Him away secure-<sup>45</sup> ly." And coming, straightway approaching Him, he is saying, "Rabbi, Rabbi," and he kisses Him

<sup>48</sup> And answering, Jesus said to them, "Do you come out with swords and cudgels to apprehend <sup>49</sup> Me as after a robber? Daily was I with you in the sanctuary, teaching, and you do not hold Me, but that the scriptures may be fulfilled." And deserting Him, they <sup>50</sup> all fled. And one, a certain youth, was following with Him clothed in a linen wrapper on his naked body, and the youths are holding him.
<sup>51</sup> Yet he, leaving the linen wrapper, fled from them naked.

<sup>54</sup> And Peter follows Him from afar, till within the court yard of the chief priest, and was sitting together with the deputies, and warming himself at the light.

<sup>55</sup> Now the chief priests and the whole Sanhedrin sought false testimony against Jesus, to put Him to <sup>56</sup> death, and they found none, for many testified against Him falsely, and the testimonies were not con-

<sup>11</sup> And whenever they may be leading you to betrayal, do not worry beforehand what you should be speaking, neither be meditating, but whatever may be given to you in that hour, this be speaking, for it is not you who are speaking, but <sup>12</sup> the holy spirit. And brother will be betraying brother to death, and father, child. And children will be rising against parents, and <sup>13</sup> will be causing them to die. And you will be hated by all because of My name. Yet he who endures to the consummation, he shall be saved.

<sup>14</sup> Now whenever you may be perceiving the abomination of desolation which is declared by Daniel the prophet standing where it must not (let him who is reading apprehend), then let those in Judea be fleeing <sup>15</sup> into the mountains. Now let not him who is on the housetop descend into the house, neither let him enter to pick up anything out <sup>16</sup> of his house. And let not him who is in the field turn back to that behind, to pick up his cloak.

<sup>17</sup> Now woe to those who are pregnant and suckling in those days! <sup>18</sup> Yet be praying that your flight may not be occurring in winter, <sup>19</sup> for those days will be affliction, such as has not occurred from the beginning of the creation which God creates till now, and under no circumstances may be occurring. <sup>20</sup> And, except the Lord discounts the days, no flesh at all would be saved. But because of the chosen whom He chooses, He discounts the days.

<sup>21</sup> And then, if any one should be saying to you 'Lo! Here is Christ!' and 'Lo! There!' be not believing.

take place more than three and a half years before this time, possibly as many as thirty-seven or sixty-seven. But no one will be able to say when He will come to Israel until the abomination of desolation is set up and the great affliction begins. Then all may be assured that He will not come for three and a half years. By this they will recognize the many false messiahs who will rise at that time.

But after three and a half years marvelous portents in the sky will herald the advent of the long-desired Messiah. He will come as a lightning flash, clothed in glorious majesty and might. His first act will be to gather the trembling outcasts of Israel from all quarters of the earth about Him, for theirs is the kingdom for the eons of the eons.

23 See 2 Pt. 3:17.

24-27 Compare Mt. 24:29-31 Lu. 21:25-27 Un. 6:12-17, Sixth Seal.

26 See Dan. 7:13, 14 2 Th. 1:7-10 Un. 1:7.

28-32 Compare Mt. 24:32-36 Lu. 21:29-31.

28 The fig tree is political Israel. None of the signs here spoken of have yet occurred, so that we cannot say that its leaves are sprouting out. But much that has occurred in recent years indicates that its boughs are becoming tender. The Zionist movement, the Balfour declaration, recognizing the right of the Jews to their ancient homeland, the British mandate, under which there is a greater exodus to Palestine than under Moses, the Jewish colonization, the new Hebrew university on mount Scopus, the change of attitude on the part of many Jews toward Christ—all these acts and facts indicate that Israel is practically a political unit with a land, a flag, a national anthem, a patriotic spirit—but without a king. It is time for the fig tree to put forth its leaves! But before that Christ will come to the air to catch us away to be with Himself. Before He can declare war with the earth His ambassadors of peace must be withdrawn.

30 These things should have occurred in that generation. Yet He warns them that no one knows the time. It is a secret which God has not confided to men, nor to His heavenly messengers—not even to the Son. The reason is clear. Had the apostles known all that 22 For false christs and false prophets will be roused, and they will be giving signs and miracles to lead astray, if possible, even those who are chosen. Now you beware! Lo! I have declared it all to you before.

24 But in those days, after that affliction, the sun shall be darkened and the moon shall not be giving her beams. And the stars shall be falling out of heaven, and the powers in the heavens shall be shaken. 26 And then shall they be viewing the Son of Mankind coming in clouds with much power and glory. And then He will be dispatching His messengers and assembling His chosen ones from the four winds, from the extremity of the earth to the extremity of heaven.

28 Now be learning a parable from the fig tree. Whenever its bough may already be becoming tender and the leaves sprouting out, you know that warm weather is near.

29 Thus also you, whenever you may be perceiving these things occurring, know that it is near—at the doors. Verily, I am saying to you that this generation may by no means be passing by until all these things should be occurring. 31 Heaven and earth shall be passing by, yet My words shall by no means be passing by. 12 23

32 Now concerning that day or hour no one is aware—neither the messengers in heaven, nor the Son—except the Father. Beware! Be vigilant and praying, for you are not aware when the era is.

34 It is as a man, a traveler, leaving his home and giving his slaves

<sup>66</sup> Poor Peter! Recklessly brave when his courage was called into question, he finds himself a contemptible coward, in spite of all his protestations. Only a few hours before he was ready to die for His Master and was proud of being not merely one of His disciples, but one of the three most intimate with Him. Of course, all the others might renounce Christ, but not he! His thoughts should have remained fixed on the fate of his Master. Instead he is concerned about himself and does not hesitate to find comfort in the enemy's camp. He was not risking his life to save his Master, but deserting his Master to save his own life.

But let us not blame Peter too severely. He is the great and fearless apostle in the making. Satan is sifting the chaff out of him. God is teaching him the lesson of his own untrustworthy self, and leading him to confidence in Himself.

<sup>1</sup> The Sanhedrin had jurisdiction in religious affairs only. They did not have the power of death. That was reserved by the civil authorities. Hence it was necessary to secure Pilate's sentence in order to have Him executed. The governor was not interested in their religious differences. His only concern was to guard the state. Hence his first question was concerning His royal pretensions. Christ does not deny that He is a king. In John's account we are told that He explained to Pilate that, at that time His kingdom was not of this world, and that His deputies would not fight (Jn.18<sup>36</sup>). That was all that Pilate needed to know. If Christ was not planning violence, He was no menace to the Roman power. Moreover, when the Lord calmly told Pilate that he had no authority over Him at all except what was given him from above (Jn. 19<sup>11</sup>), He practically takes the scepter from his hand and assumes the government Himself. The despised Prisoner is kingly, sublime; the cringing governor nothing but a political pawn.

<sup>70</sup> Yet he denied again. And after a little, those standing by said again to Peter, "Truly you are of them, for you are a Galilean also, and

<sup>71</sup> your speech is alike." Now he begins to be anathematizing and swearing that "I am not acquainted with this man of whom you are <sup>72</sup> telling!" And, straightway, a cock crows a second [time]. And Peter recollects the declaration, as Jesus said to him that "Ere a cock crow twice, you will be renouncing Me thrice." And, reflecting, he lamented.

<sup>15</sup> And straightway in the morning the chief priests with the elders and the scribes and the whole Sanhedrin hold a consultation. Binding Jesus, they carry Him away

<sup>2</sup> and give Him over to Pilate. And Pilate inquires of Him, "Are you the king of the Jews?" Now, answering him, He is saying, "You

ever did for them. Now Pilate

7 Bar-Abbas, which means son of the father, had committed the political crime against the Roman government which they tried to fasten on our Lord. He was a murderer. The Lord was a life giver. Yet, because he was the son of their father, the Slanderer (Jn. 8<sup>44</sup>), they preferred him to the Beloved Son of God. It seems, however, that the people might have made a different choice had they not been excited by the priests. So that we may trace the crucifixion of Christ backward, with varying degrees of responsibility, through Pilate, the strong governor, who weakly yielded to the people, who were swayed by the priests, who were controlled by Satan, who was carrying out the purpose of God. Most of these were bitterly opposed to God, and none of them had any desire to work His will, yet all are moved by motives of which they are unconscious, to do what He has determined shall be done.

12 Compared to the malignant hatred of the priests, Pilate's weak submission to the will of the people is merely censurable. Indeed, they are to be contrasted, for Pilate, in his ignorance, was much impressed by the claims of Christ, and sought to release Him. The priests, whose whole life had been devoted to a study of God's law, were blind to the plainest indications of His messiahship. Pilate marveled that He did not reply to the priests. They should have known Him by His silence, even if they had no ears for His words, for the prophet had foretold (Isa. 53<sup>7</sup>):

He is hard pressed, and He is humiliated,

Yet He is not opening His mouth: He is fetched as a flockling to the slaughter,

And as a ewe before its shearers is mute,

So He is not opening His mouth.

His silence before the deaf leaders of religion was not dictated by haughty contempt. It was useless to speak. They could not hear. So His silence is the God-given sign which they should have heeded.

14 Compare Jn. 19<sup>4-16</sup>.

answered them, saying, "Are you wanting that I should be releasing to you the king of the Jews?" For he recognized that the chief priests had betrayed Him through envy.

11 Now the chief priests excite the throng, that he should rather be releasing Bar-Abbas to them.

12 Now Pilate, answering again, said to them, "What then are you wanting that I shall be doing to him whom you are terming the king

13 of the Jews?" Now again they

14 cry, saying, "Crucify him!" Yet Pilate said to them, "For, what evil does he?" Yet they cry exceedingly, saying, "Crucify him!"

15 Now Pilate, intending to do enough for the throng, releases Bar-Abbas to them and gives up Jesus for a whipping, that He may be crucified.

16 Now the soldiers led Him away within the courtyard, which is the Pretorium, and they are calling to-

17 gether the whole squadron. And they are dressing Him in purple, and, braiding a thorny wreath,

18 they are placing it about Him. And they begin to salute Him and say, "Rejoice! King of the Jews!"

19 And they beat His head with a reed, and spat on Him, and kneel-

20 ing, they worshiped Him. And when they deride Him, they strip Him of the purple and put His own garments on Him, and they are leading Him out that they should be crucifying Him.

21 And they are conscripting a certain Simon, a Cyrenian, passing along, coming from the field, the father of Alexander and Rufus, that he should be picking up His

26 Mark, with characteristic brevity, gives only the charge on the inscription. This was probably included in the full title, which probably read

THIS IS JESUS THE NAZARENE
THE KING OF THE JEWS

John's account has almost all of it (Jn.19<sup>19</sup>), Matthew says nothing of the appellation "Nazarene" (Mt.27<sup>37</sup>), Luke (23<sup>38</sup>) and Mark omit His personal name. These were written in the three languages of the day, Greek, Latin, and Hebrew. It is not likely that Pilate allowed any changes to be made after he said "What I have written, I have written!" (Jn.19<sup>22</sup>). Each account accords with its peculiar character. Mark, as befits the record of a Servant's death, gives only the charge, and says nothing of the various languages. In the inspired accounts of this inscription we have an illustration of the way in which the spirit culls only such facts for each account of our Lord's life as are pertinent to the particular aspect of His character which is being presented.

27 See Isa.53<sup>12</sup>.

29 How profanely silly are man's comments on the cross of Christ! He had never said that He would demolish the temple of God. They were doing that! Should He descend He could not fulfill this word that they are casting in His teeth. Likewise, the insufferable stupidity of the priests could not apprehend that, if He would save others, He could not save Himself.

33 God draws the veil of darkness over the scene during the awful hours in which He abandoned His Son. Then it was that He was accused (Deut.21<sup>23</sup> Ga.3<sup>13</sup>). Then it was that it pleased Jehovah to bruise Him, to put Him to grief, to make His soul a trespass offering (Isa.53<sup>10</sup>). Here is a holy of holies into which we dare not come but with bowed hearts and unshod feet. It was the moral crisis of universal history, the grand, long-heralded event that will make this earth the shrine of all creation.

22 cross. And they are bringing Him to Golgotha Place, which is, being construed, "Skull Place." And they gave Him wine with myrrh to drink, yet He did not take it. 24 And, crucifying Him, they are dividing His garments, casting a lot for them, what any should be taking away. Now it was the third hour [about 9 A.M.], and they crucify Him. And there was an inscription with His charge inscribed,

"THE KING OF THE JEWS."

27 And together with Him they are crucifying two robbers, one at the right and one at the left of Him. 29 And those going by blasphemed Him, wagging their heads and saying, "Aha! You who are demolishing the temple and building it in three days, save yourself by descending from the cross!" Likewise the chief priests also, with the scribes, scoffing with one another, said, "Others he saves, himself he cannot save! Let Christ, the king of Israel, descend now from the cross, that we may be perceiving and should be believing!" And those crucified together with Him reproached Him.

33 And at the coming of the sixth hour [about noon] it came to be dark over the whole land till the ninth hour [about 3 P.M.]. And at the ninth hour Jesus implores with a loud voice, saying, "Eloi! Eloi! Lema sabachthani?", which is being construed, "My God! My God! Why didst Thou abandon Me?" 35 And some of those standing by, hearing it, said, "Lo! He is summoning Elijah!" Now, some one, running, and soaking a sponge with vinegar, sticking it on a reed,

<sup>37</sup> No man could take His life from Him. All the weariness and wounds did not exhaust His vitality. At the very last He cries out with a loud voice. He laid down His soul of His own will. No mere man could die as He did. Thus it was that the Roman centurion recognized His divinity. And thus it is that the alien nations have learned that He is indeed God's Son.

<sup>42</sup> The Passover was always on the fourteenth day of the first month, and the festival of unleavened bread began on the fifteenth. The first day of unleavened bread was a special sabbath. This was followed by the weekly sabbath (Mt.28<sup>1</sup>), so that two sabbaths came together on this occasion. The Lord was crucified on the preparation day before the great sabbath and rose on the weekly sabbath which followed.

<sup>42</sup> The sufferings of Christ are over. His humiliation is past. Henceforth no honors are too high for Him, no glories too great. Even before His resurrection we see the symptoms of His exaltation. Joseph of Arimathea may be construed as "the heights shall be added". His name is a prophecy of coming glories. He comes without fear and takes the incorruptible body to the tomb. As the prophet foretold, He was given a tomb with the wicked, nevertheless, He was with the rich in His death (Isa.53<sup>9</sup>).

gave Him a drink, saying, "Let be! We may see if Elijah is coming to take Him down."

<sup>39</sup> above to the bottom. Now the centurion, who stood by in front of Him, perceiving that, crying thus, He expires, said, "Truly, this man <sup>40</sup> was God's Son!" Now there were women also, beholding from afar, among whom was Mary Magdalene also, and Mary of James the Little, <sup>41</sup> and Joses' mother and Salome, who followed Him when He was in Galilee, and dispensed to Him, and many others who ascend with Him into Jerusalem.

<sup>42</sup> And, already coming to be evening, since it was the preparation
<sup>43</sup> which is for the sabbath, Joseph from Arimathea, a respectable counselor, who himself also was anticipating the kingdom of God, coming with daring, entered in to Pilate and requests the body of Jesus.
<sup>44</sup> Now Pilate marvels if He has died already, and, calling to the centurion, inquires of him if He died
<sup>45</sup> long ago. And knowing it from the centurion, he presents the corpse to Joseph.

<sup>46</sup> And buying a linen wrapper, and taking Him down, he wraps Him in the linen wrapper, and places Him in a tomb which was quarried out of rock. And he rolls a large stone on to the door of the

<sup>1</sup> In the hot climate of the orient it is necessary to embalm the bodies of the dead promptly. As the first sabbath of the festival of unleavened bread was so near, in which no servile work could be undertaken (Lev.23<sup>7</sup>), they simply swathed the body in a mixture of myrrh and aloes, until the time when they could rub it with spices and prepare it properly, for they were not aware how unnecessary this was in His case, seeing that He was not tainted with corruption even in death. At first it seems very strange that they should so hurriedly buy the spices that evening, before the sabbath came, for they could not use them until the sabbath was past. We would expect them to wait until the day after the sabbath.

The reason for this lies in the fact that there were two sabbaths in conjunction. The weekly sabbath followed immediately after the first day of unleavened bread, hence they could not buy spices on it. His own teaching would give them leave to do this good work on an ordinary sabbath. Hence their haste in buying the spices on the day of preparation.

<sup>9</sup> "The first sabbath", which elsewhere is called "one of the sabbaths" was the first of the series of seven sabbaths from the waving of Firstfruits till Pentecost. Our Lord was roused from the dead on the day which denoted a finished work, not upon the day that began the weekly toil.

<sup>9-12</sup> Both Vaticanus and Sinaiticus omit the last twelve verses, but s tacitly admits a longer conclusion to Mark, by spacing out the text of the last few pages, and by the fact that the last four pages are "cancel leaves", written by a different scribe. The original conclusion of Mark was torn out, and a shorter one substituted for it. Likewise, s admits a longer conclusion by leaving a blank column after verse eight, the only blank column in the whole manuscript. Our text is taken from Alexandrinus.

16 And at the elapsing of the sabbath, Mary Magdalene and Mary of James and Salome buy spices that, coming, they should be rubbing <sup>2</sup> Him. And very early in the morning on one of the sabbaths they are coming to the tomb at the rising of <sup>3</sup> the sun. And they said to themselves, "Who will be rolling the stone from the door of the tomb for <sup>4</sup> us?" And, looking up, they behold that the stone has been rolled back, for it was tremendously great.

<sup>5</sup> And, entering the tomb, they perceived a youth sitting at the right, clothed with a white robe, and they were overawed. Now he is saying to them, "Be not overawed! You are seeking Jesus the Nazarean Who has been crucified. He was roused! He is not here! Lo! the place where they place Him! <sup>7</sup> But go, say to His disciples and to Peter, that He is preceding you into Galilee. There you shall see Him, according as He said to you." <sup>8</sup> And, coming out, they fled from the tomb, for trembling and amazement had them. And they said nothing to any one, for they were afraid.

<sup>9</sup> Now, rising in the morning, in the first sabbath, He appeared first to Mary Magdalene, from whom He <sup>10</sup> had cast out seven demons. She, being gone, reports to those coming to be with Him, who are mourning and lamenting. And they, hearing that He is living, and was gazed <sup>12</sup> upon by her, disbelieve. Yet after these things He was manifested in a different form to two of them as they are walking, going into a field. <sup>13</sup> And they, coming away, report to

The reason for these omissions is plain from the character of the narrative. Failing to see the proper place of this commission, and that the record itself says that it was fulfilled (16:20), the proclamation was found to be impracticable, hence was considered spurious. Those who took this commission on themselves found they could not cast out demons, take up serpents, drink poison, or raise the dead, though they might seem to speak new languages or help the ailing.

This commission is for all creation. It is not confined to Israel, or mankind, but is directed to men as a part of the wider realm of creation. Originally, Adam was on close terms with the lower creatures. This commission will be restored in the kingdom.

Paul, in his earlier ministries, had a part in this proclamation. While on the island of Melita, a viper fastens on his hand. The natives looked for him to become inflamed or suddenly fall dead, but he twitched it off into the fire and felt no ill effects (Ac. 28 1-6). There, too, he heals the father of Publius and others in the island. The strange part of this is that this occurred after he himself had a physical disability and did not cure his friends. The reason is that this gospel was to be preached to every creature, and had not reached Melita before. When this narrative was closed it had been proclaimed everywhere, and was confirmed with signs following. Connected with the kingdom, it now awaits its fullest fruitage in that glorious day. Its signs reverse the curse of Eden. The serpent is rendered harmless and poison is powerless to produce death.

the rest. Neither do they believe them.

14 Now subsequently He was manifested to the eleven as they are lying back at table, and reproaches their unbelief and hardheartedness, seeing that they believe not those who gaze on Him having been roused from among the dead.

15 And He said to them, "Going into all the world, proclaim the evangel

16 to the entire creation. He who believes and is baptized shall be saved; yet he who disbelieves shall

17 be condemned. Now these signs shall fully follow those who believe: In My name they shall be casting out demons; they will be

18 talking in new languages; they will be picking up serpents; and if they should be drinking anything deadly, it may under no circumstances be harming them; they will be placing hands on those who are ailing, and it will be well with them."

19 The Lord, indeed, then, after talking with them, was taken up into heaven and is seated at the right hand of God. Now they, 20 coming away, proclaim everywhere, the Lord coöperating with them and confirming the word by signs following.

LUKE'S ACCOUNT

THE HUMANITY of our Lord is most prominent in this portrayal. Matthew's genealogy records His regal ancestry through Joseph, His mother's husband, to David and Abraham. Luke traces His descent through Mary and her father Heli to Adam and God. One places the emphasis on the King, the Son of David, the other sets Him forth as the Son of Mankind. Consequently, this life of our Lord has a scope wider than the chosen people, and its sympathies reach out to those beyond the pale of Judaism.

In the introduction to the book of Acts the author characterizes this as "the former account . . . concerning all which Jesus begins to do as well as to teach until the day on which He was taken up". Thus this biography links up with the labors of the apostles in Acts, and leads on to Paul's special evangel to the nations, and is not eclipsed until Israel is set aside. Hence it approaches more closely to the grace we enjoy than any of the other accounts.

In this biography we have the ideal Man. He is a King, as in Matthew, He serves as in Mark, He is divine as in John, but these aspects are subordinated to bring into strong relief the sympathetic, gracious, human side of His character. His birth and childhood are given much place. His maturity is announced before He enters His public ministry. His kinship with the whole race is emphasized in the commission He gives His disciples.

It is the longest account we have of our Lord's life and records six miracles and eleven parables not found elsewhere. These are characteristic of the sympathetic Saviour and Healer of His people. The miraculous draft of fishes (5<sup>4-11</sup>), convinces Peter of his own sinfulness and makes him a fisher of men. The raising of the widow of Nain's son (7<sup>11-18</sup>), restores him to his disconsolate mother. The woman with a spirit of infirmity is released (13<sup>11-18</sup>). The man with the dropsy is healed on the sabbath (14<sup>1-6</sup>). The ten lepers are cleansed and the Samaritan alone returns to thank Him (17<sup>12-19</sup>). One of those who came to arrest Him having his ear cut off by an impetuous disciple, He arrests His captors long enough to heal it. Such scenes of sympathy and salvation pervade this portrayal of our Lord.

The author of this account was not an apostle, like Matthew and John, nor a local Jew, like Mark, nor was he an actual witness of any of the matters of which he writes, but he was closely associated with those who had been with Him from the beginning. Hence this account is in the nature of a biography drawn from existing sources and eye witnesses. Many similar accounts were written at the time, but, not possessing the vitality of a divine revelation, they were ephemeral and perished.

Luke's close connection with the apostle Paul has led some to believe that this account is really a Pauline production and sets forth the life of our Lord in accord with the teaching of the apostle to the nations. But there is only a slight element of truth in this position. Luke's commission, conveying repentance and the pardon of sins to all nations, based on the sufferings of Christ (24<sup>46-47</sup>) was used by Paul in his earliest ministry (Ac.13<sup>28, 47</sup>), when he was proclaiming Christ according to the flesh (2 Co.5<sup>16</sup>). Paul's later ministries, especially that for today, as set forth in his prison epistles, are based on His celestial glories, not on His terrestrial humiliation. All depends on the absence of all the features of God's operations which we find in Luke. Both cannot be true at the same time.

Luke brings blessing to the nations according to the place they occupy in the Pentecostal era. They are the Uncircumcision who are merely guests at Israel's board. The revelation of the secret administration in which we find ourselves is in gracious contrast with all this. We are no longer guests but members of God's family. We are not aliens but fellow citizens (Eph.2<sup>11-22</sup>). Our blessings do not come through Israel but in spite of their apostasy. They are not on earth, but in the heavens.

Luke lets a little stream of blessing trickle through to the nations. Paul submerges us in celestial bliss far beyond the highest hopes held out to the favored nation.

<sup>1</sup> Many biographies of the life of our blessed Lord were composed during the lifetime of those who had known Him. Luke had exceptional opportunities for such a work and proposes to write an account which would be accurate and consecutive. Being trained as a gentile, and writing to one, he would naturally fall in line with the spirit's design to cover an aspect of His life which supplements Matthew's King and Mark's Servant and John's Son. He presented Him as God's ideal Man. He carefully checked all the material by first hand evidence. His historical references have all been found to be exact. We may rest assured that all the facts have been fully confirmed.

<sup>3</sup> The expression "from the very first" may also be rendered "from above", as when the curtain of the temple was rent from the top (Mt. 27<sup>51</sup>). It would then signify that this account was a special revelation from heaven. This is true, but it is not the point in this passage. Though inspired from above, the evidence here given is rather the human side. The expression contains the Greek element ana up, which also means back, or anew (Jn. 3<sup>3,7</sup>). Paul could not possibly mean that the Jews who hated him had a revelation of him "from above", but, rather, they knew him "from the very first" (Ac. 26<sup>5</sup>). So here, Luke could not follow "from above". In space, the expression means "from above"; in time, "from the very first", or "anew".

<sup>5</sup> The routine or "course" of Abia, or Abijah, was the eighth of the twenty-four into which Aaron's descendants were divided (1 Chr. 24<sup>10</sup>). Each ministered in the temple for a week.

<sup>13</sup> We are not told what was Zacharias' petition because it was always the greatest desire of any man to have a son, and he, though just and blameless, had been denied this divine favor.

SINCE, in fact, even many take in hand to compose a narrative concerning the matters of which we have been fully assured among ourselves, according as those who, from the beginning, becoming eyewitnesses and deputies of the word, give them over to us, it seems good to me also, having fully followed all accurately from the very first, to write to you consecutively, most mighty Theophilus, that you may be recognizing the certainty of the words concerning which you were instructed.

<sup>5</sup> There came to be, in the days of Herod, the king of Judea, a certain priest, named Zacharias, of the routine of Abia, and his wife, of the daughters of Aaron, and her name is Elizabeth. Now they were both just in front of God, going in all the precepts and just statutes of the Lord blameless. And they had no child, forasmuch as Elizabeth was barren, and both of them were advanced in their days.

<sup>8</sup> Now it occurred, in his priestly duties in the order of his routine in front of God, according to the custom of the priestly office, he chanced to burn incense, entering into the temple of the Lord. And the entire multitude of the people was praying outside at the hour of incense. Now a messenger of the Lord was seen by him standing at the right of the altar of incense. And Zacharias, perceiving it, was disturbed, and fear fell on him.

<sup>13</sup> Now the messenger said to him, "Fear not, Zacharias, because your petition is hearkened to, and your wife Elizabeth shall be bearing you a son, and you shall be

<sup>14</sup> We have here a marvelous characterization of John the baptist and his career. His name indicates the return of Jehovah's favor to Israel in sending them the greatest of all the prophets after His long silence. The honor of being his parents will bring joy beyond the possession of many sons.

<sup>15</sup> It is implied that John will not be great in the eyes of the world. He had none of the marks of earthly rank or power. His robes were rude, his food forbidding, his palace a place in the wilderness. The high priests were clothed in glorious garments and dwelt in Jehovah's temple, yet were contemptible in His sight. Greatness in God's sight involves meanness in the sight of men.

<sup>15</sup> John seems to have been a perpetual Nazarite, at least in the matter of wine. (Of the Nazarites an account is given in the sixth chapter of Numbers.) This involved a lonely and consecrated life until his public ministry. The spirit of God came on the prophets occasionally, but John was filled with holy spirit before his birth. What an equipment for his marvelous ministry!

<sup>15</sup> Nazarite is from Hebrew nahzar, to sequester, and has no connection with Nazareth, which means a scion. Our Lord, who is presented to us in Luke's account as "the Man Whose name is the Sprout" (Zech. 6<sup>12</sup>) was called a Nazarene, or Nazarean, being an inhabitant of Nazareth. He was not a Nazarite.

<sup>17</sup> The last of the prophets promised that Elijah should return (Mal. 4<sup>5,6</sup>).

Lo! I send you Elijah the prophet
Before the great and fearful day of Jehovah comes
And he restores the heart of the
fathers to the sons,
And the heart of the sons to their fathers,
Lest I should come and smite the
earth to its doom.

John the baptist was not Elijah, but came with the same spirit and power. He was capable of performing the same work. When the scribes objected, saying that Elijah must come first, the Lord acknowledged the fact (Mt. 17<sup>10</sup>). Hence he is probably one of the two witnesses (Un. 11<sup>3-12</sup>) who come just before the kingdom is established. Meanwhile, had the nation been able to receive it, his work could have been done by John the baptist.

<sup>14</sup> calling his name John. And you shall have joy and exultation, and many shall be rejoicing at his <sup>15</sup> birth. For he shall be great in the sight of the Lord, and may under no circumstances be drinking wine and intoxicant, and he will be filled with holy spirit while still of his <sup>16</sup> mother's womb. And many of the sons of Israel shall he be turning <sup>17</sup> back to the Lord their God. And he shall be coming before in His sight in the spirit and power of Elijah, to turn back the hearts of the fathers to the children, and the stubborn to the prudence of the just, to make ready a people formed for the Lord."

<sup>18</sup> And Zacharias said to the messenger, "By what shall I be knowing this? For I am aged, and my wife is advanced in her days."

<sup>19</sup> And, answering, the messenger said to him, "I am Gabriel, who stand before God., and I was dispatched to speak to you and to <sup>20</sup> bring you this evangel. And lo! you shall be silent and unable to talk until the day on which these things may be occurring, because you do not believe my words, which will be fulfilled in their season."

<sup>21</sup> And the people were hoping for Zacharias, and they marveled at his <sup>22</sup> delay in the temple. Yet, on coming out, he was not able to talk to them, and they recognize that he has seen an apparition in the temple. And he was motioning to them
<sup>23</sup> and continued a deaf-mute. And it occurred, as the days of his ministry are fulfilled, he came away into his home.

<sup>24</sup> The joyful faith of Elizabeth is in striking contrast to the doubts of Zacharias. There is also a double contrast to Abraham and Sarah, who were also denied a child until their old age. But in their case Sarah was sceptical and Abraham believed God. But in both cases the promise was performed.

<sup>26</sup> No fact in the scriptures is more guardedly and circumspectly presented than the virgin birth of our Lord. The great issues involved, not merely the reputation of His mother, but the value of His relationship to both God and man, depend upon the question of His paternity. Once we see that He had no human father, the miracle of His sinless life, the value of His sacrificial death, the secret of His celestial Sonship are all revealed. No man, descended on both sides from Adam, has ever approached a sinless life. All deserve death and cannot save themselves, much less others. There must be a cause for His unapproachable perfection, and it is found only in the fact that He was born, not of bloods, nor of the will of the flesh, nor of the will of man, but of God.

To protect the name of Miriam as well as to link Him with the regal line of David, He is born within wedlock, and Joseph, the husband, is assured of the facts in a dream (Mt. 1<sup>20</sup>). Miriam is presented as chaste and God-fearing, but her most blessed place among women is not awarded to her as of merit but of divine favor.

<sup>31</sup> The name Jesus is a compound signifying Jehovah the Saviour. It is the same as Joshua, whose first name, Hoshea, salvation, was changed to Jehoshua, salvation of Jehovah. He was a type of Israel's Messiah, Who will lead them into the promised place of blessing.

<sup>33</sup> The reign of Christ is for the eons, a long but limited period. He then gives up the kingdom to God the Father, so that the kingdom itself is endless (1 Co. 15<sup>24</sup>). The negative is the only means used in the scriptures to denote endlessness.

<sup>24</sup> Now after these days Elizabeth, his wife, conceived, and kept herself close five months, saying, that <sup>25</sup> "Thus has the Lord done to me, in the days in which he took notice to eliminate my reproach among men."

<sup>26</sup> Now in the sixth month the messenger Gabriel was dispatched from God to a city of Galilee, named Nazareth, to a virgin, espoused to a man named Joseph, of the house and kindred of David. And the name of the virgin is Miriam. And entering to her the messenger said, "Rejoice, O favored one! The Lord is with you! Blessed are you among women!"
<sup>28</sup> Now perceiving it, she was agitated at his word, and she reasoned what manner of salutation this may be.

<sup>30</sup> And the messenger said to her, "Fear not, Miriam, for you found <sup>31</sup> favor with God. And lo! you shall be conceiving and pregnant and be bringing forth a Son, and you shall <sup>32</sup> be calling His name Jesus. He shall be great, and shall be called the Son of the Most High, and the Lord God shall be giving Him the <sup>33</sup> throne of David, His father, and He shall be reigning over the house of Jacob for the eons, and of His kingdom there shall be no consummation."

<sup>34</sup> Yet Miriam said to the messenger, "How shall this be, since I am
<sup>35</sup> not knowing a man?" And, answering, the messenger said to her, "Holy spirit shall be coming on you, and the power of the Most High shall be overshadowing you; wherefore the holy One Who is being generated also, shall be called the Son of God. And lo! Elizabeth, your relative, she also has conceived a son, in her decrepitude, <sup>39</sup> John was sent to prepare the path of the Lord, and this he does even before he is born. Miriam doubtless kept her holy secret to herself, reflecting that God would make it known to whom it was necessary in His own time. Yet the moment she comes into the presence of the spirit-filled forerunner, unborn babe that he was, he recognized and rejoiced in the presence of his Lord. The effect of this on Miriam was wonderful. The messenger had told her of Elizabeth, and Elizabeth's words reveal the fact that she shares her secret.

In the joy and exultation of these two blessed women we have a small foretaste of what the coming of Christ means to the world. Beginning with these two Jewish mothers, its widening circle will include His faithful followers, then the whole nation, and through them all the nations of the earth. And even before this He will have gone out in grace to the nations, during the apostasy of Israel, and chosen those who will wing the exultant note to the furthest bounds of the creation. Elizabeth begins the song that swells into the anthem of the universe at the consummation.

<sup>40</sup> Miriam responds with her magnificat. Its keynote is simple, yet sublime. Those who magnify the Lord cannot be else but happy. Those who humble themselves are sure to be blessed. She takes the place of the slave and rejoices to own Him her Lord. She knows herself an obscure, despised fellaheen, and suddenly she has become the most favored of mortals, a woman to whom all women will yield the palm of blessedness! But her thoughts are not of herself alone. Her case is but a pledge that God will scatter the proud and exalt the low. He will visit down-trodden Israel and place them on the throne. Now that He has begun to show mercy to His people, He will perform all the promises made to Abraham and the prophets. For whatever promises are of God, are in Him "Yes" (2 Co.12<sup>0</sup>). He is the pledge of the performance of every promise God has made, for the Seed of the woman shall bruise the serpent's head, and by His bruised heel bring in blessing far beyond the prophets' most entrancing predictions. The bliss begins with His mother Mary.

and this is the sixth month with her who is called barren, seeing that no declaration shall be impossible with God."

<sup>38</sup> Now Miriam said, "Lo! the slave of the Lord! May it come to be with me according to your declaration!" And the messenger came away from her.

<sup>39</sup> Now in these days Miriam, rising, went with diligence into the mountains, into a city of Judah. <sup>40</sup> And she entered into the house of Zacharias, and salutes Elizabeth. <sup>41</sup> And it occurred, as Elizabeth hears the salutation of Miriam, the babe jumps in her womb, and Elizabeth is filled with holy spirit, and she shouts out with a loud voice and said, "Blessed are you among women, and blessed is the fruit of your womb! And whence is this to me, that the mother of my Lord may be coming to me? For lo! as the sound of your salutation came into my ears, the babe jumps with exultation in my womb. And happy is she who believes that there shall be a maturing of what has been spoken to her by the Lord!"

<sup>46</sup> And Miriam said,

"My soul is magnifying the Lord, And my spirit exults in God my Saviour, <sup>48</sup> Seeing that He looks on the humiliation of His slave.

For lo! from now on all generations will count me happy, <sup>49</sup> Seeing that the Power does great things for me,

And holy is His name,

<sup>50</sup> And His mercy is for generations and generations

To those fearing Him.

<sup>56</sup> Miriam remains with Elizabeth until it is time for John to be born. Though nothing further is told us of their communion, we may easily imagine the overflowing fullness of joy which characterized their intercourse. Then she returns to Nazareth.

<sup>57</sup> The birth of a boy is always the cause of great rejoicing in the East, where sons are counted the crown of the marriage relation, especially if it be the firstborn. In the case of John the baptist this was enhanced by the fact that his parents were old and had little hope of having a child. Above all this was the sense of overpowering awe inspired by the supernatural manifestations that accompanied his generation. His father remained dumb until he had learned to believe the promise of God and needed his speech to prophesy His praise.

<sup>58</sup> The eighth day after the birth of a boy was, and still is, a great event in Israel. Until then the mother is unclean (Lev. 12<sup>2</sup>). On that day the relatives gather to circumcise the infant according to the law (Lev. 12<sup>3</sup>). Then, also, they give it its given name. It was the custom to choose the name from among its ancestors or relatives, and, in this case, they concluded to give it the name of its father, Zacharias. This means "Remembered by Jehovah", most fitting for John's father, but not at all suitable for him. In him Jehovah favors Israel, hence he is named John. How his mother learned this name we are not told, unless by that spiritual intuition which controlled her greeting of Miriam. They do not hearken to her, but ask her husband. He had been commanded by the messenger to name him John (Lu. 1<sup>13</sup>), hence he confirms his wife's selection. Only the Lord knows what names to give to His instruments.

<sup>65</sup> Such marvels soon spread in a land like Israel, especially as the time for the fulfillment of the prophecies drew near. Their holy scriptures contained many promises of future greatness for the nation, and they all converged in the coming Messiah for Whom some of them were looking. It was well known that Elijah would come even before the Messiah, to prepare His path (Mal. 4<sup>5</sup>). It was a day of expectation.

He scatters the proud in the comprehension of their hearts,

<sup>52</sup> He pulls down potentates from thrones,
And exalts the low.

<sup>53</sup> He fills the hungry with good things,
And the rich He sends away empty.

<sup>54</sup> He supported Israel His boy,
To be reminded of mercies

<sup>55</sup> (According as He speaks to our fathers)
To Abraham and to his seed, for the eon."

<sup>58</sup> bears a son. And the homes about and her relatives hear that the Lord magnifies His mercy with her and they rejoiced with her.

<sup>59</sup> And it occurred on the eighth day they came to circumcise the little boy, and they called him by the name of his father, Zacharias.
<sup>60</sup> And answering, his mother said, "No. But he shall be called John."

<sup>61</sup> And they said to her that "There is not one of your relationship who <sup>62</sup> is called by this name." Now they nodded to his father, what he should be wanting it to be called.

<sup>63</sup> And requesting a tablet, he writes, saying, "John is his name." And <sup>64</sup> they all marvel. Now, instantly, his mouth was opened, and his tongue, and he talked, blessing God.

<sup>65</sup> And fear came on all the homes about them, and in the whole of mountainous Judea all these dec-

<sup>67</sup> Never, in the temple worship, had Zacharias intoned a psalm of praise so full of goodness and glory for the people of Israel as burst from his spirit-filled lips when his tongue once more found utterance. First, like a true priest, he leads his hearers' hearts to worship Jehovah. Then he turns to his own child and portrays his mission. He begins with a tribute to the Messiah, yet unborn, Who, though He will follow John, was before him. This is very fine, and shows the touch of the divine spirit. Merely human knowledge and devotion would have caused him to pen a psalm of praise in honor of his son, the greatest of all the prophets. Yet the moral greatness of John is most clearly revealed in his constant note of abnegation. "I must be inferior", was his insistent claim for himself. And here we see his father before him forgetting for a while his great son, to celebrate the praise of his son's greater Lord.

The nation of Israel is continually before him in this psalm. The Lord is the God of Israel. The redemption is for the same people. The salvation is national, arising from the house of David. It is from their enemies, the Romans, who rule them with rigor, and who even interfere with their religion. His highest hope, as a priest, is to fearlessly offer divine service to Jehovah in benignity and righteousness all his days (<sup>75</sup>). That was the worst feature of the Roman rule. The worship of God in the temple was always in danger of interruption or restraint. Now he begins to see the dawn of a day when His worship will be fearless and free from foreign domination. The chief priest was being continually displaced by another who was more favorable to the ruling power.

<sup>76</sup> No longer is Zacharias unbelieving. The messenger's announcement of John's ministry is reiterated in his description of his son's mission. It is the custom, in the East, to prepare the roads for the passage of a great potentate. His most trusted servant goes before to see that it has been repaired. So John was sent to prepare the hearts of the people for the Most High. He was the greatest of all the prophets before the coming of Messiah.

<sup>66</sup> larations were talked about. And all who hear pondered in their hearts, saying, "What, consequently, will this little boy be?" For the hand also of the Lord was with it.

<sup>67</sup> And Zacharias, its father, is filled with holy spirit and prophecies, saying,

<sup>68</sup> "Blessed be the Lord, the God of Israel,

Seeing that He visits
And makes a redemption for His people

<sup>69</sup> And rouses a horn of salvation for us

<sup>70</sup> In the house of David His boy According as He speaks through the mouth of His holy prophets

<sup>71</sup> Who are from the eon,
Salvation from our enemies,
And out of the hand of all those who are hating us,

<sup>72</sup> To do mercy with our fathers,
And to be reminded of His holy covenant,

<sup>73</sup> The oath which he swears to Abraham our father,

<sup>74</sup> To grant to us, being rescued out of the hand of our enemies,
To be fearlessly offering divine service to Him

<sup>75</sup> In benignity and righteousness before Him all our days.

<sup>76</sup> Now you, also, little boy, shall be called a prophet of the Most High,

For you shall be going before in sight of the Lord

To make His roads ready,

<sup>77</sup> To give the knowledge of salvation to His people

In the pardon of their sins,

<sup>78</sup> Through the merciful compassions of our God,

In which the Day-spring from on high visits us,

<sup>79</sup> To make Its advent to those sitting in darkness and the shadow of death,

To direct our feet into the path of peace."

<sup>80</sup> Now the little boy grows up and became staunch in spirit and was in the wildernesses till the day of his indication to Israel.

<sup>1</sup> We have here a most notable example of God's overruling providence. Mary and Joseph lived in Nazareth, and Christ must be born in Bethlehem. How is this to be brought about? Little did Cæsar dream that this is the real reason for his arrogant decree to register the entire earth. He had no right to make such a decree and could not enforce it, for his dominions did not include the entire earth. To the north Ireland and Scotland were not his. Nor did his sway reach to farther Germany or India. He would like to have enrolled all men in his empire, but Rome never was a world kingdom such as Alexander and Nebuchadnezzar ruled. So Cæsar, at exactly the right time, orders Joseph and Miriam to journey to Bethlehem, that the scriptures may be fulfilled, as it is written (Micah 5<sup>2</sup>):

And thou, Bethlehem Ephratah,
Too mean to be among the thousands of Judah,
From you He comes forth to Me to be
Ruler in Israel
And His coming forth is from formerly, from eonian days.

It seems most probable that Christ was born in a limestone cave used as a cattle shed in the courtyard of the caravansary at Bethlehem. Salmon and Rahab, the parents of Boaz, seem to have been the first to settle in Bethlehem, and may have built this place, where David was born. The king seems to have given it to Chimham (2 Sa. 19<sup>37-40</sup>) as a reward for his father's faithfulness, and his descendant converted it into a khan. Thus it was that David's Lord was born in David's home.

<sup>8</sup> From David's day to the present, the country about Bethlehem has had its hardy shepherds, who guard their flocks from the wild beasts which infest the deep ravines and gorges leading to the Dead Sea on the east and the plains of Philistia on the west, as well as the wilder robbers from the desert and raiders from the coast. At night the flock is driven into an enclosure surrounded by a wall of loose stones and the shepherd closes the entrance with his own body, thus becoming the door (Jn. 10<sup>7</sup>). Such were guarding their flocks on the night of the nativity, when the great Shepherd of Israel was born.

<sup>2</sup> Now it occurred, in those days, that a decree came out from Cæsar Augustus that the entire inhabited earth be registered. This first registration occurred during Quirinus' governing of Syria. And all went to be registered, each to his own city.

<sup>4</sup> Now Joseph also ascended from Galilee, out of the city of Nazareth, into Judea, into the city of David which is called Bethlehem, because of his being of the house and kindred of David, to be registered together with Miriam, his espoused wife, who is parturient. Now it occurred as they were there, the days for her to be bringing forth are fulfilled. And she brought forth her firstborn Son, and swaddles Him and cradles Him in a manger, because there was no place for them in the caravansary.

<sup>8</sup> And there were shepherds in the same district out in the field fold, maintaining guard over their flock at night. And lo! a messenger of the Lord stood by them, and the glory of God shines about them, and they were afraid with a great fear. And the messenger said to them, "Fear not, for lo! I am bringing you an evangel of great joy, which will be for the entire people, seeing that today was brought forth to you a Saviour, Who is Christ, the Lord, in the city of David. And this is the sign to you: you will be finding a Babe, swaddled and lying in a manger."

<sup>13</sup> And suddenly with the messenger there came to be a multitude of the heavenly host, praising God and saying,

<sup>9</sup> When the darkness is suddenly illumined by a celestial splendor and the Lord's messengers stood by them, their courage fled and they were afraid. But the messenger reassures them and announces the great event which has occurred. Men may sleep, utterly oblivious of the birth that brings blessing to all mankind, but the heavenly hosts hail His humanity with exultation and cannot contain their joy.

<sup>14</sup> The far-flung effects of the incarnation are not confined to humanity. They reach from the highest of heaven's hosts to the lowest of humankind. It is the ultimate that is in view here. Peace has not yet appeared on earth, or delight among men. Even the heavenly hosts have had but a beginning of the glory that shall be. The messengers may not have known the method, they may not have understood the long delay, but they gained a glimpse of the goal. Through the birth of this Babe all God's great purposes of blessing will flow to the utmost bounds of creation. It is the pledge of all that heart can wish or God desire.

<sup>15</sup> The shepherds did not delay, but hurried to confirm the marvelous message which they had heard. What a contrast with the wonderful words was the humble scene they witnessed! No pomp, no state, not even a human habitation! They found the lowly family, and the Babe cradled in a manger! Such glory as was there was spiritual. Heaven alone celebrated the Saviour's birth. The magi who saw His star in the East did not offer their oblations until a later date.

<sup>21</sup> In all things the Lord fulfilled the law. Even in His infancy its letter and spirit were observed. Not only was He circumcised, but the special statutes for the firstborn were respected (Ex. 13<sup>2</sup>). After the season of forty days for purification were observed (Lev. 12<sup>2-4</sup>), they brought an atonement for Miriam for a sin offering. Had they been able, they doubtless would have brought a lamb for an ascending offering (Lev. 12<sup>8</sup>). But such was their poverty, that they used the substitute provided for the poor. And, indeed, no lamb was necessary, for the true Lamb would be offered in due time.

<sup>14</sup> "Glory to God among the highest!
And on earth peace,
Delight among men!"

<sup>15</sup> And it occurred, as the messengers came away from them into heaven, the shepherds spoke to one another, saying, "By all means we should be passing through to Bethlehem, and we may be perceiving this declaration which has come to pass, which the Lord makes known to us." And they came hurrying, and they found Miriam as well as Joseph, and the Babe lying in the manger. Now, perceiving it, they make known concerning the declaration which is spoken to them about this little Boy. And all who hear marvel concerning that which is being spoken to them by the shepherds. Now Miriam preserved all these declarations, parleying in her heart. And the shepherds return, glorifying and praising God for all that they hear and perceived, according as it was spoken to them.

<sup>21</sup> And when the eight days to His circumcision are fulfilled, and His name was called Jesus, which He was called by the messenger before His conception in the womb, and when the days of their cleansing are fulfilled according to the law of Moses, they led Him up into Jerusalem to present Him to the Lord, (according as it is written in the law of the Lord, that "Every male opening the matrix shall be called holy to the Lord"), and to give a sacrifice according to that which is declared in the law of the Lord, "a pair of turtle doves or two squabs of the doves."

<sup>25</sup> Simeon signifies to hear, and is representative of those in Judah whose ears were open to the law of the Lord and who looked for the fulfillment of the prophetic promises. As the years spoken of by Daniel the prophet had nearly elapsed, and the sixty-nine heptads had almost run their course (Dan. 9:25-26) it was time for Messiah to appear, and such aged saints as Simeon would seek no greater boon than to set their eyes on the Lord's Anointed before they fell asleep. We may compare them with those in these dark days who see the signs of His impending presence, and pray for the privilege of surviving for His advent. There is no hope or consolation in anything, but He will transcend all our expectations.

<sup>28</sup> The faith of Simeon was Abrahamic in its scope: He saw Israel, not merely blessed, but a blessing to the other nations. Not only was he not so narrow as the nation and their hopes, but he was aware of their apostasy. Hence he intimates something of the sufferings of Christ and His rejection by the unregenerate nation. Thus, even in His infancy, the somber shadows of the accursed tree loomed up in the distance. Few, indeed, were there like Simeon who could see it afar.

<sup>35</sup> The sufferings of Miriam, the mother of our Lord, are merely hinted on occasion, and can be better imagined than described. She harbored in her heart all the glorious things that were said of Him. The messenger's first announcement, the dream of Joseph, the salutation of Elizabeth, the story of the shepherds, the solemn words of Simeon, the later visit of the magi, and the warning which sent them into Egypt all conspired to raise high hopes in her heart, yet left her without a full comprehension of His mission. When He was left behind in the temple, she sought Him sorrowing. His reply that she should have known that He must be in that which is His Father's shows that she could not understand Him. Later, in His ministry, when she sought to see Him, He almost disavowed all physical bonds for spiritual ties. This must have seemed hard for her. And, after all her high hopes, to stand beneath His shameful cross—surely then it was that a saber passed through her suffering soul!

rusalem whose name is Simeon. And this man was just and pious, anticipating the consolation of Israel, and holy spirit was on him.

<sup>26</sup> And he was apprised by the holy spirit that he would not be acquainted with death ere he should be acquainted with the Lord's <sup>27</sup> Christ. And he came, in the spirit, into the sanctuary, and as the parents of the little Boy Jesus are leading Him in for them to do according to the custom of the law concerning Him, he also receives Him, clasping Him in his arms, and blesses God, and said,

<sup>29</sup> "Now, O Owner, art Thou dismissing Thy slave in peace,
According to Thy declaration,
<sup>30</sup> Seeing that my eyes perceived Thy Salvation, <sup>31</sup> Which Thou dost make ready before the face of all the peoples,
And the Glory of Thy people Israel."

<sup>33</sup> And His father and mother were marveling at that which is being <sup>34</sup> spoken concerning Him. And Simeon blesses them and said to Miriam, His mother,

"Lo! He is lying for the fall and resurrection of many in Israel,
And for a sign contradicted.
<sup>35</sup> Yet a saber shall be passing through your own soul also,
So that the reasonings of many hearts should be revealed."

<sup>36</sup> And there was a prophetess, Anna, a daughter of Phanuel, out of the tribe of Asher (she was much advanced in days, living with a husband seven years from her virginity, and she is a widow of eighty-four years) who does not withdraw from the sanctuary, <sup>36</sup> Anna, or Hannah (1 Sa. 1<sup>20</sup>), meaning gracious, being of the tribe of Asher, probably represents the remnant in Israel who were true to Jehovah, as Simeon represents those of Judah. This is further intimated by her long life of celibacy after the death of her husband. It was exceedingly rare for a widow to remain unmarried, and it reflects great credit on her spirituality and desire to serve God. Like her, the ten tribes had long been without a husband. They were divorced (Hos. 2<sup>2</sup>) and were to abide many days before they could be His again (Hos. 3<sup>3</sup>; Jer. 3<sup>1</sup>). As Anna responded to Simeon's utterance, so will Israel be joined to Judah in the days of their restoration.

<sup>39</sup> Between the presentation in the temple and the return to Nazareth the events recorded in Matthew's account probably took place. The visit of the magi and the sojourn in Egypt must have come after the fortieth day, when they went into the temple, for they could not and would not have come from Egypt as long as Herod sought the life of the Babe. These incidents, however, have no bearing on Luke's biography, but pertain to the kingdom account, as given by Matthew. The magi sought the King of Israel. Herod did not fear Him as a man but as a prospective King. Each account selects only such incidents in His life as pertain to its peculiar theme.

<sup>39</sup> Only in this account, as is fitting, do we find any reference to His youth and private character. Matthew hurries us on to His proclamation of the kingdom, Mark begins with His baptism and ministry, and John omits His early life. It is well that His varied glories should each have a separate presentation, for even thus He is too glorious for our grasp.

<sup>41</sup> Up to twelve years of age a Jewish youth was not expected to be present at the Passover in Jerusalem or responsible for his acts. At twelve years, however, he became "a son of the law", and must keep the festival, and assume a direct relationship to the law as an individual. This is why, at that age, He went with His parents and acted independently of them by associating with the teachers of the law in with fasts and petitions offering <sup>38</sup> divine service night and day. And standing by in the same hour, she made a response to God, and spoke concerning Him to all who are anticipating redemption in Jerusalem.

<sup>39</sup> And, as they accomplish all according to the law of the Lord, they turn back into Galilee, into <sup>40</sup> their own city, Nazareth. Now the little Boy grows up and became staunch in spirit, being filled with wisdom, and the grace of God was on Him.

<sup>41</sup> And His parents went yearly into Jerusalem to the Passover festival. And when He came to be
<sup>42</sup> twelve years, at their going up into Jerusalem according to the custom
<sup>43</sup> of the festival, and finishing the days, at their return the Boy Jesus remains behind in Jerusalem, and <sup>44</sup> His parents know it not. Now, inferring that He is in the caravan, they came on the way a day, and they hunted Him among the relatives and those known to them.
<sup>45</sup> And not finding Him, they return into Jerusalem hunting Him.

<sup>46</sup> And it occurred, after three days they found Him in the sanctuary, seated in the midst of the teachers, both hearing them and inquiring of them. Now all those hearing Him are amazed at His understanding and answers. And perceiving Him, they were astonished.

And His mother said to Him, "Child, why do you thus to us? Lo! your father and I painfully sought you." And He said to the temple, and did not return with them after the seven days of the festival were over. He was now free to begin His preparation for His future ministry. He must, at some time, begin the breach which would bring Him entirely under the will and work of God, and this was the time and place to do it most delicately and effectively.

48 Though Herod was dead and Archelaus had been banished by this time, the absence of their Son no doubt revived the dread, inspired by the massacre of the babes of Bethlehem, which caused them to dwell in Nazareth. This may have been the first time they had taken Him outside Galilee, since their return from Egypt, for fear that His royal rights would endanger His life. Hence His absence would mean much more to them than that He had been lost among the thousands who crowded the roads from the holy city. And, indeed, His astonishing discourse with the doctors could easily have reminded some of the previous prodigies and predictions that accompanied His infancy. But, no doubt, He was already conscious of God's will for Him, and that His time had not yet come. So He returns to Nazareth until His majority, or about thirty years of age. Not till then could He take up His public ministry.

1 This is the most precise chronological memorandum in the scriptures. Yet, even so, the various chronologies are only approximately agreed, partly because, in expressing years in figures, no account is taken of their overlap. Assuming that John the baptist began his ministry at thirty years, according to custom, our Lord's age at this time would be six months less, or twenty-nine and a half. This makes the fifteenth year of Tiberius and the twenty-ninth year of our Lord the same for more than half of their extent.

According to Roman reckoning, the first year of Tiberius was probably 765, two years before the death of Augustus in 767. This would make the fifteenth of Tiberius 780 A.U.C. Pilate was governor from 779 to 789. Herod, tetrarch of Galilee was in power from 750 to 792, while his brother Philip continued to his death in 786.

2-11 Compare Mt.3:1-10 Mk.12:5 Jn.1:6-8, 19-23.

them, "Why is it that you sought Me? Had you not perceived that I must be in that which is My Father's?" And they do not understand the declaration which He speaks to them.

51 And He descended with them and came into Nazareth, and was subject to them. And His mother carefully kept all these declarations, parleying them in her heart.
52 And Jesus progressed in wisdom and stature, and favor with God and men.

3 Now in the fifteenth year of the government of Tiberius Cæsar, Pontius Pilate being governor of Judea, and Herod being tetrarch of Galilee, yet Philip his brother being tetrarch of the province of Iturea and Trachonitis, and Lysanias
2 being tetrarch of Abilene, Annas and Caiaphas being chief priests, came the declaration of God to John, the son of Zacharias, in the 3 wilderness. And he came into the entire country about the Jordan, proclaiming the baptism of repentance for the pardon of sins, as it is 4 written in the scroll of the sayings of Isaiah the prophet, saying,

"A voice imploring in the wilderness,

"Make ready the road of the Lord!
Be making His highways straight!
5 Every ravine shall be filled,
And every mountain and hill shall be made low,
And the crooked shall be straight,
And the rough roads smooth,
6 And all flesh shall be viewing the salvation of God'."

7 He said, then, to the throngs going out to be baptized by him, "Progeny of vipers! Who intim-

<sup>8</sup> At this time John had attained his majority, and, according to the law (Nu.18<sup>24</sup>) was entitled to the easy, comfortable and honorable career of a priest, ministering one week in twenty-four in the temple service, clothed in the sacred vestments, fed at the altar, and supported by the tithes of the people. He, however, forsakes the forms and ceremonies of divine worship for those vital functions in which the priesthood had failed. They should have brought the people to repentance and prepared them for Messiah. Instead, we find them His sorest opponents.

John's work was to smoothen the path of the coming Christ. In a most serious sense, it was not a success. Though he made many disciples, and baptized multitudes more, when Christ came His path was far from smooth, His road was very rough.

John's gospel was essentially one of works. He looked for fruit. When he was asked, What shall we do? he did not urge them to believe, but advised them as to their conduct. He aimed at a reformation in the nation, similar to that demanded by the prophets that went before him. He had no illusions as to the effect of his baptism. Unless accompanied by heartfelt repentance it would be useless. He had no difficulty in getting them to submit to baptism, but was furious in his denunciation of those who wished it without conforming their lives to its spiritual import. The cleansing of baptism in water is external and ceremonial: the purification he wished to produce was internal and spiritual.

<sup>10</sup> The lack of love among the people seems to have led to unlawful selfishness. The poor were not being provided for. Hence he exhorts them to observe a measure of that commandment which bade them love their associates as themselves.

<sup>12</sup> The tribute collectors were notably unjust in raising their assessments to their own profit. They kept the peasants impoverished.

ates to you to be fleeing from future indignation? — Then produce fruits worthy of repentance. And you should not begin to be saying among yourselves, 'We have Abraham for father', for I am saying to you that God is able to rouse children to Abraham out of these stones. Now the ax also is already lying at the root of the trees. Every tree, then, which is not producing fine fruit is being hewn down and cast into the fire."

<sup>10</sup> And the throngs inquired of him, saying, "What then should <sup>11</sup> we be doing?" Now answering, he said to them, "He who has two tunics, let him be sharing with him who has none, and let him who has food be doing likewise."

<sup>12</sup> Now tribute collectors also came to be baptized, and they said to him, "Teacher, what should we be <sup>13</sup> doing?" Now he said to them, "Impose nothing more than has been prescribed to you."

<sup>14</sup> Now soldiers also inquired of him, saying, "What should we also be doing?" And he said to them, "You should intimidate no one, neither be blackmailing, and be satisfied with your rations."

<sup>15</sup> Now as the people were hoping, and all reasoning in their hearts concerning John, if perchance he may be the Christ, John answers,

<sup>16</sup> saying to all, "I, indeed, am baptizing you with water, yet One stronger than I is coming, the throng of Whose sandals I am not competent to loose. He will be baptizing you in holy spirit and fire,

<sup>17</sup> Whose winnowing shovel is in His hand, and He will be scouring His <sup>15</sup> John was a faithful forerunner who refused to receive the glory due to his Master. He often seems to have insisted that he was not the Christ. The difference between them was expressed in the two baptisms, his in water, and that in holy spirit and with fire. Water failed to separate the true from the false. But spirit makes them manifest. The Lord Himself never baptized in water, but left that for His disciples. He did not baptize in spirit until after His ascension.

<sup>23</sup> Maturity and sonship, as distinguished from nativity and minority, were not attained at birth, but waited until the thirtieth year. The genealogy here given does not deal with birth or begettal, but with sonship. Hence it is not introduced until He arrives at His full manhood, and God Himself claims Him as His Son. The following pedigree is hardly intended to prove Him a descendant of Adam, but rather to show that this line, through which He came as to flesh, was absolutely incapable of producing the Sinless One, apart from His divine paternity.

<sup>23</sup> This genealogy gives us the "Seed of the woman" (Gen.3:15) Who shall crush the serpent's head. Unlike Matthew's pedigree, it does not trace the physical male ancestry, but the legal line, through Mary back to Adam.

Christ is first proclaimed as the Son of God. Then He is shown to be the legal (not physical) son of Joseph. Joseph, also, is not the offspring of Heli, whose son he is said to be, for in Matthew we read that he was begotten by Jacob. He was, therefore, the son-in-law of Heli, by his marriage with Mary, Heli's daughter. As Heli had no son of his own his allotment passed to his daughter's husband (Nu.27<sup>8</sup>) and so Joseph is the legal son of Heli and the physical son of Jacob.

<sup>27</sup> The lines meet in Zerubbabel and Salathiel (Mt.1:12), just after the captivity, because the line of Nathan died out in Neri, so that Jechoniah's son threshing floor and be gathering the grain into His barn, yet He shall burn up the chaff with inextinguishable fire." Indeed, then, entreating many different things also, he preached the evangel to the people.

<sup>19</sup> Now Herod, the tetrarch, being exposed by him concerning Herodias, his brother Philip's wife, and concerning all the wickedness which Herod does, adds this also to all: he locks up John in jail also.

<sup>21</sup> Now it occurred, as all the people are baptized, and as Jesus is being baptized and praying, heaven is opened, and the holy spirit descends on Him in bodily appearance as if a dove, and a voice came out of heaven, saying, "Thou art My beloved Son: in Thee I delight."

<sup>23</sup> And Jesus Himself, when He began, was about thirty years, being a son (as to the law) of Joseph, of Heli, of Matthat, of Levi, of Melchi, of Jannai, of Joseph, of Mattathias, of Amos, of Nahum, of Esli, of Naggai, of Maath, of Mattathias, of Semein, of Josech, of Joda, of Joannas, of Rhesa, of Zerubbabel, of Salathiel, of Neri, of Melchi, of Addi, of Cosam, of Elmadam, of Er, of Jesus, of Eliezer, of Jorim, of Matthat, of Levi, of Simeon, of Judah, of Joseph, of Jonam, of Eliakim, of Melea, of Menna, of Mattatha, of Nathan, of David, of Jesse, of Obed, of Boaz, of Salmon, of Naasson, of Aminadab, of Admeim, Salathiel was also the legal son and heir of Neri. From thence it is traced back to the second surviving son of Bathsheba the wife of David. From David back to Abraham this corresponds with Matthew's genealogy.

When Eve bore Cain she supposed that he was the promised Seed, so she said "I have acquired a man, Jehovah", and she names him "Cain", that is "Acquired". But before his brother Abel was born she realized her mistake, and called him "Abel", Vanity. The Seed was not to be the seed of Adam, but the Seed of the woman. This lesson is emphasized again when the male line dies out in Neri, and the allotment passes through a woman to a legal son, and this is repeated when Joseph becomes the son of Heli through his wife Mary. Not a single man in the whole list was capable of generating the One Who was to bruise the serpent's head. It is a broken, sinful pedigree. Hence the absolute necessity that He should be begotten, not of man, nor of the will of the flesh, but of God, and that a virgin should bring forth Emmanuel.

<sup>36</sup> As this Cainan is not found in the Hebrew text and seems to have been unknown to some of the early fathers, some are inclined to regard it as a very early corruption of the text. But, if we retain it we have the notable number, seventy-seven, as the full total, and, when all names found also in Matthew's genealogy are omitted, we discover three groups of exactly twenty names each.

1-13 Compare Mt.41-11Mk.112,13.

<sup>2</sup> The Slanderer is the suzerain of the kingdoms of the earth. Before proclaiming the kingdom it was necessary that he should be met and overcome. He took the dominion away from mankind through his deception in the garden (1 Ti.2<sup>14</sup>).

Adam was in no need of food, yet he sinned. Christ was famished from a forty-day fast, yet He withstood the temptation to provide Himself with food. Adam was in a beautiful garden, the head of all creatures on earth, yet he yielded to Satan. Christ was in a wilderness among the wild beasts, yet He refused to do homage even though it should give Him the headship which was rightfully His.

of Arni, of Esrom, of Phares, of Judah, of Jacob, of Isaac, of Abraham, of Thara, of Nachor, of Seruch, of Ragau, of Phalec, of Eber, of Sala, of Cainan, of Arphaxad, of Shem, of Noah, of Lamech, of Methuselah, of Enoch, of Jared, of Maleleel, of Cainan, of Enos, of Seth, of Adam, of God.

<sup>4</sup> Now Jesus, full of holy spirit, returns from the Jordan, and was led in the spirit in the wilderness <sup>2</sup> forty days, being tried by the Slanderer. And He ate nothing in those days, and subsequently, at <sup>3</sup> their conclusion, He hungers. Now the Slanderer said to Him, "If you are God's son, speak to this stone that it may be becoming bread." <sup>4</sup> And Jesus answered him, saying, "It is written that, 'Not on bread alone shall man be living, but on every declaration of God'."

<sup>5</sup> And the Slanderer, leading Him up into a high mountain, shows Him all the kingdoms of the inhabited earth in a second of time. <sup>6</sup> And the Slanderer said to Him, "To you shall I be giving all this authority and the glory of them, seeing that it has been given up to me, and to whomever I will, I am <sup>7</sup> giving it. If you, then, should be worshiping before me, it will all be <sup>8</sup> yours." And answering, Jesus said to him, "Go behind Me, Satan! It is written, 'The Lord your God shall you be worshiping, and to Him only shall you be offering divine service'."

<sup>9</sup> Now he led Him into Jerusalem and he stands Him on the wing of the sanctuary, and he said to Him, "If you are God's son, be casting <sup>10</sup> yourself down hence, for it is written that

 let OF-THE SACRED-place AND said

Adam questioned God's goodness and offended Him by seeking that which He withheld. Our Lord refused to doubt His love, though every token of it seemed to have vanished. He would not put it to a test. On every point in which the first man failed, the second Man, though tempted many times more searchingly, stood the test triumphantly. No mere son of Adam could have stood. Had He not been the Son of God the stress would have been too great.

8 "It is written" is the sword of the spirit, that destroys the insinuations of the Slanderer. And if he counters with a passage (for error is best supported by an appeal to holy writ), the only defense is another stroke of "It is written!"

9 A wing of the sanctuary overhangs the steep and deep declivity looking down into the vale of Kedron. This dizzy depth, rather than an eminence on the temple building is intended. The "sanctuary", including the whole temple area, must always be distinguished from the temple proper.

14-15 Compare Mt. 4:12 Mk. 1:14, 15.

14 At this point Luke, Matthew and Mark entirely omit any mention of events covering about one year, including the miracle at Cana of Galilee, the meeting with the Samaritan woman and the healing of the nobleman's son, which are recorded in John's account. Most of this time was spent in Capernaum, which became His own city during His ministry after His expulsion from Nazareth.

16 The greatest Prophet of all did not receive recognition in His own city. It seems to be human nature to find God only in that which is far off and dim. When He returned to the people with whom He had lived and toiled most of His life, He seems to have had no expectation of a hearing from them and spoke accordingly. But their terrible treatment of Him on this occasion did not deter Him from visiting them again a year or so later (Mt. 13:53-58; Mk. 6:1-6). Then He was able to heal a few of the sick, but could do no mighty deeds because of their unbelief and hardness of heart. All that His adopted city gave Him was a despised name. He was the only good that ever came out of it.

'His messengers shall be directed concerning Thee, to protect Thee.'

11 and that

'On their hands shall they be lifting Thee,
Lest at any time Thou shouldst be dashing Thy foot against a stone.'

12 And answering, Jesus said to him that "It has been declared, 'You shall not be putting the Lord your God on trial.'"

13 And, concluding every trial, the Slanderer withdrew from Him until an appointed time. And Jesus returns, in the power of the spirit, 14 into Galilee, and the fame of Him came out in the whole of the country about. And He taught in their synagogues, being glorified by all.

15 And He came to Nazareth, where he was reared, and, according to His custom, He entered into the synagogue on the day of the sabbaths and rose to read. And the scroll of the prophet Isaiah was handed to Him and, opening the scroll, He found the place where it is written,

18 "The spirit of the Lord is on Me, On account of which He anoints Me

To preach the evangel to the poor,
He has commissioned Me
To heal the crushed in heart,
To proclaim a pardon to the captives,

And the recovering of sight to the blind,

To dispatch the oppressed with a pardon,

19 To proclaim the acceptable year of the Lord."

20 And furling the scroll, giving it back to the deputy, He is seated. And the eyes of all in the synagogue were staring at Him. Now He begins to be saying to them that "Today this scripture has been fulfilled in your ears." And all <sup>18</sup> What more blessed or precious portion could the Lord have read than the passage from Isaiah? Perhaps nowhere else is such a delightful portrayal of His mission (Isa. 61:2). No wonder they marveled at the gracious words which came from Him! But even more marvelous is the message conveyed by His silence. Had He read another sentence, He would have plunged them into "The day of vengeance of our God". The two are closely allied—much closer than appears, except in the prophecy. God's vengeance will be visited on His enemies when He redeems His people. But Christ's ministry was confined to the proclamation of the acceptable year. Let us note the contrast between the acceptable year and the day of vengeance. God is swift in judgment, but delights to delay in blessing. He might have used the last two thousand years for vengeance, for the prophet gives no hint of aught else before His glorious appearing. Instead, He fills it with transcendent manifestations of His grace.

<sup>23</sup> The fame of Christ's miracles in Capernaum had reached His own neighbors. They were jealous in their unbelief. With marvelous skill He touches the sore spot and shows how thoroughly in accord with their own scriptures His ministry is. Even in the prophets blessing broke forth to outsiders when those within the covenant were in want. Sidon and Syria had no claim on Jehovah's mercy. Yet Elijah and Elisha, at a time of great need in Israel, are sent to convey God's mercies to the despised aliens. No doubt His language implied that there was a famine in Nazareth just as there was in Israel in Elijah's day (1 Ki.17), only that then heaven was locked three years and six months and physical sustenance failed, yet now heaven is opened for a like period (for Christ's ministry seems to have been about this length) and they famish in the midst of plenty. So, too, His words hinted that there were lepers in Nazareth as in Israel in Elisha's day (2 Ki.5), yet they are not cured, though a greater than Elisha is in their midst. How pitiful is their prejudice and impotent rage! He does not flee from them, but fearlessly wends His way through their very midst.

testified of Him and marveled at the gracious words which went out of His mouth. And they said, "Is <sup>23</sup> not this Joseph's son?" And He said to them, "Undoubtedly you will be declaring this parable to Me, 'Physician, cure yourself!' 'Whatever we hear occurring in Capernaum do here also in your own country'."

<sup>24</sup> Now He said, "Verily, I am saying to you that no prophet is acceptable in his own country. Now of <sup>25</sup> a truth I am saying to you, that there were many widows in Israel in the days of Elijah, when heaven is locked three years and six months, as a great famine came to <sup>26</sup> be over the entire land, and to none of them was Elijah sent, except into Sarepta of Sidonia, to a widow <sup>27</sup> woman. And there were many lepers in Israel with Elisha the prophet, and none of them is cleansed except Naaman the Syrian."

<sup>28</sup> And those in the synagogue are all filled with fury at hearing <sup>29</sup> these things, and, rising, they cast Him out of the city, and led Him to the brow of the mountain on which their city had been built, so as to push Him over the precipice. <sup>30</sup> Yet He, coming through their midst, went.

<sup>31</sup> And He came down into Capernaum, a city of Galilee, and He was teaching them on the sabbaths. <sup>32</sup> And they were astonished at His teaching, seeing that His word was with authority.

<sup>33</sup> And there was a man in the synagogue having the spirit of an un-

31-32 Compare Mt. 4:13-17 Mk. 1:21, 22.

31 His rejection in "His own country" led to His making Capernaum "His own city". From this as a base, He circled about on His evangelistic tours, returning thither at their end. Much of His work was done in it, for it was on some of the main highways of traffic.

33-35 Compare Mk. 1:23-26.

33 Since the serpent deceived Eve in Eden, man has been subject, to some extent, to the spirits of the unseen world. One of the most marked features of the millennial eon is the absence of the evil influences which now enslave mankind from without. Satan will then be bound. Subordinate spirits will not be able to prey on humanity. To inaugurate this kingdom Messiah must be able to cope with demons and destroy their power over its subjects. Hence, every time that He cast out demons by His word, it was a sign that the kingdom of God was near, and that the King was present to dispossess the evil powers that opposed Him.

34 It is a sad commentary on the darkness of the human heart, when the demons show an intelligence far superior to the people who possessed the special revelation which was given to identify the Messiah. They wondered and questioned, but the demons knew Him and dared not disobey His word. Peter needed a special revelation from God to teach Him who Christ was, yet these wicked spirits knew and acknowledged that He was the Christ, the Son of God. So far is spirit superior to flesh that these demons readily recognized His divine Sonship, while few of His professed followers fully entered into His messianic glories.

38-39 Compare Mt. 8:14, 15 Mk. 1:29-31.

38 A fever usually runs its course. Indeed, it is dangerous to stop it. So the ills of mankind will never be cured of a sudden until the great Physician speaks the word. When He appears again Israel will be in the most awful pressure, but will be relieved the moment He arrives. Then they will serve Him as never before. Not only will bodily ills be healed, but the social and political diseases that mar man's day will disappear when He is on the scene.

clean demon, and he cries out with a loud voice, saying, "Ha! what is it to us and to you, Jesus the Nazarean? Did you come to destroy us? I am aware who you are—the holy One of God!" And Jesus rebukes it, saying, "Be still, and be coming out from him!" And, pitching him into their midst, the demon came out from him, not harming him at all.

36 And awe came on all, and they conferred with one another, saying, "What word is this? seeing that He is enjoining the unclean spirits with authority and power and they are coming out!" And a hubbub about Him went forth to every place in the country about.

38 Now, rising from the synagogue, Jesus entered into the house of Simon. Now Simon's mother-in-law was pressed by a high fever, and they ask Him about her. And standing by above her, He rebukes the fever, and the fever leaves her. Now, rising instantly, she waited on them.

40 Now at sunset all, as many as had those who are infirm with various diseases, led them also to Him. Now, placing His hands on each one of them, He cures them. Now demons also came out from many, clamoring and saying that "You are the Christ, the Son of God!" And, rebuking them, He did not let them talk, seeing that they had perceived that He is the Christ.

42 Now at the coming of day, coming out, He went into a desolate place. And the throngs sought for Him, and they came to Him and 44 No one who attentively reads the accounts of our Lord's ministry will fail to wonder why He confined Himself to Galilee and never evangelized the cities of Judea. Except for His seven visits to Jerusalem and journeys to Bethany beyond Jordan, it appears as if He absolutely ignored the most important section of the nation in His proclamation. On His journeys to and from Jerusalem He taught and healed, but, in accepted texts and versions, we have no account whatever of any proclamation in the synagogues of Judea. The solution of this lies in the reading we have followed in this passage. Both of our best manuscripts read Judea here instead of Galilee. The fact that Matthew and Mark speak of a journey through Galilee at about this time is no clear proof that He did not visit Judea also. These so-called parallel passages explain why some manuscripts have the reading Galilee. It is an attempt to "harmonize" what appears to be a discrepancy. It is not at all likely that it would be changed to Judea when the other accounts read Galilee. The editor has personally checked the reading in the Vaticanus and Sinaiticus MSS. That these two great manuscripts should have this reading unchallenged by correctors or editors seems to be proof sufficient to sustain it. It is a relief to know that He did not absolutely ignore that part of the country which, in some respects, had the greatest claim on His ministry. Our Lord sprang from the tribe of Judah, and could hardly complete His course without proclaiming to His own tribe.

4 See Jn. 21<sup>1-8</sup>.

4 There are three principal methods of fishing spoken of in the scriptures. There was the hook and line (Mt. 17<sup>27</sup>) with which Peter caught the fish that had the poll-tax money in its mouth. There was the seine, or drag net (Mt. 13<sup>47</sup>), which was played out from a boat and dragged to the shore. Then there were other, smaller nets, operated from boats. These had to be used at night. It was considered foolish to even attempt to net fish in the day time. Hence Peter's mild remondetained Him lest He should be going from them. Now He said to them that "In other cities also, I must preach the evangel of the kingdom of God, seeing that for this was I commissioned." And He was proclaiming in the synagogues of Judea.

5 Now it occurred, as the throng is importuning Him and is hearing the word of God, He also was standing beside lake Gennesaret, and He perceived two ships standing beside the lake. Now the fishers, stepping from them, rinse off the nets. Now, stepping into one of the ships, which was Simon's, He asks him to be backing up slightly from the land. Now, being seated, He taught the throngs out of the ship.

4 Now as He ceases speaking, He said to Simon, "Back up into the depth, and lower your nets for a catch." And answering, Simon said to Him, "Doctor, toiling through the whole night, we got nothing, yet, at Thy declaration I shall be lowering the nets." And doing this, they impound a vast multitude of fishes. Now their nets were torn through, and they beckon to their partners in the other ship to come and join in taking them. And they came, and they fill both the ships so that they were submerged.

8 Now Simon Peter, perceiving it, prostrates before Jesus' knees, saying, "Come away from me, seeing that I am a man, a sinner, Lord!" 9 For awe engulfs him and all those with him at the catch of fishes strance. If they could not catch any fish at night, why even try in broad daylight? But Peter is impressed by the One Who spoke as no man ever spoke, and did as he was bid, without the least expectation. It would be difficult to imagine his awe and consternation at the enormous catch. To fill two boats with a single catch would be almost a miracle at night. It certainly demonstrated that the Man Who bade them do it was the most remarkable Fisherman they had ever seen! And this was the purpose of the miracle: to portray Him as the great Fisher of men, and to set forth His ministry. The fish represent the disciples that He caught during His proclamation of the kingdom. The broken net pathetically pictures His sufferings for their sakes. Even the action of Peter and John in salvaging the fish and the submergence of the ships are significant of their ministries in the eras that followed His death.

8-11 Compare Mt.4:19-22 Mk.1:20.

11 This is the marvelous manner in which He recalls them. In a few minutes He gives them a preview of the mission which they are to fill, and then summons them to go fishing with Him. Henceforth they will catch men.

12-14 Compare Mt.8:1-4 Mk.1:40-44.

12 What a series of striking contrasts do we see in this scene! A loathsome leper with a vigorous and wholesome spirit, which does not doubt the Lord's ability, yet leaves Him to work His will. Whoever should touch him would be defiled and unclean. Instead, the One Who touches him not only remains undefiled but cleanses the leper! The priests should have hearkened to the prophet like Moses. Instead they are given the testimony of an outcast!

The cleansing of a leper included a beautiful type of the death and resurrection of Christ (Lev. 14). Two birds were taken, one was killed and the other, dipped in its blood, was set free to fly into the heavens. Besides this, the priest must offer various sacrifices and anoint his ear and hand and foot and head with oil, a symbol of the spirit. This erstwhile leper must have made good use of this timely opportunity to testify to the priests at Jerusalem, during the days of his cleansing.

15-16 Compare Mk. 145.

10 which they jointly took. Now likewise are James also and John, Zebedee's sons, who were Simon's mates. And Jesus said to Simon, "Fear not! From now on you will be catching men alive!" And bringing the ships to the land, leaving all, they follow Him.

12 And it occurred, as He is in one of the cities, and lo! a man full of leprosy. Now, perceiving Jesus, falling on his face, he besought Him, saying, "Lord, if Thou shouldst be willing, Thou canst cleanse me!" And, stretching out a hand, He touches him, saying, "I am willing! Be cleansed!" And immediately the leprosy came from him. And He charges him to be speaking to no one. "But come away and show yourself to the priest, and offer for your cleansing, according as Moses bids, for a testimony to them."

15 Yet rather the account concerning Him passed through, and vast throngs came together to hear and to be cured of their infirmities by Him. Now He was retreating in the wildernesses and praying.

17 And it occurred on one of the days, and He was teaching, and the Pharisees and teachers of the law were sitting, who were come out of every village of Galilee and of Judea and Jerusalem, and there was power of the Lord for their healing. And lo! men carrying on a couch a man who was paralyzed, and they sought to be carrying him in and to place him before Him.

17-26 Compare Mt.9:1-8 Mk.2:1-12.

17 The fame of the Lord must have been very great at this time to gather so large and so representative a throng. Galilee alone had over two hundred villages, according to Josephus, and we may suppose that Judea had at least half as many. It is notable that, though He did not go about in Judea as He did in Galilee, the Judeans came to Him.

18 There is nothing unusual in the setting of this scene for an Oriental. To let down a bed through the steep roofs usually found in the West would be a feat in itself. But Eastern houses had flat roofs with battlements, easily accessible, often by a staircase on the side, and a place of continual resort. The roofing was readily removed, and this was often done in taking a corpse out of the house, for they had a superstitious fear of carrying a dead man through the doors.

20 A well man could hardly have pressed his way into the presence of the Lord in such a crowd, so what could a poor paralytic do? But the faith of the friends was far from paralyzed. It was very vigorous, indeed. It was manifested by their act. And it was this faith, rather than the pitiable paralysis of the patient, that challenged the attention of the Lord. Such faith was far more than sufficient for the healing of his body. So He ignores his paralysis and addresses Himself to its cause.

Disease is the result of sin. This is true racially rather than individually. As individuals, our sufferings are not confined to the result of our own sins, but spring from the most complex combinations of heredity and environment. In the kingdom health will be an effect, not a cause, and the basis will be the pardon of sins. The lesser is included in the greater.

24 Pardon is executive clemency based on authority. Only a high government official can pardon. Sin can be pardoned only by God and the One to Whom He delegates this authority. His mastery of paralysis proves that He can pardon sins. This proclaims Him the Son of Mankind, the coming One Who can banish both sin and sickness from the earth. This will not be fully accomplished until the final consummation.

19 And not finding how they may carry him in because of the throng, going up on the housetop they let him down, with the cot, through the tiles into the midst in front of Jesus. And, perceiving their faith, He said to him, "Man, your sins have been pardoned you."

21 And the scribes and the Pharisees begin to reason, saying, "Who is this who is speaking blasphemies? Who is able to pardon sins except God only?"

22 Now Jesus, recognizing their reasonings, answering, said to them, "What are you reasoning in your hearts? Which is easier, to be saying, 'Your sins have been pardoned you,' or to be saying, 'Rouse and walk'?"

24 Now, that you may be perceiving that the Son of Mankind has authority on earth to pardon sins (He said to the paralytic) I am saying to you, 'Rouse and pick up your cot and go into your house.' And rising instantly before them, picking up that on which he was laid, he came away into his house, glorifying God. And they were all taken with amazement and glorified God, and are filled with fear, saying that "We perceived paradoxes today!"

27 And after these things He came out and gazes at a tribute collector named Levi, sitting at the tribute office, and said to him, "Be following Me." And leaving all, rising, he follows Him. And Levi makes a great reception for Him in his house, and there was a vast throng

27-28 Compare Mt.9:Mk.2:13,14.

27 Human wisdom and expedience would have urged our Lord to choose for His apostles men of the highest character and reputation. Instead, He chooses those that were despised and abhorred. Not without cause were the collectors of revenue for Rome hated for their traitorous occupation and extortionate greed. John the baptist, in telling them to assess no more than what had been prescribed (3:13), pointed out their most reprehensible practise. They collected far in excess of the government's requirements and kept the balance themselves. This opportunity to enrich themselves at the expense of their fellow-countrymen was the only motive which could tempt a Jew into this hated occupation. They were always classed with sinners.

Our Lord does not seek to cover His call of Levi, or Matthew, as he is usually named. He goes right to the tribute office and takes him from his work. He does not wait until he can meet him elsewhere, or until he changes his occupation, or has been put on probation. It is evident that He wishes to impress the people with the fact that He came to call the unrighteous and sinners, in order to magnify God's love and mercy rather than His justice.

29-32 Compare Mt.9:10-13 Mk.2:15-17.

31 What subtle irony there is in these words! The Pharisees and scribes were foully diseased within in spite of their pious appearance. Yet their ailment was like some insidious plague that deadens the nerves to its presence. The truth remains, the Lord could not call those who thought themselves whole, however serious their real condition.

33-35 Compare Mt.9:14,15 Mk.2:18-20.

33 How little did they realize the privilege of His presence! Not even John, let alone the Pharisees, could provide a spiritual banquet. Why should they have a physical feast?

36 Compare Mt.9:16 Mk.2:21.

37-39 Compare Mt.9:17 Mk.2:22.

36 The Pharisees were trying to patch up their old cloak by tearing a piece from His new one. Their old skin bottles were empty and decayed. They had no joy and the forms which once contained it had become corrupted of tribute collectors and others who were lying down with them.

30 And the Pharisees and the scribes murmured about them to His disciples, saying, "Wherefore are you eating and drinking with tribute collectors and sinners?" And answering, Jesus said to them, "Those who are sound have no need of a physician, but those who are ill. I have not come to call the just, but sinners, to repentance."

33 Yet they said to Him, "John's disciples are fasting frequently and are making petitions; likewise also those of the Pharisees; yet yours are eating and drinking."

34 Now Jesus said to them, "Can you make the sons of the bridal chamber fast while the bridegroom is with them? Yet days will be coming, whenever the bridegroom should be taken from them also, then, in those days, they will be fasting."

36 Now He told them a parable also, that "No one, rending a patch from a new cloak, is patching it on an old cloak. Yet if so, surely the new will be rending it, and the patch from the new will not be agreeing with the old.

37 And no one is draining fresh wine into old wine skins. Yet if so, surely the fresh wine will be bursting the wine skins, and it will be spilled, and the wine skins will be destroyed. But fresh wine is to be drained into new wine skins, and 39 both are preserved. And no one, drinking the old, immediately wants fresh, for he is saying, 'The old is mellowed.' " and decayed. The wine the Lord gave them was full of cheer and gladness, and could not find expression in fasting and asceticism. All this was said, doubtless, at the reception of Levi, to defend the feasting and the joy, and to dispel the gloom which they sought to cast over it.

1-5 Compare Mt.12:1-8 Mk.2:23-28 Deut.23:25.

1 The somewhat enigmatical word second-first in the Greek has proved so inexplicable that many texts have omitted it, and few editors retain it. Many explanations have been offered, but most of them are based on conjecture. The solution seems simple. The Jews had several sabbaths besides the seventh day of the week. The fifteenth and the twenty-second of Nisan were sabbaths, being the first and last days of the festival of Unleavened Bread. When the weekly sabbath came on the sixteenth, two sabbaths would come together, one a "great day" (Jn. 19:31), and the next an ordinary sabbath. To distinguish the fifteenth-sixteenth sabbath from the double sabbath a week later it was called the first, and to distinguish the second day from the first it was called the second-first (Lev. 23:8-9). This was probably the day of His resurrection.

2 According to the law (Deut.23:25), the disciples had a perfect right to pluck the ears and eat them, though this is not legal in the Western world. The Pharisees do not object to that, but to the act of rubbing, which they interpreted as work unlawful on the sabbath day. If we tear off the mask, we shall find that they were breaking the law, not the disciples. It was probably the festival of Unleavened Bread. The disciples eating the grain as it came from the stalks, certainly ate unleavened bread! But, in the spiritual realm, hypocrisy is leaven (12:1), and they were guilty of hypocrisy, they were using leaven, at the very beginning of the feast, which was unlawful!

3 Though the disciples had committed no breach of the law, what if they had? The priests labor in the temple, David ate before God (1 Sa. 21:1-6), and they were in the presence of the Lord of the Sabbath Himself. If He is not offended, why should they be?

6-11 Compare Mt.12:9-14 Mk.3:1-6.

6 Now it occurred on the second first sabbath, He is going through the sowings, and His disciples plucked the ears and ate, rubbing
2 them together in their hands. Now some of the Pharisees said to them, "Why are you doing what is not allowed to be done on the sabbaths?" And answering, Jesus said to them, "Now did you not read this that David does, when he
4 hungers, he and those who are with him, how he entered into the house of God, and taking the show bread, he ate also, and gives to those with him also, that which no one is allowed to eat except only
5 the priests?" And He said to them that "The Son of Mankind is Lord of the sabbath also."

6 Now it occurred on a different sabbath also, He is entering into the synagogue and teaching. And there was a man there, and his
7 right hand was withered. Now the scribes and the Pharisees scrutinized Him, to see if He is curing on the sabbath, that they may be find-
8 ing an accusation against Him. Yet He had perceived their reasonings. Now He said to the man having the withered hand, "Rouse and stand in the midst." And rising, he 9 stood. Now Jesus said to them, "I will be enquiring of you if it is allowed on the sabbath to do good or to do evil, to save a soul or to de-10 stroy?" And looking about on them all, He said to the man, "Stretch out your hand." Now he does it, and his hand was restored
11 as the other. Now they are filled

<sup>6</sup> Jewish tradition carried sabbath observance to ridiculous lengths. They gravely discussed whether it is lawful to put out one's hand to give to a beggar, and how far! They disagreed as to whether it is allowable to comfort the sick on that day! It is striking how many times the Lord is reported as healing on the sabbath. The reason is clear. These instances are signs indicative of the healing of the nation. But when the nation is cured it will enter into the great sabbatism of the day of the Lord, commonly called the millennium. Healing brings relaxation, rest. How fitting that it should be on the sabbath!

<sup>12</sup> Communion with God is the only proper and adequate preparation for His work. The apostles were not chosen without God's guidance. They were not chosen for their own excellence, but for their fitness to fulfill the will of God and carry out His purpose. Thus one of them was actually selected from the beginning to betray his Lord.

<sup>13-16</sup> Compare Mt.10:1-4 Mk.3:13-19.

<sup>13</sup> The name "apostle" is really our "commissioner". They were to be His authoritative representatives, when He was not present. As God had given Him a commission, with authority to enforce it, so He delegated it to them. After His ascension they became the recognized leaders until the increasing apostasy deposed them and put James, the Lord's brother according to the flesh, in their place. In the kingdom they will rule the twelve tribes, with Matthias in the place of Judas.

<sup>14</sup> Simon, or Peter, is always first among the apostles. His name hitherto was Simon, meaning Hearing, but the Lord changes it to Peter, meaning Rock, as he is the first stone in the spiritual edifice He is about to build. His father's name was John, but this is also changed by our Lord to Jonah, meaning Dove, a symbol of the spirit, and of Peter's spiritual paternity. Simon, son of John, is the physical man, Peter, son of Jonah, the spiritual.

<sup>20</sup> There is no reason for creating a difficulty by insisting that this is Luke's version of the Sermon on the Mount found in Matthew's account.

with folly, and they talked about it to one another, saying, "Whatever should they be doing to Jesus?"

<sup>12</sup> Now it occurred in these days He came away into the mountain to pray, and throughout the night He <sup>13</sup> was in the prayer of God. And when it became day He shouts to His disciples, and chooses from them twelve, whom He names apostles also: Simon, whom He names also Peter, and Andrew his brother, and James and John, and Philip <sup>15</sup> and Bartholomew, and Matthew and Thomas, and James of Alphaeus <sup>16</sup> and Simon, called the Zealot, and Judas of James and Judas Iscariot, who also became a traitor.

<sup>17</sup> And descending with them He stood on an even place. And a vast throng of His disciples and a vast multitude of people from entire Judea and Jerusalem and maritime Tyre and Sidon, who came to <sup>18</sup> hear Him and to be healed of their diseases and who are annoyed by <sup>19</sup> unclean spirits, were cured. And the entire throng sought to touch Him, seeing that power came out of Him, and He healed all.

<sup>20</sup> And He, lifting up His eyes to His disciples, said, "Happy are the poor, seeing that yours is the <sup>21</sup> kingdom of God. Happy are they who are hungering now, seeing that you shall be satisfied. Happy are they who are lamenting now, seeing that you shall be laughing.

Our Lord undoubtedly repeated much of His message to fresh audiences. The variations and differences in detail are intentional and correspond with the character of the account. Matthew takes Him up into a mountain and surrounds Him with His disciples. Luke takes Him down to an even place and surrounds Him with a vast concourse, though He spoke only to the disciples.

<sup>20</sup> The weal and woe pronounced on the poor and rich, the hungry and the full, the lamenting and the laughing, those who are hated and those who are flattered, is strictly limited by the word now. Conditions on earth preceding the coming of the kingdom involve the true disciple in poverty, hunger, distress, and hatred. The same conditions will prevail again just before the kingdom actually appears. These beatitudes will be fulfilled in the vast throng who come out of the great affliction (Un. 7<sup>13-17</sup>). Of them it is said "They shall be hungering no longer . . . and every tear shall God be brushing away from their eyes." The woes are equally applicable in the same period to the apostates in great Babylon. The rich apostate Jews represented by the false woman of the apocalypse (Un. 17, 18) who indulge themselves and have no sorrow—these shall suffer death and mourning and famine. And those who see their judgment will repeat our Lord's words: "Woe! Woe!" (Un. 18<sup>10</sup>). In the present interval of God's transcendent grace, while blessing comes to the nations because of Israel's rejection of the kingdom, there is no woe pronounced on the rich, but they are charged to use their riches for God (1 Tim. 6<sup>17-19</sup>).

be hating you, and whenever they should be severing from you, and reproaching you and casting out your name as wicked, on account of the Son of Mankind. You may be rejoicing in that day and frisk, for lo! your wages in heaven are vast, for their fathers did the same to the prophets. Moreover, Woe to you rich, seeing that you have your consolation in full! Woe to you who are full now, seeing that you shall be hungering! Woe to you who are laughing now, seeing that you shall be mourning, and lamenting! Woe, whenever all men should say fine things of you, for their fathers did the same to the false prophets!

<sup>27</sup> But to you who are hearing am I saying: Be loving your enemies, be doing the ideal thing to those who are hating you. Be blessing those who are cursing you. Be praying concerning those who are traducing you. To him who is beating you on the cheek, tender the other also. And you should not be preventing him who is taking away your cloak from taking your tunic also. Now be giving to everyone who is requesting you, and from him who is taking away what is yours be not demanding. And, according as you are wanting that men may be doing to you, you also be doing likewise to them.

<sup>32</sup> And if you are loving those loving you, what thanks is there to you? For sinners also are loving those loving them. And if you should be doing good to those doing good to you, what thanks is there to you? For sinners also are doing the same. And if you should be lending to them from whom you

32-36 Compare Mt. 5:44-48.

35 We have here the substance of the new covenant which the Lord will make with Israel when He restores them to their land and to His favor (Jer. 31:27-34). After those days, He says

I put My law within them,
And I will write it on their hearts.

The second greatest commandment, to love your associate as yourself, never had more than a superficial and perfunctory observance. But Ezekiel declares that in that day He will give them a new heart and a new spirit, and will take away the stony heart and give them a heart of flesh (Eze. 36:26). This is the essential basis of the kingdom in Israel. The law will not be enforced from without but by a vital power within. They will actually care for the welfare of others rather than their own. So long as each one is concerned for himself alone, the best that government can do is to restrain the resultant evil. This happy form of rule will not extend beyond the people of the covenant. The nations will be ruled with an iron club (Un. 19:15). Their obedience will not be from the heart but compulsory, so that, when Satan is loosed, they are ready to rebel against the most beneficent form of government the world has ever seen (Un. 20:7-10).

36 The principle underlying these precepts is quite applicable in this day of grace, but a literal fulfillment of the promises is out of the question. Indeed, grace goes far beyond the spirit of this passage, for it gives freely without the promise of a recompense.

37-38 Compare Mt. 7:1, 2 Prov. 19:17 Ja. 2:13.

38 The figure is very expressive to one who has seen grain measured in the East. By squeezing down, shaking together and piling high until it runs over, the quantity of grain in a given measure is vastly increased. Grain was carried in the loose folds of the bosom of their garments.

39 Compare Mt. 15:14.

39 Besides its general application, the Lord undoubtedly referred especially to the religious leaders in Israel. On several occasions He characterized the scribes and Pharisees as blind guides (Mt. 15:14; 23:16, 24). The light that was in them was darkness, hence it was very dense.

are expecting to get back, what thanks is there to you? For sinners also are lending to sinners that they may get back the equivalent.

35 Moreover, be loving your enemies, and be doing good, and be lending, expecting nothing from them, and your wages will be vast in the heavens, and you will be sons of the Most High, seeing that He is kind to the ungrateful and wicked.

36 Become, then, pitiful, according 37 as your Father also is pitiful. And be not judging, and under no circumstances may you be judged, and do not convict, and under no circumstances may you be convicted: be releasing and you shall 38 be released. Be giving and it will be given to you, an ideal measure, squeezed down and shaken together and running over, shall they be giving into your bosom. For the same measure with which you are measuring will be measured to you again."

39 Now He told them a parable also, "Can any one who is blind be guiding the blind? Will not both 40 be falling into a pit? The disciple is not over his teacher, yet every one who is readjusted will be as his teacher.

41 Now why are you observing the mote in your brother's eye, yet are not considering the beam in your 42 own eye? Or how can you be saying to your brother, 'Brother, let me extract the mote in your eye,' yourself not observing the beam in your eye? Hypocrite! First extract the beam out of your eye, and then you will be keen-sighted to be extracting the mote in your 43 brother's eye. For a fine tree is not <sup>41</sup> Even those who are not blind should distrust their own eyesight. We can all see the obstructions in the discernment of others. Heredity, environment, religious associations, all intrude into our perception of things divine. If each one were more anxious to discover his own defects, he would be more fitted to help others. But how shall we extract the beam in our own eye? By carefully comparing our conclusions with evidences of revelation. Too many of us stereotype "truth" rather than hold to the facts on which all truth depends. Truth that does not bear a microscopic comparison with the minutest fact of the inspired scriptures has no right to the name. A careful presentation of all the facts in available form should be the most efficient of all aids to remove our prejudices and reveal the truth.

producing rotten fruit, neither, again, is a rotten tree producing fine fruit. For each tree is known by its own fruit, for they are not culling figs from thorns, neither may they be picking grapes from thorn bushes.

<sup>45</sup> A good man out of the good treasure of his heart is bringing forth what is good, and the wicked man out of the wicked treasure of his heart is bringing forth what is wicked, for out of the superabundance of the heart his mouth is speaking.

<sup>46</sup> Now why are you calling Me 'Lord', 'Lord', and are not doing what I am saying? Every one coming to Me and hearing My words and doing them—I shall be intimating to you what he is like. He is like a man building a house, who digs and deepens, and places the foundation on a rock. Now, as an inundation occurs, the river bursts through to that house, and it has not the strength to shake it, because it is built ideally.

<sup>49</sup> Now he who hears and does not is like a man building a house on the earth without a foundation, to which the river bursts through, and straightway it collapses, and the crash of that house became great."

<sup>7</sup> Since, in fact, He completes all His declarations in the hearing of the people, He entered into Capernaum. Now a certain centurion's slave, who was held in honor by him, being ill, was about to de cease.

<sup>2</sup> What He has said has neither interpretation nor application to nations outside the Israelitish fold. None of those present could so have understood His words, for their prejudice against the gentile nations was extreme, and He made no effort to disabuse their minds on this score. But we know that the nations will have a place in the kingdom, and that blessing will flow out to them through Israel. Does He give no hint of this? The centurion's slave gives us a graphic picture of the benefits which come to the nations through the mediacy of Israel.

The centurion himself is undoubtedly a proselyte to the Jewish faith or he certainly would not build a synagogue for them. The slave represents the subservient position of the nations in that day. But the most remarkable similarity is suggested by the distance between the Healer and the one who is healed. In Israel, all healing was done in His presence. They were at great pains to bring their sick from afar; they broke through the roof; His touch or the sound of His voice seemed essential to secure the desired blessing. And so it is with Israel. Until His future presence, they have no hope of partaking in the promises of the prophets. His feet will stand on the mount of Olives, His capital will be Jerusalem. The other nations, though at a distance, will also receive His healing balm as did the centurion's slave. There is no necessity for identifying this incident with that in Matthew's account. The lesson is the same, but the time and setting seem different.

The great principle of blessing at a distance through faith is followed much further in God's dealings with the nations in the present secret administration (Eph. 3<sup>o</sup>). Though Christ has not returned, and though Israel is not blessed, yet by faith we receive a blessing far superior to anything suggested by this scene. We are not slaves of Israel and do not depend on any intervention through Israel, but we have a place and a portion among the celestials which is immeasurably beyond both.

<sup>11</sup> Death was defeated whenever it entered the presence of Christ. This was the greatest sign of His messiahship. For the kingdom will consist, to a large extent, of those who have died

Jews, asking Him so that He, coming, should be saving his slave through it. Now those coming along to Jesus, entreat Him diligently, saying to Him that "He is worthy to whom He may tender this, for he is loving our nation, and he builds us a synagogue."

<sup>6</sup> Now Jesus went with them. Now, as He is already not far distant from the house, the centurion sends friends to Him, saying to Him, "Lord, do not bother, for I am not enough that Thou mayst enter under my roof. Wherefore neither count I myself worthy to come to Thee. But say the word, and my boy will be healed. For I also, am a man set under authority, having soldiers under me, and I am saying to this one, 'Go!', and he is going, and to another, 'Come!', and he is coming, and to my slave 'Do this', and he is doing it."

<sup>9</sup> Now Jesus, hearing these things, marvels at him, and, turning to the throng following Him, said, "I am saying to you that not even in Israel found I so much faith." And returning into the house, those being sent found the infirm slave sound.

<sup>11</sup> And it occurred next, He went into a city called Nain. And a considerable number of His disciples and a vast throng went with Him.

<sup>12</sup> Now as He nears the gate of the city, lo! an only begotten son of his mother, having died, was fetched out—and she was a widow. And a considerable throng of the city was in expectation, not having received the promises. Abraham will be there and David, but how can they enter except through resurrection? Therefore, Christ is the Resurrection and the Life. He that can raise the dead is the Messiah of Israel, He is the Son of God. Besides the rousing of Jairus' daughter, He brought Lazarus back from the tomb. The little girl had scarcely died, the widow's son was on his way to the tomb, and Lazarus had been dead three days. One was but a child, one a youth, the other a mature man. But each one responded to His word, and passed from death back into life. Thus will it be in the former resurrection, which will occur some thirteen hundred and thirty-five days after the middle of the seventieth heptad of the ninth of Daniel (Dan. 12<sup>12</sup>) or about seventy-five days after His epiphany. The faithful in Israel will arise to die no more, but the unbelieving will not awake until the close of the day of the Lord (Dan. 12<sup>2</sup>).

18-20 Compare Mt. 112-3.

18 By this time John had been in prison more than a year. Reports of the wonderful works of Christ probably brought to him the question of his own release. He had lived his whole life in the wide open spaces and close confinement must have been most depressing to his spirit, and led him to brood over his own fate. The news that he received concerning Christ seemed to cover only one phase of the activities of the One he had heralded. He baptized in holy spirit but not in fire. He did not burn up the chaff with fire. Were there to be two Messiahs? This one did only good and no evil. He could not hope to be released from prison by Him. Would He later execute the judgment foretold or was that the work of a different One? Such seems to be the trend of John's thoughts. He was anticipating the day of vengeance, when Christ would take His great power and reign. To have answered his question would involve the revelation of secrets which were not due to be known at that time. The kingdom was still being proclaimed. Its rejection could not be predicted without nullifying its proclamation. Hence the Lord does not reply to John's question, but bids those sent by him to note the character of the works

13 with her. And perceiving her, the Lord has compassion on her, and said to her, "Be not lamenting!"

14 And approaching, He touches the bier. Now those bearing it stand. And He said, "Youth, I am saying to you, be roused!" And the dead sits up and begins to be talking. And He gives him back to his mother.

16 Now fear got all, and they glorified God, saying that "A great prophet was roused among us!" and that, "God visits His people!" And this saying concerning Him came out in the whole of Judea and in the entire country about.

18 And his disciples report to John 19 concerning all these things. And, calling a certain two of his disciples to him, John sends to Jesus, saying, "Art Thou the coming One, or may we be hoping for a different One?" Now coming along to Him, the men say, "John the baptist dispatches us to Thee, saying, 'Art Thou the coming One, or may we be hoping for another 21 One?'" In that hour He cures many of diseases and scourges and wicked spirits, and to many blind 22 He graciously granted sight. And answering, Jesus said to them, "Go and report to John what you perceived and hear, that the blind are recovering sight, the lame walking, lepers are being cleansed, and the deaf-mutes are hearing, the dead are being roused, and the evangel 23 is being preached to the poor. And happy is he who is not being shocked by Me."

He is doing. This may be taken as a personal message to John that his suffering would be relieved even to the extent of rousing him from the dead.

<sup>19</sup> As the form of the Greek word for DIFFERENT or "another" is indefinite as to gender, it may be rendered "a different thing" or "another thing". That is, John may have hoped that Christ was about to change His ministry of mercy to one of judgment, in which case he would be delivered.

<sup>24</sup> Notwithstanding his question, John was no weakling or lover of luxury. He was not wavering in his confidence in Christ or desirous to escape merely for his own comfort. No one could call him a reed subject to the whim of every current of air! His imprisonment was proof of this, for he stood against the storm when he boldly accused Herod of his sin. His camel's hair garment proved that he was no silk robed courtier. They came out to see a prophet and that was what they saw. His present imprisonment was only an added proof of that, for such was the treatment which they usually gave a man of God. John, as the immediate forerunner of Christ, was the greatest of all the prophets.

<sup>29</sup> John's call to repentance was to the whole nation, but the Pharisees and lawyers could not accept God's estimate of their lives. They justified themselves. The rest justified God. The common people and the tribute collectors, by undergoing his baptism at least acknowledged their own sinfulness. To this day the same principle obtains. Self-condemnation is a sure road to righteousness; self-justification is the road to ruin.

<sup>31</sup> Those who wish to oppose God's work have no difficulty in finding fault, for every virtue, fitly displayed, is turned into a vice by the distorting eyes of jealousy and hate. John's subject was sin, so he was an ascetic. It was not his work to lead them into the joys of the kingdom. That was for Messiah. He satisfied their souls with away, He begins to say to the throngs concerning John, "What do you come out into the wilderness to gaze at? A reed, shaken <sup>25</sup> by the wind? But what do you come out to perceive? A man garbed in soft garments? Lo! those in glorious vesture and subsisting in luxury are among royalty. But why have you come out?

<sup>26</sup> To perceive a prophet? Yes, I am saying to you, and exceedingly <sup>27</sup> more than a prophet. This is he concerning whom it is written,

*'Lo! I am dispatching My messenger before Thy face,
Who will be constructing Thy road in front of Thee.'*

<sup>28</sup> For verily I am saying to you, Among those born of women there is no greater prophet than John the baptist. Yet he who is smaller in the kingdom of God is greater than he.

<sup>29</sup> And when all the people and the tribute collectors also hear, they justify God, being baptized with <sup>30</sup> the baptism of John. Yet the Pharisees and the lawyers repudiate the counsel of God for themselves, not <sup>31</sup> being baptized by him. To what, then, shall I be likening the men of this generation, and what are they

and girls sitting in the market and shouting to one another, and saying, 'We flute to you, and you do not dance! We wail to you and baptist has come neither eating bread nor drinking wine, and you <sup>34</sup> are saying 'He has a demon.' The Son of Mankind has come eating and drinking, and you are saying, 'Lo! a gluttonous man and a tip-food and made the wine for a marriage feast. All this was in accord with their message and ministry. Silly men, knowing neither, would have them mar their message by acts which jar with their ministry.

<sup>36</sup> Truth is best conveyed by contrast. In fact, all human knowledge is relative. We know nothing absolutely, but by its relation to other things. Herein lies the loveliness of this incident. The Pharisee was at the top, the woman at the bottom of the social scale. It is very striking and instructive to see these two brought together and to note their different reactions to the grace of Christ. The greatest glory of the Saviour was His love for sinners and His holiness which remained unspotted in contact with them. The touch of this woman of ill repute would have sent a shudder through the self-righteous Pharisee. It thrilled Him with compassion.

This Simon did not apprehend. He thought his Guest must be ignorant of her character to allow caresses, hence did not have even the insight of a prophet. But the ignorance was not on the Lord's part. He soon proved that by His parable. Neither was it on the woman's part. Her tears, her worship, all she did, show the deepest consciousness of her own sinfulness and of His salvation. It was Simon himself who was ignorant. He did not know his own sinfulness. He did not recognize his Saviour. He did not honor Him with the common courtesies of Oriental hospitality. If he had known Him he would have shown Him the utmost attention and rejoiced in the woman's worship.

There is no reason whatever for identifying this woman with Mary Magdalene. She had been a demoniac, not a sinner.

<sup>41</sup> This simple parable contains the whole philosophy of sin. However hateful in itself, its ultimate effect is to produce an abundant response to God's love. The greatest triumphs of grace are in the darkest depths of degradation. The Pharisee, instead of being immensely superior to the social outcast, as he supposed, was at a vast disadvantage. His love for the Saviour was shallow, his response to His grace pler, a friend of tribute collectors and sinners.' And Wisdom was justified by all her offspring."

<sup>36</sup> Now a certain one of the Pharisees asked Him that He may be eating with him. And entering into the Pharisee's house, He reclined.

<sup>37</sup> And lo! there was a certain woman in the city, a sinner. And recognizing that He is lying back at table in the Pharisee's house, fetching an alabaster vase of attar, and standing behind, beside the feet of Jesus, lamenting, she begins to rain tears on His feet and wipes them off with the hairs of her head, and fondly kissed His feet, and rubbed with the attar. Now the Pharisee who invites Him, perceiving it, said in himself, saying, "This one, if he were a prophet, would have known who and what manner of woman it is who is touching Him, seeing that she is a sinner."

<sup>40</sup> And answering, Jesus said to him, "Simon, I have something to say to you." Now he is averring, "Teacher, say it!"

<sup>41</sup> "A certain creditor had two debtors [paying] usury. The one owed five hundred denarii [$78.47, £16 2s 10d], yet the other fifty [<sup>42</sup> $7.847, £1 12s 6d]. Now, they having nothing to pay, he deals graciously with both. Which of them, then, will be loving him more?"

<sup>43</sup> Now, answering, Simon said, "I take it that it is he with whom he deals more graciously." Now He said to him, "You decide correctly."

<sup>44</sup> And, turning to the woman, He averred to Simon, "Are you observing this woman? I entered into your house; you do not give water for My feet, yet she rains tears on My feet and wipes them feeble, because he had no dire sense of sin. Without in the least encouraging or countenancing sin, we must acknowledge its place in God's purpose to establish and strengthen cordial relations between Himself and His creatures, and such communion as is quite out of the question by any other means. And the more serious the sin the more certain and loyal will be our love to the One Who delivers us from it. This is the only revealed or rational solution of the temporary presence of sin.

44 An honored guest would not only be given water, but would have had his feet washed by a slave; he would have been given a kiss of welcome by his host; and he would have been sprayed or rubbed with the fragrant essential oils or attars which are so common among the upper classes in the Orient. All these Simon had neglected, manifesting the poverty of his appreciation. All these the woman supplied in lavish measure and method, and so manifested the opulence of her love.

48 Undoubtedly, according to the parable, the Lord deals graciously with Simon as well as with the sinner. But it is to her alone He speaks the word of pardon and salvation. And, lest her act, the fruit of her faith, be confounded with it and be made the ground of her salvation, He concludes, "Your faith has saved you."

2 Many of the Lord's disciples have been misjudged, but the case of Mary Magdalene seems to be the most flagrant. The name now stands for a repentant harlot, whereas there is not the least ground for fastening such a sin on Mary Magdalene. She was a demoniac. Seven demons had gone out of her. Now she, with other women, followed Him and the apostles in their journeys. They seem to have had the honor of supplying His wants out of their own wealth. This does not at all accord with the account of the woman who was a sinner in the city of Simon the Pharisee (7<sup>37</sup>). Mary was from Magdala, on the western shore of the lake of Galilee, not far from Tiberias.

4-8 Compare Mt. 13<sup>1-9</sup> Mk. 4<sup>1-9</sup>.

5 The parable of the sower seems to have been repeated with some varia-

45 off with her hair; you do not give Me a kiss, yet she, since I entered did not intermit fondly kissing My 46 feet; you rub not My head with oil, yet she rubs My feet with 47 attar. On behalf of which, I am saying to you, her many sins have been pardoned, seeing that she loves much. Now to whom there is scant pardoning, there is scant 48 loving." Now He said to her, "Your sins have been pardoned."
49 And those lying back at table with Him begin to be saying among themselves, "Who is this who is 50 pardoning sins, also?" Now He said to the woman, "Your faith has saved you. Go into peace."

8 And it occurred consecutively, He also traverses by city and village, proclaiming and preaching the evangel of the kingdom of God,
2 and with Him the twelve, and some women who have been cured of wicked spirits and infirmities: Mary, who is called Magdalene, from whom seven demons had come
3 out, and Joanna, wife of Chuza, Herod's manager, and Susanna and many others, who dispensed to Him out of their possessions.

4 Now a vast throng being together, and those of the city going out to Him, He said through a parable,
5 "The sower came out to sow his seed, and in his sowing, some indeed, falls beside the road and was trampled, and the flying creatures
6 of heaven devoured it. And other falls down on the rock, and, sprouting, is withered because of tions on various occasions at this period of His ministry. He had been proclaiming the kingdom for some considerable time and had noted the effects of His message. This is the gist of the parable. The picture presented was one so common that all His hearers were familiar with it. The roads ran right through the fields. The rocks and the thorns were plentiful. Every Spring they could see this parable repeated before their eyes. It is usual to use this parable indiscriminately of every proclamation of the evangel. But that is surely a serious error. The evangel is preached today to open blind eyes to the salvation of Christ. This parable was spoken that, hearing, they should not be understanding. Only those who already believe can grasp the meaning of a parable. Even they often fail to apprehend its force. The disciples did not understand. How, then, could the multitude possibly discern its hidden meaning?

In Israel the festivals represented a cycle of their spiritual history. First-fruits and Pentecost and Ingathering were intended to tell of a spiritual harvest. Now He tells them of the sowing of the seed. There is only one Sower.

The usual elements of opposition were present when the Lord proclaimed the kingdom. The Slanderer, the flesh and the world were the three forces that frustrated His words. First, there was the opposition of the Slanderer that hindered many from believing at all. Among these were the scribes and Pharisees whom He called the children of the Slanderer, and whom John the baptist had called the offspring of vipers. Then, there was the mass of His disciples who, indeed, believed, in a sense, yet were not fit for the kingdom. The kingdom can be entered only through great trial and it will be most difficult for a rich man to get in. The great affliction (Un. 7<sup>14</sup>) will take its toll of the half-hearted, leaving only the poor and honest hearts for the kingdom. Any attempt to "apply" this parable to the present grace will find its chief interest in the confusion that it creates. The kingdom proclamation demands endurance; the evangel of God's grace supplies it.

7 having no moisture. And other falls in the midst of thorns, and, sprouting together, the thorns smother it. And other falls into good earth, and, sprouting, produces fruit a hundredfold." Saying these things, He shouted, "Who has ears to be hearing, let him be hearing!"

9 Now His disciples inquired of Him, saying, "What may this parable be?"

10 Now He said, "To you it has been given to know the secrets of the kingdom of God, yet to the rest by parables, that, observing, they should not be observing, and hearing, they should not be understanding.

11 Now this is the parable: The seed is the word of God. Now they beside the road are they who hear; thereafter the Slanderer is coming and is picking up the word from their heart, lest, believing, they may be saved. Now that on the rock are they who, whenever they should be hearing, are receiving the word with joy, and these have no root, who are believing for a season, and in a season of trial are withdrawing. Now that falling among thorns, these are they who hear and, being stifled by worries and riches, and by the gratifications of the life they lead, and are bringing nothing to maturity. 15 Now that in the ideal earth, these are they who, in an ideal and good heart, hearing the word, are retaining it and are bearing fruit with endurance.

16 Now no one lighting a lamp is covering it with a vessel or is placing it underneath a couch, but is placing it on a lampstand, that those going in may be observing 16 To enable His disciples to discern the difference between the fruitful and unfruitful hearers, He gives a further illustration. The hearty believer places his light on a stand. He makes the message known. The half-hearted one is slothful. He hides it under a couch. The worldly one puts his business first, and hides it under a vessel. These two shall lose the light they have, but the former shall receive more light.

18 In grace no one is deprived of the light he has, no matter how feebly it may flicker, yet the other part of the principle applies to all. He who has some light is on the way to further illumination.

19 The crowding out of His physical relations is symbolic of the trend of His ministry at this time. He was allying Himself with those of like spirit, and strengthening His union with them.

22-25 Compare Mt.8<sup>18-27</sup>Mk.4<sup>35-41</sup>.

23 A lovely little likeness we have here of that great spiritual storm which engulfed them at His crucifixion. The wind would represent the unseen powers of evil, one of which entered into Judas, and the waters the people who were whipped into fury under their influence. Had the Lord been absent, as on another occasion, we would refer this trial to the time of the end. But He is with them. Does not His sleep speak of His death, and the consternation of the apostles the fear which His decease inspired? And His awakening—did not His resurrection proclaim Him Sovereign over all the powers of evil? Not only wind and wave, but sovereignties and dependencies obey His will.

26-31 Compare Mt.8<sup>28,29</sup>Mk.5<sup>1-10</sup>.

26 Some manuscripts read Gadarenes for Gergesenes, or Gerasenes. Gadara is usually identified with the modern Um Keis, a place about three hours' travel from the lake shore on the far

17 the light. For there is nothing hid which shall not become apparent, neither concealed which should not by all means be known and come to be apparent. Beware, then, how you are hearing! For whoever may have, to him shall be given, and whoever may not have, from him shall be taken away also what he is supposing to have."

19 Now His mother and His brothers came along to Him, and they were not able to fall in with Him because of the throng. Now it was reported to Him, saying that "Thy mother and Thy brothers stand outside wanting to see Thee."

21 Now, answering, He said to them, "These are My mother and My brethren, who are hearing and doing the word of God."

22 Now it occurred on one of the days, He, as well as His disciples, stepped into a ship, and He said to them, "We may be passing through to the other side of the lake." And they set out. Now while they are sailing He falls asleep, and a storm of wind descended to the lake, and they were foundered and in danger.

24 Now, approaching, they rouse Him, saying, "Doctor! Doctor! We are perishing!" Now, being roused, He rebukes the wind and the surging of the water, and they cease, and it became calm. Now He said to them "Where is your faith?" Yet, being afraid, they marvel, saying to one another, "Who, consequently, is this, seeing that He is enjoining the winds also, and the water, and they are obeying Him!"

26 And they sail down into the country of the Gergesenes, which is across from Galilee.

27 Now at His coming out on the side of the Jermuk river. This location does not at all suit the circumstances surrounding this miracle. Except at Tiberias there is no overhanging cliff on lake Galilee, but at the site of some ancient ruins called Chersa there is a steep declivity, and beyond the ruins are tombs in the mountain side. This site is "across from Galilee", on the eastern shore of the lake. The shore is so narrow at the base of the mountain that a herd of hogs, rushing down its steep sides, would not be able to stop before being drowned in the water. These facts, together with the manuscript evidence, seem sufficient to justify us in adopting the reading Gergesenes, rather than the usual Gadarenes.

<sup>28</sup> The demons never seemed to be at a loss to identify the Lord. It might take a miracle to make men admit Him to be the Messiah. Few saw Him to be God's Son. But the demons usually insisted on giving Him this title and acknowledged His authority over them. In spiritual intelligence they were certainly far superior to any of His disciples. Hence they feared Him, realizing the lawlessness of their obsession of human beings.

In some abnormal trance states it is possible for a person to entirely yield control of his body to another mind. In this condition the thoughts of the directing mind find a response in the subject, before they can be uttered and conveyed through the usual channels. If one man can control another in this fashion, it is not difficult to see how demons can break down the human will and impose themselves on their victims. This was largely the case before the deluge, and is the reason why mankind was given a flesh diet thereafter. The present time is characterized by the activity of deceiving spirits (1 Ti. 4:1). Satan is transfigured into an angel of light, and those under him seek to simulate the operations of God's holy spirit.

<sup>32-33</sup> Compare Mt. 8:30-32 Mk. 5:11-15 Lev. 11:7-8 1 Ki. 22:22.

<sup>32</sup> Hog raising was contrary to the law of Moses. Swine were unclean animals, unfit for food. Hence the Lord was quite justified in being the cause of their destruction. Indeed, there was a fitness in furnishing the unclean demons with unclean habitations.

land, there meets Him a certain man out of the city who had demons, and for a considerable time puts on no cloak, and remained in no house, but in the tombs.

<sup>28</sup> Now, perceiving Jesus, and crying out, he prostrates to Him and said in a loud voice, "What is it to me and to Thee, Jesus, Son of God Most High? I am beseeching Thee, Thou shouldst not be tormenting me." For He charged the unclean spirit to be coming out of the man, for many times it had gripped him, and he was bound with chains and fetters, under guard, and bursting through the bonds he was driven by the demon into the wildernesses.

<sup>30</sup> Now Jesus inquires of him, saying, "What is your name?" Now he said "Legion", seeing that many demons entered into him.

<sup>31</sup> And they entreated Him that He should not enjoin them to be coming away into the abyss.

<sup>32</sup> Now there was a considerable herd of hogs there, grazing on the mountain, and they entreat Him that He should permit them to be entering into them. And He permits them. Now the demons, coming out from the man, entered into the hogs, and the herd rushes down the precipice into the lake and was smothered.

<sup>34</sup> Now the graziers, perceiving what has occurred, fled and report it in the city and in the fields. Now they came out to perceive what has occurred, and they came to Jesus and they found the man, from whom the demons came out, garmented and sane, sitting at the feet of Jesus, and they were afraid. 34-37 Compare Mt.8:33,34 Mk.5:14-17.

34 It is evident that the Gergesenes thought more of their hogs than of human beings. It is likely that there were other herds and other lawless practises which His presence would condemn. How terrible is the perversity that prefers darkness to light, because of the evil which it harbors! He seems to have remained but a little while, acceding to their request, but He does not leave them without a witness to His power and love, for the erstwhile demoniac carries on the work by proclaiming his cure to the whole city. The Lord seldom visited that side of the lake and may never have preached to them again.

38-39 Compare Mk. 5:18-20.

40 Compare Mt.9:1 Mk.5:21.

41-42 Compare Mt.9:18 Mk.5:22-24.

41 Undoubtedly, there is an intended contrast between this Jew, with the highest of privileges, who is at the head of a synagogue in Capernaum, and the centurion proselyte who had built them a synagogue. But the centurion is humble and confident in the Lord's power. He did not deem himself worthy of having the Lord enter his home. He saw no necessity for One so great as He to come into personal contact with the case. He recognized His lordship. As a result he received an instantaneous response. His slave was healed immediately (72-8). Not so Jairus. The centurion felt unqualified to come himself, but Jairus comes and casts himself at His feet, and desires His presence in his house. Surely the chief of the synagogue is worthy to have Him enter his home! Had his faith equaled the centurion's, his daughter could have been saved long before. He is delayed. The throngs are so thick that He cannot hurry. So it is with Israel. Their faith is feeble. They cannot grasp His power to bless unless He is present.

43 Meanwhile one who has a larger measure of faith is healed. Whether guided by intuition or by intelligence, she touches the tassel of His cloak. The "blossom", a fringe or tassel, was put on all garments as a reminder of the commandments (Nu.15:37-41). On it was a ribbon of blue. The robe speaks of righteousness, the fringe or those also who are perceiving how the demoniac was saved report to them. And the entire multitude of the country about the Gergesenes asks Him to be coming away from them, seeing that they were pressed with a great fear.

38 Now He, stepping into the ship, returns. Now the man from whom the demons had come out besought Him to be with Him, yet Jesus dismisses him, saying, "Be returning to your home and relate how much God does for you." And he came away to the whole city proclaiming how much Jesus does for him.

40 Now it occurred, at Jesus' return, the throng welcomes Him, for they were all hoping for Him. 41 And lo! a man came whose name was Jairus, and he possessed the chieftainship of the synagogue. And, falling at the feet of Jesus, he entreated Him to be entering 42 into his house, seeing that he had an only begotten daughter of about twelve years, and she died.

Now, at His going away, the 43 throngs stifled Him, and a woman having a hemorrhage for twelve years, whose whole livelihood being consumed by physicians, has not the strength to be cured by any 44 one. Approaching from behind, she touches the tassel of His cloak, and instantly her hemorrhage was stanchd.

45 And Jesus said, "Who touches Me?" Now, at all denying it, Peter and those with Him, said, "Doctor, the throngs are pressing Thee and jostling, and art Thou 46 saying 'Who touches Me?'" Yet tassel of its finish. Indeed, the Hebrew word for blue is formed from the word which means to finish. That which finished or completed our Lord's righteousness was His obedience to death. So that the woman may well figure that remnant in Israel who receive the salvation of their souls while the nation lies dead (1 Pet. 1<sup>9</sup>). The soul (not life) of the flesh is in the blood (Lev. 17<sup>14</sup>). Hers was a salvation of blood by blood. His suffering provided a blood redemption for the faithful few while the nation as such waited for redemption by power.

43-48 Compare Mt. 9:20-22 Mk. 5:25-34.

49-50 Compare Mk. 5:35, 36.

49 The hopelessness of Israel's state is well figured by death. If we take all the disabilities and diseases which are given as signs of her spiritual condition, their sum would be death. And it is notable that in this case, as well as that of Lazarus, there was delay on His part. This is most marked with Lazarus, and there the Lord gives us the reason for His deliberate delay. He did not want to cure Lazarus; He wanted him to die, in order that God's glory might be manifested thereby (Jn. 11<sup>4</sup>).

So it is with Israel nationally. He could long ago have come and restored them to life. But, for their greater good and God's greater glory, He is deliberately delaying His return. He will wait until their condition is beyond all human help, until its very hopelessness will proclaim the power of His salvation.

51-56 Compare Mt. 9:23-26 Mk. 5:37-43.

1-6 Compare Mt. 10:1-15 Mk. 6:7-13.

1 Hitherto, it seems, the apostles had remained with him as disciples, to learn His words and ways. Now, however, they are empowered as apostles, to represent Him and carry the proclamation into communities which He Himself did not visit. We can well imagine the ardor with which they would assume their new powers and responsibilities. This was not a general commission for all time. It continued only so long as He Himself proclaimed the kingdom and was withdrawn when it was rejected and He made known His sufferings. In that the apostles could take no part.

Jesus said "Someone touches Me, for I knew that power has come out 47 from Me." Now the woman, perceiving that she did not elude Him, came trembling, and prostrating to Him, reports in front of the entire people for what cause she touches Him, and so was healed instantly.
48 Now He said to her, "Courage, daughter! Your faith has saved you! Go into peace!"

49 While He is still talking, someone of the chief of the synagogue is coming, saying to him that "Your daughter has died. Bother the 50 teacher no longer." Yet Jesus, hearing it, answered him, saying, "Fear not, only believe, and she shall be saved."

51 Now, coming into the house, He lets no one enter with Him except Peter and James and John and the father of the girl and the mother.
52 Now they all lamented and they grieved for her. Now He said, "Be 53 not lamenting, for she did not die, but is drowsing." And they ridiculed Him, being aware that 54 she died. Yet He, casting all outside and holding her hand, shouts, 55 saying, "Girl, be roused!" And her spirit turns back, and she rose instantly, and He prescribes that she 56 be given something to eat. And her parents were amazed. Yet He charges them to tell no one what has occurred.

9 Now, calling together the twelve apostles, He gives them power and authority over all the demons and
2 to be curing diseases. And He commissions them to be proclaiming the kingdom of God and to be heal-

<sup>3</sup> The conditions under which the twelve apostles were sent forth had regard to the customs and usages of the land. They were going to their own countrymen and the most direct road to their hearts and confidence would be to depend entirely on their hospitality. Such was the custom then, and until very lately a poor peasant could travel all over that region without a purse, or provisions, or extra apparel. They slept in the same garments which they wore during the day. Strict etiquette demanded that every villager should invite them to eat with him. Indeed, on this point the Lord goes contrary to the established custom. To move from house to house would lead to much distraction and consume much time, so they remain in the first house they enter, so long as they are in the neighborhood. The villagers would not seriously object to this arrangement, for it saved them much toil and trouble. Each new lodging required special preparations and feasting and other courtesies which became burdensome and of no real benefit. Otherwise they were careful to keep the customs, and avoid needless persecution.

<sup>7</sup> Notwithstanding that John had exposed Herod's sin in marrying his brother Philip's wife, as well as all his other wickedness, and that Herod had locked up John in jail, the tetrarch had a high opinion of him and feared him and was sorry to be trapped into putting him to death (Mk. 6<sup>20-26</sup>). He seems to have clung to the idea that the Lord was John, risen from the dead, and expressed a desire to make His acquaintance and was eager to see Him perform a miracle in his presence. It seems strange that he was not able to gratify his wish, and did not see the Lord until He stood before him on the night of His betrayal. Herod was glad indeed of the opportunity, but all his talking did not draw a single word from His mouth. That was the only sign that was given to Herod, and it should have sufficed (Isa.53<sup>7</sup>):

He is hard pressed and He is humiliated.
Yet He is not opening His mouth.

<sup>3</sup> ing the infirm. And He said to them, "Be picking up nothing for the road, neither staff, nor beggar's bag, nor bread, nor silver, nor <sup>4</sup> have two tunics apiece. And into whatever house you may be entering, be remaining there, and be <sup>5</sup> coming away thence. And as many as should not be receiving you, coming out from that city, twitch off even the dust from your feet for a testimony to them."

<sup>6</sup> Now, coming out, they passed through each of the villages preaching the evangel and curing everywhere.

<sup>7</sup> Now Herod the tetrarch hears all that is occurring by Him, and was bewildered because it was said by some that John was roused from among the dead, yet by some that Elijah appeared, yet others that some prophet of the ancients arose.
<sup>9</sup> Now Herod said, "John I behead, yet who is this about whom I am hearing such things?" And he sought to become acquainted with Him.

<sup>10</sup> And, returning, the apostles relate to Him whatever they do and whatever they teach. And taking them along He retreats privately
<sup>11</sup> into a city called Bethsaida. Now the throngs, knowing it, follow Him. And, welcoming them, He talked to them concerning the kingdom of God, and those having need of a cure, He healed.

<sup>12</sup> Now the day begins to be declining. Now the twelve, approaching, said to Him, "Dismiss the throng, that they, going into the villages and fields around, should be putting up for the night and finding <sup>11</sup> Bethsaida was probably situated on both sides of the mouth of the Jordan, as it enters the lake of Galilee. This makes it unnecessary to suppose there are two cities of the same name. Moreover there is a spot not far away which seems to answer to all that we know of the site. It is a desert place, not far from the lake, near a mountain, and a grassy spot large enough to seat the multitude.

<sup>13</sup> This is one of the seven signs of John's account, which were given to prove that He was the Messiah. He is the true Bread, able to sustain His people even in a desert place. The lesson in this sign is more marvelous still if we carefully compare it with a similar occasion, when four thousand were fed on seven cakes. The astonishing thing is that the fragments left from feeding the greater number with the five cakes was much in excess of the fragments from feeding the smaller number with seven cakes. His power is not limited by the means He uses. We need never be discouraged because we have so little for Him to work with. On the contrary, He can do more with little than with much. Human aid hinders rather than helps Him.

<sup>18</sup> At this point a gloomy cloud begins to throw its sombre shadow over the little band of true disciples. It has become increasingly evident that the throngs utterly fail to recognize Him as the Messiah. They eagerly eat the food which His power provides, but cannot understand His words. To them He is no more than a wonder-working prophet. The power displayed in His prodigies amazed them, but the significance of His signs escaped them. They have rejected Him and His message. The pathway that led to a crown now leads to a cross. His messianic claims are laid aside. He actually warns them not to make Him known as the Christ. He enters the path of suffering. But, even as the multitude did not believe His words, so now His disciples fail to follow when He speaks of His death. The path to the cross was lonely. He could not make the message known, for His own apostles did not believe it.

forage, seeing that we are here in <sup>13</sup> a desolate place." Yet He said to them, "You be giving them to eat." Yet they say, "We have not more than five cakes and two fishes, unless we go and should be buying <sup>14</sup> food for all these people." For there were about five thousand men.

Now He said to His disciples, "Have them recline in groups of <sup>15</sup> about fifty apiece." And thus they <sup>16</sup> do, and cause all to recline. Now, getting the five cakes and the two fishes, looking up into heaven, He blesses them, and breaks them up, and gave to the disciples to place
<sup>17</sup> before the throng. And they all ate and are satisfied. And twelve panniers of their surplus fragments were picked up.

<sup>18</sup> And it occurred as He was praying alone, the disciples were together with Him, and Jesus inquires of them, saying, "Who are the <sup>19</sup> throngs saying that I am?" Now they, answering, say, "'John the baptist', yet others 'Elijah', yet others that 'some prophet of the <sup>20</sup> ancients rose'." Now He said to them, "Yet who are you saying that I am?" Now Peter, answering,
<sup>21</sup> said, "The Christ of God". Now, warning them, He charges them
<sup>22</sup> to tell no one this, saying that "The Son of Mankind must be suffering much and be rejected by the elders and chief priests and scribes, and be killed, and be roused the third day."

21-25. Compare Mt.16:19-26 Mk.8:30-37.

23 With His prospects changed from a glorious kingdom to one of rejection and death, those of His disciples are altered, also. It will cost them much to follow Him in His path of rejection. It will mean daily renunciation of self. It will mean the carrying of a load which will bring them shame and suffering. Yet the highest honors of the kingdom are for such. Those who suffer with Him, reign with Him. If any of His disciples prefer to avoid this suffering and thus save his soul (not his life), he will lose the joys and honors of the kingdom. If any choose to lose or destroy his soul by association with Him in His rejection, he will save it, for his place will be high in the kingdom.

26-27 Compare Mt.16:27,28 Mk.8:38-9:1.

26 This is in anticipation, for hitherto there has been little cause to be ashamed of Him. To nerve them for the ordeal He gives them a glimpse of that future day when His shame will give place to glory, when He, instead of being the despised Nazarene, will be the most glorious Potentate of all the earth. No one will be ashamed of Him then! Yet He will be ashamed of those who are not loyal to Him in His humiliation.

27 This solemn statement seems to have been the cause of endless speculation. To one who has intelligently followed the narrative thus far it seems most appropriate. Had the kingdom proclamation been received by Israel, then it surely would have been set up in that generation. Even though it is rejected, the proclaiming has been faithfully done, and demands recognition. The private life of our Lord was pleasing to God, so He publicly acknowledged Him at His baptism, saying "This is My Beloved Son, in Whom I delight!" We have now reached the conclusion of the kingdom proclamation, and what is more fitting than to give a foretaste of that day, and thus approve His ministry? So, in anticipation, the kingdom is set up.

Peter, in his second epistle, considers this scene as a confirmation of the prophetic word. Not only will Christ have glory in the future day of His presence and power, but He has already been clothed with glory and honor.

23 Now He said to all, "If anyone wants to be coming behind Me, let him disown himself and pick up his cross daily and be following Me.

24 For whoever should be wanting to save his soul shall be destroying it, yet whoever should be destroying his soul on My account, he shall be saving it. For what is a man benefited, gaining the whole world, yet destroying or forfeiting himself?

26 For whoever should be ashamed of Me and of My words, of this one the Son of Mankind shall be ashamed, whenever He should be coming in the glory of Him and of the Father and of the holy messengers. Now I am saying to you, truly there are some of those standing here who under no circumstances should be tasting death till they should be perceiving the kingdom of God."

28 Now it occurred about eight days after these sayings, taking along Peter and John and James also, He ascended into the mountain to pray. And it occurred, in His praying, the appearance of His face became different, and His vesture glittering white. And lo! two men conferred with Him, who were Moses and Elijah, who, being seen in glory, spoke of His exodus, which He was about to be completing in Jerusalem.

32 Now Peter and those with him were heavy with sleep. Yet, becoming alert, they perceived His glory and the two men who stand with Him. And it occurred, as they were detached from Him, Peter said

28-33 Compare Mt.17:1-4 Mk.9:2-6.

<sup>33</sup> Peter could not bear to hear the Lord speak of His sufferings, but here was a scene that was more to his liking. He desired to make it permanent, so proposes to build booths for the prophets and the Lord. But that was not at all the object in view. They were not yet occupied with the glory but with the Lord's suffering. Peter was premature. The time had not yet come. So the glory is swallowed up by a cloud, in which the solitary Sufferer appears alone. The Voice which came from heaven was a rebuke to Peter's proposal as well as an expression of the delight God had in His Son. Christ had been speaking to His disciples of His suffering, and Peter's words showed how utterly he ignored his Master's words. Moreover, he seemed to put Moses and Elijah on a level with the Lord. So the Voice directs him away from them, and they vanish from the scene.

34-36 Compare Mt.17:5-9 Mk.9:7,82 Pt.1:16-18.

37-42 Compare Mt.17:14-18 Mk.9:14-27.

<sup>37</sup> What a change awaits Him when He descends from the glories of the holy mountain! There He was enveloped in the majesty and dignity of His high station. There He found Moses and Elijah in fellowship with the thoughts that filled His mind. Now He veils His glory and descends to a curious throng and to unbelieving disciples, the best of whom ignored the heavy cloud which hung over His soul. The first thing which meets Him suggests the change which has come over the spirit of His ministry. His disciples have been unable to cope with the evil spirit. Undoubtedly the unseen world of wickedness was well aware of the fact that they had succeeded in turning the leaders and people against Him. Hence the spirit refuses to obey the disciples. But their time had not yet fully come, so He rebukes the unclean spirit and heals the boy. This is a sign of the future failure of the kingdom proclamation under the apostles, as detailed in the book of Acts. As their message was refused by the nation, the signs and miracles which accompanied its proclamation gradually vanished. They will not be restored until His presence in the future.

to Jesus, "Doctor, it is ideal for us to be here. And we should be making three tabernacles, one for Thee, and one for Moses, and one for Elijah"—not being aware what he is saying. Now at his saying these things a cloud came and overshadowed them. Now they were afraid at their entering into the cloud. And a voice came out of the cloud saying, "This is My chosen Son—be hearing Him." And at the coming of the voice, Jesus was found alone. And they hush, and in those days they report nothing to any one of what they have seen.

<sup>37</sup> Now it occurred on the next day, at their coming down from the mountain, a vast throng meets with Him. And lo! a man from the throng implores, saying, "Teacher, I beseech Thee, look on my son, for he is my only begotten!"

<sup>39</sup> And lo! a spirit is getting him, and suddenly he is crying out and it is tearing and convulsing him, with froth, and is departing with difficulty from him, crushing him.

<sup>40</sup> And I besought Thy disciples that they should cast it out and they could not."

<sup>41</sup> Now, answering, Jesus said, "O unbelieving and perverted generation, till when shall I be with you and bear with you? Lead your son here to Me." Yet, while He is still approaching, the demon tears and violently convulses him. Yet Jesus rebukes the unclean spirit and He heals the boy and gives him back to his father. Now they were all astonished at the magnificence of God.

<sup>45</sup> The Lord was not misled by the amazement of the multitude. He knew their fickleness and unbelief. But He was concerned more particularly that His disciples should not be deceived by the great impression which His miracle had produced. Coming immediately after the marvelous manifestation in the mountain, Peter, James, and John would naturally come to the conclusion that this was the time to restore the kingdom. They evidently were entirely unaware what "exodus" Moses and Elijah had been talking to Him about. So the Lord solemnly prefaces His repeated declaration of His sufferings with a request that they take due note of the present applause, and contrast it with the bitter words that were about to break forth after His betrayal, so that they, too, may learn what is in man, and learn to put no confidence in the flesh.

Now and again a "plain scripture" is asked for to prove a point of doctrine, on the supposition that no one could refuse to believe if such were produced. But alas, unbelief can stare the plainest passage out of countenance and never see its force. So the disciples were being continually reminded, in the plainest possible speech, that He was to suffer and die, but it did not affect them enough to arouse their questions.

<sup>46</sup> This was a most shameful proceeding! How could the disciples think of nothing but their own exaltation at the very time that He was seeking to engage their hearts with His humiliation? In some sense, it is a far more miserable manifestation of human perversity than the unbelief of the multitude.

<sup>49</sup> It could have been nothing less than pride and jealousy that caused the disciples to forbid any one to use the Lord's name in casting out demons. Perhaps they were smarting under their own failure, while the Lord was in the holy mountain. John seems to speak of it in a kind of confession, wrought by the Lord's rebuke. They wished to be greater than others, and each one wished to be the greatest of them all. While He was descending into the depths alone, craving their understanding and sympathy, they were seeking for place and power with no thought of paying the price.

Now at their all marveling at all which Jesus did, He said to His disciples, "You be laying up these sayings in your ears, for the Son of Mankind is about to be betrayed into the hands of men." Yet they were ignorant of this declaration, and it was screened from them, that they should not be sensing it, and they were afraid to ask Him concerning this declaration.

<sup>46</sup> Now a reasoning entered among them, which of them should be <sup>47</sup> greater. Now Jesus, perceiving the reasoning of their hearts, getting hold of a little child, stands it <sup>48</sup> beside Himself, and said to them, "Whoever should be receiving this little child in My name, is receiving Me, and whoever should be receiving Me is receiving Him Who commissioned Me, for he who possesses more of littleness among you all, he is great."

<sup>49</sup> Now, answering, John said, "Doctor, we perceived someone casting out demons in Thy name, and we forbade him, seeing that he is not following with us." Yet Jesus said to him, "Be not forbidding, for who is not against you is for you."

<sup>51</sup> Now it occurred in the fulfillment of the days of His taking up, and He fixes His face steadfastly <sup>52</sup> to go to Jerusalem. And He dispatches messengers before His face. And, being gone, they entered into a village of the Samaritans, <sup>53</sup> so as to make ready for Him. And they receive Him not, seeing that His face was going to Jerusalem.

51 As the Jews are not beholden to the Samaritans (Jn.4<sup>9</sup>), it is no wonder that they retaliated at times and would have no intercourse with Jews! But in this case there seems to have been a special reason. The Jews worshiped in Jerusalem and the Samaritans claimed that Mt. Gerizim was the proper place to worship. It was just before the feast of Tabernacles, and caravans of Jews were going through Samaria, from Galilee, to worship at Jerusalem. Hence the affront offered to His disciples. But the Lord had very kindly feelings toward the Samaritans and had disciples among them (Jn. 4<sup>39-42</sup>).

54 The long standing antagonism between the two peoples finds expression in this harsh proposal. It goes to show how feebly even the dearest of His disciples, one of whom is sometimes called the apostle of love, followed the gracious spirit of His mission. It is of the utmost importance that we do not follow Biblical examples blindly, but discriminate the spirit which becomes us in Christ.

58 The Son of Mankind is the allottee of all the power and dignity forfeited by Adam. The beasts of the field and the birds of the air are among the meanest subjects in His dominion, for Adam was lord not only of his posterity, but of the whole creation under heaven. He named the animals and they obeyed him. As the eighth psalm says:

Thou art causing him to rule what
Thy hands have made.
Thou dost put all under his feet,
Sheep and cows—all of them—
And even the beasts of the field,
The birds of the heavens, and the fish
of the sea,
That which crosses the paths of the seas.

What pathos lies in this comparison! The lowest creatures in His realm are provided for, yet He, their Head, is homeless, and without a place to pillow His head!

59 Only about half a year remained of His ministry. He was on His way to the feast of Tabernacles, and six months later, at the Passover festival, He was to be offered up. Hence He urges the utmost diligence. The social ceremonies of entombment and leave-taking were tedious and distracting at such a crisis.

54 Now His disciples, James and John, perceiving it, say, "Lord, art Thou willing—may we be calling fire to descend from heaven and consume them as Elijah also does?" Now, being turned, He rebukes them.
56 And they went into a different village.

57 And at their going in the road, some one said to Him, "I shall be following Thee wherever Thou mayest be coming away, Lord!"

58 And Jesus said to him, "The jackals have burrows, and the flying creatures of the heaven roosts, yet the Son of Mankind has not where He may be reclining His head."

59 Now He said to a different one, "Follow Me!" Yet he said, "Lord, permit me first to come away to entomb my father." Yet He said to him, "Let the dead entomb their own dead. Yet you, coming away, be publishing the kingdom of God."

61 Now a different one also said, "I shall be following Thee, Lord! Yet first permit me to take leave of those in my home." Yet Jesus said to him, "No one, putting his hand to the plow and looking behind, is fit in the kingdom of God."

10 Now after these things the Lord indicates seventy-two others also, and He dispatches them two by two before His face into every city and place where He was about to be entering. Now He said to them, "The harvest, indeed, is vast, yet the workers are few. Beseech then the Lord of the harvest, so that He

 ter OF-THE harvest WHICH-how

<sup>1</sup> As the Lord was on His way to celebrate the festival of Ingathering, this was actually the time of harvest and He was comparing the physical to the spiritual state of the country. At harvest time there is much to do, so He appoints six times the original number of apostles to assist in the harvest work.

<sup>3</sup> He has no illusions concerning the attitude of the people. They are hostile. They are wolves. Each house or city is now to be tested to see whether it contains friends or foes. In the case of a city there is a message for that which will not receive them, just the same as for that which will. The kingdom has drawn nigh whether they will have it or not.

<sup>4</sup> This must be understood in its oriental setting. To this day special messengers on important business are required to forego the formal flattery and tedious etiquette of the Eastern salaam. These salutations included endless inquires and as many answers. It was considered highly proper to intrude into any discussion and even take a part in any bargaining that happened to be under way. These instructions were quite necessary if these apostles are to discharge their mission.

<sup>7</sup> The common custom of the East is for each villager to have the privilege of entertaining a stranger. And each move from house to house would stir up a great deal of pride and hypocrisy and lead to some ill feeling, besides taking much time and distracting them and destroying their efficiency. At each house they would be feasted and be indulged with a general good time, all of which was entirely out of harmony with the spirit of their mission.

<sup>12</sup> The sins of Sodom were so terrible that fire has effaced its very site. Yet these sins were not as offensive in God's sight as the rejection of His messengers. One was sin done in darkness. The other was a sin against light. The judgment of God will be absolutely fair to all.

<sup>13</sup> Chorazin, Bethsaida, and Capernaum, "His own city", were the most favored of all places, for in them most of His mighty works were done. Yet now they, like Sodom, have disappeared, so that their sites are in dispute. They are cast down to "hell".

should be thrusting workers into His harvest.

<sup>3</sup> Go! Lo! I am dispatching you
<sup>4</sup> as lambs in the midst of wolves. Be bearing no purse, nor beggar's bag, nor yet sandals, and you should be greeting no one by the way.

<sup>5</sup> Now into whatever house you may be entering, first say, 'Peace to this house!' And if a son of peace should be there, your peace shall be resting on it, otherwise, it will <sup>7</sup> come back again on you. Now be remaining in this house, eating and drinking what they have, for the worker is worthy of his wages. Be not proceeding from house to house.

<sup>8</sup> And into whatever city you may be entering, and they should be receiving you, be eating what is placed before you, and be curing the infirm in it, and be saying to them, 'The kingdom of God has drawn near you.'

<sup>10</sup> Now into whatever city you should be entering, and they should not be receiving you, coming out
<sup>11</sup> into its square, say, 'The dust also which is clinging to us out of your city we are wiping from our feet before you. Moreover, be knowing this, that the kingdom of God has drawn near you.' Now I am saying <sup>12</sup> to you that it will be more tolerable for Sodom in that day than for that city.

<sup>13</sup> Woe to you, Chorazin! Woe to you, Bethsaida! seeing that, if the powers which are occurring in you occurred in Tyre and Sidon, long ago they would repent, sitting in sackcloth and ashes. Moreover, it will be more tolerable for Tyre and Sidon in the judgment than for <sup>15</sup> you. And you, Capernaum, are you

17 But a short time before, nine of the apostles had tried without success to cast out a demon (940). The Lord had not specifically empowered the disciples for this work. Under these circumstances they had much cause to rejoice at the power in their possession. The Lord, being in intimate touch with the spirit world, had noted that its head had come down, no doubt at a signal of distress from his minions. This, of course, has no connection with the so-called "fall of Satan", of which we never read in the scriptures, but has reference to Satan's action in response to their ejection of demons in Christ's name. Knowing the power of the enemy, and what He and His disciples would yet suffer at his hands, our Lord seeks to put their joy on a more secure footing. Indeed, unless their names are engraven in heaven, and thus under the protection of the Almighty, these spiritual powers over which they are triumphing, will try them beyond endurance.

21 This is a most delightful glimpse of the inner thoughts of the Son of God. No doubt He had noticed from the very first that His message had little appeal to such as we would naturally suppose would be most eager and appreciative. He was continually clashing with the most intelligent classes. He had a following largely recruited from the lower stratum of society, the fellaheen, mostly fishermen and farmers, men who toiled for their living, while the professional scholars, scribes, priests, and teachers of the law, were antagonistic. Nevertheless, seeing that this was evidently God's will, He does not endure it, or bear with it, but acquiesces and exults. Let us not endure but enjoy the will of God, no matter how unsatisfactory it seems. He is working for His glory and His creatures' good. We desire success and recognition for our small share of service, with little thought of His larger purpose. It is God's way to turn the wisdom of the wise into folly, and to use that which is despised to effect His will, so that no flesh should be able to boast itself in His presence. The thought that God positively conceals His truth from some shows how impossible it is for His slaves to be "successful" in the accepted meaning of the term.

not being exalted to heaven? You shall subside to the unseen!

16 He who is hearing you is hearing Me. And he who is repudiating you is repudiating Me. Yet he who is repudiating Me is repudiating Him Who commissions Me."

17 Now the seventy-two return with joy, saying, "Lord, the demons also are subject to us in Thy name!"

18 Yet He said to them, "I beheld Satan as lightning falling out of heaven.

19 Lo! I have given you authority to be treading upon serpents and scorpions and on the entire power which is of the enemy, and nothing will be injuring you under any circumstances. However, be not rejoicing in this, that the spirits are subject to you. Yet be rejoicing that your names are engraved in the heavens."

21 In this hour He exults in the holy spirit and said, "I am acclaiming Thee, Father, Lord of heaven and earth, seeing that Thou dost conceal these things from the wise and intelligent and dost reveal them to minors. Yea, Father, seeing that thus it became a delight in Thy presence!"

22 And being turned to the disciples He said, "All was given up to Me by My Father, and no one knows who the Son is except the Father, and who the Father is except the Son, and to whom the Son should be intending to unveil Him."

23 And being turned to His disciples, He said privately, "Happy are the eyes which are observing what

24 you are observing! For I am saying to you that many prophets and kings want to be perceiving what you are observing, and they perceive not, and to hear of Me what <sup>25</sup> A lawyer, or one versed in the law of Moses, especially in making it a burden for others than themselves (11<sup>46</sup>), would naturally be interested in the Lord's opinion as to what deeds would merit eonian life. From the standpoint of the law, this was very simple. Moses had written: "And keep My statutes, and My judgments: which a man should do, and live in them. I am Jehovah" (Lev. 18<sup>5</sup>). Hence the Lord reminds him of the law he is supposed to understand. He correctly comprehends the whole law in the greatest commandment—love to God—and its complement—love to man. The lawyer knew the law. All that he needed to do was to keep it! Could he keep the law he would never die. But the law was not given to impart life. It came to cause death.

But the law had evidently done some of the work for which it was really intended, and he is conscious that his love to his associate is not up to its standard. Instead of acknowledging this and taking refuge in God's grace, he seeks to justify his failing by a quibble as to who is included in the term "associate". Such quibbling was the stock in trade of the expounders of the Jewish law. They were always seeking a loophole to escape its rigid requirements.

To show him the futility of laws and ceremonies the Lord tells him the story of the good Samaritan. The Samaritans were cordially despised by the Jews, who would not be beholden to them at all (Jn. 4<sup>9</sup>). The lawyer would never acknowledge such to be his associate! But the Lord Himself was despised and rejected, hence He enters the story as a hated Samaritan.

The lawyer is the man who descended from Jerusalem to Jericho and is half dead. Jerusalem is the place of blessing and life. Such is his if he keeps the law. Jericho is the place of the curse. Such is his if he breaks the law, for "accursed is everyone who is not remaining in all things which have been written in the scroll of the law to do them" (Deut. 27<sup>26</sup>; Gal. 3<sup>10</sup>). He is condemned even while he seeks to justify himself. He has hopes that the religious rites will help him. Yet these are dashed to the ground when a priest comes along, but keeps as far from him as he can. The law does not you are hearing, and they hear not."

<sup>25</sup> And lo! a certain lawyer rose, putting Him on trial and saying, "Teacher, by doing what should I enjoy the allotment of eonian life?" Now He said to him, "What is written in the law? How are you reading?" Now, answering, he said, "You shall be loving the Lord your God out of your whole heart, and in your whole soul, and in your whole strength, and in your whole comprehension, and your associate as yourself." <sup>28</sup> Now He said to him, "You answered correctly. This be doing and you shall be living."

<sup>29</sup> Yet he, wanting to justify himself, said to Jesus, "And who is my associate?"

<sup>30</sup> Now Jesus, taking him up, said, "A certain man descended from Jerusalem to Jericho. And he falls among robbers, who, stripping him also, and pounding him, came away, leaving him half dead. Now, by a chance coincidence, a certain priest descended by that road, and, perceiving him, passed by on the other side. Now likewise, a Levite also, coming to the place and perceiving him, passed by on the other side."

<sup>33</sup> Now a certain Samaritan, on his way, came by him, and perceiving him, he has compassion, and coming to him he bandages his wounds, pouring on olive oil and wine. Now, mounting him on his own beast, he led him to a khan and had him cared for. And coming away on the morrow, extracting two denarii [about 31¢, 16d] he gives them to the khan keeper and said to him, "Take care of him, and whatever you should be expending, allow a priest to defile himself with the dead. It is not that he is hard hearted. His holy office brooks no defilement. The Levite likewise dare not be defiled with the dead. The lawyer will learn, when the law has had its full effect, that it cannot touch a man in his condition. These two men, like the law, came along casually, not to cure, but to condemn sin. But the Samaritan, that is, the Lord, was on a definite mission. The wounded man does not repel, but rather attracts Him, and draws out His compassion. He is not defiled and disabled by contact with death or sin. While the priest and Levite, with all their holiness, are helpless to manifest the love the law demands, the despised Samaritan, who would doubtless be hated by the helpless Jew under other circumstances, comes to his rescue and actually displays a love for his enemy which rises above the law's demands.

So does the Lord seek to drive the lawyer from his own defective doing, even his own reluctant love, to the real source of life, eonian and abundant, found in His grace and love as the Good Samaritan.

<sup>38</sup> In Mary and Martha we have a much needed contrast between service and study, and our Lord's estimate of each. Service has its place, and Martha could hardly have been excused if she had not supplied His simple wants. But then, as now, His slaves are tempted to overdo service to the neglect of the more necessary and vital acquaintance with God's will which alone fits for the highest forms of service and worship. Service without a clear knowledge of God's plans is often worse than wasted, but a heart acquaintance with His grace is the preliminary to such worship as most gratifies His heart. The one thing most needful today, as then, is a close acquaintance with His word gained by humbly sitting at His feet.

<sup>2</sup> This, though usually called the Lord's prayer, is the disciples' prayer. Every part of it is in close accord with the kingdom ministry of our Lord and can be used intelligently only by those of the Circumcision who are anticipating the kingdom spoken of by the prophets.

The prayers for us to follow in our at my coming back, I will be paying you.'

<sup>36</sup> Which, then, of these three are you supposing to have become an associate of the one falling in with the robbers?" Now he said, "The one who shows him mercy." Now Jesus said to him, "You also, go and be doing likewise."

<sup>38</sup> Now, in their going, He entered into a certain village. Now a certain woman, named Martha, entertains Him in her house. And there was yet a sister called Mary, who, seated also at the Lord's feet, heard His word.

<sup>40</sup> Now Martha was distracted about much serving. Now, standing by, she said, "Lord, art Thou not caring that my sister left me to serve alone? Then speak to her that she may be aiding me."

<sup>41</sup> Now, answering, the Lord said to her, "Martha, Martha, you are worrying and in a tumult concerning many things. Yet there is scant need but of one thing. For Mary chooses the good part which shall not be wrested from her."

11 And He came to be in a certain place, praying. As He ceases, some of His disciples said to Him, "Lord, teach us to pray, according as John also teaches his disciples."

<sup>2</sup> Now He said to them, "Whenever you may be praying, be saying, 'Our Father Who art in the heavens: hallowed be Thy name! Thy

<sup>3</sup> kingdom come! Thy will come to pass, as in heaven, on earth also. Be giving us our daily dole of bread, and pardon us our sins, for we, ourselves, also, are pardoning every one who is owing us. And bring us petitions are found in Ephesians (Eph. 1:15-23; 3:14-21). All here is from the standpoint of earth: all there is from the vantage of heaven. These disciples will be used to enforce His will on earth: we will rule among the celestials. Even in regard to our present life, few of us can conscientiously ask for a daily dole of bread, for we are usually provided with more than that. We surely cannot ask for pardon, for that is an admission of guilt, and we have been pronounced not guilty, or justified. By no means can we base a request for pardon on our own lenience toward others, for our acquittal is by undiluted grace. And the last petition is a definite reference to the great affliction, which will precede the coming of the kingdom, in which we will not be involved. It is only those unacquainted with the calling above, which is ours in Christ Jesus, who can conscientiously repeat this form. It cannot but cloud their apprehension of God's marvelous favor to the nations for the present secret economy to use a prayer every item of which is fitted for an entirely different administration. The custom of constantly repeating this prayer has done much to blind the minds of the saints to the great secrets which lie at the foundation of the truth for the present, and to confound justification with pardon. Those who are merely pardoned are on probation, and need continual renewals. Those who are justified are at rest concerning their sins and need not pray continually for that which they already have.

11 The secret of acceptable prayer today is conformity to the will and purpose of God at this present time. If we ask amiss, He is not so unkind as to grant our requests, neither can He change His purpose to suit the whims of His erring children. To pray intelligently we must understand what He is about, and fall in line with His plans. No amount of importunity will swerve Him from His course, or pleading of His promises to others divert Him from His present operations. He cannot follow the advice offered by those ignorant of His ways and unresponsive to the transcendent grace which He is lavishing upon them. Those who know Him never advise Him.

not into trial, but rescue us from the wicked one'."

5 And He said to them, "Which of you will be having a friend and will be going to him at midnight and may be saying to him, 'Friend, 6 let me use three cakes, since, in fact, a friend of mine came along out of the road to me, and I have 7 nought to place before him,' and he, inside, answering may be saying, 'Do not afford me weariness: the door has already been locked, and my little children are with me in bed; I cannot rise to give you'? 8 I am saying to you, and if he will not rise to give to him because of his being his friend, surely because of his pestering, being roused, he will be giving him whatever he needs.

9 And I am saying to you, Be requesting, and it will be given to you. Be seeking and you will be finding. Be knocking and it will 10 be opened to you. For everyone who is requesting is obtaining, and who is seeking is finding, and to the one knocking it will be opened. 11 Now, a son will be requesting some father among you for bread—will he be handing him a stone? Or a fish, also—instead of a fish will he be handing him a serpent? 12 Or he will also be requesting an egg—will he be handing him a scorpion? If you, then, belonging to the 13 wicked, are aware how to give good gifts to your children, how much rather will the Father out of heaven be giving holy spirit to those requesting Him!"

14 And He was casting out a demon, and it was a deaf-mute. Now it occurred, at the coming out of the demon, the deaf-mute talks. 15 And the throngs marvel. Yet some from among them said, "By Beel-

<sup>17</sup> Few signs were so impressively suggestive of spiritual power as the casting out of demons. That they were the emissaries and subordinates of Satan is implied in our Lord's argument, and every one compelled to leave its victim was a sign of the ejection of Satan himself when the kingdom is set up. Indeed, the most important factor in the millennial reign is the absence of Satan, who will be bound during the entire period (Un. 20:1-3). From the primeval temptation in Eden up to that time, man's enmity to God is largely the result of wicked spiritual influences from without. Man is the pawn, played by Satan, in his efforts to overthrow God's sovereignty. To release mankind from this thrall-dom is the first essential to the establishment of a righteous government. Men's efforts are a dismal failure chiefly because they do not reckon with this unknown influence and could not cope with it even if they were aware of its presence.

Satan's influence over mankind will culminate when he is cast down to earth and, as the seven-headed dragon, assumes the leadership of man's campaign against God at the time of the end. Then it is that Christ will descend and cut his career short by confining him for the thousand years. Every time He or His disciples cast out a demon it was a foretaste of that blessed kingdom. Only a stronger One than Satan could invade his realm and defeat his deputies.

When they could not question the reality of His miracles; and must give some adequate cause, they became desperate, and committed the sin which could not be pardoned even in the coming eon. To attribute the work of God's spirit to Satan's power is the limit of iniquity.

<sup>24</sup> Israel as a nation is here pictured as a man out of whom the unclean spirit of idolatry has been cast. Ever since the Babylonian captivity they have been held back from breaking the first commandment. But freedom from idolatry has not been followed by the worship of God. The place once occupied by idols is empty. At the time of the end the unbelieving nation will be forced to worship the image of the wild beast, and their state will be far worse than their previous plight.

zeboul, the chief of the demons, is he casting out the demons." Yet, answering, He said, "How can Satan be casting out Satan?"

<sup>17</sup> Yet He, aware of their cogitations, said to them, "Every kingdom divided against itself is being desolated, and house against house is

<sup>18</sup> falling. Now if Satan, also, is divided against himself, how shall his kingdom stand, seeing that you are saying I am casting out demons

<sup>19</sup> by Beelzeboul? Now if I, by Beelzeboul, am casting out demons, by what are your sons casting them out? Therefore they shall be your <sup>20</sup> judges. Now if I, by the finger of God, am casting out demons, consequently you have a foretaste of the kingdom of God.

<sup>22</sup> Yet if ever a stronger than he should be coming on and conquering him, he is taking away his panoply in which he had confidence, <sup>23</sup> and is distributing his spoils. He who is not with Me is against Me, and he who is not assembling with Me is scattering.

<sup>24</sup> Whenever the unclean spirit may be coming out from a man, it is passing through waterless places, seeking and not finding rest, then it is saying, 'I will be returning into my house whence I came

<sup>26</sup> Then it is going and taking along seven other spirits with itself more wicked than itself, and entering, it

<sup>27</sup> This is a delicate yet decisive thrust at the slightest tendency toward Mariolatry. Mary was indeed most blessed to be chosen to bear such a Son, but it was a physical relationship, such as He sustained in some slight degree to all who were descendants of Jacob. Happiness did not inhere in this. It springs from a spiritual source. Hence He ignores the remark as to Mary, and turns it so as to include His spiritual relatives.

<sup>29</sup> These were hard sayings for the religious Jews. For such a saying His townsmen at Nazareth sought to kill Him (<sup>424-30</sup>). They could not bear to hear of blessing coming to gentile curs while they are passed by. They did not see that privilege, in itself, does not bring happiness. It entails suffering if it be unheeded or spurned. He who is under the light of law will be judged by its illumination. Those in darkness will not be held responsible for a light they never had.

<sup>31</sup> The resurrection of judgment is not altogether a matter of condemnation. The queen of Sheba will be commended for coming to hear Solomon. The repentance of the men of Nineveh will be recognized and rewarded.

<sup>31</sup> Solomon, with all his wisdom, cannot compare with his greater Son. His reign closed under a cloud which caused the division of the kingdom. He did that which displeased Jehovah. But Christ's wisdom extended beyond His words to His ways. What He said and did were both in constant accord with the mind of God.

<sup>32</sup> Jonah's conduct, both before and after his proclamation, shows how lacking he was in sympathy with his message and the One Who sent him. Jonah was exceedingly displeased and very angry when he found that God was gracious and merciful and of great kindness, so that He actually did not fulfill His threats of doom. Jonah was angry again because a gourd was destroyed by a worm. He cared only for his own comfort, and, to him, the withering of the gourd which sheltered him was of more consequence than the destruction of the great city with its thousands of God's creatures. God's judgments are not vindictive but remedial. He does not desire to condemn but to save. Judgment is His strange work.

is dwelling there. And the last state of that man is becoming worse than the first."

<sup>27</sup> Now it occurred as He is saying these things, a certain woman out of the throng, lifting up her voice, said to Him, "Happy the womb which bears Thee, and the breasts which suckle Thee!" Yet He said, "Happy indeed, then, are they who are hearing the word of God and are maintaining it!"

<sup>29</sup> Now, the throngs being convened, He begins to be saying, "This generation is a wicked generation. It is seeking a sign, and a sign shall not be given to it except the sign of

<sup>30</sup> Jonah the prophet. For according as Jonah became a sign to the Ninevites, thus the Son of Mankind, also, will be to this generation. The queen of the south will be roused in the judgment with the men of this generation, and will be condemning them, seeing that she came out from the ends of the earth to hear the wisdom of Solomon, and lo! more than Solomon is <sup>32</sup> here! Ninevite men will be rising in the judgment with this generation and they will be condemning it, seeing that they repent at the proclamation of Jonah, and lo! more than Jonah is here!

<sup>33</sup> Now no one, lighting a lamp, is placing it in hiding, or under a measure, but on a lampstand, that those going in may be observing

<sup>34</sup> the light. The lamp of the body is your eye. Whenever, then, your eye may be single, your whole body, also, is illumined, yet if ever it should be wicked, your body,

<sup>35</sup> also, is dark. Be noting, then, that

<sup>36</sup> That light may become darkness seems, at first sight, incomprehensible. But this was the case with the worst of our Lord's enemies, and is often true today. As an example, the truth that Christ should come from Bethlehem was a pure ray from the word of God. But His enemies turned it to dense darkness for themselves when they took it for granted that He had been born in Nazareth. What should have proven Him to be the Christ was made an argument to disprove it. In the same way today many a precious truth is supposed to deny another, equally precious, because they seem to be irreconcilable. If the scribes had made a careful inquiry, as they should have done, they would have known that, though the Lord was reared in Nazareth, He was born in Bethlehem. And if we seek for the facts accurately and carefully, the truth which we have will not eclipse some other truth. Let us labor that the light in us does not become darkness.

<sup>38</sup> Baptism is simply ceremonial washing. The merest dipping of the hands in water would suffice for luncheon. No such ceremony was commanded by the law. It was one of the precepts of men which they had added to His statutes. The Pharisees made much of externals and non-essentials so as to have the appearance of sanctity. But their fastidiousness did not extend to the vital realities of life. Alas! Is not this the condition of the great religious world today? There is form and ceremony, but vital power is not present.

<sup>42</sup> "Judgment" in this connection can only mean the correction of wrongs. There is no good English equivalent for the Greek word krisis. By leaving the term uniformly "judgment" we hope to rid it of the sense of condemnation and attach to it the neutral idea of executing justice to the deserving as well as the undeserving. Judgment awards for good as well as punishes for evil.

<sup>45</sup> English needs a special term to distinguish these teachers of the law of Moses from the legal profession. They seem to have been a special class tak-then, your whole body is illumined, no part has any darkness. The whole will be illumined as whenever a lamp, in its flashing, may be illuminating you."

<sup>37</sup> Now in His talk a certain Pharisee is asking Him to lunch with him. Now coming in, He leans back at table. Now the Pharisee, perceiving it, marvels that He is not first baptized before lunch. Yet the Lord said to him, "Now you Pharisees are cleansing the outside of the cup and the platter, yet your inside is brimming with rapacity and wickedness. Imprudent ones! Does not He Who makes the outside make the inside also?"
<sup>41</sup> Moreover, be giving what is within for alms, and lo! all is clean to you.

<sup>42</sup> But woe to you, Pharisees! seeing that you are taking tithes from mint and rue and all greens, and you are passing by judgment and the love of God. Now these you were obligated to do and not to be devoid of those. Woe to you, Pharisees! seeing that you are loving the front seat in the synagogues, and the salutations in the markets. Woe to you, scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites! seeing that you are as the obscure tombs, and the men that are walking upon them are not aware of it."

<sup>45</sup> Now, answering, a certain one of the lawyers is saying to Him, "Teacher, in saying these things, you are outraging us also." Yet He said, "Woe to you lawyers also! seeing that you are loading men with loads hard to bear, and you yourselves are not touching the loads with one of your fingers. Woe ing upon themselves what really pertained to the priesthood. The failure of the priests seems to have led to the rise of "lawyers" to expound the law of Moses, and to determine its application in practical life. This gave them an advantage of which they were not slow to avail themselves. Whenever men are given a divine monopoly they abuse it. When the exposition of the scriptures is usurped by a special class they not only fail to unfold them but they effectively hinder others from discovering the truth for themselves.

<sup>51</sup> Men are to be judged by what they know as well as by what they do. To do that which you condemn in others convicts you of their crime as well as your own. Cain was a religious man; in fact he is the first to bring an offering to Jehovah (Gen. 4<sup>3</sup>). But his works were evil (1 Jn. 3<sup>12</sup>). The first murder was committed by an outwardly religious, but inwardly wicked man. It is rather remarkable that there were three different men, named Zacharias, murdered in the court of the temple. One was Zechariah the son of Jehoiada, who testified against them. And they conspired against him, and stoned him in the court of the house of the Lord. When he died he said "Jehovah is seeing and inquiring," which corresponds closely with "exacting", here used by our Lord (2 Chr. 24<sup>20-22</sup>). As Chronicles is the end of the Hebrew canon, from Abel to this Zechariah would comprise all the religious murders of the book.

But the Zacharias here may be the same as in Matthew, where he is called the son of Berechiah, that is, the author of the book of Zechariah (Zech. 1<sup>1</sup>). He also testified of their evil ways. We have no other record of the manner of his death, but our Lord knew that he was slain where only a priest could have done the deed. From Abel to this Zechariah would stretch over their whole inspired history.

Over thirty years later another Zacharias was foully slain in the outer temple (Josephus, Wars of the Jews, Book IV, chapter 5). This was near the end of their stay in the land.

to you! seeing that you are building the tombs of the prophets, yet <sup>48</sup> your fathers kill them. Consequently you are witnesses and are endorsing the acts of your fathers, seeing that they, indeed, kill them, yet you are building their tombs.

<sup>49</sup> Therefore, also, the Wisdom of God said, 'I shall be dispatching to them prophets and apostles, and they will be killing and banishing
<sup>50</sup> some of them,' that the blood of all the prophets which is being shed from the disruption of the world may be exacted from this generation, from the blood of Abel to the blood of Zacharias, who perished between the altar and the house. Yea, I am saying to you, it will be
<sup>52</sup> exacted from this generation. Woe to you lawyers! seeing that you take away the key of knowledge. You enter not yourselves, and those who are entering you prevent."

<sup>53</sup> And at His coming out thence, the scribes and the Pharisees begin to hem Him in dreadfully and to be quizzing Him concerning more
<sup>54</sup> things, ambushing Him, seeking to pounce upon something out of His mouth, that they shall be accusing

12 Him, at which, a throng of tens of thousands being assembled so as to be trampling one another, He begins first to be saying to His disciples, "Take heed to yourselves of the leaven of the Pharisees, which <sup>2</sup> is hypocrisy. Now nothing is covered up which shall not be revealed, and hidden which shall not be

1 Though hypocrisy, in all its forms, is most hateful to God, yet it seems most prevalent in the sphere of religion. The most potent preventive is the great truth here enunciated. Once we realize that pretense of any kind is but a temporary expedient which will react with fearful effect in the future it will make us slow to claim to be what we are not. We may be successful now in concealing our deeds of darkness from our fellows, but they are surely known to God and just as surely will be manifest to men. Happy is he who is not concerned with present appearances but so lives that his acts will be approved in the light!

2-5 Compare Mt.10<sup>28-29</sup>.

4 Gehenna, the valley of the son of Hinnom just below Jerusalem, is the place where the refuse and offal of the city is burned. In the kingdom the bodies of criminals will be cast into its flames. The distinction here drawn is between the believer, whose death, especially if endured for the Lord's sake, will make him eligible to a high place in the kingdom at the resurrection of the just, and the rebellious, who, even if they should be in the kingdom, will suffer its stern condemnation. The enemies of Christ can kill, and thousands will be slain as witnesses to the truth, yet their act has an effect exactly opposite to what they intend, for it enhances the felicity of the saints in the resurrection. Not so with those whom He executes. They forfeit the joys of the kingdom.

6 The infinitude of God's care in creation surpasses all human comprehension. There is no detail of our lives too small for His microscopic concern, nothing too trivial to touch His tender solicitude.

8-9 Compare Mt.10<sup>32-33</sup>.

10 Compare Mt.12<sup>31,32</sup>Mk.3<sup>28-30</sup>.

10 The unpardonable sin of Israel was not the crucifixion of Christ, but the subsequent rejection of the holy spirit's testimony through His apostles. This has brought on their present dispersion for the eon.

11 Compare Mt.10<sup>19,20</sup>Mk.13<sup>11</sup>.

11 This has no reference to the preaching of the evangel today, but to the proclamation of the kingdom.

12 Compare Ac.4<sup>872,55</sup>.

in the darkness shall be heard in the light, and what you talk in the ear in the closets shall be proclaimed on the housetops.

4 Now I am saying to you, My friends, be not afraid of those who are killing the body and after this have nothing more to do. Now I shall be intimating to you of Whom you should be afraid. Be afraid of Him Who, after killing, has authority to be casting into the Gehenna. Yea, I am saying to you, of this One be afraid!

6 Are not five sparrows selling for two pence [3.14¢, 1d 2f]?—and not one of them is forgotten before God. But the hairs of your head also have all been numbered. Then fear not! You are of more consequence than many sparrows.

8 Now I am saying to you, that everyone whoever shall be avowing Me in front of men, him shall the Son of Mankind also be avowing in front of the messengers of God.

9 Now he who is disowning Me before men will be renounced before the messengers of God. And everyone who shall be declaring a word against the Son of Mankind, it shall be pardoned him, yet the one who blasphemes the holy spirit shall not be pardoned.

11 Now whenever they may be bringing you before synagogues and chiefs and the authorities, you should not be worrying about how or what your defense should be or what you may say, for the holy spirit will be teaching you in the same hour what you must be saying."

13 Now some one of the throng said to Him, "Teacher, tell my brother to part the enjoyment of the allotment with me." Now He said to him, "Man! who constitutes Me a

<sup>15</sup> A telling truth which would do more to ameliorate the ills of humanity than all government, were it heeded, is embodied in the phrase, "the superfluity of his possessions". Life does not consist in having, but in being. The moment that our possessions exceed our needs they become a burden. The only place that treasure can be safely and sanely deposited is in the heavens. This is illustrated in the following parable.

<sup>18</sup> In Palestine it was customary to store grain and other products in sealed, air tight, cistern-like pits, dug on a hill side or in a field, where the ground was sufficiently dry. In these food was kept unspoiled for long periods, safe from marauders and mice and ants. It would be difficult to preserve grain or food stuffs for many years in barns such as are used in the West.

<sup>19</sup> This is an excellent passage to teach us the significance of the soul. It is now spoken of as though it were the spirit. The soul craves food and drink and merriment. It expresses itself in the appetite and physical desires. The rich man had made no provision for his spirit. His hoard was of grain and wine and oil, good only for the life that now is. The soul is satisfied by the senses. Taste, smell, hearing, sight, and touch are the means of its exercise.

<sup>22</sup> From the world's standpoint this man was most prudent, for he provided for the future. But his death turned his prudence into folly.

<sup>22</sup> Man has become the slave of his desires. Instead of eating and drinking to live, he spends his life in laboring for the means of living according to his liking.

<sup>24</sup> The lower ranks of creation are a daily display of God's care and provision. No one can study the marvels of nature without some sense of the over-seeing providence of God. They are better provided for than men.

justice or a parter over you?"

<sup>15</sup> Now He said to them, "See and be guarding against all greed, seeing that one's life is not in the superfluity of his possessions."

<sup>16</sup> Now He told them a parable, saying, "The country place of a

<sup>17</sup> certain rich man bears well. And he reasoned in himself, saying, 'What shall I be doing, seeing that

<sup>18</sup> I have nowhere to gather my fruits?' And he said, 'This shall I be doing: I will pull down my

<sup>19</sup> barns, and I will build greater, and there will I be gathering all my grain and my goods. And I shall be declaring to my soul, Soul,

<sup>20</sup> you have many goods laid up for many years. Rest, eat, drink, make merry.'

<sup>20</sup> Yet God said to him, 'Imprudent one! This night are they demanding your soul from you. Now, for whom will be what you make <sup>21</sup> ready?' Thus is he who is hoarding for himself and is not rich for God."

<sup>22</sup> Now He said to His disciples, "Therefore I am saying to you, Do not worry about the soul, what <sup>23</sup> you may be eating, nor yet your body, what you should be putting on, for the soul is more than nurture and the body than apparel.

<sup>24</sup> Consider the ravens, that they are not sowing, neither are they reaping, who have no storeroom nor barn, and God is nurturing them. Of how much more consequence are

<sup>25</sup> you than the flying creatures! Now who of you by worrying is able to

<sup>26</sup> add one cubit to his stature? If, then, you are not able for the least, why are you worrying about the rest?

<sup>27</sup> Consider the anemones, how they are growing. They are not toil-

27-28 Compare Mt. 6:28-30.

27 There are many beautiful flowers in Palestine but the scriptures do not mention any varieties, hence it is difficult to fix upon the one specially alluded to. Some have thought that He referred to a beautiful species of iris, colored dark purple and white. There are also brilliant hued tulips. But these flowers are not abundant enough to warrant the general allusion made by our Lord. There are other flowers, more numerous and quite as glorious, which carpet the fields of Palestine. Among these the most gorgeous and conspicuous in the Spring is the Anemone coronaria, usually a brilliant scarlet, which is found in all parts of the land. It abounds in the plains and on the mountains, along the shores of Galilee and on the bare hills of Judea. The richness of its tints and the profusion with which it appears everywhere combine to give point to our Lord's comparison. Though the commonest of flowers, it is also among the loveliest. The Arabs include it among the flowers called susan, which is equivalent to the Hebrew shushan and the Greek krinon, the word here used. This is, however, the common name for any brilliantly colored flower like a lily or tulip, or ranunculus or anemone.

29 Compare Mt. 6:31-34.

32-34 Compare Mt. 6:19-21.

33 See Hag. 1:6.

33 This advice must be understood in the light of the property laws in Israel and the imminence of the kingdom. Each one had his allotment, on which his living depended. Our Lord was not asking them to sell this. It was property over and above this which He advised them to sell, as it would be worthless to them in the redistribution of the land in the kingdom. Their only way of securing it was to use its price in helping the poor in Israel. Thus they would transfer their interests into the coming kingdom.

36 Compare Mt. 22:1-14.

38 The Lord's return is always left indefinite as to time so that it may be continually imminent to the hearts of His people. We should remember that our next conscious moment may be in His presence. There is nothing to compare with this to give joy and power in service.

ing, neither are they spinning, yet I am saying to you that not even Solomon in all his glory was clothed as one of these. Now if God is thus garbing the grass in the field, which is today and tomorrow is being cast into the stove, how much rather you, scant of faith?

29 And do not you be seeking what you may be eating and what you may be drinking, and be not in suspense. For all these things the nations of the world are seeking. Now your Father is aware that you need these. Moreover, be seeking the kingdom of God and all these things will be added to you.

32 Fear not, little flocklet, seeing that your Father delights to give you the kingdom. Sell your possessions and be giving alms. Make yourselves purses which do not grow old, a treasure which does not default, in the heavens where the thief is not nearing, neither moth is causing decay. For where your treasure is, there will your heart be also.

35 Let your loins be girded about, and lamps burning, and you be like men anticipating their own lord, when he should break loose from the wedding festivities, that at his coming and knocking, they should immediately be opening up for him. Happy are those slaves, whom the Lord, coming, will be finding watching. Verily, I am saying to you that He will be girding Himself, and, causing them to recline, and, passing along, will be serving them.

38 And if He should be coming in the second watch, and if in the third watch, and should be finding them thus, happy are those slaves.

59 As most of the houses in Palestine were built of sun-dried clay, or adobe, a thief could best effect an entrance by digging his way through the walls. They literally burrowed their way into a house they wished to rob.

40 The coming of Christ as Son of Mankind is to be a complete surprise even to those in Israel who are waiting for Him. This coming as a thief is connected with the day of the Lord (1 Th. 5<sup>2</sup>), and the sudden destruction of those in darkness. But we are not in darkness, so that that day will not overtake us as a thief. God did not appoint us to indignation. We look for Him, not as an enemy, but as a Saviour (Phil.3<sup>20</sup>). For us salvation has a past, a present, and a future tense. The bodies of our humiliation have not yet been saved. They will be at His coming.

41 The Lord's coming for us is a matter of pure grace in accord with all His dealings in this secret administration. We should not be drowsing, but this will not cost us our place in His presence. Our salvation depends on His death, not on our faithfulness. Whether we are watching or are drowsing, we shall live at the same time together with Him (1 Th.5<sup>10</sup>). It will not be so in His coming to Israel. Peter's question brings out the parable which shows that, while some will be rewarded for service at His coming, others will be cut asunder for unfaithfulness. They are dealt with as slaves and their place in the kingdom depends on what they do during His absence, but we are subjects of grace and, whatever loss we may suffer for unfaithfulness, we ourselves will be saved (1 Co. 3<sup>15</sup>).

47 All God's judgments are tempered by attending circumstances. He does not require His creatures to live up to light which they do not have. Yet His judgments increase in severity according to the privileges enjoyed. Thus it is that Israel is subject to the most awful of the inflictions of the end time. How thankful we should be that His grace not only bestows transcendent privilege but brings immunity from judgment as well!

39 Now this you know, that, if the householder had been aware at what hour the thief is coming, he would watch and would not let his house be tunneled into. You also become ready, then, seeing that, in an hour which you are not supposing, the Son of Mankind is coming."

41 Now Peter said to Him, "Lord, art thou saying this parable to us, or also to all?" And the Lord said, "Who, consequently, is the faithful and prudent steward, whom the lord will be placing over his retainers, who is giving the measure of wheat in season? Happy is that slave, whom his master, coming, will be finding doing thus. Truly, I am saying to you that he will be placing him over all his possessions.

45 Now if that slave should say in his heart, 'My lord is delaying coming,' and should be beginning to beat the boys and the maids, as well as to be eating and drinking, and to be drunk, the lord of that slave will be arriving on a day for which he is not hoping and at an hour which he knows not, and shall be cutting him asunder, and shall be appointing his part with the unfaithful.

47 Now that slave who knows the will of his own lord, and neither makes ready nor yet does aught with a view to his will, shall have many lashes. Now he who knows not, yet does what deserves blows, shall have few lashes. Now to everyone to whom much was given, from him much will be sought, and to whom they committed much, of him they will be requesting more excessively.

<sup>49</sup> We are now approaching the great crisis in His ministry. Instead of being believed and received, the proclamation of the kingdom has caused strife and contention. Its rejection is evident. The baptism with which it began must have its counterpart in another baptism at its end. The shadow of the cross lay athwart His path henceforth, and its awful pressure lay heavily on His spirit. Until it shall have been accomplished the kingdom cannot come. Until then the opposition must increase. The kingdom of God was thrice rejected. They rejected Jehovah when Saul was chosen king. They rejected Christ. They rejected the preaching of the apostles.

<sup>51</sup> At His birth the heavenly hosts sang of peace on earth (21<sup>4</sup>). The kingdom foretold by the prophets was to end all strife. He was to be the Prince of Peace, and of the increase of peace there was to be no end (Isa. 9 6,7). Hence they had good reason to suppose that He had come to give peace to the earth. And that He will do when He comes again. But the time from His rejection until His return has been and will be a period of strife and division. This will reach its climax in the coming time of Jacob's trouble, when the kingdom is once more proclaimed and faithfulness to God will tear families asunder and destroy the tenderest ties of nature. But when He comes all strife will vanish and peace will preside over all the earth for the thousand years.

<sup>54</sup> The Lord now turns from the disciples to the throngs. In spirit, He sees a great storm coming, yet they are utterly oblivious of the signs. They were experts at foretelling the weather. Clouds in the west, over the Mediterranean, with a southwest wind, would be sure to bring a rainstorm. If the wind shifts to the north it is soon over. The south wind, off the desert, always brings heat. With all this discernment they did not see that the current of opinion in Israel was leading to a violent storm. There was little peace for them, and they were finally driven out of the land and scattered among the nations.

<sup>50</sup> ready kindled? Yet I have a baptism to be baptized with, and how am I being pressed till it should be accomplished! Are you supposing that I came along to give peace to the earth? No, I am saying to you, but rather division. For from now on there will be five in one home divided, three against two, and two will be divided against three, father against son and son against father, and mother against daughter and daughter against mother, mother-in-law against the bride and the bride against her mother-in-law."

<sup>54</sup> Now He said to the throngs, also, "Whenever you should be perceiving a cloud rising in the west, immediately you are saying that a rainstorm is coming, and it is occurring thus. And whenever it is blowing from the south, you are saying that there will be a scorching wind, and it is occurring. Hypocrites! You are aware how to be testing the aspect of the sky and the earth, yet you are not aware how to be testing this era! Now why, even of yourselves, are you not deciding what is just? For as you are going with your plaintiff to the magistrate, take action on the way to be cleared from him, lest at some time he should be dragging you to the judge, and the judge will be giving you over to the sheriff, and the sheriff will be casting you into jail. I am saying to you, Under no circumstances may you be coming out thence till you may be paying even the last mite [about .196¢, .375f]."

57-59 Compare Mt. 5<sup>25, 26</sup> Prov. 25<sup>8</sup>.

1 There is a strong natural tendency to connect calamity with sin. Hardly any great disaster occurs but someone seeks to justify it on the ground that the victims must have been extraordinary sinners. Job's friends reasoned thus. In their minds his calamities must have been occasioned by some secret offenses, and were sent as a punishment for his wrong doing. Now, while sin often does entail suffering in this life, much of it does not. And suffering is not sent simply as a punishment for sin, but also as a means by which God reveals Himself. Job was vindicated by God, yet he abhorred himself. Through his trials he was led to a greater blessing and a closer knowledge of God than could otherwise be. He had heard of Him before; now he saw Him (Job 42<sup>5</sup>). Let us not judge those who suffer, as though they deserved what they endure. God is not now judging or sentencing His creatures. That is past for believers and future for unbelievers. In the great white throne judgment those who appear before it will be dealt with according to their sins. Then it will be possible to deduce their delinquency from the character and severity of their sentence. But all such reasoning is foolish now. The Galileans whom Pilate killed were no worse than others of their kind, and the tower of Siloam did not fall on the most vicious in Jerusalem.

1 Compare Ac. 5<sup>37</sup>.

2 Compare Jn. 9<sup>2, 3</sup>.

4 Compare Neh. 3<sup>15</sup> Jn. 9<sup>7</sup>.

6-9 Compare Isa. 51-7 Mt. 21<sup>19</sup>.

10 Israel's doom is figured by a soulless tree; her deliverance is shown by the restoration of the infirm woman. This recognizes the reason for Israel's weakness, which was the possession of a spirit at variance with God. The to them, "Are you supposing that these Galileans came to be sinners beyond all the Galileans, seeing that they have suffered such things? I am saying to you, No! But if you should not be repenting, you will all be perishing likewise. Or those eighteen on whom the tower in Siloam falls, and kills them, are you supposing that they came to be debtors beyond all men dwelling in Jerusalem? I am saying to you, No! But if you should not be repenting, you will all be perishing similarly."

6 Now He told this parable: "A certain man had a fig tree planted in his vineyard, and he came, seeking fruit on it and found it not. 7 Now he said to the vineyardist, 'Lo! For three years I am coming seeking fruit on this fig tree and I am not finding it. Hew it down, then, for why is it wasting the land also?' Yet answering, he is saying to him, 'Lord, leave it this year also, till I shall be digging about it and manuring it. And, if indeed, it should be producing fruit in the future—yet if not, you shall surely be hewing it down'."

10 Now He was teaching in one of the synagogues on the sabbaths. 11 And lo! there was a woman having a spirit of infirmity eighteen years, and she was bending together and 12 utterly unable to unbend. Now Jesus, perceiving her, shouts and said to her, "Woman, you have been released from your infirmity!" And He places His hands on her, and instantly she was made erect again, and glorified God.

14 Now the chief of the synagogue, answering, resenting that Jesus ruler of the synagogue displayed this same spirit, so that, in a sense, the physical plight of the woman becomes his in spirit. He, like the whole nation, was opposing the Lord and His work, in a pretended zeal for God's law. The moral effect of the miracle seems to have kept the chief of the synagogue from forbidding the Lord to work, so he turns to the people and forbids them to come to be cured. He was blind to the great truth that salvation is of God, when man cannot work, hence is far more fitting on the Sabbath than during the week.

<sup>16</sup> A significant note is sounded when our Lord terms the infirm woman a daughter of Abraham. It suggests that she had faith, and that the salvation which it prefigured will be confined to those who have the faith of their great forefather Abraham.

<sup>23</sup> The Lord avoids a direct answer to the question, and turns the questioner's thoughts upon himself. It would seem that at this time, the wide gates into the kingdom had been closed, and access could be had only through the private entrances, which are locked when evening comes. The proclamation of the kingdom had opened the gates wide up to this time, and it was easy to enter by repentance and baptism. But at this crisis the proclamation was withdrawn, hence many of those who struggled could not enter.

By no means should this parable be applied indiscriminately to the evangel, either of the kingdom or of the grace of God. God's good news is nev-cures on the sabbath, said to the throng that "There are six days on which one must be working. Come on them, then, to be cured," <sup>15</sup> and not on the sabbath day." Yet the Lord answered him and said, "Hypocrites! Is not each of you, on the sabbath, loosing his ox or ass from the manger, and leading it

<sup>16</sup> away to drink? Now this woman, being a daughter of Abraham, whom Satan binds, lo! eighteen years—must she not be loosed from this bond on the sabbath
<sup>17</sup> day?" And at His saying these things, all those opposing Him were mortified, and the entire throng rejoiced at all the glorious things coming to pass by Him.

<sup>18</sup> Then He said, "What is the kingdom of God like? And to <sup>19</sup> what shall I be likening it? It is like a mustard kernel, which a man got and cast into his own garden. And it grows and became a great tree, and the flying creatures of heaven roost among its boughs."

<sup>20</sup> And again He said, "To what shall I be likening the kingdom of <sup>21</sup> God? It is like leaven, which, a woman getting, hides in three seahs [about 3 $\frac{1}{4}$  pecks] of meal, till the whole was leavened."

<sup>22</sup> And He went through by the cities and villages, teaching and making headway into Jerusalem.
<sup>23</sup> Now someone said to Him, "Lord, are there few being saved?"
<sup>24</sup> Now He said to them, "Be struggling to be entering through the cramped door, seeing that many, I am saying to you, will be seeking to be ener narrow or cramped. In the tabernacle in the wilderness the gate, which opened into the court where the altar and laver were stationed, was very wide, and the entrance into the holy place occupied the whole front side of the tent. It could not have been wider. These were types of the way of God during the proclamation of the kingdom. The evangel for today is wider still, for it embraces all nations and imposes no conditions. Faith in God's word cannot be obtained by any struggle. Neither is there any reluctance on God's part, but He is beseeching all men to be reconciled. This can be understood of those only who have neglected to enter while the wide gates of the kingdom evangel were open, and now seek an entrance after the proclamation has been closed.

<sup>29</sup> Eastern etiquette is most stringent as to the placing of guests at a banquet. The most honorable must have the first place and the least the last. So it will be in the kingdom. It is probable that none of the great ones of His day, should they find an entrance, would maintain their dignities. Poor, despised fishermen, among the lowest social layer of the land, will be first, for they will rule the twelve tribes. And some, no doubt, of those in high standing in the past, will take a humble place, glad to be honored by the presence of those whom they once despised.

<sup>31</sup> Herod had been interested in the Lord and wanted to see Him do some sign (23<sup>8</sup>). He had killed John, but the Lord does not fear him. Calling him a jackal, or fox, He sends him word that He will continue His ministry as planned, and will spend three more days in his territory, on His way to Jerusalem. There the sacrifice must be offered. He knew that the hatred of men would be restrained so that He could not be killed far from the holy city. If an Israelite wanted to sacrifice to God he could not offer it any place. He must bring it to Jerusalem or turn it into money to purchase his offering there. God will not go counter to His law. He leads the Victim to the proper place.

<sup>27</sup> squares!' He also will be declaring, 'I am saying to you, I am not aware whence you are! Be withdrawing from me, all workers of injustice!'

<sup>28</sup> There will be lamentation and gnashing of teeth, whenever you should be viewing Abraham and Isaac and Jacob and all the prophets in the kingdom of God, yet you

<sup>30</sup> And lo! they are last who will be first, and they are first who will be last."

<sup>31</sup> In the same hour some Pharisees approached, saying to Him, "Come out and go hence, seeing that Herod is wanting to kill you."
<sup>32</sup> And He said to them, "Go and say to this jackal, 'Lo! I am casting out demons, and performing healings today and tomorrow, and the third 34-35 Compare Mt.23:37-39 Ps.118:26.

34 Jerusalem, the center of rule and religion in Israel, the most favored city on the face of the earth, was also the center of apostasy and rebellion. Had the priests of her temple remained true to God, there would have been no need for prophets and special messengers to recall them to Jehovah. But they would not heed the prophets and, instead of leading the people in the ways of righteousness and holiness, they turned them against God's spokesmen. These thoughts were awakened in His mind by the threat of Herod. While He had no fear of him, He well knew what would befall Him at the hands of the priests and rulers of Israel, who should have shielded Him from Herod. They, though the accredited representatives of God, were more thirsty for His blood than the Edomite. Religion, apart from the spirit of God, is the most vicious and immoral of human motives.

1-6 Compare 13:10-17 Mt.12:9-13 Deut.22:4.

1 It seems improbable that a chief Pharisee should invite Him to his home without some sinister design. This seems to have been a trap, for it is most unlikely that a dropsical man would be a guest at such a feast. This is confirmed by the fact that he was dismissed after being healed. He seems to have been used as a test. If the Lord did not heal him, they could claim that He was not able. If He did, they could accuse Him of desecrating the Sabbath. Either way they had Him at a disadvantage. That is why they watched Him so closely. But the Lord saw the snare and caught them in their own craftiness (1 Co.3:19). He closed their mouths completely.

7 No doubt our Lord followed His own admonition and took the last place at this feast and was allowed to keep it! He was but a poor peasant. They were lawyers and Pharisees! Their action at the feast was but an index of their general character. They exalted themselves and were due to be abased. To grasp the full force of this illustration we must remember that, among the Jews at that time, such matters were deemed of serious importance. We can sit anywhere at a banquet without feeling offended, but assemble your children after the manner a hen her own brood under her wings, and you will not! Lo! your house is left to you. Yet I am saying to you that under no circumstances may you be acquainted with Me till the time will be arriving when you should say, 'Blessed is He Who is coming in the name of the Lord!''

14 And it occurred at His coming into the house of a certain one of the chief Pharisees on the sabbath to eat bread, and they were scrutinizing Him. And lo! a certain man in front of Him was dropsical. And answering, Jesus spoke to the lawyers and Pharisees, saying, "Is it allowed to cure on the sabbath or not?" Now they are quieted. And, getting hold, He heals and dismisses him. And answering, He said to them, "Whose son or ox will be falling into a well and he will not immediately be pulling him up on the sabbath day?" And they have not the strength to answer Him again to these things.

7 Now He spoke a parable to those who have been invited, attending how they chose the first reclining places, saying to them, "Whenever you may be invited by any one to wedding festivities, you should not recline in the first reclining place, lest at some time one held in honor more than you should be invited by him, and when he who invites you and him comes he will be declaring to you 'Give place to this one.' And then, with shame, you should be beginning to retain the last place. But whenever you may be invited, going, lean back in the last place, that whenever he who has invited you may be coming, he will be declaring to you, 'Friend, step further up.' Then you will have with them the rank of each guest must be scrupulously acknowledged by placing him above all his inferiors. It was properly the duty of the host to attend to this. The principle may well be applied at all times. Are we taking a high place? If so, our great Host may need to call us down. Are we in the lowest? Then we need not fear, for the lowest cannot make room below themselves.

10 Compare Prov. 25<sup>6-7</sup>.

12 The pure joy of giving is largely lost when it degenerates into a trade. Yet it seems from this that we cannot give without being recompensed. If we give to get we may, indeed, be disappointed, but if we give with the single thought of blessing others, we are doubly repaid. There is the happiness that attends the giving, and the repayment in the resurrection. The grasping gift gets but little that is worth while. It defeats itself. The gracious gift gains all that it seems to forego and brings happiness to the recipient, to the giver, and to God.

13 Compare Neh. 8<sup>10-12</sup>.

15-21 Compare Mt. 22:1-10 Prov. 9:1-5.

15 This remark seems to be an adroit attempt to turn the conversation into a safer and more comfortable channel. But this man was probably one of the lawyers or Pharisees (there were no others present) who was refusing the invitation to God's great dinner. Thence the Lord takes him up, and suggests that the happiness of eating in the kingdom is only for those who come. The picture He draws is in striking contrast with the feast He was attending. All who were invited came to this feast and deemed it an honor to be present. No poor or crippled or blind or lame were admitted, except the dropsical man, and he was dismissed before the feasting began, though he no longer was a cripple.

The great dinner of the kingdom will be quite the opposite of this. The men of substance refused the invitation. The scribes, lawyers, and Pharisees would not come and they will know nothing of the happiness of those who eat bread in the kingdom. But the outcasts, those whom the proud religionists would spurn from their table, these will enjoy the happiness which comes from tasting God's provision and plenty. The rejection of the glory before all those lying back at table with you, seeing that every one who is exalting himself shall be humbled and who is humbling himself shall be exalted."

12 Now He said to him also who has invited Him, "Whenever you may be making a lunch or a dinner, do not be summoning your friends, nor yet your brothers, nor yet your relatives, nor yet rich neighbors, lest at some time they also should be inviting you in return, and repayment should come to you. But whenever you may be making a reception, invite the poor, the 13 cripples, the lame, the blind, and 14 happy will you be, seeing that they have naught to repay you, for it will be repaid you in the resurrection of the just."

15 Now someone of those lying back at table with Him, hearing these things, said to Him, "Happy is he who shall be eating bread in the 16 kingdom of God!" Now He said to him, "A certain man made a great dinner, and invites many. 17 And he dispatches his slave at the dinner hour to say to those who have been invited, 'Come, seeing 18 that it is already ready.' And they begin, one and all, to make excuse. The first said to him, 'I buy a field, and it is necessary to come out to see it. I ask you to have me 19 excused.' And a different one said, 'I buy five yoke of oxen, and I am going to test them. I ask you to 20 have me excused.' And a different one said, 'I marry a wife, and because of this I cannot be coming.' 21 And the slave, coming along, reports these things to his lord. Then, being indignant, the householder invitation is a plain intimation of our Lord's rejection by the influential leaders of Israel, the self-righteous, who thought they needed no repentance. They were not hungry; they felt no necessity. They were busy in acquiring the land of their poorer countrymen by purchase, or they were getting control of more acreage by adding to their oxen, for the land was allotted to each man according to his ability to farm it. They were laying up treasures on earth. They had no ear for the invitation and shall have no place in the kingdom.

<sup>23</sup> There is only one slave here, consequently we must limit the scope of this parable to our Lord's ministry. He never went to the nations outside the land, but He did reach the Samaritans and the Syro-Phenician woman, who were outside the narrow pale of ultra-Judaism.

<sup>25</sup> This saying has proved a stumbling stone to many, and it is usual to tone down the word "hating" to some milder term. But it is the same word which undoubtedly means hate in other connections. The solution of the difficulty lies in the tense of the verbs. It is not a saying for all time, especially not for the present, but was applicable only during those closing days of His ministry when His disciples were to withstand the opposition of their loved ones, and the seduction of their own souls, which would shrink from the suffering in which faithfulness to Christ would involve them. It is only in this connection that the hate was to be exercised. It is its scope, rather than its intensity, which was limited. Such an attitude toward our relatives is utterly foreign to the spirit of grace which pervades the present.

<sup>34</sup> Holding on to possessions or compromising with those dear to them at such a time would make them like insipid salt, quite useless for the purpose for which it is designed.

said to his slave, 'Come out quickly into the squares and streets of the city, and lead in here the poor, and cripples, and blind, and lame.'

<sup>22</sup> And the slave said to him, 'Lord, what you enjoin is done and <sup>23</sup> still there is place.' And the lord said to the slave, 'Come out into the roads and stone dikes and compel them to enter, that my house
<sup>24</sup> may be crammed. For I am saying to you that not one of those men who were invited shall taste of my dinner.' "

<sup>25</sup> Now vast throngs went with Him, and, being turned, He said to <sup>26</sup> them, "If any one is coming to Me and is not hating his father and mother and wife and children and brothers and sisters, and further, his own soul besides, he cannot be <sup>27</sup> My disciple. And any one who is not bearing his own cross and coming behind Me cannot be My disciple.

<sup>28</sup> For which of you, wanting to build a tower, does not first sit down to calculate the expense, whether he has the wherewithal?—
<sup>29</sup> lest at some time, laying its foundation and not having the strength to finish up, all who behold should be beginning to be deriding him,
<sup>30</sup> saying that 'This man begins building and has not the strength to finish up!'

<sup>31</sup> Or what king going to engage another king in battle will not, being seated, first plan if he is able to meet with ten thousand him who is coming against him with twenty

1 Compare 7<sup>34,35</sup>Mt.9<sup>10-13</sup>.

2 Our Lord's liking for sinners led the proud, self-righteous Pharisees and scribes to utter a most precious truth, though they, indeed, did not intend it thus. "This man is receiving sinners . . . !" Far from denying the charge, He makes it the basis of a five-fold parable in which He emphasizes the vital fact that God is not concerned with the righteous, but with sinners. The term parable is used at the beginning and includes, not only that of the lost sheep, but also the lost coin, and the prodigal son, and the unjust steward, and the rich man and Lazarus. They are five different parts of one parable, which deals with the nation of Israel and the various classes in it. First we are shown the Saviour's attitude toward the lost in the story of the lost sheep. The following pair, concerning the lost coin and the prodigal son, are strikingly like the last two, concerning the unjust steward, and the rich man and Lazarus.

Two of these stories have to do with money, and the story of the prodigal son is closely matched by that of the rich man.

Like all the Lord's parables, these are not merely apt illustrations of divine truth, but pictorial parables of spiritual facts as they existed in the nation to which He was sent.

3 Our Lord was not sent to any but the straying sheep of the house of Israel (Mt.15<sup>24</sup>). He had no commission for any other nation and He never left the land of Israel to reach others. The hundred sheep, therefore, bring before us the nation of the covenant. The Lord is the good Shepherd, Who gives His soul for the sheep (Jn. 10<sup>11</sup>). The ninety and nine are the self-righteous majority of the nation, who, like the Pharisees and scribes, to whom He was speaking, thought they had no need of repentance. They were not safe within the shelter of the fold, but out in the wilderness, left without the protection of the Shepherd, and open to the attacks of the wild beasts. They merely thought themselves safe. But they did not stir His heart or call for His succor. A single silly sheep astray from the flock causes Him more suffering and more joy than all the 32 thousand? Otherwise, at his being still distant, he, dispatching an embassy, is asking for peace terms.

33 Thus, then, everyone of you who is not taking leave of all of his own possessions, cannot be My disciple.

34 Salt, then, is ideal, yet if even the salt should be insipid, with 35 what shall it be seasoned? It is fit neither for the land nor for manure. They are casting it outside. Who has ears to be hearing, let him be hearing!"

15 Now all the tribute collectors and sinners were nearing Him to be 2 hearing Him. And the Pharisees as well as the scribes grumbled, saying that "This man is receiving sinners and is eating together with them!"

3 Now He told them this parable, 4 saying, "What man of you, having a hundred sheep, and, losing one of them, is not leaving the ninety-nine in the wilderness and is going after that which is lost, 5 until he may be finding it? And, finding it, he is placing it on his 6 shoulders, rejoicing. And, coming into the house, he is calling together the friends and neighbors, saying to them, 'Rejoice with me that I found my sheep that was lost!'

7 I am saying to you that thus there will be joy in heaven over one sinner repenting, more than over ninety-nine just persons who have no need of repentance. 8 Or what woman, having ten drachmas [about 16 cents each], if she should be losing one drachma, is not lighting a lamp, and sweeping the house and seeking carefully until she should be finding it? 9 And, finding it, she is calling torest. God could get little satisfaction out of Israel because of their self-righteousness. The tax gatherers and sinners heard Him gladly, and they alone responded to His love and mercy. He received sinners because no others would have Him or felt their need of Him.

The hunt for a lost sheep in the wilds of Judea was a hazardous and dangerous task, and may well remind us of His suffering unto death on the cross. The descent into a deep and dark ravine infested with savage beasts, is a fit picture of His descent into the depths of Golgotha.

The lost sheep gives us God's side. The lost coin gives us Israel's side. The nation is often seen under the figure of a woman. To this very day it is the custom among the women of the land to wear silver coins for a headdress. These are their most prized ornaments, and mean much more to them than the mere money value. Israel had been decked with ornaments by Jehovah, and it was one of these that was lost. And each sinner among them who repented had a foretaste of the day when the redemption money is found for Israel's ransom.

11 In the parable of the two sons we have a portrait of the two classes in Israel to illustrate their moral distance from God. The prodigal was far from the father's house; the elder brother was far from his heart. So the Pharisees and scribes boast of a ceremonial nearness to Jehovah, but their hearts are far from Him. The tax collectors and sinners are outcasts, yet they know their plight and yearn for the compassionate mercy of God.

The point in this portion of the five-fold parable lies in the contrast between the two sons. Natural religion, such as the self-righteous Pharisees and scribes possessed, prides itself on conduct such as characterized the elder son, which consists in doing right and living up to the law as best they could. But such deportment, even if sincere and true, gives no occasion for the father to reveal His affection.

The prodigal is a composite picture of the sinner and the publican. His dissipation and profligacy set him forth as a sodden sinner, mired in imgether the friends and neighbors, saying, 'Rejoice with me that I found the drachma which I lose!'

10 Thus, I am saying to you, there is coming to be joy before the messengers of God over one sinner repenting."

11 Now He said, "A certain man
12 had two sons. And the younger of them said to the father, 'Father, give me the part of the estate accruing to me.' Now, he apportioned them the livelihood. And not 13 many days after, the younger son, gathering all together, travels into a far country and there dissipates his estate, living profligately.

14 Now, his all being spent, a severe famine occurred in that country, and he begins to be in want.

15 And going, he joined one of the citizens of that country, and he sends him into his fields to graze
16 hogs. And he yearned to be satisfied with the little carob pods which the hogs ate, and no one gave to him.

17 Now, coming to himself, he avers, 'How many of my father's hired men are surfeited with bread, yet I am perishing here of famine!

18 Rising, I will go to my father and declare to him, "Father, I sinned against heaven and in your sight.

19 I am no longer worthy to be called your son. Make me as one of your 20 hired men.'" And rising, he came to his father.

Now, at his being still far distant, his father perceived him and has compassion, and running, falls on his neck and fondly kisses him.

morality. His alliance with the citizen of a foreign country, his herding of the hogs and his desire to eat the diet of the unclean creatures, is a deft delineation of the traitorous tax collector, who joined with Rome in oppressing God's people. He had been far worse than a mere "prodigal". He recognizes himself as a sinner.

13 Compare Job 21:14-15.

17 Compare Jer. 31:18-20.

17 The first desire of the prodigal and of all awakened sinners is to do something themselves to ameliorate their evil condition. "What must I do to be saved?" This is their constant cry, because they do not know the Father, and misjudge His love. So the prodigal proposes to plead for a place in his father's service. He rehearses his little speech, and his highest expectation is a place among the servants in his father's house.

But how far is all this from the father's thoughts! He saw him afar off, and heard his confession, and ignored his plea. Instead of the menial place of servility he gives him the highest place of honor. The choicest robe and the daintiest viands all proclaim the delight of the father at receiving his son back again. There was feasting and merriment, which began, but has no end.

So with the sinners and outcasts. The Lord frankly forgave them. They were not put on probation, or set to the task of redeeming their character by meritorious conduct and perseverance in rectitude. They were clothed in garments of salvation and satisfied with the sacrifice of God's providing. They joyed in the God of grace. The bliss of the kingdom, the exultant rejoicing of all creation in the consummation, will not be built upon obedience, but on the disobedience that led to destruction and death; yet rather on the love that saves the lost and gives life to the dead.

Sin is a temporary necessity in God's great purpose to reveal Himself. It is the background which brings out the high lights of His grace. It is the foil which sets forth the depths of His affections. It was provided for before its entrance into the world, hence is not of man's choosing. It will be restrained in the eons of the eons and be entirely removed at the consummation.

21 Now the son said to him, 'Father, I sinned against heaven and in your sight. I am no longer worthy to be called your son. Make me as one of your hired men.' Yet the father said to his slaves, 'Quick! Carry out the first robe, and put it on him, and give him a ring for his hand, and sandals for his feet, and bring the grain-fed calf, sacrifice it, and eating, we may be merry, seeing that this my son was dead and revives, he was lost and was found.' And they begin to be merry.

25 Now his elder son was in the field, and as, on coming, he nears the house, he hears music and choral dancing, and calling to one of the boys he ascertained whatever this may be. Now he said to him that 'Your brother is arriving, and your father sacrifices the grain-fed calf, seeing that he got him back sound.' Now he is indignant and did not want to enter. Yet his father, coming out, entreated him. 29 Now, answering, he said to his father, 'Lo! so many years am I slaving for you, and I never passed by your precept, and you never give me a kid that I may make merry with my friends. Yet when this son of yours came, who is devouring your livelihood with prostitutes, you sacrifice for him the grain-fed calf!'

31 Now he said to him, 'Child, you are always with me, and all mine is yours. Yet we must make merry and rejoice, seeing that this your brother was dead, and revives, <sup>1</sup> The parable of the unjust steward confines itself to the Pharisees and scribes, the stewards of Israel's wealth. They were dissipating His treasures and were fond of money and served their own greed for gain rather than ministering to the glory of God. They were prudent in the things of this life to the extent of jeopardizing their prospects in the eons to come.

<sup>9</sup> The emphatic I shows that there is a contrast intended between the lord of the unjust steward and Christ. This cannot be expressed in the indicative. Moreover, the Lord does not commend unrighteousness, and advise deceit. Besides, the sentiment immediately following is quite opposed to such double dealing. Faithfulness, not shrewdness, is the requisite for honors in the kingdom.

Money or means of any kind are only trivial and temporary factors in the life of faith, unless we view them as tests with a view to the acquisition of the true riches. Those who are faithful stewards of material wealth, which is theirs only to use for a time, and not to possess forever, may expect a reward in kind in the kingdom. The Pharisees died rich, and will have no place in the glories of the Messianic reign. Christ died in the most abject poverty, yet He will be weighted with the wealth of all earth's highest glories. Even in this day of sovereign grace, present riches are too often a hindrance to future reward, when they may well be a means of preferment by their faithful and gracious dispensation. Neither the most conservative investment nor the most fortunate speculation will yield as safe or as profitable proceeds as a share in the concerns of God. It yields, not only temporary returns, but eternal dividends.

and was lost and was found.'''

<sup>16</sup> Now He said to His disciples also, "A certain man, who was rich, had a steward, and this man was slandered to him as dissipating his possessions. And summoning him, he said to him, 'What is this I am hearing concerning you? Render an account of your stewardship, for you can no longer be steward.'
<sup>2</sup> Now the steward said in himself, 'What shall I be doing, seeing that my lord will be wresting the stewardship from me? I have not the strength to dig. I am ashamed to
<sup>4</sup> be a mendicant. I know what I shall be doing, that whenever I should be deposed from the stewardship, they should be receiving me into their homes.'

<sup>5</sup> And, calling each one of the debtors [paying] usury to his lord to him, he said to the first, 'How much are you owing my lord?'
<sup>6</sup> Now he said to him, 'A hundred baths [about 8½ gallons each] of olive oil.' Now he said to him, 'Indorse your bills, and sit down
<sup>7</sup> quickly and write fifty.' Thereupon he said to another, 'Now how much are you owing?' Now he said, 'A hundred cors [about 32 pecks 1 pint each] of wheat.' And he is saying to him, 'Indorse your bills, and write eighty.'

<sup>8</sup> And the lord applauds the unjust steward, seeing that he does prudently, seeing that the sons of this eon are more prudent, for their own generation, than the sons of light.

<sup>9</sup> And am I saying to you, 'Make for yourselves friends of the mammon of unrighteousness, that, whenever it may be defaulting, they should be receiving you into the eonian tabernacles'? He who is faithful in the least is faithful in

13 God wants the wholehearted service of His slaves. This is not possible where other motives than His glory, or other objects than His exaltation are given the first place in the hearts of those who seek to serve Him. The lure of riches is one of the most seductive to lead His own away from His work.

15 We all naturally share the desire of the Pharisees to appear right before our fellow men rather than to actually be right before God. But it is better to appear wrong before mankind and await that day when the secrets of all hearts will be revealed than to hide under a cloak of hypocrisy which will be torn aside by the divine presence.

16-17 Compare Mt. 4<sup>17,517</sup>, 18<sup>11,12,13</sup>.

16 God's revelation was made by many modes, each appropriate to the time when it was used. "The law and the prophets", a title of the Hebrew scriptures, which we now misname "the Old Testament", was His means of dealing with Israel until John the baptist, the greatest of all the prophets. He was the forerunner of a new method of divine revelation through the incarnation of Christ. The proclamation of the kingdom did not receive the response of contrite hearts, according to the law, but rather awakened a desire for its establishment by carnal means. At one time they would have taken Christ by force, because He had satisfied their hunger, and would have made Him King. This would have meant a revolt and war and bloodshed.

18 Compare Mt. 5<sup>32</sup> 19<sup>9</sup> Mk. 10<sup>11,12</sup>.

18 Not only does He intimate that the Pharisees are to be dismissed from the stewardship, but this apparently unconnected statement suggests that the nation is to be divorced from Jehovah, and left desolate. This is a fitting link to lead us up to the final section of this five-fold parable, in which Israel's fate during her divorce is discussed.

19 The cambric of the priest and the purple of the king in the rich man's garments indicate Israel as the royal priesthood. His merry times are due to Israel's special blessings. The Pharisees looked down upon the sinners and publicans and gave them a much also, and he who is unjust in the least is unjust in much also. If, then, you became unfaithful in the unjust mammon, who will be trusting you with the true? And if you became unfaithful in that which is an outsider's, who will be giving you yours? No domestic can slave for two lords, for either he will be hating one and loving the other, or upholding one and despising the other. You cannot slave for God and mammon."

14 Now the Pharisees also, belonging to those who are fond of money, heard all these things and they scouted Him. And He said to them, "You are those who are justifying yourselves before men, yet God is knowing your hearts, seeing that what is high among men is an abomination before God.

16 The law and the prophets are as far as John: thenceforth the evangel of the kingdom of God is being preached, and every one is violently forcing into it, and the violent are snatching it. Yet it is easier for heaven and earth to pass by than for one ceriph of the law to fall.

18 Every one dismissing his wife and marrying another is committing adultery. And every one having been dismissed from a husband, marrying, is committing adultery.

19 Now a certain man was rich and dressed in purple and cambric, daily making merry splendidly.

20 Now there was a certain poor man named Lazarus, who had been cast at his portal, having ulcers, and yearning to be satisfied from the scraps which are falling from the rich man's table. But the curs alplace like that of Lazarus, outside, with the dogs, even as the prodigal was afar off with the swine. They had little more than the unclean aliens, who were called curs by the religious Jews.

The prodigal, the rich man, and Lazarus all are represented as being dead. The prodigal and the rich man show the nation in apostasy. Lazarus, being comforted in Abraham's bosom, represents the faithful remnant. So long as the nation, as such, is dead, neither Lazarus nor the rich man can claim the blessings of the kingdom. The continued persecution and hatred of the Jews by all nations is aptly pictured by the flames in which one of them found himself. The place in Abraham's bosom is no less faithful a figure of the comfort which came to those who believed. Abraham's bosom cannot be literal, for he is dead and even were he alive the picture of thousands of believers in his literal bosom is preposterous. Since this is so it follows that all of the scene is figurative, for if Abraham is not literally there, neither is Lazarus nor the rich man.

22 Compare Ps.113<sup>7</sup>Heb.114.

27 Even the rich man's request has its counterpart in Israel's apostasy. After One rose from the dead He was proclaimed in (1) Jerusalem, (2) Judea, (3) Samaria, (4) to the limits of the land (Ac. 1<sup>8</sup>), and (5) to the dispersed among the nations. The message was based on the Lord's resurrection from the dead. Those receiving this five-fold testimony correspond to the five brethren. Yet, even as the Lord foretold, they did not, as a nation, repent. Some of their sufferings, until the terrible tragedy of the siege of Jerusalem, are recounted by Josephus. To this very day the Jew is being tormented in the flames of national hatred. But the time of their restoration is drawing near (Ro.11). But before their torment ceases it will be much intensified in the terror of the greatest of all Jewish persecutions.

29 Compare Jn.5<sup>39-47</sup>Ac.15<sup>21</sup>.

22 so, coming, licked his ulcers. Now the poor man came to die and he is carried away by the messengers into Abraham's bosom. Now the rich man also died, and was entombed.

23 And in the unseen, lifting up his eyes, existing in torments, he is seeing Abraham from afar, and Lazarus in his bosom. And he, shouting, said, 'Father Abraham, be merciful to me, and send Lazarus that he should be dipping the tip of his finger in water and cooling my tongue, seeing that I am pained in this flame.'

25 Now Abraham said, 'Child, be reminded that you got your good in your life, and Lazarus likewise evil. Yet now here he is consoled, 26 yet you are in pain. And in all this, between us and you a great chasm has been established, so that those wanting to cross hence to you may not be able, neither those thence may be ferrying to us.'

27 Yet he said, 'I am asking you then, father, that you should be sending him into my father's 28 house, for I have five brothers, so that he may be certifying to them lest they also may be coming into 29 this place of torment.' Yet Abraham is saying to him, 'They have Moses and the prophets. Let them 30 hear them!' Yet he said, 'No, father Abraham, but if someone should be going to them from the 31 dead they will be repenting.' Yet he said to him, 'If they are not hearing Moses and the prophets, neither will they be persuaded if some one should be rising from among the dead.' "

<sup>1</sup> The Lord is through with the unbelievers and now addresses His own disciples. He anticipates the fact that, even among themselves, there would be much to cause them to stumble and fall. He seeks to warn them against becoming the occasion of a brother's sin. And, in case of sin, He urges them to conform to the spirit of their proclamation, which promised a pardon or forgiveness on the ground of repentance. Repentance, or a change of mind, brought pardon from God for the unbeliever, and repentance should bring forgiveness among brethren, no matter how often it is required. The transcendent grace shown to us should lead us to a still more loving attitude. We are to be gracious to one another apart from any repentance.

<sup>5</sup> Every-day conduct is a greater drain on faith than the working of miracles. It may be far more difficult to forgive a seventh offense than to say to a leper "Be clean!" The apostles realize their lack, and desire to augment their slender stock of faith.

<sup>6</sup> Israel, politically, was figured by a fig tree. The black mulberry is a species of wild fig. It represents the sovereignty of Rome. The nations are compared to the restless sea, Israel to the stable land. So that the underlying thought in our Lord's mind seems to be that with faith sufficient they could uproot Rome's rule from the land of Israel and remove it to the nations where it belonged. In other words, the kingdom would come. It was lack of faith that kept the kingdom from being realized. The mustard kernel is also suggestive. He had already compared the kingdom to it (13<sup>19</sup>). In apostasy the nation will attain a place of rule in imitation of the kingdom. Great Babylon will be the mustard plant which attains to a sovereignty of the earth apart from God.

<sup>7</sup> Slavery is not out of date in things divine. The true servant of God will delight to acknowledge that he has been purchased by God, and is not his own. All that he can do is not at all what he feels he ought to do.

<sup>17</sup> Now He said to His disciples, "It is incredible for snares not to be coming. However, woe to him through whom they are coming! It were an advantage to him if a millstone were lying about his neck and he were pitched into the sea, rather than that he should be snaring one of these little ones. Take heed to yourselves. Yet if your brother should be sinning, rebuke him, and should he indeed be repenting, forgive him. And if he should be sinning against you seven times a day, and should be turning about seven times a day to you, saying, 'I am repenting,' you shall be forgiving him."

<sup>5</sup> And the apostles say to the Lord, "Add to our faith." Yet the Lord said, "If you have faith as a mustard kernel, you would say to this black mulberry, 'Be uprooted and be planted in the sea,' and it would obey you."

<sup>7</sup> Now who of you, having a slave plowing or tending sheep, entering from the field, will be declaring to him, 'Come along immediately, lean back at table'? But will he not be declaring to him, 'Make something ready for me. I should be dining. And being girded, serve me till I should be eating and drinking, and after this you shall be eating and drinking.'

<sup>9</sup> Has that slave thanks, seeing that he does what is prescribed? I presume not! Thus, you, also, whenever you should be doing all this which is prescribed you, be saying that 'We are useless slaves. We have done what we ought to do.' "

<sup>11</sup> And it occurred, in His going into Jerusalem, He also came through the middle of Samaria and Galilee. And, at His entering into

<sup>12</sup> Our Lord was on His last long journey to Jerusalem. He knew what kind of reception awaited Him there. This miracle seems to be directed as a testimony to the priests. It was a sign that He came in accord with the law of Moses. Though the priests could not cleanse away sin, they had the right to pass upon the cleansing. If the lepers were cleansed they could not deny the presence of the power of God. Not only do they fail to give Him the praise which was His due, but it seems that they even dissuaded the lepers themselves from returning to Him. What a contrast is the despised Samaritan! He does not wait to show himself to his priest, but, as soon as he is cleansed, he returns and worships. The nine Jews had the correct formula for worship but a corrupt heart. The Samaritan was wrong in his religion, but he soon found that the true place of worship was at His feet.

<sup>20</sup> That the coming of the kingdom of God will be a visible, observable event the scriptures amply testify. It will come like a lightning flash (<sup>24</sup>), accompanied by signs and portents in heaven as well as on earth. But it will not be a small, local occurrence, known only to those who are watching closely. This is the force of the word usually rendered "observation". It denotes scrutiny, a careful inspection lest something elude observation. Thus they "watched" the gates of Damascus day and night in order to apprehend Saul of Tarsus. This suggests quite the opposite thought, that it comes with such apparent and public "observation" that careful scrutiny is useless.

<sup>21</sup> It will not be confined to any locality, but will instantly cover the whole earth. Hence it would be useless to investigate or follow up any report that the kingdom is here or there, for it will be everywhere. Moreover, unlike other kingdoms, which fail for lack of an inward response to outward regulations, the kingdom of God will be founded on a moral force within men's hearts. This does not deny it an outward polity. But the point for a certain village, ten men, lepers, meet Him, who stand at a distance.

<sup>13</sup> And they lift their voices, saying, "Jesus, Doctor, be merciful to us!" And perceiving it, He said to them, "Go, exhibit yourselves to the priests." And in their going away it came to be that they are cleansed.

<sup>15</sup> Now one of them, perceiving that he was healed, returns, glorifying God with a loud voice. And he falls on his face at His feet, thanking Him. And he was a Samaritan. Now answering, Jesus said, "Are there not ten cleansed? <sup>18</sup> Yet where are the nine? Were none found returning to give glory to God except this foreigner?" <sup>19</sup> And He said to him, "Rise. Go. Your faith has saved you."

<sup>20</sup> Now, being inquired of by the Pharisees, as to when the kingdom of God is coming, He answered them and said, "The kingdom of God is not coming with scrutiny. <sup>21</sup> Neither shall they be declaring 'Lo! Here!' or 'Lo! There!' for lo! the kingdom of God is inside of you."

<sup>22</sup> Yet He said to His disciples, "The days will be coming when you will be yearning to perceive one of the days of the Son of Man-kind and you shall not see it. And they shall be declaring to you, 'Lo! There!' or 'Lo! Here!' Do not come away, neither should you be pursuing. For even as the lightning, flashing out from under heaven to under heaven, is shining, thus will be the Son of Mankind in His day. <sup>25</sup> Yet first He must be suffering much and be rejected by this generation.

the Pharisees, to whom He was speaking, is that, like Nicodemus, they needed an inward renewal, rather than a keen and curious scrutiny of local occurrences, in order to enter the kingdom. It has been suggested that this should be rendered, "the kingdom of God is among you", that is, in the person of the King. But the word here used certainly means inside, as witnesses its only other occurrence (Mt. 23<sup>26</sup>), which speaks of the inside of the cup and the plate in contrast with their outside.

26-27 Compare Mt.24<sup>37-39</sup>Gen.7.

26 The unexpected suddenness of the coming of the Son of Mankind is further enforced by a comparison with the days of Noah. It will be a day of fancied security and swift destruction. Most of the divine processes are a gradual growth and changes are introduced slowly. The present economy of grace was brought in by instalments during a considerable period of time, from Paul's call to his imprisonment. But God's judgments are always swift and sudden. Now that it is evident that the kingdom will not be established as a result of His proclamation, but will be introduced by judgment, its coming takes on the characteristics of the previous judgments of the irreverent.

28 Compare Gen. 19<sup>16,24,25</sup>.

30 Compare 2 Th. 1<sup>8-10</sup>.

31 Oriental houses usually have an outside stair to the roof, so that, in great haste, it is not necessary to go into the house to get down from the flat roof.

32 The soul is distinct from the life, for we can hardly say that one who is destroying his life is causing it to live. It is those who shrink from suffering who seek to preserve their souls, and thus forfeit the joys of the kingdom.

34-36 Compare Mt.24<sup>40,41</sup>Th.4<sup>17</sup>.

37 Elsewhere the nations are represented as wild beasts. Here they are like birds of prey gathering about Israel in her last extremity.

26 And according as it occurred in the days of Noah, thus will it be also in the days of the Son of Man-

27 kind. They ate, they drank, they married, they gave in marriage, until the day Noah entered into the ark, and the deluge came and destroys them all. Likewise, according as it occurred in the days of Lot. They ate, they drank, they bought, they sold, they planted, 28 they built, yet the day in which Lot came out from Sodom, fire and sulphur rains from heaven and destroys them all. In accord with this will be the day in which the Son of Mankind is unveiled.

31 In that day, he who shall be on the housetop and his gear in his house, let him not be descending to pick it up. And let him who is in the field likewise not turn back

32 to that behind him. Remember

33 Lot's wife. Whoever should be seeking to procure his soul will be destroying it, yet whoever should be destroying it will cause it to live.

34 I am saying to you, on this night there will be two on one couch; the one shall be taken along and the

35 other shall be left. There will be two grinding at the same place; the one shall be taken along, yet the 36 other shall be left." And, answering, they are saying to Him, "Where, Lord?" Yet He said to them, "Where the body is, there the vultures also will be assembled."

18 Now He told them a parable also, with this in view that they must always be praying and not

2 be despondent, saying, "In a certain city was a certain judge who feared not God nor respected man.

1 This parable follows most naturally from the foregoing prophecy concerning the coming of the Son of Mankind, for then it is that the saints in Israel clamor for vengeance, as figured in the souls under the altar (Un. 6<sup>9-11</sup>). Indeed, it is the importunity of the blood of the martyrs which brings on the judgments of the sixth seal.

We, too, are told to pray without intermission (1 Th. 5<sup>17</sup>). But a prayer for vengeance is utterly foreign to the spirit of grace which is ours in Christ Jesus. We can quite understand that God should need much urging and continued importunity before He visits their adversaries with vengeance. That is His strange work. It is not in direct accord with His heart. But there is a question whether such urgency is necessary for Him to answer those of our prayers which are in accord with His will. Above all, let us not make this parable an excuse for senseless repetition or stubbornness in petitioning for that which is contrary to God's present attitude of grace. The closing words of the parable emphasize its close connection with the judgments which attend the coming of the Son of Mankind.

7 Compare 2 Th. 1<sup>6,7</sup>.

9 This Pharisee is intensely typical of those self-righteous ones, who imagine that God is pleased with their sham religion. Self is the center and the circumference of all their worship. Though so fully pleased with themselves, they are the most pitiable of men, blind to their sins, dead to their own corruption. The traitorous tax gatherer, on the other hand, showed a spiritual intelligence seldom seen during our Lord's ministry, as is indicated by his use of the word propitiate. From where he stood he could doubtless see the smoke of the sacrifice ascending to God, and he grasped the great truth of propitiation, that, sinner though he was, he could approach and obtain favor of God on the ground of sacrifice. Thus did the Saviour call their attention once again to the sacrifice He was about to offer so that He may become the great Propitiatory or meeting place of God and man.

city, and she came to him, saying, 'Avenge me from my plaintiff.'

4 Now for a time he would not, yet afterward he said in himself, 'Even if I am not fearing God nor 5 respecting man, surely because of the weariness this widow is affording me I shall be avenging her, seeing that, not coming to a consummation, she should belabor me.'"

6 Now the Lord said, "Hear what
7 the unjust judge is saying. Yet should not God by all means be doing the avenging of His chosen ones who are imploring Him day and night? And He is patient with 8 them. I am saying to you that He will be doing the avenging of them swiftly. Moreover, consequently, at the coming of the Son of Mankind, will He be finding the faith on the earth?" End

9 Now He said to some, also, who have confidence in themselves that they are just and are scorning the 10 rest, this parable: "Two men went up into the sanctuary to pray, the one a Pharisee, and the other a 11 tribute collector. The Pharisee, standing, prayed this to himself: 'O God, I am thanking you that I am not even as the rest of men, rapacious, unjust, adulterers, or 12 even as this tribute collector. I am fasting twice of a sabbath, I am taking tithes from all whatever 13 I am acquiring.' Now the tribute collector, having taken a stand afar off, would not even lift up his eyes to heaven, but beat his chest, saying, 'O God, be propitiated to me, the sinner!' I am saying to 14 you, this man descended justified to his home, rather than that one,

15-17 Compare Mt.19:13-15 Mk.10:13-16 Mt. 18:3.

15 It was customary for rabbis and great teachers to invoke a blessing on those who desired it, especially on children who were not mature enough to derive benefit from their words. It was a touching tribute to the esteem in which some, at least, still held Him. There was a child-like faith, uninfluenced by the current of opposition which was setting in against Him. Hence it was specially acceptable to Him to bless the babes, for in them was reflected the sincere and unwavering faith which was so satisfying to His heart.

18-23 Compare Mt.19:16-22 Mk.10:17-22 Ex. 20:12-16.

18 The law was never given to impart life (Ga.3:21). Its function was to make sin more sinful by turning it into transgression. Its mission was to reveal the presence of sin, not to remove it. Only those who continued to do all its precepts could claim life.

The chief approaches the Lord with the wrong expression. The word "good" suggested a certain lenience which was not in the law. If eonian life is to be the wages of lawkeeping, it must be on the ground of justice rather than goodness. But the Lord does not allow the opportunity to go by to assure the chief that God is good. Passing over the greatest commandments, love to God and to his associates, the Lord first mentions those grosser sins which usually pass as the principal precepts of the law. But when He puts before him a practical test to determine whether he kept the two great precepts, his chances for eonian life vanish.

The social economy in Israel was such that it was hardly possible to be very rich without oppressing the poor. After the land had been divided by lot the only way to get more was to encroach on the allotments of others who were compelled to sell until the jubilee. At that time the Jews were not traders and could not take interest, so wealth was almost always in cattle or land. When the kingdom is established the land will be redistributed according to the lines laid down in the prophets (Eze.47:13-48:35). A rich man will have no claim whatever on his seeing that every one who is exalting himself shall be humbled, yet he who is humbling himself shall be exalted."

15 Now they brought the babes also to Him, that He may be touching them. Now the disciples, perceiving it, rebuked them. Yet Jesus calls them to Him, saying, "Let the little children be coming to Me, and be forbidding them not, for of such 16 is the kingdom of God. Verily, I am saying to you, whoever should not be receiving the kingdom of God as a little boy or girl, may under no circumstances be entering into it."

18 And a certain chief inquires of Him, saying, "Good Teacher, by doing what should I enjoy the allotment of eonian life?" Now Jesus said to him, "Why are you terming Me good? No one is good except One, God. You are acquainted with the precepts: 'You should not be committing adultery; you should not be murdering; you should not be stealing; you should not be testifying falsely; be honoring your father and your mother'." 20 Yet he said, "All these I maintain 21 from my youth." Now, hearing this, Jesus said to him, "One thing you still are lacking. Sell all, whatever you have, and distribute to the poor, and you will be having treasure in the heavens, and hither, be following Me."

23 Yet he who hears all these things became sorrow-stricken, for he was 24 tremendously rich. Now Jesus, perceiving him becoming sorrow-stricken, said, "How squeamishly shall those having money be entering into the kingdom of God!" For it is easier for a camel to be entering through the eye of a bodkin, than for a rich man to be entering into the kingdom of God."

lands. He cannot carry his wealth with him into the kingdom. It is not likely that any great difference in the distribution of wealth will be possible under the laws of that day. Property will be practically unknown. Land will be held as an allotment from Jehovah, Who will retain its control in His own hands, but will allot its use.

22 Compare 1 Ti.6:17-19.

24-27 Compare Mt.19:23-26 Mk.10:23-27 1 Ti. 6:9,10.

28-30 Compare Mt.19:27-30 Mk.10:28-31.

28 This saying of our Lord has occasioned much genuine distress among those who "apply" all scripture to themselves, with no regard to the great changes in God's dealings. In actual practise we do not get back what we give up for Christ in this day of grace. Paul, our pattern, suffered the loss of all, and was rewarded with a prison. If we restrict this to those to whom our Lord was talking the difficulty vanishes. The apostles were greatly compensated even at that time for their sacrifices for the kingdom.

31-34. Compare Mt.20:17-19 Mk.10:32-34 Ps.22 Isa.53.

31 The twelve were very keen as to their own petty privations and the consequent reward, but painfully obtuse on the subject of His great sacrifice. It is not hard to see how the nation could slay Him in their ignorance and thus fulfill the prophets which were read constantly in their synagogues, when His own disciples could not understand the plainest predictions of His sufferings, though repeated and emphasized throughout this last journey to Jerusalem.

The Lord undoubtedly did many miracles of the same kind. He healed many blind men as a sign that He would open the eyes of the blind nation. There were probably four distinct blind men healed on this journey through Jericho. The many differences in detail between Mt. 20:29-34; Mk.10:46-48, and this passage do not need to be "harmonized" but believed. The different circumstances of each case do not denote discrepancies, but divine accuracies the force of which our present spiritual microscopes are not powerful enough to reveal.

35-43 Compare Mt.20:29-34 Mk.10:46-52.

26 Now those hearing it said, "And 27 who can be saved?" Yet He said,
"What is impossible with men is possible with God."

28 Now Peter said, "Lo! we, leav-29 ing our own, follow Thee." Now
He said to them, "Verily, I am saying to you that there is no one who leaves home, or wife, or brothers, or parents, or offspring, on account of the kingdom of God, 30 who may not by all means be getting back many fold in this era, and in the coming eon, eonian life."

31 Now, taking the twelve aside,
He said to them, "Lo! we are ascending into Jerusalem, and all will be accomplished in the Son of Mankind which has been written 32 through the prophets. For He shall be given up to the nations and will be derided and outraged and spat 33 upon, and, scourging Him, they will be killing Him, and the third 34 day He will be rising." And they understand none of these things, and this declaration was hid from them, and they knew not what was said.

35 Now it occurred at His nearing Jericho, a certain blind man sat be-36 side the road, a mendicant. Now at hearing the throng going through, he ascertained what this may be.
37 Now they report to him that "Jesus, the Nazarene, is passing 38 by." And he implores, saying,
"Jesus, Son of David, be merciful 39 to me!" And those preceding rebuked him, that he should be silent.
Yet he much the more cried,
"Jesus, Son of David, be merciful 40 to me!" Now Jesus, standing, orders him to be led to Him. Now, at his drawing near, He inquires of

<sup>2</sup> The case of Zaccheus meant much more to a patriotic Jew than we can possibly imagine. The most hated and unpopular class in the whole nation were the tax farmers, who paid the taxes for a district and then collected it from the people, adding their own charges to it. Not only were the taxes oppressive, but the collectors usually imposed enough to enrich themselves. Now Zaccheus was evidently a leader in this nefarious business and was cordially disliked by his countrymen.

The Lord is proclaiming a kingdom. How strange it must have seemed for Him not only to have one of these hated collectors among His apostles, but to invite Himself to the house of a chief of these unpatriotic traitors! Few acts in His career showed more clearly that He came to call sinners, not the righteous. It was a difficult lesson for them to learn, so He chooses the most striking means of impressing it on their minds.

<sup>3</sup> There is a delightful parallel between Zaccheus' physical state and his spiritual condition. His small stature suggests the small esteem in which he was held by his countrymen. As we would say, they looked down on him. But he managed to elevate himself by means of a fig-mulberry, or wild fig tree, an excellent representation of the Roman rule, which gave him his position and wealth. Israel, politically, is figured by the tame fig tree.

It was not the Lord's will that he should remain there, hence His word, "Hurry! Descend!" The effect of the Lord's favor is immediately apparent. Without any prompting, he announces his intention to give half of his possessions to the poor, and to more than right any wrong doing which may have occurred in his dealings. What a contrast with the rich self-righteous chief (18<sup>18</sup>) who, though urged to do so, and promised a great reward, would not part with his possessions, and this chief of sinners, whose riches are given freely, without even a suggestion from the Lord! It is the compulsion of love which springs only from the depths of sin.

<sup>41</sup> him, "What are you wanting I shall be doing to you?" Now he said, "Lord, that I should be re-<sup>42</sup> covering sight!" And Jesus said to him, "Recover sight! Your <sup>43</sup> faith has saved you." And instantly he recovers sight and followed Him, glorifying God. And the entire people, perceiving it, give praise to God.

<sup>19</sup> And entering, He came through <sup>2</sup> Jericho. And lo! a man whose name is called Zaccheus, and he was chief tribute collector, and he is rich. And he sought to see Jesus, what He is, and was not able from the throng, seeing that he was <sup>4</sup> little of stature. And, running before in front, he climbed up on a fig mulberry, that he may see Him, seeing that He was about to <sup>5</sup> be coming through that way. And as He came to the place, looking up, Jesus perceived him and said to him, "Zaccheus! Hurry! Descend, for today I must remain in your
<sup>7</sup> joy. And, perceiving it, all grumbled, saying that He entered to put up for the night with a man who is a sinner.

<sup>8</sup> Now Zaccheus, standing, said to the Lord, "Lo! the half of my possessions, Lord, I am giving to the poor! And if I get anything from any one by blackmail, I am giving <sup>9</sup> back fourfold." Now Jesus said to him that "Today salvation came to this home, for as much as he also <sup>10</sup> is a son of Abraham. For the Son of Mankind came to seek and to save that which is lost."

<sup>11</sup> Now at their hearing these things, He spoke, adding a parable because He is near Jerusalem, and 12 The picture presented in this parable was well known to His hearers. Native noblemen were obliged to go to Rome to "obtain a kingdom". The first Herod and Archelaus both repaired to Rome to be elevated to the throne. The latter had built a palace in Jericho near which this parable was spoken, and doubtless his hearers remembered that, when he returned as Ethnarch of Judea and Samaria, he had rewarded his adherents and had slain his enemies.

His disciples seemed absolutely deaf to His repeated warnings that He was about to suffer, rather than to reign. Even the multitude seemed to sense the great fact that the time for the kingdom had come, but did not realize the growing opposition. So He, with marvelous discernment, seizes on a parallel which they did understand, in order to explain to them what seemed so difficult. He did not deny their expectation of a kingdom; rather He confirmed it. Like the Herods, He, too, was going away to receive a kingdom. The reason for this is hinted in the hatred of the citizens. Even so the Jews had sent an embassy to the emperor Augustus and besought him to unite their country with Syria rather than that they should have an Idumean for their king. But their protestations were in vain and Archelaus was made tetrarch. They only brought down his vengeance on their heads when he returned. That the Lord will follow a similar course, and slay His enemies when He sets up the kingdom, shows that this is not the present period of grace, but the literal sovereignty of our Lord which will be preceded by the terrors of the apocalyptic judgments.

The main thought seems to be centered on the service of His slaves during His absence. Here, too, this parable is vastly different from present truth. There may be some similarity between us and the first two slaves, but it is contrary to the spirit we have received to think and act like the wicked slave. What genuine believer in Christ Jesus, who has tasted of His love and grace, would think of calling Him harsh and grasping? We, one and all, no matter how slight our they are supposing that the kingdom of God is about to be looming up instantly. Then He said, "A certain nobleman was gone into a far country to obtain a kingdom for himself and return. Now, calling ten of his own slaves, he gives to them ten minas [about $19.70 each] and said to them, 'Go into business while I am coming.' Now his citizens hated him, and they dispatch an embassy after him, saying, 'We do not want this man to reign over us!'"

15 And it occurred at his coming back, obtaining the kingdom, he said also to summon to him these slaves to whom he had given the silver, that he may be knowing what business they do. Now the first came along, saying, 'Lord, your mina earns ten minas.' And he said to him 'Well done, good slave! Seeing that you became faithful in the least, be having authority over ten cities.' And the second came, saying, 'Your mina, lord, makes five minas.' Now he said to this one also, 'And you become over five cities.'

20 And a different one came, saying, 'Lord, lo! your mina, which I had reserved in a handkerchief. 21 For I feared you, seeing that you are a harsh man, picking up what you do not lay down, and reaping what you do not sow.' Now he is saying to him, 'Out of your mouth shall I judge you, wicked slave! You were aware that I am a harsh man, picking up what I do not lay down, and reaping what I do not sow. 23 And wherefore do you not give my silver to the bank, and I, coming, might utilize it together knowledge of Him, think Him loving and generous. However little we may do for Him, or however faulty that little is, the lack is hardly due to such ungrateful motives as this slave's excuse.

<sup>28</sup> This entry into Jerusalem marks one of the most important days in the history of the holy people. The seventy heptads of Daniel's prophecy are divided into seven, sixty-two, and one. The sixty-ninth heptad, after which Messiah was to be cut off (Dan. 9<sup>20</sup>), must be fulfilled before the crucifixion. Nothing in His life heretofore corresponds to His presentation to the people as a Prince. His birth, His baptism, the beginning of His ministry, none of these so fully satisfy the words "unto Prince Messiah", as His entry as recorded on this day. Hitherto He had trudged along as any wayfarer, but now He comes as a king should come, riding on a colt, over a path strewn with the garments of His loyal subjects.

<sup>31</sup> This is perhaps the only act in which He exercises His regal authority. A king could commandeer anything in his kingdom, so He, as the King of Israel and the Lord of all in the realm (yet too poor to have a mount of His own!) has no hesitancy in sending for the colt. He has no royal trappings but the garments of His lowly escort.

<sup>37</sup> How solemn and inspiring was the scene as the cavalcade, nearing the descent of Olivet, stood revealed to the gaze of the holy city! Long had Jerusalem waited for that day! Prophets had perceived it and saints had sighed for it, yet where was the response from the city as the procession came into view? A few of His own rend the air with their acclamations, but the great city with its priests and chiefs is represented by the sullen Pharisees who resented His royal assumptions. Much has the sacred city suffered for its neglect of Him since that day. Blessed, indeed, will be that future day when, once again, He stands on Olivet and claims the royal honors which they then refused (Zech. 14<sup>4</sup>).

<sup>24</sup> with interest?' And to those standing by he said, 'Take the mina from him and give it to him who has the ten minas.' And they say to him, 'Lord, he has ten minas!'

<sup>26</sup> For I am saying to you that to every one who has shall be given, yet from him who has not, even what he has shall be taken away from him. 'Moreover, these, my enemies, who do not want me to reign over them—lead them here and slay them in front of me'."

<sup>28</sup> And, saying these things, He went in front, ascending into Jerusalem. And it occurred, as He nears Bethphage and Bethany at the mount called Olivet, He dispatches two of His disciples, saying, "Go away to the village facing us, going into which, you will be finding a colt hitched, on which no man ever yet is seated, and, loosing, be leading it.

<sup>31</sup> And if any one should be asking you, 'Why are you loosing it?' thus shall you be declaring to him, that 'The Lord is having need of it.'"

<sup>32</sup> Now, coming away, those who have been dispatched found it according as He said to them. Now, at their loosing the colt, its lords say to them, "Why are you loosing the colt?" Now they say that "The Lord is having need of it." And they led it to Jesus, and tossing their garments on the colt, they mount Jesus. Now, at His going, they strewed their garments in the road.

<sup>37</sup> Now at His already nearing the descent of the mount of Olives, the entire multitude of the disciples begins rejoicing, praising God with

<sup>40</sup> There is a marked change manifest in the attitude of our Lord. Since His rejection by the nation was evident, He has been restraining His disciples from making Him known. He closed the proclamation of the kingdom and would not allow it to be heralded. Now, however, He receives the acclamation of the disciples, and rebukes the remonstrance of the Pharisees instead of rebuking His disciples. They were fulfilling the scripture (Zech. 9<sup>9</sup>):

Exult exceedingly, daughter of Zion,
Shout, daughter of Jerusalem.
Lo! your King is coming to you,
He is just and being saved:
He is humble and rides on an ass,
And on a colt, the foal of an ass.

<sup>42</sup> This was the day so long foretold by Daniel the prophet (Dan. 9<sup>25</sup>) when Messiah the Prince should come. Since the coming forth of the king's word to restore and to build Jerusalem, sixty-nine heptads had run their course. Exactly four hundred and eighty-three years of three hundred and sixty days each had passed since the edict of Artaxerxes (Neh. 2).

All the previous ministry of Messiah was with a view to His public proclamation on this day. Hence His lament over the apostate city. The day of her visitation had come and she was utterly oblivious of it. The scribes could actually have demonstrated mathematically that He was the Messiah by counting the days of Daniel's prophecy, yet they are so blind that they reject Him. It was Jerusalem's last opportunity. Seven times had He visited the city and had given ample proof of His messiahship. This was final. Had they received Him her portion would have been peace. Now that they reject Him there can be no permanent peace until she reverses her decision at His return in power.

<sup>43</sup> All of this was literally fulfilled at the siege of Jerusalem by Titus and the later destruction under the emperor Hadrian. Jerusalem has seen little of peace except in its desolation. The recent capture of the city is but the prelude to the terrible times that are still to come.

a loud voice, concerning all the powers which they perceived, saying, "Blessed be the King coming in the name of the Lord! In heaven peace, and glory among the highest!"

<sup>39</sup> And some of the Pharisees from the throng say to Him, "Teacher, rebuke your disciples!" And answering, He said to them, "I am saying to you that, should these be silent, the stones will be crying."

<sup>41</sup> And as He draws near, perceiving the city, He laments over it, saying that, "If you knew, even you, at least in this day, what is for your peace!—yet now it was hid from your eyes, seeing that the days will be arriving on you and your enemies will cast up a rampart about you, and they will be surrounding you and will be pressing you everywhere, and they will be leveling you and your children in you, and they shall not leave a stone on a stone in you, because you knew not the era of your visitation."

<sup>45</sup> And, entering the sanctuary, He begins to cast out those who are selling and buying in it, saying to them, "It is written, 'And My house shall be a house of prayer,' yet you make it a cave of robbers."
<sup>47</sup> And He was teaching daily in the sanctuary, yet the chief priests and the scribes and the foremost of the people sought to destroy Him. And they found not what they should be doing, for all the people, hearing, hung on Him.

<sup>20</sup> And it occurred on one of those days, at His teaching the people in the sanctuary and preaching the 45 His kingdom will be a combination of church and state and He will be the Head of both. Hence He not only presents Himself as King, but enters the temple and cleanses it of its unlawful traffic.

48 Compare Jn.12<sup>17-19</sup>.

1-8 Compare Mt.21<sup>23-27</sup>Mk.11<sup>27-33</sup>.

2 The Rabbis had a great conceit of their powers of debate, so they deemed it best to lay a snare for Him. The question itself seems innocent enough, and had they honestly asked for information, He doubtless would have answered them. But He seldom listened to men's words. He read their hearts. Those who sought to catch Him were always taken in their own toils. In an indirect way His question contained the answer that they desired. If the baptist was commissioned by God to prepare His path, surely then His authority must far exceed that of John, for he repeatedly renounced himself in favor of the One Whose sandals he was not worthy to loose. What a humiliating confession they were forced to make to cover their hypocrisy! Of what use is truth to such men? So He wisely refuses to tell them what any blind man could see if he did not wish to hold to his error at any cost.

9 The parable grows out of the attitude of the Pharisees, as just made manifest. Most skilfully He uses incidents well known to them and figures with which they are familiar to trace the attitude of Israel toward those who had been sent with divine authority in the past. All the prophets—even Moses—suffered at their unbelieving hands. They always persecuted the messengers of God, and, for that reason, they were about to kill Him.

The sad history of Israel, their continual defection and rejection of God, does not seem to affect their hearts. They are ready to do as did their forefathers, even though they condemn them. They boast in the very prophets that their fathers persecuted. Does not all this show the total failure of law and ritual as a link between God and man? Religion so radically vitievangel, the chief priests and the scribes, together with the elders, stand by. And they said, speaking to Him, "Tell us, by what authority are you doing these things, or, who is giving you this authority?"

3 Now, answering, He said to them, "I also shall be asking you one

4 word, and you tell Me: The baptism of John—was it out of heaven, or of men?" Now they reckon

5 together among themselves, saying that "If we should be saying, 'Out of heaven', He will be declaring, 'Why, then, do you not believe

6 him?' Yet if we should say, 'Of men,' the people all will be stoning us, for they are persuaded that

7 John is a prophet." And they answered, "Whence is not to be perceived."

8 And Jesus said to them, "Neither am I telling you by what authority I am doing these things."

9 Now He begins to be telling the people this parable, "A certain man plants a vineyard and he leased it to farmers, and travels a considerable time. And in season he

10 dispatches a slave to the farmers, that they shall give him of the fruit of the vineyard. Yet the farmers, lashing him, send him away

11 empty. And in addition he sent a different slave, yet that one also, lashing and dishonoring him, they 12 send away empty. And in addition, he sent a third. Yet wounding this one also, they cast him out.

13 Now the lord of the vineyard said, 'What shall I be doing? I shall be sending my beloved son.

14 Him they will be respecting equally [with me].'

Now on perceiving him, the farmers reasoned with 11 Compare Ac.7<sup>52</sup>.

13-15 Compare Mt.21<sup>37-39</sup>Mk.12<sup>6-8</sup>Th.2<sup>15</sup>.

13 It was only reasonable to suppose that even if the nation had maltreated the messengers of God, they would not be nearly so likely to mistreat the Son. Previous messengers often came unannounced, with few credentials, and often with a most unpalatable message. But the Son came according to many prophecies which foretold minute details of His career. He was the only Prophet to be introduced by a fore-runner. None approached Him in the number and wonders of His works.

16 The destruction of Jerusalem and the nation was directly due to the murder of Messiah. Their misfortunes from that day to this and the evils still in store for them in the greatest of all afflictions, at the time of the end, all would have been avoided, humanly speaking, had they hailed Him as their King.

17 The head corner stone of a building is the most ornamental and honorable in the whole structure. Lying on the ground, they stumbled over it and refused it. So have the builders of Israel hurt themselves on Him.

19 The object of the scribes and chief priests now seems to be to put Him in a quandary. Either He will be discredited in the eyes of the people or come to a clash with the civil rulers. So long as He had a following they were afraid. Nor were they willing to risk an open debate. So they keep out of it entirely and send others with what, at first sight, seems to be a simple question of conscience. They hope to get Him to say that they should not pay taxes to Rome so they can accuse Him to the government. So they use fine flatteries to destruction. But His first response tears off the veil of hypocrisy and reveals the true intent of their inquiry. They wish to try Him, not to quiet their conscience.

22 Compare Deut.28<sup>47,48</sup>.

one another, saying, 'This is the enjoyer of the allotment. Hither! We may be killing him, that the enjoyment of the allotment may be becoming ours.' And, casting him outside of the vineyard, they kill him. What, then, will the lord of the vineyard be doing to them? He will be coming and destroying these farmers and will be giving the vineyard to others."

Now those hearing say, "May it not come to that!" Yet He, looking at them, said, "What, then, is this which is written,

"The stone which the builders reject,

This came to be for the head of the corner?"

18 Every one falling on that stone shall be shattered, yet on whom-ever it should be falling it will be scattering him like chaff."

19 And the scribes and the chief priests seek to lay hands on Him in this hour, and they were afraid of the people, for they know that He told this parable against them.

20 And, scrutinizing Him, they dispatch eavesdroppers, feigning themselves to be just, that they may get hold of a word of His, so as to give Him up to the sovereignty and jurisdiction of the governor. And they inquire of Him, saying,

"Teacher, we are aware that you are saying and teaching correctly, and are not taking the surface, but of a truth you are teaching the way of God. Is it allowed us to give a tax to Cæsar, or not?" Now, considering their craftiness, He said to them, "Why are you trying Me? Show Me a denarius." Now they show Him one, and He said, <sup>24</sup> Two kinds of coins were in circulation, the Roman and the Jewish. The temple taxes had to be paid in the Jewish shekel, the Roman in the foreign currency. The fact that they had accepted the conquerors' money shows that they regarded themselves as his subjects. Indeed, not long after this they insisted that they had no king but Cæsar. To pay taxes, therefore, was only the fulfillment of an obligation they had already undertaken. Hence, instead of branding Him with sedition, as they hoped, He fastens on them the disgrace of national servitude. And, to emphasize the divine obligations, He insists on their paying the shekel of the sanctuary, which they doubtless did in fact but not in spirit.

Our attitude toward rulers is set forth in Ro. 13:1-7. We look at the civil authorities as but a part of the sovereign supervising government of God, even though they are oblivious of Him or actually opposed to Him.

<sup>27</sup> The law made extraordinary provision for the perpetuation of the name and family of an Israelite. Should he die without issue, it was the duty of his brother to marry his widow and the son of such a union would take his name, so that it would not be blotted out (Deut. 25:5,6). The Sadducees seize on this custom to formulate a difficulty which was evidently a stock argument in their encounters with the Pharisees.

It is evident that they had a most superficial understanding of the law and paid no attention to the underlying reason for its enactments. The law in question was necessitated by the disturbing element of death. Apart from this it has no place. In the resurrection of the just, where there is no more death, it can have no application. Marriage, similarly, has no place in the resurrection, so the question really revealed the ignorance of the Sadducees, rather than their fancied acuteness.

<sup>37</sup> The real issue is now taken up by the Lord. They denied the resurrection. They appealed to Moses, so He also uses Moses as the basis of His

it?" Now answering, they say, <sup>25</sup> "Cæsar's." Now He said to them, "Now then, be paying Cæsar's to <sup>26</sup> Cæsar, and God's to God." And they have not the strength to get hold of a declaration of His in front of the people. And, marveling at His answer, they hush.

<sup>27</sup> Now some of the Sadducees approach, who say there is no resurrection. They inquire of Him, saying, <sup>28</sup> "Teacher, Moses writes to us, if any man's brother, having a wife, should be dying, and this one should be dying childless, that his brother may be getting the wife, and should be raising up seed to his <sup>29</sup> brother. There were, then, seven brothers, and the first, getting a <sup>30</sup> wife, died childless. And the second got the wife, and this one died <sup>31</sup> childless. And the third got her. Now, similarly, the seven also left <sup>32</sup> no children, and they died. Now subsequently to all, the woman also <sup>33</sup> died. Of which of them, then, is the woman becoming the wife in the resurrection? For the seven have had her as wife."

<sup>34</sup> And, answering, Jesus said to them, "The sons of this eon are marrying and are given in marriage. Yet those deemed worthy to <sup>35</sup> happen upon that eon and the resurrection from among the dead are neither marrying nor giving in <sup>36</sup> marriage, for neither can they be dying any more, for they are equal to messengers, and are sons of God, being sons of the resurrection.

<sup>37</sup> Now that the dead are being roused Moses also divulges at the thorn bush, as he is saying, 'Lord, argument. The God of Abraham is pre-eminently the God of promises and covenants. These have not been fulfilled and cannot be carried out if Abraham is not roused from the dead. All the virtue of the title "the God of Abraham" is lost if we consider it merely in connection with the past life of the patriarch. He did not receive the promises. It demands that he shall be raised from the dead.

<sup>38</sup> There is no question here of the death state. Abraham is not living now. It is only in a secondary sense that all are living to God. He deals with His creatures in life, not in death. The Lord is not seeking to prove that death is life, but that there is a life after death in resurrection.

<sup>41</sup> He has brought them to a point where they no longer dare to question Him, so now He turns to question them. He goes straight to the heart of the whole situation. Often had He been hailed as the Son of David, and He always acknowledged this evidence of faith in Him. But how few, even among His disciples, knew Him as David's Lord! That this Lord, Who was in the form of God, should empty Himself and be found in fashion as a Man (Phil. 2:5-8), was a truth so utterly beyond their comprehension that He did not even stop for an answer. The Hebrew scriptures use the titles "Lord", "God", etc. of the Image of God as freely as of absolute Deity. There are two Personalities Who bear these divine appellations, nor need we often be concerned which One is uppermost in any passage, for They are one, as the Image is one with Him Whom It represents. The lowly Man of the evangelists is the divine Lord of the prophets.

<sup>1</sup> God values a gift according to the sacrifices of the giver. Its commercial value means little to Him, Who owns all things, and Who accepts nothing except as a token of esteem. The rich seldom labor for a living, hence their offerings, unless very great, can mean little to them or to God. But such a drudge as this widow, who had nothing except the pittance she could earn, the God of Abraham and the God of <sup>38</sup> Isaac and the God of Jacob.' Now He is not a God of the dead, but of the living, for all are living, to <sup>39</sup> Him." Now, answering, some of the scribes say to Him, "Teacher, <sup>40</sup> you say ideally." For they no longer dared to be inquiring anything of Him.

<sup>41</sup> Now He said to them, "How are some saying that Christ is David's <sup>42</sup> Son? For David himself is saying in the scroll of the Psalms,

"The Lord said to my Lord,
"Be sitting at my right,

<sup>43</sup> Till I should be placing Thy enemies
For a footstool of Thy feet."

<sup>45</sup> Now, in the hearing of the entire people, He said to His disciples, <sup>46</sup> "Take heed of the scribes who are wanting to walk in robes, and fond of salutations in the markets, and front seats in the synagogues, and the first reclining places at the din- <sup>47</sup> ners, who are devouring the homes of widows and for a pretense are prolix in prayer. These will be getting more excessive judgment.

<sup>21</sup> Now, looking up, He perceived the rich casting their oblations into the treasury. Yet He perceived a certain drudging widow also, casting there two mites [about 39¢, <sup>3</sup> .75f]. And He said, "Truly, I am saying to you that this poor <sup>4</sup> widow cast in more than all. For these all cast out of their superfluity into the oblations of God, yet this woman, out of her want cast in all the livelihood which she had."

was at a great advantage. However little she might give, it would be great in God's eyes. And if she should give all, as this dear woman did, she would actually bring greater wealth to God than the combined total of all the large oblations. No one lacks the means to give much to God.

5-7 Compare Mt.24:1-3 Mk.13:1-4 Mic.3:12.

6 The present interval being an absolute secret, we must banish it from our view entirely when considering the prophetic forecast here given. It is contained in the "eras of the nations" (24) but the vision of the future is as though we were looking at two mountain ranges, one before the other, which look like one, and hide the valley that lies between. We see here the turbulent times of the Jewish wars, the destruction of the temple at the siege of Jerusalem, the dispersion—all long past—and then find ourselves in the future terrors of the sixth seal, and the coming of the Son of Mankind.

8-11 Compare Mt.24:4-8 Mk.13:5-8.

8 It is said that more than sixty different ones have come with messianic claims and the greatest of them is still to come at the time of the end. The rider on the white horse, under the first seal of the sixth chapter of the Unveiling, will be the false messiah of the end time.

10-11 The second seal (Un. 6<sup>3,4</sup>) takes peace from the earth. It corresponds with the conflict of nation with nation and seems to indicate a world war with universal conscription, whole nations hurling themselves at one another rather than merely sending small contingents of fighting men. Famine is indicated by the black horse with the balances (Un. 6<sup>5,6</sup>). A day's labor will barely buy one day's food. The fourth seal, with its sallow greenish horse (Un. 6<sup>7,8</sup>) corresponds with the pestilences here predicted.

12-19 Compare Mt.24:9-14 Mk.13:9-13.

12 From verses twelve to twenty-five we have an outline of the siege of Jerusalem, the dispersion among the nations, the occupation of the holy city, and the persecutions which will be endured before the time of the end. We should remember that the perspective here and in all similar prophecies is such that the great affliction which is yet to come appears to follow soon the sanctuary, that it is adorned with fine stones and votive offerings, He said, "These which you are beholding—there will be coming days in which not a stone will be left here on a stone, which will not be demolished."

7 Now they inquire of Him, saying, "Teacher, when, then, will these things be, and what is the sign whenever these things may be about to occur?" Now He said, "Beware! You should not be deceived, for many shall be coming in My name, saying that 'I am!' and 'The season has drawn near!' You should not, then, be going after them. Now, whenever you should be hearing battles and turbulences you should not be dismayed, for these things must occur first, but not immediately is the consummation."

10 Then He said to them, "Nation shall be roused against nation, and kingdom against kingdom. Besides, in places, there will be great quakes and famines and pestilences. There will be fearful sights and great signs from heaven as well. Yet before all these things they will be laying their hands on you and they will be persecuting [you], giving you up into the synagogues and jails, being led off to kings and governors on account of My name. Yet it will be even tuating to you for a testimony. Ponder, then, in your hearts not to be premeditating a defense, for I will be giving you a mouth and wisdom, which all who are opposing you will not be able to withstand or contradict. Yet you will be betrayed also by parents and brothers and relatives and friends, and they will be causing some of you to die. And you will be hated by all because of My after the dispersion. The present interval is practically ignored.

<sup>20</sup> The siege of Jerusalem under Titus was one of the most terrible of all time. After the city was once invested, the opportunity for escape was cut off, and many who attempted it were slain. Thousands were crucified and many deserters were disembowelled because of a rumor that they sought to conceal their money by swallowing it. Others over-ate and burst asunder. More than a million perished miserably and nearly a hundred thousand were enslaved and carried off to Egypt and elsewhere. The city was almost completely demolished. It is said that the Christians in the city took warning and fled to the mountains of Judea in time to escape the terrible affliction.

<sup>24</sup> Jerusalem has been in the hands of alien nations ever since. Even the crusades did not restore it to the Jews. Its change from Turkish rule to British sovereignty is a most favorable sign, but by no means gives the city back to the holy nation. It is still trodden (not trodden down, as usually misquoted) by a foreign power. This may be the last era of the nations, but it is not yet the end of "the times of the gentiles".

<sup>25</sup> The end of the eras of the nations will be accomplished by marvelous indications of divine intervention. This is brought before us under the sixth seal (Un. 6<sup>12-17</sup>) of the Unveiling. The sun becomes black as sackcloth of hair and the moon as blood, and the stars of heaven fall to the earth. It is the time of divine indignation and only those in Israel who are preserved by divine power will be able to stand. The hundred and forty-four thousand will be sealed and saved through this great affliction as well as the innumerable throng (Un. 7<sup>2-17</sup>). Portents which perplex and appal mankind will presage their deliverance.

<sup>29</sup> The fig tree pictures Israel politically. Like that one which the Lord cursed, the nation in this aspect withered away and has had no political status until recent years. When their right to a home in Palestine was acknowledged, and they became the subject of international diplomacy, it became necessary to recognize them as a nation. Zionism has kindled their na-

<sup>19</sup> should by no means perish. By your endurance you shall be acquiring your souls.

<sup>20</sup> Now whenever you may be perceiving Jerusalem surrounded by encampments, then know that her <sup>21</sup> desolation has drawn near. Then let those in Judea be fleeing into the mountains, and let those in her midst be coming out into the country, and let not those in the country be entering into her, seeing that these are the days of vengeance, to fulfill all that has been written.

<sup>23</sup> Yet woe to those who are pregnant, and to those suckling in those days; for there will be great necessity in the land and indignation on this people.

<sup>24</sup> And they shall be falling by the edge of the sword and shall be led into captivity into all nations. And Jerusalem shall be trodden by the nations until the eras of the nations
<sup>25</sup> may be fulfilled. And there shall be signs in the sun and the moon and the constellations, and on the earth, pressure of nations in perplexity, a resounding of the
<sup>26</sup> sea and agitation, a chilling of men from fear and apprehensiveness of that which is coming on the inhabited earth, for the powers of the heavens shall be shaken. And then they shall be viewing the Son of Mankind coming in a cloud with <sup>28</sup> much power and glory. Now at the beginning of these occurrences, unbend and lift up your heads, because your deliverance is drawing near."

<sup>29</sup> And He told them a parable, "Lo! the fig tree and all the trees—<sup>30</sup> whenever they should be already budding, you, observing for your-

tional aspirations and was a token that the branches of the fig tree were preparing to bud. The British declaration giving them a home in Palestine, and their efforts to reclaim and repopulate the land of their forefathers, are sure indications that Israel's winter is nearly past and her summer is near.

<sup>32</sup> It is evident that all these things did not take place in that generation. Nor did the Lord say that they would. He simply said that they should. He could not at that time reveal to them the failure of the Pentecostal economy. The present grace was an absolute secret. These must be left out of this prophecy. Leaving these out, all these things would have taken place in a single generation. Peter, at Pentecost, shows that repentance of the nation alone stood between them and the day of the Lord. Had the nation received his message, the times of refreshing would have come (Ac. 3<sup>19</sup>). This passage, instead of being an insoluble difficulty, is really the key to the proper apprehension of this whole prophecy. It shows that the whole is viewed as an immediate possibility, and does not include the Pentecostal or the present economy in its scope.

<sup>1</sup> In our Lord's day the popular names of the sacred festivals were not used with the clear exactitude of the Hebrew scriptures. There the Passover is used of the day before the festival of Unleavened Bread, not of the festival itself. The passover was not sacrificed in the festival (Lev. 23<sup>5-8</sup>). As one followed immediately after the other they seem to have been combined. It was practically necessary to put away leaven on the Passover, so it was included in the days of unleavened bread. Then, as the passover was sacrificed on this day, the whole festival, which lasted seven more days, was popularly known as the Passover.

<sup>3</sup> It is evident that Judas, of his own volition, would not have betrayed his Lord. It was only when actually obsessed by Satan that he does such a dastardly deed. This fact must greatly modify our judgment of him. It is a question whether any of His disciples, or even of His apostles, could have done otherwise when under the control of the Adversary.

31 selves, know that it is because warm weather is already near. Thus you also, whenever you may be perceiving these things occurring, know that the kingdom of God is near.

<sup>32</sup> Verily, I am saying to you that this generation may by no means be passing by till all should be occurring. Heaven and earth shall be passing by, yet My words shall by no means be passing by.

<sup>34</sup> Now take heed to yourselves, lest at some time your hearts should be burdened with crapulence and drunkenness and the worries of a livelihood, and that day may be standing by you unawares, as a trap, for it will intrude on all those sitting on the surface of the entire earth. Now be vigilant, beseeching on every occasion that you may be prevailing to escape all these things which are about to occur, and to be stationed in front of the Son of Mankind."

<sup>37</sup> Now He was teaching in the sanctuary by day, yet at night, coming out, He camped out in the mount called Olivet. And the entire people came to Him early in the sanctuary to hear Him.

22 Now the festival of unleavened bread, termed the Passover, drew near. And the chief priests and the scribes sought how they may be assassinating Him, for they feared the people. Yet Satan entered into Judas, called Iscariot, being of the number of the twelve.

<sup>4</sup> And, coming away, he confers with the chief priests and officers how he may betray Him to them. And they rejoiced and they agreed to give him silver. And he acquiesces, and sought an opportunity to betray Him to them minus the throng.

 WELL-SEASON OF-THE TO-BESIDE-GIVE

7-13 Compare Mt.26<sup>17-19</sup>Mk.14<sup>12-16</sup>.

7 "The day of unleavened bread" here refers to the day before the first day of the festival, the fourteenth of Nisan, on which the Passover lamb was sacrificed. According to the law the festival proper did not commence until the fifteenth of Nisan (Num. 28<sup>16,17</sup>).

8 According to Josephus, the passover was always eaten by a company of not less than ten, and often by twenty or more. It seems that, in this case, the apostles had made no preparations until the very day had come. But this Passover had been before Him for a long time, and He had put it into the heart of someone to provide the place, possibly without any clear knowledge of the object of the preparations.

10 Carrying water jars was "women's work", seldom done by a man. So that a man bearing a jar of water was an unmistakable sign. Possibly he was the only one in the whole city who demeaned himself thus.

15 Even to His apostles this last Passover must have seemed exceedingly solemn, but what shall we say of His feelings, knowing as He did that He, as the great Antitype, must suffer before the day is done? Well did He know that He was the true Lamb, and that His previous ministry was but the prelude and preparation for His sacrificial death. Just as the Passover lamb was taken on the tenth day of the month and kept till the fourteenth (Ex. 12<sup>3-6</sup>), so He had been chosen by John the baptist (Jn.1<sup>29</sup>) for the day which was now at hand. The lamb for the Passover must be perfect, without blemish (Ex. 12<sup>5</sup>). His holy life of peerless perfection, pure, though in constant contact with sin, was without parallel in the annals of mankind. All who sought to find a flaw in Him were confounded.

The Passover was about to be fulfilled by His decease. Hence, in the midst of this final celebration, He introduces a new memorial of His death. The Passover was kept not only in remembrance of the exodus out of Egypt, but also as a type of the greater deliverance which comes through His sacrifice. But the new observance is based on an accomplished work, on

7 Now the day of unleavened bread came, in which the passover
8 must be sacrificed. And He dispatches Peter and John, saying, "Go and make ready the passover for us, that we may be eating."
9 Yet they say to Him, "Where dost Thou want that we should be making ready to be eating the passover?" Now He said to them. "Lo!
10 on your entering into the city a man will meet with you, bearing a jar of water. Follow him into the house into which he is going.
11 And you will be declaring to the householder of the house, saying, 'The Teacher is saying to you, 'Where is My caravansary where I may be eating the passover with 12 My disciples?'" And that man will be showing you a large upper room with places spread. There 13 make ready." Now, coming away, they found it according as He had declared to them. And they make ready the passover.
14 And when the hour came, He leans back at table and the twelve
15 apostles with Him. And He said to them, "With yearning I yearn to eat this passover with you before 16 My suffering. For I am saying to you that I may under no circumstances be eating of it till it may be fulfilled in the kingdom of God."
17 And, receiving the cup, giving thanks, He said, "Take this and divide it among yourselves. For I
18 am saying to you that under no circumstances may I be drinking from now on of the product of the grapevine till the kingdom of God 19 may be coming." And, taking bread, giving thanks, He breaks and gives to them, saying, "Take. This is My body, given for your sakes. Be doing this for a recollection of suffering endured, on redemption attained. In its kingdom aspect it was given to remind them of His sufferings, during the interval of His absence. A special revelation of this observance was given to the apostle Paul, who passes it on to the Corinthians. Hence this account, as well as those in Matthew and Mark, are intended for the Circumcision only.

23 How sad it is to see the self-centered apostles, whose hearts should have been overflowing with sorrow and sympathy for Him as He confides to them the significance of the symbols and the nearness of His betrayal, forget His part and think only of themselves! They were concerned lest they should be thought guilty of disloyalty, yet worse still, at such a solemn time, when He was revealing the depths of His humiliation, each one seeks his own exaltation. The contrast is a most vivid illustration of how far the very best of men sink below the moral grandeur of the peerless One. He finds few rivals in His descent from highest glory to deepest shame! They were content to let Him tread that path alone.

24-27 Compare Mt.20<sup>25-28</sup> Mk.10<sup>42-45</sup>.

25 They deserved a stern rebuke, yet He gently chides them while explaining the true essence of greatness. His own example should have taught them better, for His superiority consisted in service. Hence He received the homage of men's hearts, not the adulation of their lips.

28 Compare Mt. 19<sup>28</sup>.

28 Trial leads to the throne. Not service or success, but endurance in failure fitted the twelve apostles to sit at the table of the great King and to be associated with Him in the government of Israel.

31-34 Compare Mt.26<sup>30-35</sup> Mk.14<sup>26-31</sup> Jn. 13<sup>36-38</sup>.

31 Both the betrayal and denial of the Lord were the work of Satan. Judas was actually possessed by the enemy, while Peter was the object of an outward attack. Wheat is sifted to get rid 20 Me." Similarly, the cup also, after the dinner, saying, "This cup is the new covenant in My blood, which is poured out for your sakes.

21 Moreover, lo! the hand of My betrayer is with Me on the table, 22 seeing that the Son of Mankind is indeed going, according as it has been specified. Moreover, woe to that man through whom He is being betrayed!"

23 And they begin to discuss among themselves consequently which of them it may be who is about to commit this thing. Now there came to be a rivalry also among themselves, which of them is seeming to be greater.

25 Now He said to them, "The kings of the nations are mastering them, and those in authority over them are called benefactors. Yet 26 you are not thus, but let the greater among you become as the younger, and he who is leading as he 27 who is serving. For who is greater, the one lying back at table or the one serving? Is it not the one lying back? Yet I am in the midst of you as the One Who is serving.

28 Now you are those who have continued with Me in My trials. And 29 I am covenanting a covenant with you according as My Father covenanted the kingdom to Me, that 30 you may be eating and drinking at My table in My kingdom. And you will be seated on thrones, judging the twelve tribes of Israel."

31 Now the Lord said, "Simon, Simon, lo! Satan claims you [men], 32 to sift as grain. Yet I besought, concerning you, that your faith may not be defaulting. And once 33 you turn back, establish your brethren." Now he said to Him, of the chaff. So Peter was rid of the self-conceit which hindered the exercise of the sterling qualities he possessed. He may not have been more selfish than the rest, for they all clamored for the highest place, but, as it was the Lord's will that he should be the chief of the twelve, it was necessary to humiliate him first. Satan's claim is limited by the Lord, for the adversary is allowed to do only so much evil as will eventuate in good. It is a sober truth that Satan had a hand in preparing Peter for his high place among the apostles. In the same way all his efforts will be turned to beneficial account.

<sup>35</sup> Isaiah's prophecy concerning Him indicates a great change in His relations to His fellow men. Hitherto He was anything but a criminal, and His disciples were welcomed and freely entertained. To intimate this enmity, He counsels them to buy swords. But, as usual, the apostles fail to catch the drift of His figure, and produce two swords, without evidently perceiving the irony of His words "It is enough." Two swords would be of little avail for twelve men, especially if they should attack the Roman empire! Later, when one of them uses his sword, the Lord corrects the false impression, and restores the severed ear of His enemy.

<sup>40</sup> The great conflict between good and evil is here seen in its most intense exercise. The Lord well knew the evil that lay ahead of Him, for He had been speaking of it again and again. Moreover, He was well aware of the immeasurable benefits of His death to God, and to all His creation. Does He therefore meet it with stony indifference and stoicism? Are the sufferings less real because they are known and come from God? Not at all! In the face of trial He urges His apostles to pray that they should not enter it. He Himself does not wish to drink the cup. The sufferings of Christ are not His will, but the will of His Father. Hitherto there had been perfect unani-

"Lord, I am ready to be going to jail also and to death with Thee!"

<sup>34</sup> Yet He said, "I am saying to you, Peter, the cock will under no circumstances be crowing today till you will be thrice abjuring acquaintance with Me."

<sup>35</sup> And He said to them, "When I dispatch you minus purse and beggar's bag and sandals, do you want anything?" Yet they say, <sup>36</sup> "Nothing." Now He said to them, "But now, he who has a purse let him pick it up, and likewise a beggar's bag; and he who has none, let him sell his cloak and buy a sword.

<sup>37</sup> For I am saying to you that this which has been written must be accomplished in Me:

'And He is reckoned with the lawless,' for that also which concerns Me is having a consummation." Now they say, "Lord, lo! here are two swords." Now He said to them, "It is enough."

<sup>39</sup> And, coming out, He is gone, as customary, into the mount of Olives. Now the disciples also fol-

<sup>40</sup> low Him. Now, coming to be at the place, He said to them, "Be praying not to be entering into

<sup>42</sup> and kneeling, He prayed, saying, "Father, if it is Thy intention, carry aside this cup from Me.

<sup>43</sup> However, not My will, but Thine, come to pass!" Now a messenger from heaven was seen by Him, <sup>44</sup> strengthening Him. And coming to be in a struggle, He prayed more earnestly, and His sweat became as if clots of blood descending on the earth.

<sup>45</sup> And rising from prayer, coming toward the disciples, He found

mity between the will of the Father and that of the Son, but in this extreme agony of soul, acquiescence gives place to submission. From the dawn of creation He had delighted in the will of God. He had gladly emptied Himself of the glories of the form divine and took the form of a slave, and entered into the humiliation of humanity, but when it came to the death of the cross His soul revolted and His will refused to follow. Our wills are instinctively in conflict with God's, so it seems almost impossible for us to realize the awful gulf revealed in the agonizing words, "not My will, but Thine, be done!"

41-46 Compare Mt.26<sup>39-46</sup>Mk.14<sup>35-42</sup>.

44 Compare Heb.5<sup>7,8</sup>.

47-48 Compare Mt.26<sup>47-50</sup> Mk.14<sup>43-46</sup> Jn.18<sup>3-9</sup>.

48 The gentle forbearance is the most crushing quality of this question. The Lord does not berate him for his act. He does not denounce him for his deed. But it hurts His heart that he should cover his crime with a show of affection.

49-51 Compare Mt.26<sup>51-54</sup> Mk.14<sup>47</sup> Jn.18<sup>10,11</sup>.

49 Doubtless the Lord allowed the apostles to harbor the mistaken impression that He was about to meet force with force so as to afford Him an opportunity to reveal His true attitude in a most striking and instructive manner. So far as we know, He had never healed His enemies. Blessing was reserved for the faithful and friends. So that, in this simple miracle of healing the ear of the high priest's slave, we can see a moral glory which is nowhere else displayed.

52-54 Compare Mt.26<sup>55-57</sup>Mk.14<sup>48-53</sup>.

52 Behind all the acts of men the Lord always saw the sovereignty of God. Since it was His Father's will that He should suffer on the Passover, He knew that His enemies would be helpless to take Him until the proper time. So He had calmly ignored the threatening attitude of the chiefs, and taught openly in the very temple itself. Now the day had come for Him to be offered up. Now, since it was God's time, it was their hour.

54 Compare Jn.18<sup>12-14</sup>.

said to them, "Why are you drowsing? Rise and be praying, lest you should be entering into trial."

47 At His still speaking, lo! a throng, and he who is termed Judas, one of the twelve, came before them, and he draws near Jesus to 48 kiss Him. Now Jesus said to him, "Judas, are you betraying the Son of Mankind with a kiss?"

49 Now those about Him, perceiving what will be, say to Him, "Lord, shall we be smiting with a 50 sword?" And some one of them smites a slave of the chief priest
51 and amputates his right ear. Now, answering, Jesus said, "Give leave till this—" And touching the ear, He heals him.

52 Now Jesus said to the chief priests and officers of the sanctuary and elders who came along after Him, "Do you come out with swords and cudgels as after a robber?
53 At My being daily with you in the sanctuary, you do not stretch out your hands for Me, but this is your hour and the jurisdiction of 54 darkness." Now, apprehending Him, they led Him. And they led Him into the chief priest's house.

Now Peter followed afar off.
55 Now at their kindling a fire in the middle of the court and being seated together, Peter sat in their 56 midst. Now, perceiving him, a certain maid, sitting toward the light and staring at him, said, "This one 57 also was with Him!" Yet he denies, saying, "I am not acquainted 58 with Him, woman!" And after a bit, a different one, perceiving him, averred, "You, too, are of them!" Yet Peter averred, "Man, 59 I am not!" And after an inter-

<sup>55</sup> That Peter really intended to be loyal to his Lord cannot be doubted, especially as he did not run away but followed as closely as he dared, keeping Him in sight. It demanded some courage to enter into the courtyard of the chief priest. But there was nothing in what he saw of the trial to give him confidence. If they maltreated his Master as they were doing what would they do to His disciples? What a vast difference between his conduct here and his magnificent courage in the Pentecostal era! Now he is afraid of a mere maid, then he defies the whole Sanhedrin. Yet this failure was the very foundation of his future firmness. From the instant that the Lord looked at Peter he was a changed man. Bitter self-reproach takes the place of boasting. Confidence in Christ replaces self-conceit. He has learned the lesson of true greatness, as he writes in his first epistle: "Be humbled, then, under the mighty hand of God, that He may be exalting you in due season" (1 Pet. 5<sup>6</sup>).

<sup>66</sup> The Sanhedrin was the highest religious court in Israel and should logically have been the one to pass upon His claims and confirm them. Had they been at all what they were supposed to be, He could easily have convinced them. But they were so utterly apostate that the Lord recognized the futility of having anything to do with them. They were not sincerely inquiring into His claims but were seeking evidence to convict Him. He well knew that they wanted Him to claim to be Christ that they might use it against Him. They wanted Him to say that He was the Son of God that this might be evidence of blasphemy and lead to His death. This is why He says "You are saying that I am!" If He did not claim it they would have no case against Him. And even thus, though He refused to speak the words, they catch at His retort. What a travesty of righteousness! What a mockery of religion is this highest and holiest of Jewish tribunals! Pilate had some sense of justice left, but they were utterly shameless. Their light had become darkness.

val of about one hour some other one stoutly insisted, saying, "Of a truth, this man also was with Him, for he is a Galilean also." Yet <sup>60</sup> Peter said, "Man, I am not aware what you are saying." And, instantly, at his still talking, a cock crows.

<sup>61</sup> And, being turned, the Lord looks at Peter, and Peter is reminded of the Lord's declaration, as He said to him, "Ere a cock crows today, you will be renouncing Me thrice." And Peter, coming outside, laments bitterly.

<sup>63</sup> And the men who are pressing <sup>64</sup> Jesus derided Him, lashing and covering Him about, they beat His face and they inquired of Him, saying, "Prophecy! Who is it that hits you?" And they said many different things against Him, blaspheming.

<sup>66</sup> And as it became day, the eldership of the people was gathered, chief priests as well as scribes, and they led Him away into their <sup>67</sup> Sanhedrin, saying, "If you are the Christ, tell us." Yet He said to them, "If I should tell you, you would under no circumstances be <sup>68</sup> believing. Yet if I also should be asking, under no circumstances would you be answering or releasing Me. Yet from now on the Son of Mankind shall be sitting at the right hand of the power of God." <sup>70</sup> Now they all say, "Are you, then, the Son of God?" Yet He averred to them, "You are saying that I am!" Now they said, "What further need have we of testimony? For we ourselves hear from His mouth!"

1-5. Compare Mt.27:1-14 Mk.15:2-5 Jn.18:28-38.

1 The trial now takes on a new character. It passes from the religious to the political phase. It would be quite useless to bring the Sanhedrin's findings before Pilate, because he was not to be drawn into their religious quarrels, so long as these did not affect the state. So they modify the indictment accordingly.

2 Compare Mt.22:17-21 Ac.17:7.

3 To us the Lord's reply to Pilate seems to be an admission of the charge that He was a king, and consequently, a rival of Cæsar. But the turn of thought lies in the emphasis. In John's account there is a fuller discussion, in which the Lord makes it plain to Pilate that, at that time, He was not pressing this claim. "You are [not I am] saying it," indicates that the accusation springs from the desire of His enemies to have it so, rather than any evidence they can furnish. So Pilate understood it, and bluntly told the Jews that, if anyone was at fault, they were, and not their Prisoner.

4 Compare Ac.3:14,15.

6 They hoped, by the mention of Galilee, to rouse the procurator's animosity, for it was well known that he and Herod, the tetrarch of Galilee, were enemies. But Pilate knew that Herod was well acquainted with the religious quarrels of the Jews and might possibly be able to find the real cause of their animosity. Hence he sends Him to the Idumean.

7 Compare 3:1,2.

8 Compare 9:6.

8 Herod, having beheaded John the baptist, became greatly interested in this new Prophet Who more than took John's place. He never had met Him. As the Lord was not of Galilee, but of Bethlehem, Judea, Herod had no jurisdiction over His case. His father, Herod the Great, had indeed held sway in Judea, and used his power to massacre the babes of Bethlehem, in order to make sure of His destruction. They were a bloody race, and with divine dignity Christ scorns to speak to the haughty Herod. Yet even he could find no ground for the accusations of His enemies.

11 Compare Isa.53:3.

12 Compare Ac.4:25-28.

13-17 Compare Mt.27:15-19 Mk.15:6-10 Jn.18:38,39 19:4 Ac.13:28.

2 Now they begin to accuse Him, saying, "We found this man perverting our nation and forbidding to be giving taxes to Cæsar, and saying himself to be Christ, the king."

3 Now Pilate inquires of Him, saying, "Are you the king of the Jews?" Now, answering him, He averred, "You are saying it!"

4 Now Pilate said to the chief priests and the throngs, "I am not finding a single fault in this man."

5 Yet they were insistent, saying that "He is exciting the people, teaching down the whole of Judea, beginning even from Galilee as far

6 as here." Now Pilate, hearing "Galilee", inquires if the man is

7 a Galilean. And realizing that He is of Herod's jurisdiction, he sends Him up to Herod, he also being in Jerusalem in these days.

8 Now Herod, perceiving Jesus, was overjoyed, for he was for a considerable time wanting to become acquainted with Him, because of hearing much concerning Him, and he expected to be perceiving some

9 sign occurring by Him. Now he inquired of Him with ample words,

10 yet He answers him nothing. Now the chief priests and the scribes had stood strenuously accusing 11 Him. Now, scorning and deriding Him, Herod, together with his troops, clothing Him in splendid attire, sends Him back to Pilate.

12 Now Herod and Pilate became friends with one another on that same day, for before this they were at enmity between themselves.

<sup>14</sup> Every civil charge against the Lord was found to be false. His long sojourn in Galilee and the miracles He had performed were reported to Herod, but he had not been informed of a single disturbance, though the Roman government was constantly on the alert to crush any insurrection in its beginning. Bar-Abbas had headed one that very year. The religious rulers were none too loyal to Rome, and any charge coming from them, unless well authenticated, was to be viewed with suspicion.

The utter hypocrisy of the whole proceeding comes to a climax in their request for the release of Bar-Abbas. He was actually guilty of the charge brought against the Lord, with the added distinction of having committed murder (while the Lord had roused the dead), yet they wanted him released! But the Lord, Who was not guilty, must be crucified! We cannot help seeing in these two an illustration of the wonderful salvation which springs from the murder of the Just One. He suffered, the Just One for the unjust, that He might bring them to God. If Christ had been released Bar-Abbas would have been executed, as he deserved. He is a type of the mass of unbelievers, who are saved without faith, at the consummation.

<sup>22</sup> The act of Pilate in crucifying Christ is as nothing compared with the guilt of the religious leaders of the Jews. They had the oracles of God which foretold the coming of the Blessed One. Pilate may never have even heard of the Messiah. They had the light of a holy and just law. Yet the Roman governor, with little more than an instinctive sense of justice (for no statute was involved) was far more righteous. Three times he bears record that he cannot find a single fault worthy of death. His real weakness lay in the form of government. Pilate's office, to some extent, depended on his pandering to the populace. They were always ready to accuse their governors of disloyalty to Cæsar if they displeased them.

<sup>13</sup> Now Pilate, calling together the chief priests and the chiefs and the people, said to them, "You bring me this man, as one who is turning away the people, and lo! I, examining him before you, found in this man not a single fault of which you are accusing him. Nay, neither Herod, for he sends him back to us, and lo! nothing deserving of death is committed by him. Then, disciplining him, I will be releasing him."

<sup>17</sup> Now of necessity he had to release one for them at the festival. <sup>18</sup> Yet all as one multitude cried out, saying, "Away with this one! Yet <sup>19</sup> release Bar-Abbas for us"—who was cast into jail because of a certain insurrection and murder occurring in the city. Now Pilate, willing to release Jesus, again <sup>20</sup> shouts to them. Yet they retorted, saying, "Crucify! Crucify him!"

<sup>22</sup> Now the third time he said to them, "For what evil does this man? I found not a single cause of death in him. Disciplining him, then, I will be releasing him."

<sup>23</sup> Yet they importuned with loud voices, requesting that He be crucified. And their voices and the chief <sup>24</sup> priests' prevailed. Now Pilate adjudges that it occur as they request. <sup>25</sup> Now he releases him whom they requested, who had been cast into jail because of insurrection and murder, yet he gives Jesus up to their will.

<sup>26</sup> And as they led Him away, getting hold of a certain Simon, a Cyrenian, coming from the field, they place the cross on him to carry it

26 Tradition has sought to surround the cross with a false glamour by making it cross-shaped, instead of a single upright stake. The word "cross" itself has so embedded itself in the hearts of the saints that it would seem cruel to tear it out. Yet those who are spiritual will recognize the great truth that the crucifixion was designed to sound the depths of shame and ignominy, and any attempt to embellish it only detracts from its true moral glory.

28 In the midst of His sufferings He did not forget the fate of that unhappy people, who were sowing the seed of countless sorrows when they crucified their Messiah. It is probable that most of the women and children then alive died of violence in the Jewish wars and the siege of Jerusalem.

30 Compare Isa.21<sup>9</sup>Hos.10<sup>8</sup>Un.6<sup>16</sup>.

32 Compare Isa. 53<sup>12</sup>.

32 These two malefactors must not be confused with the two robbers who were crucified later.

33 There is no good reason for using the Latin equivalent "Calvary". The Greek is the usual word for "skull", from which we derive cranium. It was doubtless so called from a resemblance to the human skull.

34 Though some important manuscripts omit this, the first recorded saying of our Lord on the cross, there is no reasonable doubt that it is genuine. When we consider how improbable it is that any man could show such compassion or even invent such a gracious thought, we are compelled to admit its inspiration. Its answer is found in the renewed proclamation of pardon or forgiveness after His ascension by the apostles He had chosen. This is the sin against the Son of Man-kind, which was forgiven. The sin against the holy spirit, the rejection of the apostles' ministry, could not be forgiven for the eon. Hence the nation was thrust aside, as they are today.

35-37 Compare Ps. 22<sup>6-8</sup>.

39 Only in Luke's account do we read of these two malefactors. Matthew and Mark speak of two others who were crucified later, who were robbers.

27 behind Jesus. Now a vast multitude of the people followed Him, and women who grieved and wailed 28 over Him. Now, being turned toward them, Jesus said, "Daughters of Jerusalem! Be not lamenting over Me! However, be lamenting over yourselves and over your 29 children, seeing that, lo! the days are coming in which they will be declaring, 'Happy are the sterile, and the wombs which bear not, and the breasts which nurture not!'
30 Then they will be beginning to say to the mountains, 'Fall on us!' and 31 to the hills, 'Cover us!' seeing that, if they are doing this in the wet wood, what may be occurring in the withered?"

32 Now two others also, malefactors, were led to be despatched together
33 with Him. And when they came away to the place called a "skull", there they crucify Him, and the malefactors, one, indeed, at the right, yet the other at the left.

34 Now Jesus said, "Father, forgive them, for they are not aware what they are doing." Now, dividing His garments, they cast the lot.
35 And the people stood, beholding. Now the chiefs also with them scouted, saying, "Other he saves! Let him save himself, if this is the Christ, the Chosen of God!"

36 Yet the soldiers also deride Him, approaching, offering Him
37 vinegar, and saying, "If you are the king of the Jews, save yourself!" Now there was an inscription, also, written over Him, in Greek and Roman and Hebrew letters,

"THIS IS THE KING OF THE JEWS."

47-49 Compare Mt.27<sup>54-56</sup>Mk.15<sup>39-41</sup>.

There were no "thieves", unless the malefactors were guilty of this crime. The penitent malefactor did not speak against the Lord at first, as is usually supposed. He begins by rebuking his companion, and acknowledging the justice of his fate, and then justifies the Sufferer at his side. He reveals his faith in Christ by his appeal to be remembered in the kingdom.

42 Compare Ps. 106<sup>4-8</sup>.

43 As this verse is the center of so much controversy it has been deemed best to render it as literally as possible, though the English result is somewhat stilted.

43 Paradise is the Persian word for park. It is used in the Septuagint of the garden of Eden, and elsewhere of the future renewed earth in the kingdom. The Lord will not come into His kingdom until after the great judgments which commence the Lord's day (Un.11<sup>15</sup>). The Lord assured the malefactor that his request will be granted, and that his present sufferings shall be exchanged for the delights of that day.

44-46 Compare Mt.27<sup>45-53</sup>Mk.15<sup>33-38</sup>.

44 The physical darkness was but a sign of the spiritual gloom which enveloped the great Sacrifice due to His abandonment by God when He became the sin offering. Not only were His enemies against Him, but His friends forsook Him, and, most dreadful and inexplicable of all, His Father turned from Him, seeing that He occupied the place of the curse and bore the sins of the world.

45 The rending of the curtain of the temple signified that the way into God's presence was now open. Hitherto God had hid behind His flesh, now He was revealed through it.

46 The spirit of the Lord returned to God (Ecc. 12<sup>7</sup>), His soul went to the unseen (Ac. 2<sup>27</sup>), but His body was not returned to the soil (Gen. 3<sup>19</sup>). His resurrection consisted in the return of His spirit to the body, and the consequent return of the consciousness, or soul.

50-54 Compare Mt.27<sup>57-60</sup> Mk.15<sup>42-46</sup> Jn. 19<sup>38-42</sup>.

50-53 Thus the words of Isaiah were fulfilled. He should have been buried

39 Now one of the hanged malefactors blasphemed Him, saying, "Are not you the Christ? Save yourself and us!" Yet, answering, the other one, rebuking him, averred, "Yet you are not fearing God, seeing that you are in the same judgment! And we, indeed, justly, for we are getting back the deserts of what we commit, yet this One commits nothing amiss." And he said to Jesus, "Be reminded of me, Lord, whenever Thou mayest be coming in Thy kingdom."

43 And Jesus said to him, "Verily to you I am saying today, with Me you shall be in the paradise."

44 And it was already about the sixth hour [about noon] and darkness came over the whole land till the ninth hour [about 3 p. m.], at the defaulting of the sun. Now the curtain of the temple is rent in the middle. And shouting with a loud voice, Jesus said, "Father, into Thy hands I am committing My spirit." Now, saying this, He expires.

47 Now the centurion, perceiving what occurs, glorified God, saying that "Really, this Man was just!"

48 And all the throngs which came along together to behold this, beholding the occurrences, returned beating their chests. Now all those known to Him, and the women who follow with Him from Galilee, stood afar off, seeing these things.

50 And lo! a man named Joseph, from Arimathea, a city of the Jews, belonging to the council, and a good man and just (he has not concurred in their counsel and what they had committed), and who also himself anticipated the kingdom in the place appointed for criminals, but His work was done. His shame was past, so He is entombed with the rich (Isa.53<sup>9</sup>).

<sup>1</sup> The resurrection did not occur on Sunday, or "the first day of the week", but on the first one of the seven sabbaths which led from Firstfruits to Pentecost. The notable phrase "one of the sabbaths" is always found in the interval between Passover and Pentecost, never at any other time of the year. It may refer to any sabbath of the seven. It is usually used of the resurrection day (Mt. 28<sup>1</sup>; Mk. 16<sup>1-2</sup>; Jn. 20<sup>1-19</sup>), which would be during the days of unleavened bread, but also of a sabbath after this (Ac. 20<sup>6,7</sup>), any time up to Pentecost (1 Co. 16<sup>2,3</sup>). Scholars are divided as to the reason for the rendering "first day of the week". It was usual to say that "one" is sometimes used for first, and that "sabbaths" sometimes means week, but the latest attempt to justify the accepted rendering is that "one of the sabbaths" is equivalent to "the first day after the sabbath". As the day after the sabbath was commonly called the "morrow of the sabbath" (Lev. 23<sup>15</sup>, LXX), this seems far fetched. Even if we take "one" to mean first in this case, the sense is not changed, for the resurrection actually was on the first of a series of sabbaths, as we read in Mark (16<sup>9</sup>). But in no case was sabbaths ever used for "week". That is always represented by hebdomad, or seven. The only exception would be when a number of sabbaths measure the same space of time as so many hebdomads. As the expression "first day of the week" can be so readily expressed in Greek there are grave grounds for refusing to use these words as the equivalent of "one of the sabbaths".

<sup>10</sup> Compare 8<sup>2,3</sup>.

<sup>52</sup> of God—this man, approaching Pilate, requests the body of Jesus.

<sup>53</sup> And, taking it down, he folds it in a linen wrapper, and he places Him in a rock-hewn tomb, where no one was lying as yet.

<sup>54</sup> And it was the day of preparation, and a sabbath lighted up.

<sup>56</sup> Now, returning, they make ready spices and attars. And on the sabbath, indeed, they are quiet, according to the precept.

<sup>24</sup> Now in the early depths of one of the sabbaths, they and certain together with them, came to the tomb, bringing the spices which <sup>2</sup> they make ready. Now they found the stone has been rolled away from <sup>3</sup> the tomb. Now, entering also, they found not the body of the Lord Jesus.

<sup>4</sup> And it occurred, in their perplexity concerning this, lo! two men also stand by them in flashing <sup>5</sup> attire. Now, at their becoming affrighted and inclining their faces to the earth, they say to them, "Why are you seeking the living <sup>6</sup> with the dead? He is not here, but was roused. Be reminded how He speaks to you, being still in Galilee, <sup>7</sup> saying that 'The Son of Mankind must be given up into the hands of sinning men, and be crucified, and <sup>8</sup> rise the third day'." And they are reminded of His declarations.

<sup>9</sup> And, returning from the tomb, they report all these things to the <sup>10</sup> eleven and to all the rest. Now

12 Compare Jn. 20:2-10.

12 Peter had good cause to remember the Lord's first announcement of His death and resurrection, for he had objected to it, and had been severely rebuked (Mt. 16:21-23). The Lord had actually called him satan, because he wanted the kingdom to come without suffering. It is usual to suppose that all evil is of the Adversary, but the crucifixion, the climax of all evil, was by the specific counsel and foreknowledge of God (Ac. 2:23).

13-17 Compare Mk. 16:12, 13.

14 Compare Mal. 3:16.

15 In resurrection, before His ascension, the Lord was present for forty days, manifesting Himself to His disciples at will. He was not invested with the supernal glory in which Paul saw Him after His ascension. The forty days give us a sample of the terrestrial bodies of Israel's saints, the vision of Paul revealed the body glorious which will be the portion of those who partake of His celestial glory. It is too bright for earth. It was dimmed to suit the sight of His disciples. But it had powers far beyond the present human body. He could change its form, vanish or appear at will, and move without hindrance through any material obstacle. It does not take much faith to perceive the possibility of such a body. Even in its present imperfect approximations to physical truth, science could formulate a theory to explain it. The properties of matter change greatly according to the latent powers they contain. Thus water is solid ice when cold, fluid water when warm, and gaseous, invisible steam when hot. So a human body, with sufficient vital force, might change its own constitution and actually become invisible or luminous.

16 Compare 24:31 Jn. 20:14-21:4.

16 The crucifixion of Christ must have been known to almost all in Jerusalem. As it was the Passover, several million people were there, and through them it would spread rapidly through the land.

21 Compare 23:Ac. 16.

21 The resurrection, when plainly foretold, was always to occur on the third day. The tomb is empty and the messengers declare Him to be alive, yet there were the Magdalene Mary and Joanna and Mary of James and the rest together with them, who told these things to the apostles. And these declarations appear in their sight as if nonsense, and they believed them not.

12 Yet Peter, rising, ran to the tomb, and stooping over, is observing the swathing only. And he came away marveling to himself at what has occurred.

13 And lo! two of them in the same day were going into a village sixty stadia [6.89 miles] distant from Jerusalem, which is named Emma-

14 us. And they conversed with one another concerning all of these things which have befallen. And it occurred, in their conversation and discussion, Jesus Himself also, drawing near, went together with them. Yet their eyes were held so as not to recognize Him.

17 Now He said to them, "What words are these which you are bandying one with another while walking?" And they stood with a sad countenance.

18 Now answering, the one named Cleopas said to Him, "Are you sojourning alone in Jerusalem, and did you not know what is occurring in her in these days?"

19 And He said to them, "What?" Now they say to Him, "That which concerns Jesus the Nazarean, a Man Who came to be a Prophet powerful in work and in word, in front of God and the entire people, so that both our chief priests and chiefs betray Him to the judgment of death, and they crucify Him.

21 Yet we expected that He is the One
