The dimensions of the present grace are not constricted as with Israel. It reaches back to a time prior to the entrance of sin and forward to its exit. It includes not only all mankind who believe in the present economy, but is intended to affect the heavens as well. It takes men far below the plane of privilege on which Israel dwelt, with no claims whatever on God's mercy, and seats them far above the highest in heaven. May He help us to learn something of this grace! This knowledge leads us into the realm of the unknowable, for it reveals to us the transcendent love of Christ which we will never be able to fathom fully and which will always yield new delights.

As to time, it reverts to a period prior to the disruption of the first of Genesis (1<sup>4</sup>Gen.1<sup>2</sup>) and leads to the exaltation of Christ, not only in the coming eon (1<sup>21</sup>), but in the eon of the eons, too (2<sup>7</sup>3<sup>21</sup>), which is the economy of the fullness of the eras (1<sup>10</sup>).

Being addressed to those who believe in Christ Jesus, in contrast to those of the Circumcision whose blessings, on the earth, are postponed until His return in glory, this letter was intended only for those who had received Paul's previous ministries and were expecting to be with Him before His coming to the earth (1<sup>12</sup>).

The omission of "in Ephesus" (1<sup>1</sup>), the lack of the slightest local allusion, and the very general character of the epistle, all tend to show that it is the charter of the church of this economy, a treatise on present truth—the touchstone and standard by which all truth for today must be tested.

The letter proper is an elaboration of the definition of the present secret economy (3<sup>6</sup>) "that, in spirit, the nations are to be joint-enjoyers, and a joint-body, and joint-partakers of the promise in Christ Jesus" through the evangel of which Paul became the dispenser.

The joint allotment is distinctly stated in 1<sup>13-14</sup>. It is expanded in 1<sup>3-18</sup>, and enforced in 6<sup>10-20</sup>.

The joint participation is seen in creating the Circumcision and the Uncircumcision into one new humanity (2<sup>15</sup>). It is fully discussed in 2<sup>11-22</sup>, and is applied to our department in 4<sup>17-5<sup>20</sup></sup>.

A summary of the new revelation is given in 3<sup>1-13</sup>, which is reviewed as to its results in 4<sup>7-16</sup>.

The heart of the epistle is filled with two petitions, one to the Father, and one to the saints to preserve the spiritual unity which is founded on the transcendent truths and fathomless favor and limitless love which are revealed in this lovely letter.

<sup>1</sup> The title "Christ Jesus" is the token of His exaltation; "Jesus Christ" refers us to His humiliation. "Christ Jesus" is used by Paul, especially in his later ministries.

The words "in Ephesus" seem to have been added after the significance of "Christ Jesus" had been lost. The epistle is confined to those who, in contrast with the Circumcision, base their blessings on His present heavenly exaltation, rather than on His future glorious manifestation to the earth for the blessing of Israel and the other nations.

THE JOINT ALLOTMENT —IN HEAVEN

BLESSING

<sup>4</sup> "Disruption" is demanded by its elements (down-casting) as well as its usage, rather than "foundation", which represents another Greek word. The disruption suggests the sin of celestial beings and the cataclysm of Gen.12.

<sup>4</sup> Not, as the English words suggest, that we may be in the future, but "to be" at present.

<sup>5</sup> Sonship involves privileges and dignities not granted to children (Ga. 4:1-7). The "new" birth has no place in Paul's writings, for he enters the new creation (2Co.5:17).

<sup>10</sup> The heading up of the universe in Christ is the so-called "mystery" or secret of Christ referred to in 3:4-5 (see 1Pe.3:22). It must not be confounded with the secret economy (3<sup>9</sup>) which is in force at present. The two are in accord, but distinct. Christ's headship over the earth had been previously revealed. His heavenly headship was revealed to Peter. The present economy was an absolute secret made known to Paul only.

<sup>12</sup> The "perfect" or complete form of the verb marks a state rather than an action. The Circumcision looked for signs and did not expect Messiah until after the great affliction. Those under Paul's ministry were expecting Him at any time. Hence they were in a state of prior expectancy. To such as these this letter was written. To others the epistle to the Hebrews is addressed.

PAUL, an apostle of Christ Jesus through the will of God, to all the saints who are, and believe in, Christ Jesus:

<sup>2</sup> Grace to you and peace, from God, our Father, and the Lord Jesus Christ.

<sup>3</sup> BLESSED be the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, Who blesses us with every spiritual blessing among the celestials, in <sup>4</sup> Christ, according as He chooses us in Him before the disruption of the world, we to be holy and flawless in His sight, in love designating us beforehand for the place of a son for Him through Christ Jesus; in accord with the delight of
<sup>7</sup> Beloved: in Whom we are having the deliverance through His blood, the forgiveness of offenses in accord <sup>8</sup> with the riches of His grace, which He lavishes on us in all wisdom and <sup>9</sup> prudence, making known to us the secret of His will (in accord with His delight, which He purposed in <sup>10</sup> Him) to have an administration of the complement of the eras, to head up the universe in the Christ—in the heavens as well as on the
<sup>11</sup> earth—in Him in Whom our lot is cast also, being designated beforehand according to the purpose of the One Who is operating the universe in accord with the counsel of <sup>12</sup> His will, that we should be for the laud of His glory, who are in a state of prior expectancy in the Christ.

The argument is as follows: Paul and his associates of the Circumcision received the celestial, spiritual blessings which have been detailed. The earnest of their allotment in Christ was the holy spirit which was a pledge of its deliverance. As the believers among the nations received the same spirit when they believed, it is a seal to them that they too<sup>13</sup> will enjoy the celestial, spiritual favors which are lavished upon those of the Circumcision who believe in Christ Jesus during His rejection by the nation of Israel.

Note carefully the pronouns us <sup>3 4 5 6 8 9</sup> and we <sup>7 12</sup> and our <sup>14</sup>, and the contrastive you <sup>13 15 16 18</sup> and your <sup>13</sup>.

This letter was probably sent to Ephesus where Paul had taught for two years (Ac.19<sup>10</sup>) and where he had not shunned to declare the whole counsel of God (Ac.20<sup>27</sup>). His prayer for "a spirit of revelation" makes it evident that this epistle deals with a secret (<sup>39</sup>) of God's purpose (<sup>31</sup>) quite distinct from His counsels which had been revealed before.

THE BODY—IN CHRIST

THE MEMBERS

<sup>23</sup> The sovereignty of the earth is given to the nation of Israel, according to the prophets. The sovereignty of the heavens is the portion of the ecclesia which is His body. Between the two the entire universe is brought under the administration of Christ. Thus His body is the plerōma, or complement, which fills up the lack which earth's deliverance would still leave in the celestial realms. Its function is to fulfill God's purpose for the entire universe, only part of which He is able to accomplish through His people Israel.

of your salvation—in Whom, when believing also, you are sealed with <sup>14</sup> the holy spirit of promise (which is an earnest of the enjoyment of our allotment, until the deliverance of that which has been procured) for the laud of His glory!

<sup>15</sup> Therefore, I also, when hearing of the faith which relates to you in the Lord Jesus, and that for all the <sup>16</sup> saints, do not cease giving thanks for you, making mention in my <sup>17</sup> prayers that the God of our Lord Jesus Christ, the Father glorious, may be giving you a spirit of wisdom and revelation in its realization, <sup>18</sup> the eyes of your heart having been enlightened, for you to perceive what is the prospect of its call, and what the glorious riches of the enjoyment of its allotment among the <sup>19</sup> saints, and what the transcendent greatness of its power for us who are believing, in accord with the operation of His mighty strength, <sup>20</sup> which has operated in the Christ when rousing Him from among the dead and seating Him at His right <sup>21</sup> hand among the celestials( up over every sovereignty and authority and power and dominion and every name that is named, not only in this eon, but also in that which is <sup>22</sup> future: and subjects all under His feet, and gives Him the head- <sup>23</sup> ship over all to the ecclesia which is His body, the complement which is completing the entire universe.

<sup>1</sup> Compare the condition of the two classes with that of the individual believer in Ro.6<sup>2</sup>. Such as have "died to sin" "together with Christ", "are vivified together with Him", and "are reckoning themselves to be dead, indeed, to sin" (Ro.6<sup>8-11</sup>), so here the nations and some of the Jews, collectively, are dead to sins and offenses, and are roused conjointly and seated conjointly, in Christ.

<sup>5</sup> We have not only been saved by grace, but salvation also introduces us into the sphere of grace's operation. Salvation calls for further favors of being vivified, and roused, and seated in Christ together with an election out of Israel. We are not risen with Christ, for rise refers particularly to the body.

<sup>7</sup> The on-coming eons—themselves the scenes of the riches of God's grace—will be directed to God's favor lavished upon us as the supreme, transcendent achievement of His unassisted, unforced grace.

<sup>8</sup> Salvation, in its beginning, is of faith, in order to accord with grace (Ro.4<sup>16</sup>). As a state, or condition, it continues to preserve its gracious character. It is not of us; it is God's way of winning our favor. This is the force of the technical term "oblation", which was used of the corban, or approach offering (Lev.12<sup>2</sup>13<sup>1</sup>, etc., Mk.7<sup>11</sup>).

PARTICIPATION—BELIEVERS

THE NEW HUMANITY

<sup>11</sup> This section deals only with the place that believers among the nations occupied in flesh, as physically uncircumcised, in the era before this epistle was penned. It is a complete contrast to the place occupied by the nations, as set forth in Acts, not as presented in Paul's previous epistles. Physically only may it be said that they had been apart from Christ, aliens, having no expectation, without God. Trophimus, the Ephesian, would understand this, for when he was in Jerusalem the mere rumor that he had approached as near to the reputed dwelling place of God as a Jew caused the whole city to rise up against Paul who, they supposed, had brought him into the sanctuary. What Paul was accused of doing then, physically, he does now, in spirit, and far more, for we have free access to the Father's presence.

<sup>2</sup> offenses and sins—in which you once walk, in accord with the eon of this world, in accord with the chief of the aerial jurisdiction, the spirit now operating in the sons
<sup>3</sup> of Stubbornness (among whom we also all conducted ourselves once, in the lusts of our flesh, doing the behests of the flesh and of the comprehension, and were, by nature, children of Indignation, even as the rest), yet God, being rich in mercy, because of His vast love
<sup>5</sup> with which He loves us (we also being dead to the offenses and the lusts), vivifies us together in Christ (you have been saved for <sup>6</sup> grace) and rouses us together and seats us together among the celestials, in Christ Jesus, in order that, in the on-coming eons, He should be displaying the transcendent riches of His grace in His kindness to us <sup>8</sup> in Christ Jesus. For you have been saved through faith for grace, and <sup>9</sup> this is naught of yours: it is God's oblation, not of works, lest any one <sup>10</sup> should be boasting. For we are His achievement, being created in Christ Jesus for good works, which God makes ready beforehand in order that we should be walking in them.

<sup>11</sup> Wherefore, be remembering that once you, the nations in flesh—who are being termed "Uncircumcision" by that being termed "Circumcision", in flesh, made by <sup>12</sup> hands—that in that era you were apart from Christ, being alienated from the citizenship of Israel, and guests of the promise covenants, having no expectation, and without God in the world.

14 The central wall of the barrier was the so-called "soreg", a stone wall, for a partition, with inscriptions which forbade any foreigner to go in under pain of death. One of these was recently unearthed with the following inscription:

No alien is to enter within the balustrade and embankment about the sacred place. Whoever is caught will be responsible for his death, which will ensue.

15 The decrees issued from Jerusalem by the apostles (Ac. 15<sup>20</sup> 16<sup>4</sup>).

15 The enmity in His flesh is the national or race hatred between Jew and Gentile. In His flesh He confirmed the promises which gave primacy to the Jew. This was figured by the barrier which shut the aliens out of the sanctuary.

15 The new humanity is quite a distinct matter from the one body. It can be put on (4<sup>24,25</sup>) and is in contrast with the old humanity (4<sup>22</sup>).

15 Here we have our relation to the saints of other economies defined. All saints, whatever their peculiar position, have three things in common. They all are under God's government; all belong to His family; all are His dwelling place. These do not define the blessings which are our special privileges, but those which we share with the saints of every other administration.

SUMMARY

1 Contrast Paul as a prisoner of Christ Jesus, summing up the doctrines of the secret economy with Paul the prisoner of the Lord (4<sup>1</sup>), inculcating the deportment which adorns the doctrine.

1 Paul insists that he is the one through whom God's revelation to the nations is given. It can be found nowhere but in his writings.

13 Yet now, in Christ Jesus, you, who once were far off, are become 14 near by the blood of Christ. For He is our Peace, Who makes both one, and razes the central wall of 15 the barrier (the enmity in His flesh), abrogating the law of precepts in the decrees, that He should be creating the two, in Himself, into one new humanity, making 16 peace; and should be reconciling both to God in one body, through the cross, killing the enmity in it.
17 And coming, He preaches the evangel of peace to you, those afar, and 18 peace to those near, seeing that, through Him, we both have had the access, in one spirit, to the Father.

19 Consequently, then, you are no longer guests and sojourners, but are fellow-citizens of the saints, and members of God's family,
20 being built on the foundation of the apostles and prophets, the capstone of its corner being Christ
21 Jesus, in Whom the entire building, being connected together, is growing into a holy temple in the Lord:
22 in Whom you, also, are being built together for God's dwelling place, in spirit.

3 On this behalf, I Paul, the prisoner of Christ Jesus for you,
2 the nations—since you surely hear of the stewardship of God's grace
3 which is given to me for you, seeing that the secret is made known to me by revelation (according as I

Summary of the Present Grace

The present secret economy, of which there is no hint in any scriptures before this epistle was penned, consists essentially of three separate items, all of which are marked by the prefix joint. The nations enjoyed much blessing before this (Ro. 15<sup>9-12, 16, 27</sup>), they were members of the body of Christ (1Co. 12<sup>13, 27</sup>), they were guests of the promises (2<sup>12</sup>), but they had all this subordinate to the Jews. They were not joint allottees, or a joint body or joint sharers in those promises. Now they have their heavenly allotment on equal terms, they are members of a body in which no member can claim precedence on account of physical descent, the promises in Christ Jesus are equally theirs with Paul and his Jewish companions. It is of the utmost importance to note that Paul only was given this stewardship and that it is worse than useless to seek for it outside of his writings. It was concealed in God, not in the scriptures. No trace of it can be found in the prophets or in the preceding books of the Greek scriptures.

The "untraceable riches of Christ" include celestial honors which were not revealed before. His earthly riches can be traced throughout the previous Hebrew and Greek scriptures. He was to be the King of Israel and the Ruler of the whole earth. But now we know of heavenly honors which were hid from us before. These are revealed at the same time that the heavenly destiny of the body of Christ is disclosed, for it is necessary that He should have the highest place in heaven before we could be associated with Him in its administration.

PETITIONING THE FATHER

This petition commences at 3<sup>1</sup> but was interrupted by a summary of the grace which is its motive. Now the prayer is resumed.

It is evident, and experience has confirmed the fact, that the greatest power is required, not for service, but to enable us to realize and appreciate the marvelous revelation of God's grace and love which is ours in Christ Jesus. May God exercise our hearts to this end!

hend my understanding in the secret of Christ, which is not made known to other generations of the sons of humanity as it was now revealed to His holy apostles and prophets): in spirit the nations are to be joint enjoyers of an allotment, and a joint body, and joint partakers of the promise in Christ Jesus, through the evangel of which I became the dispenser, in accord with the gratuity of God's grace, which is granted to me in accord with His powerful operation. To me, less than the least of all saints, was this grace granted: to preach the evangel of the untraceable riches of Christ to the nations, and to enlighten all as to the secret administration which has been concealed from the eons in God, Who creates the universe, that now, to the sovereignties and the authorities among the celestials, may be made known, through the ecclesia, the multifarious wisdom of God, in accord with the purpose of the eons, which He makes in Christ Jesus, our Lord; in Whom we have boldness and access with confidence, through His faith. Wherefore I am requesting you not to be despondent at my afflictions for you, which are your glory. —On this behalf am I bowing my knees to the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, after Whom all the kindreds in the heavens and on earth are being named, that He may be giving you the power, in accord with His glorious riches, to be staunch, through His spirit, in the 17 Every lack in the universe is filled by Christ. He is God's Plerōma, or Complement, Who supplies every deficiency. We, as members of His body, are His complement. To fit us for this place He wishes us to grasp the grace which this involves, which in turn will reveal the transcendent love of Christ. Thus we will be filled or completed—brought to that finished state which fits us for our future destiny.

20 It is most satisfying to know that God's ability is not limited to our requests, neither are His purposes for us confined to our meagre apprehension.

DEPORTMENT

BESEECHING THE SAINTS

1 How apt the titles used by our Lord and his servants! Here it is the prisoner in the Lord who deals with our walk.

3 We are not asked to make the spirit's unity, but not to break it. God's saints are one: let them be assiduous to recognize this by refraining from anything which mars the display of the spiritual unity made by God.

4 During the era covered by the book of Acts there were several bodies, and baptisms, and faiths, and expectations, but now that the secret economy is in operation there is no longer one faith for the Jew and another for the Gentile; but all have the same faith. Nothing should ever divide the saints of this economy.

THE PREVIOUS GRACE

7 The readjustment of the saints, changing them from a condition of tutelage and dependence on the blessings of Israel to mature manhood and independent celestial blessings, was effected by sending them specially endowed apostles and prophets, pastors and teachers. The service of the apostles and prophets is now superseded by the scriptures, such as this epistle, which were written to accomplish the same end. This is in contrast to the giving of the law, which brought them into captivity (Ps.68<sup>18</sup>). This grace sets aside all enslaving laws and decrees.

17 inner man, Christ to dwell in your hearts through faith, that you, having been rooted and grounded in love, should be strong to grasp, together with all the saints, what is its breadth and length and depth and height—to know the love of Christ as well, which transcends knowledge—that you may be completed for the entire complement of God.

20 Now to Him Who is able to do exceedingly above all that we are requesting or apprehending, according to the power which is operating in us, to Him be glory in the ecclesia and in Christ Jesus for all the generations of the eon of the eons! Amen!

4 I am entreating you then—I, the prisoner in the Lord—to walk worthily of the calling with which you were called, with all humility and meekness, with patience, bearing with one another in love, endeavoring to keep the unity of the spirit with the tie of peace: one body and one spirit, according as you were called also with one expectation in your calling; one Lord, one faith, one baptism, one God and Father of all, Who is over all, and through all, and in all.

7 Now to each one of us was given grace in accord with the measure of the gratuity of Christ. Wherefore He is saying,

"Ascending on high
He captures captivity
And gives gifts to mankind."

9 Now the "He ascended", what is it except that He first descended also into the parts of the earth below? He Who descends is the Same Who ascends also, up over all

Summary of Previous Grace

<sup>13</sup> Before the revelation of the secret administration by means of this epistle the saints among the nations were in a period of adolescence. This is fully set forth by the apostle in writing to the Corinthians (1Co.13<sup>10</sup>). The gifts then given were for the purpose of leading them on to maturity but were to be set aside when "perfection" came. Paul's prison epistles bring maturity (Phil.3<sup>15</sup>Col.1<sup>28</sup>4<sup>12</sup>). The shifting changes incident to the period of growth which characterized the era from Paul's call until his imprisonment, which brought the saints among the nations from a position like proselytes to Judaism to a place entirely independent of Israel, were all intended to prepare them for this final revelation in which they become Christ's complement.

We should not build upon all the doctrines of that transitional era, but only such as accord with the present grace. In Romans "to the Jew first" (Ro.2<sup>10</sup>) is now obsolete; in Corinthians the gift of prophecy and of languages (1Co.13<sup>8</sup>) have become inoperative.

<sup>16</sup> This is a notable comparison between the spiritual body of Christ and our physical bodies. Not only does the Head preside over the actions of the members of the body but only through it do the members receive sustenance and grow. Just as the nervous system unites the head to every individual member of the body, so each member of Christ's body is in touch with the Head and is dependent on Him for food and development.

NO PARTICIPATION WITH UNBELIEVERS

<sup>17</sup> Notwithstanding the "practical" trend of modern science, and the increasing knowledge of the physical universe, men do not comprehend anything. They are not aware of the source or object of things, being interested only in the present profit or pleasure which can be derived from them. Their inventions and investigations have not affected the happiness of the race: they are vain. Their ignorance of God leads them to seek satisfaction and pleasure in temporary expedients which lead to misery.

the heavens, that He should complete the universe. And He, indeed, it is Who gives the apostles, the prophets, the evangelists, the <sup>12</sup> pastors and teachers for the re-adjusting of the saints, with a view to the work of dispensing, for the upbuilding of the body of <sup>13</sup> Christ, until we should all attain to the unity of faith, and the realization of a son of God, to mature manhood, to the adult stature of <sup>14</sup> Christ's complement, that we should by no means still be minors, surging hither and thither and being carried about by every wind of teaching, by human caprice, by craftiness with a view to the systematizing of the deception. Now, being true, in love in all we should be growing into Him Who is the <sup>16</sup> Head—Christ—out of Whom the entire body, being articulated together and united through every assimilation of the supply, in accord with the proportionate operation of each single part, is making for the growth of the body, for the upbuilding of itself in love.

<sup>17</sup> This, then, I am saying and testifying in the Lord: You are by no means still to be walking according as the nations also are walking, in <sup>18</sup> the vanity of their mind, their comprehension being darkened, having been estranged from the life of God because of the ignorance which is in them, because of the callousness <sup>19</sup> of their hearts, who, being past feeling, greedily give themselves up with wantonness to all uncleanness as a vocation.

<sup>22</sup> In Christ there is a new humanity. The divisions which mar the present humanity are gone in Him and the conduct which disgraces mankind should also be "put off" like a worn-out, filthy garment. The new humanity is "put on" by acting as those who no longer belong to the race of Adam but acknowledge Christ as their Head. Let us then be renewed in the spirit of our minds. Every exhortation here given depends upon our previous apprehension of His grace. Previous standards of conduct are far too low and in an entirely different key.

<sup>25</sup> "Being indignant" may also be rendered "Be indignant" but the context is against this rendering. It certainly is not a command to be angry, for we are distinctly charged to forego anger in this very chapter (<sup>31</sup>Col.3<sup>8</sup>). The next statement is evidently a parallel to this. In one we have indignation, in the other vexation. In both we are exhorted not to carry what may be quite right and just to an extreme which will make them injurious and sinful. It may be paraphrased: "Do not let indignation degenerate into anger: do not cherish a grudge. Do not flare up: do not let your resentment smoulder."

<sup>28</sup> Restitution, single, double, fourfold or fivefold is the requirement of Sinai (Ex.22:1-5). Now the thief is to work that he may give to those in need.

<sup>32</sup> The key for conduct in the kingdom is righteousness: love is the true spring of all that pleases Him in this economy. The most powerful motive and perfect method to put this into practise is to charge our hearts with an overpowering apprehension of His grace toward us. This will not fail to influence our conduct toward others.

<sup>1</sup> God "walks in love"—He is Love. He is our Father. Just as pet children copy the actions of their parents, so we should reflect His love to all with whom we come in contact. God's glory should be the underlying motive of every act.

<sup>21</sup> Christ, since you surely hear Him and were taught by Him (according as the truth is in Jesus) to put off, as regards your previous behavior, the old humanity which is being corrupted in accord with <sup>23</sup> its seductive desires, yet to be rejuvenated in the spirit of your <sup>24</sup> mind, and to put on the new humanity, which, in accord with God, is being created in righteousness and benignity of the truth. Wherefore, putting off the false, let each be speaking the truth with his associate, seeing that we are members of one another.

<sup>28</sup> giving place to the slanderer. Let him that steals by no means still be stealing: yet rather let him be toiling, working with his hands at what is good, in order that he may have
<sup>29</sup> to share with one in need. Let no tainted word be issuing out of your mouth, but whatever is good for needful edification, that it may be giving grace to the hearers.

<sup>30</sup> And do not be sorrowing the holy spirit of God by which you are sealed for the day of deliverance. Let all bitterness and fury
<sup>31</sup> and anger and clamor and calumny be taken away from you with all
<sup>32</sup> malice, and become kind to one another, tenderly compassionate, dealing graciously among yourselves, according as God also, in Christ, deals graciously with you.

<sup>5</sup> Become, then, imitators of God, as beloved children, and be walking in love, according as Christ also loves you, and gives Himself up for us an offering and a sacrifice

<sup>2</sup> The sacrifice of Christ has many aspects. The opening chapters of Leviticus deal with these in detail. The sin and trespass offering seem to be entirely for man's benefit. But the first offering of all, and the most important, the ascending offering, called a "burnt" offering, seems to have been entirely for God; nothing in it was for man. So with Christ. The questions of human sin and transgression were secondary in His sacrifice. It was, first of all, His obedience to the will of God which gave His death its infinite value. His object was to please His Father. This is the true motive for service acceptable to our God.

<sup>3</sup> Here the spirit of God has laid a finger on the sore spots which all our advance in civilization has only served to accentuate. Physical excesses, sordid cupidity and questionable speech are but symptoms of the cankerous evil which pervades society in this day of boasted advance. As the literal Greek puts it, "more-having", or avarice, is more pronounced than ever, and does not need to hide its face, for it is disguised as a virtue. In the kingdom of God none of these will be able to take root.

<sup>8</sup> To behave as children of light is the complement of imitating Him as beloved children, for God is Light as well as Love. In nature light is indispensable for fruit: nothing will produce without it. The same is true in spiritual things. The most flourishing saint is the one who has the most light, who knows what his Lord's will is. The most strenuous endeavor to serve God will not meet His approval if it is out of line with His revealed purpose and plans. Let us rouse ourselves from our lethargy and the darkness which surrounds us and bask in the light of Christ.

<sup>3</sup> to God, for a fragrant odor. Now, all prostitution and uncleanness or greediness—let it not be named among you, according as is becoming in saints—and vileness and stupid speaking or jesting, which are not proper, but rather thanksgiving. For this you perceive, knowing that no paramour or unclean or greedy person, who is an idolater, has any allotment to enjoy in the kingdom of Christ and of God. Now let no one be seducing you with empty words, for because of these things God's indignation is coming on the sons of Stubbornness. Do not, then, become joint partakers with them, for you were once darkness, yet now you are light in the Lord.

Be walking as children of light <sup>9</sup> (for the fruit of the light is in all goodness and righteousness and truth), testing what is well pleasing to the Lord. And be not joint-participants in the unfruitful acts of darkness, but rather be exposing them, for it is a shame even to say what hidden occurrences are done <sup>13</sup> by them. Now all that which is being exposed by the light is made manifest, for everything which is being manifested is light. Wherefore He is saying,

"Rouse! O drowsy one,

And rise from among the dead

And Christ shall dawn upon you!"

<sup>15</sup> Then be observing accurately, brethren; how you are walking, not <sup>16</sup> as unwise, but as wise, reclaiming the era, seeing that the days are <sup>17</sup> wicked. Therefore do not become imprudent, but understand what <sup>18</sup> the will of the Lord is. And be not drunk with wine, in which is

<sup>18</sup> Excess of wine leads to drunkenness, which is not good, but an overflowing spirit is to be commended. It manifests itself in songs and thanksgiving and subjection.

<sup>19</sup> Spiritual songs suggests the need of conforming even our songs to the truth of this present time and singing with understanding as well as the lips. Most of the destructive errors of the day are based on or supported by popular hymns.

THE JOINT BODY—IN THE LORD

THE HEAD

<sup>21</sup> As is the case with every exhortation in the second division of the epistle, the deportment of husbands and wives is founded on the doctrine previously developed in the first division. A reference to the framework will show that it is based on the truth of the joint body. Wives are to be subject because the man is head of the woman as Christ is Head of the body. Husbands cannot be exhorted to love their wives on the ground that the ecclesia occupies this relation to Christ, for the faithful in Israel, who have no part in the blessings of this epistle, are figured as the wife or bride, not of Christ (an official title), but of the Lamb. Hence the argument of Eden is introduced showing that husband and wife become one flesh. Christ and the ecclesia are one body. Hence the husband is exhorted to love his wife as his own body, for it is thus that Christ loves the ecclesia. What limitless love is involved in the statement, "No one at any time hates his own flesh"! Men have hated their wives: Jehovah divorced His unfaithful wife (Jer.38-20). But Christ is so one with the members of His body that He cannot cast them off. Thus should a husband love his own wife, who has become one flesh with him. How exultantly precious is this close relationship to Him! What could be nearer? What could be dearer? Even evil, sinful men cannot hate their own bodies. So much the more Christ cannot but love us as He loves Himself! God grant that we may drink deeply of this delicious draught!

<sup>19</sup> spirit, speaking to yourselves in psalms and hymns and spiritual songs, singing and playing in <sup>20</sup> your hearts to the Lord, giving thanks to God the Father always for all things in the name of our <sup>21</sup> Lord, Jesus Christ, being subject to one another in the fear of Christ.

<sup>22</sup> Wives, be subject to your own husbands as to a master, seeing that the husband is head of the wife even as Christ is Head of the ecclesia, and He is the Saviour of the body.
<sup>24</sup> Nevertheless, as the ecclesia is subject to Christ, thus are the wives also to their husbands in everything.

<sup>25</sup> Husbands, be loving your wives according as Christ also loves the ecclesia, and gives Himself up for <sup>26</sup> it, in order that He should be hallowing it, cleansing it in the bath
<sup>27</sup> of the water (in a declaration), in order that He should be presenting to Himself a glorified ecclesia, not having spot or wrinkle or any such things, but that it may be holy and <sup>28</sup> flawless. Thus, husbands also ought to be loving their own wives as their own bodies. He who is loving <sup>29</sup> his own wife is loving himself. For no one at any time hates his own flesh, but is nourishing and cherishing it, according as Christ also the <sup>30</sup> ecclesia, seeing that we are mem-
<sup>31</sup> bers of His body. Corresponding to this a man will be leaving his father and mother and will be joined to his wife, and the two will be one flesh.

The Joint Body—In the Lord

<sup>32</sup> There are three secrets in Ephesians: the secret of Christ (<sup>19</sup>), the secret economy (<sup>39</sup>) and the secret of marriage, here referred to. The physical fact that the marriage union makes husband and wife a physical unit is used as one premise in the argument that husbands should love their wives as their own bodies. The secret of the evangel is also referred to (<sup>619</sup>). There is no such expression as "the bride of Christ" in scripture.

It is of principal importance that we distinguish the double relationship which we sustain to Christ and to the Lord. In Christ all physical distinctions vanish. There are no slaves and masters, even the sexes are not distinguished "in Christ" (Gal. 3<sup>28</sup>). But "in the Lord" these physical distinctions are recognized and made the basis of our conduct toward one another. Wives are subject, children are obedient, slaves are subservient "in the Lord".

The key to all correct conduct lies in the recognition of our heavenly Master. The true slave seeks to please Him; the master acknowledges Him in his behavior toward his slave. Children obey their parents "in the Lord", for such is His wish. Fathers train them "in the Lord", conforming to His gracious methods.

The slave is especially encouraged by the fact that he will receive his due from his heavenly Master even though he receives nothing from his earthly one.

WARFARE

<sup>10</sup> Israel's warfare is with flesh and blood on the earth. Ours is with wicked spirits in the celestial realms. We should always remember that those who oppose us are merely the intermediaries used by the spiritual forces and treat them accordingly. It is not our place to wrestle with blood and flesh but to look beyond the human instrument to the real adversary in the spirit world. Material weapons are worse than useless. Our attitude toward men should be one of purest conciliation, not strife (<sup>615</sup>).

<sup>32</sup> This secret is great: yet I am speaking as to Christ and as to the <sup>33</sup> ecclesia. Moreover, you also, individually, each be loving his own wife thus, as himself, yet that the wife may be fearing the husband.

<sup>2</sup> Be honoring your father and mother (which is the first precept <sup>3</sup> with a promise) that it may be becoming well with you, and you should be a long time on the earth.

<sup>4</sup> And fathers, do not be vexing your children, but be rearing them in the discipline and admonition of the Lord.

<sup>5</sup> Slaves, be obeying your masters as to flesh, with fear and trembling, in the singleness of your heart,

<sup>6</sup> as to Christ, not with eye slavery, as man pleasers, but as slaves of Christ, doing the will of God from

<sup>7</sup> the soul, slaving with good humor, as to the Lord and not to men, <sup>8</sup> having perceived that, whatever good each one may do, for this he will be requited by the Lord, whether slave or free.

<sup>9</sup> And masters, be doing the same toward them. Be lax in threatening, having perceived that their Master as well as yours is in the heavens, and there is no partiality with Him.

<sup>11</sup> mighty strength. Put on the panoply of God, to enable you to stand in spite of the stratagems of

The Joint Allotment in Heaven

<sup>14</sup> The spiritual armor here given covers the whole body and is for defense only. Truth will give us strength to withstand the attacks of error. Righteousness will preserve us from the wounds of wickedness. The evangel of peace, wherewith we go, will conciliate the human weapons used by the spirit powers which are directing human affairs.

<sup>16</sup> An ancient mode of warfare was to fasten fire to arrows which would not only wound but burn. It was especially used against elephants to cause them to stampede. When the adversary sends some burning dart in the direction of the believer it is his privilege to shield himself by means of the faith which this epistle affords. This will effectually stop the arrows and quench their fire.

<sup>17</sup> When all this has been done then we receive (not take) the helmet of salvation. And then we are entrusted with the sword of the spirit—a divine declaration. We have no offensive power at all except an explicit statement of God. The scriptures contain many statements of men, such as the assertions of Job's friends, which are false. Hence only the declarations which proceed out of the mouth of God constitute the spirit's sword.

THEIR PRAYER FOR PAUL

TYCHICUS' COMMISSION

<sup>21</sup> Tychicus means "Fortunate", and such he was, for no fortune could compare with the riches which this epistle was to him and to those to whom he brought it.

but with the sovereignties, with the authorities, with the world-mights of this darkness, with the spiritual forces of wickedness

<sup>13</sup> among the celestials. Therefore be taking up the panoply of God, that you may be enabled to withstand in the wicked day, and, having effected all, to stand.

<sup>14</sup> Stand, then, girded about your loins with truth, and putting on

<sup>17</sup> the wicked one. And receive the helmet of salvation and the sword of the spirit, which is a declaration of God.

<sup>18</sup> In every prayer and petition be praying on every occasion, in spirit, and be vigilant for it

<sup>19</sup> with all perseverance and petition concerning all saints, and for me, that expression may be granted to me, in the opening of my mouth with boldness, to make known the

<sup>20</sup> secret of the evangel, for which I am conducting an embassy in a chain, that in it I should be bold, as I must speak.

<sup>21</sup> Now that you also may become acquainted with my affairs, and what is engaging me, all will be made known to you by Tychicus, a brother beloved and a faithful ser-

<sup>22</sup> vant in the Lord, whom I send to you for this very thing, that you may know what concerns us, and he should be consoling your hearts.

PHILIPPIANS

The Philippian epistle is a divine commentary on the latter half of Ephesians, and, like it, is especially concerned with the deportment demanded by the transcendent doctrines developed in the first half of the Ephesian letter. This is the key to its contents. It does not deal with doctrines, but with deportment. This will illumine many a difficult passage in it and this has been allowed to color the wording of the version.

As shown in the literary framework, the epistle is a perfect, though complex reversion. Its controlling theme is Participation in the Evangel, not only by its public proclamation, but especially by a conduct consistent with its teachings.

Following the Introduction and preceding the Conclusion the Philippians' fellowship with Paul by contributions and in sufferings is detailed, interspersed with Paul's own experiences in preaching the evangel.

The main subject, the Living Expression of the Evangel, or, "Having on the Word of Life" (2:16), is illustrated by four examples: Christ and Paul, Timothy and Epaphroditus. Four exhortations are introduced in this division. The entreaty to imitate Christ opens it and Paul places himself before them as a model at its close. So, too, the service of Timothy is preceded by an exhortation and the sufferings of Epaphroditus are followed by an appeal.

These two themes, suffering and service, pervade the whole epistle, from the introduction, where Paul and Timothy style themselves slaves, rather than apostles, to the end where the grace of the Lord, or Master, rather than Christ, is invoked.

The humility of Christ is presented, in harmony with the transcendent truth of this economy. It did not begin with His birth or result only in His exaltation over the earth. It commenced in glory before His incarnation, which was but a step in His downward path of obedience to God's will. It led from the highest place in the universe to the lowest, under the curse of the cross. It will exalt Him to headship over all creation, which will bow to Him as its Master, for God, the Father's glory.

Salutation 4<sup>23</sup>

THE LIVING EXPRESSIONS OF THE EVANGEL

For Christ to become flesh meant humiliation. Paul's physical connections were his boast. They pledged to him all the privileges and advantages which belonged alone to the Jew. But all of these are flung away once he knows Christ after the spirit, and His heavenly exaltation.

1 This epistle was not written by Paul and Timothy in the character of apostles, but slaves. This is important, as it gives us a key to the character of the whole letter. The mention of the overseers, or supervisors, and servants leads to the same conclusion. The grace also is from the Lord. If we keep this in mind it will greatly simplify the understanding of difficult portions of the epistle.

THE PHILIPPIANS' CONTRIBUTION

A contribution, in its scriptural sense, is a sharing in common. The servant of God shares with the saints what he has received from God, and his hearers share with him the material wealth which they have obtained.

How refreshing it is to see the intimate interest of the Philippians in Paul's welfare and the mutual love which made their intercourse so delightful to read about after all these years! Here we have a picture of the ideal relations between the Lord's saints and those of His slaves who are seeking to defend the evangel. There is greater need now than in Paul's day. The evangel needs to be recovered before it can be confirmed or defended. God still uses such miserable means as an imprisoned apostle to make it known.

PAUL'S BONDS

12 When Paul was taken to Rome he was permitted to dwell by himself with a soldier who guarded him. He had liberty to speak to the chief Jews and he delivered the final kingdom message to them. And then he lived two whole years in a rented house and received all who came to him. He spoke with all boldness and no one forbade him (Ac.28<sup>16-21</sup>). These unusual privileges proved plainly, as the incidents on the voyage had already shown, that he was indeed a "prisoner of the Lord" (Eph. 4<sup>1</sup>). His bonds were "in Christ" and,

PAUL and Timothy, slaves of Christ Jesus, to all the saints in Christ Jesus who are in Philippi, together with the supervisors and servants:

2 Grace to you and peace, from God, our Father, and the Lord Jesus Christ.

3 I AM THANKING my God at every
4 remembrance of you, always, in every petition of mine for you all,
5 making the petition with joy, for your contribution to the evangel
6 from the first day until now, having this same confidence, that He Who undertakes a good work in you will be performing it until the 7 day of Jesus Christ: according as it is just for me to be thus disposed toward you all, because, having me in your heart, in my bonds as well as in the defense and confirmation of the evangel, you all are joint participants with me of 8 grace, for God is my Witness how I am longing for you all in the 9 compassions of Christ Jesus. And this I am praying, that your love may be superabounding still more and more in realization and all
10 sensibility, for you to be testing what things are of consequence, in order that you may be sincere and no stumbling block for the day
11 of Christ, having been filled with the fruit of righteousness which is through Jesus Christ, for the glory and laud of God.

12 Now I am intending you to know, brethren, that my affairs have rather come to be for the 13 progress of the evangel, so that my bonds in Christ become apparent in the whole pretorium and to all though they were designed to put a stop to the evangel, they aided its progress. Hitherto Paul had worked to support himself, now he was free to give all his time to the Lord's service. He evidently reached some in the very household of Cæsar (422).

16 Paul was located at Rome, at the very center of government, where his influence, even though he was a prisoner, especially among Cæsar's retinue, was doubtless used by God to control the opposition to the evangel. How like Him to station the defender of the faith in the very citadel of His enemies!

PAUL'S INDIFFERENCE TO DEATH

20 The historical record emphasizes the fact that Paul taught the things which concern our Lord Jesus Christ "with all boldness, unforbidden" (Ac. 28:31).

21 If Paul lived, his efforts would further the fame of Christ: if he died a martyr's death, even that would be gain for the cause of Christ, for the martyrs proved to be the seed of the church. Paul could not be thinking of his own gain in this connection.

23 A martyr's death would claim a martyr's reward, yet Paul lived at least two years at Rome, writing his letters from thence. Undoubtedly there has been more fruit from this work than from all of his previous service.

23 The solution of Paul's dilemma, life or death (neither of which he would choose because of his longing for another, much better condition) is the resurrection life with Christ. This "solution" might be referred to the dissolution of his body at death (2Tim.4<sup>6</sup>) if it were not set in contrast with death. The same term is used in Lu.12<sup>36</sup> of the breaking up of a wedding party. Words used in the physical sense are often used in a metaphysical sense in the epistles. We dissolve material things but solve spiritual problems.

14 the rest, and the majority of the brethren, having confidence in the Lord as to my bonds, are more exceedingly daring to speak the word
15 of God fearlessly. Some, indeed, are even proclaiming Christ because of envy and strife, yet some also because of delight, these, indeed, of 16 love, having perceived that I am located for the defense of the evangel, yet those are announcing 17 Christ out of faction, not purely, surmising to arouse affliction for my 18 bonds. What then?—Moreover, seeing that, by every method, whether in pretense or in truth, Christ is being announced, I am rejoicing in this also, and will be rejoicing nevertheless.

19 For I am aware that, for me, this will be eventuating in salvation through your petition and the supply of the spirit of Jesus
20 Christ, in accord with my premonition and expectation, that in naught shall I be put to shame, but with all boldness, as always, now also, Christ shall be magnified in my body, whether through life or 21 through death. For to me to be living is Christ, and to be dying
22 gain. Now if it is to be living in flesh, this to me means fruit from work, and I am not making known 23 what I shall be preferring. (Yet I am being pressed out of the two, having a yearning for the solution, even to be together with Christ, 24 for it, rather, is much better.) Yet to be staying in the flesh is more 25 necessary because of you. And, having this confidence, I am aware that I shall be remaining and shall be abiding with you all for your 26 progress and joy of faith, in order that your glorying may be superabounding in Christ Jesus in me

Participation in the Evangel

27 The citizenship or enfranchisement here referred to is in heaven (3<sup>20</sup>), not on earth.

THE PHILIPPIANS' SUFFERING

29 It is our privilege to enjoy the sufferings which come to us in seeking to do God's work, for they are not, as we are wont to think, a token of His displeasure, but a favor which is granted to the few who are faithful in the performance of His will.

PUTTING ON THE EVANGEL

This division takes up the body of the epistle, setting before us the four models, Christ, Timothy, Epaphroditus and Paul, mingled with exhortations to imitate their example.

EXHORTATION TO IMITATE CHRIST

1 Our conduct should reflect the unselfish humility of Christ, considering others and their honor rather than our own.

THE EXAMPLE OF CHRIST JESUS

6 Form denotes outward appearance, as is shown by Paul's use of it in the contrast, "having a form of devotion, yet denying its power" (2Ti.35). We have found it impossible to sustain the idea that it refers to intrinsic essence. Figure or fashion denotes the form prevailing at any time. Christ was the Image of God, the visible representation of the Deity. He appeared as God to the saints of old, as in Eden and on Sinai. This form was laid aside for that of a slave, at His incarnation.

Adam and his progeny seek to exalt themselves and will be humbled. But Christ, Who might easily assume the place of equality with God, found His delight in submission and humiliation.

The ending -mos of the word for pillaging denotes the act, not the object of pillage. When He was in the form of God He was given the same place as God by men (Gen.16<sup>11</sup>, 1322<sup>11</sup>, 12 32<sup>28,30</sup> Ex.3<sup>2,6</sup> Josh.5<sup>13,15</sup> Judges 6<sup>12,23</sup>). All of the divine titles, Elohim, Jehovah, Adonai, etc., were assumed by Him just as if He were God, because He is His Image.

7 Empties cannot refer to a partial relinquishment of His previous state, but a total change of form, in which none of God's glory was apparent to the physical sight.

through my presence with you again. Only be citizens worthy of the evangel of Christ, in order that, whether coming and making your acquaintance, or being absent, I should be hearing of your concerns, that you are standing firm in one spirit, one soul, competing together in the faith of the evangel, and not startled at all by the opposers, which is to them a proof of destruction, yet of your salvation, and this from God, seeing that to you it is graciously granted, for Christ's sake, not only to be believing on Him, but to be suffering for His sake also, having the same struggle such as you perceive in me, and now hear to be in me.

2 If, then, there is any consolation in Christ, if any comfort of love, if any communion of spirit, if any compassion and pity, fill my joy full, that you may be mutually disposed, having mutual love, joined in soul, being disposed toward one thing—nothing according with strife, nothing according with vain glory—but with a humble disposition deeming one another superior to one's self, not each noting his own things, but each those of the others also.

5 For let this disposition be in you, which is in Christ Jesus also, Who, subsisting in the form of God, deems it not pillaging to be equal to God, nevertheless empties Himself, taking the form of a slave, coming to be in the likeness of humanity, and, being found in fashion as a man, He humbles Himself, becoming obedient unto death, even the death of the cross.

The Example of Christ

The enormous sweep of this synopsis of Christ's service and suffering takes in the whole universe and all the eons, from the beginning to the consummation. Being in the form of God, He was above all, under the curse of the cross He was beneath all. Yet, as He voluntarily descended from the highest to the lowest place, so, too, shall be His exaltation. Every tongue will acclaim Him Lord for God the Father's glory. This cannot be until every heart will have been subdued at the consummation (1Cor. 15<sup>28</sup>). Until then there are enemies who oppose His rule. Ever since His resurrection God has been engaged in His exaltation. Even now, many celestial powers are subordinate to Him (1Pe.3<sup>22</sup>). When He comes again the earth will be added to His domain, until finally the whole universe will be reconciled to God by the blood of His cross (Col.1<sup>20</sup>). This is His reward. It is as Jesus (Jehovah the Saviour), the name of His humiliation, that He will be exalted to the place supreme. He Who was lowest shall become the highest.

EXHORTATION TO OBEDIENCE

12 There is no question here of sinners working for salvation. This is an exhortation to saints to make the salvation they have effective in their daily life and action.

16 The "word of life", or a living expression of the evangel consists in conduct so consistent with it that the life alone will proclaim the spirit of the message apart from its formal announcement. Christ, Paul, Timothy and Epaphroditus were living expressions, for their service and sufferings exemplify its message.

17 The priest in Israel, officiating at the altar, poured a libation, usually of wine, upon the sacrifice (Num.15<sup>5</sup>). Paul wished to be the libation on their sacrifice.

TIMOTHY

19 Timothy was the ideal servant. Though himself suffering with infirmities, he was not concerned about himself but took a genuine interest in the saints whom he served.

9 Wherefore, also, God highly exalts Him, and graces Him with the name which is over every name, that in the name of Jesus every knee should be bowing, celestial and terrestrial and subterranean, and every tongue should be acclaiming Jesus Christ as Lord, for the glory of God, the Father.

12 So that, my beloved, according as you always obey, not as in my presence only, but now much rather in my absence, be carrying your own salvation into effect with fear and trembling, for it is God Who is operating in you to will as well as to work for the sake of His delight. Be doing all without murmuring and reasoning, in order that you should be becoming blameless and artless, children of God, flawless, in the midst of a crooked and perverse generation, among whom you are appearing as luminaries in the world, having on the word of life, for me to glory in, in the day of Christ, that I did not run for naught, neither that I toil for naught. Nay, even if I am a libation on the sacrifice and ministration of your faith, I am joying and rejoicing together with you all. Now, to be mutual, you also be joying and be rejoicing together with me.

19 Now I am expecting, in the Lord Jesus, to send Timothy to you quickly, in order that I also may be of good cheer when I know of your concerns. For I have no one equally sensitive, who will be so genuinely solicitous of your concerns, for all are seeking their own, not that which concerns Christ Jesus. Now you know the test of him, that as a child with a father he slaves with me for the evangel. This one, indeed, then,

The Living Examples

EPAPHRODITUS

<sup>25</sup> This is a most pathetic picture of the suffering which often accompanies the service of the Lord in this economy. In the previous economy Paul could and would have healed Epaphroditus, for his very handkerchief was potent with power. That course was in keeping with the kingdom which he then proclaimed. But now, when all blessing is spiritual (Eph. 1<sup>3</sup>), Paul does not attempt to heal Epaphroditus and tells Timothy to use a sip of wine for his frequent infirmities (1Tim. 5<sup>23</sup>). How full of feeling is the statement that he was depressed, not by his own condition, but because the Philippians had heard of it and would be concerned about him!

<sup>26</sup> Epaphroditus was commissioned by the Philippian ecclesia to bring their contribution to Paul. He was their apostle. His case aptly illustrates the meaning of the term.

EXHORTATION TO BEWARE

<sup>2</sup> Those who are elsewhere called the Circumcision are here termed the "Maimcission", and true believers in Christ Jesus are the genuine Circumcision. Circumcision signified the cutting off of the flesh, but speedily became a badge in which the flesh took great pride. Instead of cutting off the flesh it gave it the place of privilege. Only those circumcised dared to hope for God's blessings. Now a mere mutilation of the flesh is replaced by doing, in spirit, what circumcision typified. We cut off the physical altogether.

<sup>3</sup> The divine ritual of Judaism is replaced, in our case, by real spiritual worship, acceptable to God wherever it is offered.

THE EXAMPLE OF PAUL

<sup>4</sup> Paul is the most brilliant example of the results of a divine religion in which the flesh is given a place. His birth gave him the most favored place among men. His attainments gave him the highest place among his own race.

I am expecting to send forthwith, as soon as I should drop my concerns. Now, I have confidence in the Lord that I myself shall also be coming quickly.

<sup>25</sup> Now I deem it necessary to send to you Epaphroditus, my brother and fellow worker and fellow soldier, and your apostle and minister <sup>26</sup> for my need, since, in fact, he was longing for you all and was depressed, because you hear that he <sup>27</sup> is infirm. For he is infirm, also, very near to death, but God is merciful to him, and not to him only, but to me also, lest I should be <sup>28</sup> having sorrow on sorrow. The more diligently, then, I send him, that you may be rejoicing at seeing him again and I may be more sorrow <sup>29</sup> free. Receive him, then, in the Lord with all joy, and have such <sup>30</sup> in honor, seeing that he draws near unto death because of the work of the Lord, risking his soul in order that he should fill up your want of ministration toward me.

3 Furthermore, my brethren, be rejoicing in the Lord. To be writing the same to you is not, indeed, irksome for me, yet it is your <sup>2</sup> security. Beware of curs, beware of evil workers, beware of the <sup>3</sup> maimcission, for we are the circumcision who are offering divine service to God in spirit, and are glorying in Christ Jesus, and have no confidence in flesh.

<sup>4</sup> And am even I having confidence in the flesh, also? If any other one is presuming to have confidence in the flesh, I rather: <sup>5</sup> circumcised the eighth day, of the race of Israel, of the tribe of Benjamin, a Hebrew of Hebrews, in <sup>6</sup> relation to law, a Pharisee, in

But he forfeits all this and flings it from him because it interferes with the superior position accorded to him in Christ. His religion made him the chief of sinners, Christ's bitterest enemy. Now he will have no more of his own, but that which is founded on Christ.

<sup>8</sup> Refuse is defined (Syr.27<sup>4</sup>) "as when one sifts with a sieve, the refuse remains." "What is thrown to the dogs." (Suid.)

<sup>10</sup> It is notable that Paul never engages our attention with the life of Christ while on earth. Then, he tells us, He was a Servant of the Circumcision (Rom.15<sup>e</sup>). All His practises and precepts were directed toward the proclamation of the kingdom, which is now in abeyance. We have no vital relation with Him until His resurrection. We, too, are accounted as alive in resurrection. We, too, are ascended and seated among the celestials in Him (Eph.2<sup>5-6</sup>). Let us conduct ourselves, then, in harmony with this. This is our goal. Let us approximate it as nearly as we can in anticipation. The apostle has no doubts about attaining the actual resurrection. He is not so sure that he realizes its power in his present experience. All will be raised then. Not all realize it now. We should, however, accommodate ourselves to those who are still observing the rudiments.

<sup>14</sup> We have here the ideal experience of a believer in Christ Jesus. The shortcomings and sins, the aims and ambitions of the past are all forgotten, lest they hinder us in our race to the goal, which is conformity to Christ Jesus in His glory. Though we cannot fully attain this until resurrection, we should aim to come as near it as possible in our present experience. He who comes nearest this ideal will obtain the prize.

EXHORTATION TO IMITATE PAUL

<sup>17</sup> The imitation of Christ, when He was concerned with an economy which was, in some ways, the opposite of the present, has led to endless failure and confusion. The reason for Paul's exhortation that he be made a model for their imitation arises from the relation to zeal, persecuting the ecclesia, in relation to the righteousness which is in law, becoming blameless. But what things were gain to me, these I have deemed a forfeit because of Christ. But, to be sure, I am also deeming all to be a forfeit because of the superiority of the knowledge of Christ Jesus, my Lord, because of Whom I forfeited all, and am deeming it to be refuse, that I may be gaining Christ, and may be found in Him, not having my righteousness, which is of law, but that which is through the faith of Christ, the righteousness which is from God for faith: to know Him, and the power of His resurrection, and the participation of His sufferings, being conformed to His death, if somehow I should be attaining to the resurrection out from among the dead. Not that I already obtained, or have already been perfected, yet I am pursuing, if I may be grasping also that for which I was grasped also by Christ Jesus. Brethren, not as yet am I counting myself to have grasped, yet one thing—forgetting, indeed, that which is behind, yet stretching out in front toward the goal—I am pursuing for the prize of God's calling above in Christ Jesus. As many, then, as are mature may be thus disposed, and if in anything you are differently disposed, this also shall God reveal to you. Moreover, in what we outstrip others, there is to be a mutual disposition to observe the same fundamental rule.

<sup>17</sup> Become imitators together of me, brethren, and be noting those who are walking thus, according as you have us for a model, for many are walking of whom I often told fact that in him alone do we see the resurrection life of Christ interpreted in terms of present conduct. Christ's earthly life needs no such interpretation, so none of the other apostles are models in this sense even for the Circumcision.

<sup>18</sup> The enemies of the cross of Christ are those who, failing to apprehend the significance of His shameful death, still cling to the earthly and the physical.

The cross of Christ brings before us the manner of His death. It was an ignominious, shameful, malefactor's death, to which God's curse was attached. Hence we may avail ourselves of the efficacy of His blood, and yet, by clinging to the world and the flesh, become enemies of His cross.

<sup>20</sup> Our citizenship, or enfranchisement, in contrast to that of Israel, is in the heavens. We have no political privileges where the sovereignty of our Lord has been rejected. But we have high hopes both politically and physically. We shall reign with Christ in the celestial spheres. And this body of humiliation will be transfigured to conform to His glorious body. He is coming as a Saviour.

<sup>21</sup> Here we have the definite assurance of His ability to subordinate the entire universe. This will not be accomplished until the consummation (1Cor. 15<sup>24-28</sup>).

<sup>5</sup> The Lord is always near when men are high handed with us. It is not our place to retaliate but to be lenient and considerate, for He is near and will take care of our interests.

<sup>6</sup> Worry kills more men than war. To get beyond its reach is one of the most precious privileges of all who belong to Christ. There is no promise here that our prayers will be answered, or that, if several agree, they shall have their request. It goes far deeper than that. The knowledge that God is guiding all things to the goal He has set before Him, unhindered by the stress and storm which so distresses us, leads us to wonder whether our own petitions are in line with His will, and whether it is better to leave all with Him, confident that He will grant that only good which we crave but do not apprehend. We enter into His peace and acquiesce in His will whether our prayer be answered or not.

you, and now am lamenting also, as I tell it, who are enemies of the cross of Christ, whose consummation is destruction, whose God is their bowels, and whose glory is in their shame, who are disposed to terrestrial things. For our citizenship belongs to the heavens, out of which we are awaiting a Saviour also, the Lord, Jesus Christ, Who will transfigure the body of our humiliation, to conform it to His body glorious, in accord with the operation which enables Him to subject even the universe to Himself.

<sup>4</sup> So that, brethren mine, beloved and longed for, my joy and wreath, stand firm thus in the Lord, my beloved. I am entreating Euodia and I am entreating Syntyche, to be mutually disposed in the Lord. Yes, I am asking you also, genuine yokefellow, be aiding these women who compete together with me in the evangel, with Clement also, and the rest of my fellow workers whose names are in the scroll of life. Be rejoicing in the Lord always! Again, I will declare, be rejoicing! Let your lenience be known to all men: the Lord is near. Let nothing be worrying you, but in every prayer and petition let your requests be made known to God with thanksgiving, and the peace of God, being superior to every mental state, shall garrison your hearts and your apprehensions in Christ Jesus. Furthermore, brethren, whatever is true, whatever is dignified, whatever is just, whatever is pure, whatever is agreeable, whatever is renowned—if there is any virtue and if any applause, be taking these into account. What you learned also, and accepted

THE PHILIPPIANS' CARE OF PAUL

<sup>10</sup> The Philippians seem to have had Paul constantly on their hearts though circumstances, at times, kept them from contributing to his needs.

PAUL'S COMPLACENCY IN WANT

<sup>11</sup> It is blessed for the believer to recognize the fact that his environment and his condition are all of God, Who is using them for his welfare. Wealth or want, opulence or poverty are alike means for our blessing. There is no real contentment apart from this.

PAUL'S STRENGTH IN CHRIST

<sup>13</sup> What encouragement there is in this brief word! Nothing is too great for those who know their own weakness and the invigorating power of Christ.

THE PHILIPPIANS' CONTRIBUTION

<sup>14</sup> The gift of the Philippian ecclesia is especially precious because of the memories it awakens in Paul's mind. They alone came to his aid at the first, and then helped him even in Thessalonica, among his friends. Their contribution, being a token of their heartfelt appreciation and love, not only meets his need, but ascends, like the sacrifice of old, redolent with the perfume which speaks of the sacrifice of Christ. In return he reminds them of the glory that Christ has brought to God and that they, in Him, shall have all their needs supplied according to God's estimate of His work.

<sup>19</sup> While God does not fill all our wants, He supplies all our needs. Nor does He do this in accord with our service or deserts, but in harmony with the glory which has come to be His in Christ Jesus. Thus He ever deals with us, not as we are in ourselves, but as He sees us in Christ. This should assure our hearts of His continual care and provision notwithstanding appearances to the contrary. Paul was humbled at times, and hungry, yet this to him was an evidence of His care as well as the times of superabundance.

<sup>21</sup> Every saint "in Christ Jesus" limits this greeting to those who know Christ, not after the flesh, but after the spirit. The Circumcision are not included.

and hear and perceived in me, these be putting into practise, and the God of peace shall be with you.

<sup>10</sup> Now I rejoiced greatly in the Lord that somehow, at length, your disposition toward me blossomed, to which you were disposed also, yet you lacked occasion.

<sup>11</sup> Not that I am hinting at a want, for I learned to be content in that <sup>12</sup> in which I am. I am aware what it is to be humbled and I am aware what it is to be superabounding also. In everything and among all I have been initiated even to be satisfied and to be hungering, even to be superabounding and to be in <sup>13</sup> want. I have strength for everything in Him Who is invigorating me—Christ!

<sup>15</sup> Now you Philippians also are aware that, in the beginning of the evangel, when I came out from Macedonia, not a single ecclesia participates with me in the matter of giving and getting, except you
<sup>16</sup> only, seeing that, in Thessalonica also, you send, once and again, <sup>17</sup> to my need. Not that I am seeking for a gift, but I am seeking for fruit which is increasing for <sup>18</sup> your account. Now I am paid in full, and am superabounding. I have been filled full, receiving from Epaphroditus the things from you, a fragrant odor, an acceptable sacrifice, well pleasing
<sup>19</sup> to God. Now my God shall be filling your every need in accord with His riches in glory in Christ <sup>20</sup> Jesus. Now to our God and Father be glory for the eons of the eons! Amen!

COLOSSIANS

COLOSSIANS is the complement of Paul's epistle to the Ephesians. Two mysteries dominate both. Ephesians elaborates the present Secret Economy, which concerns the members of the body of Christ: Colossians dwells upon the secret of Christ, Who is the Head of that body. Ephesians, however, teaches the truth, while Colossians corrects departure from it.

The literary framework gives us a clear clue to its contents. Within the Salutations and Mutual Reports, the whole body of the epistle deals with the details of the Secret of Christ. First the apostle, in one of the most sublime passages in Holy Writ, sets forth the secret glories of Christ as the Son of God.

At the close of the epistle he speaks of this again, desiring to make it known.

The bulk of this letter deals with correction in doctrine and deportment necessitated by departure from the Secret of Christ. A knowledge of this secret is vital to the spiritual welfare of all who know God.

Rationalism and ritual, the philosophy of the nations and the religion of Israel, are the two great enemies to the truth which find correction in Colossians.

Gnosticism, with its false fullness or plerōma of angelic intermediaries between God and man, is set aside by the great truth that Christ is God's Complement. As our Complement He displaces all the decrees and rites of Judaism. In Christ we are complete and need naught else to fit us for the Father's presence.

The secret of Christ is presented in its future aspect in Ephesians. There is to be a harvest era in which Christ is to be supreme, not only on earth, but in the heavens also. His sway will be universal (Eph.1:10<sup>33</sup>). In Colossians, however, the emphasis is placed on His past headship in creation and His present headship in redemption with a view to a future reconciliation of the universe. The unity of creation has led philosophers to trace it back to a common origin, by some called a "primordial germ." This first element in creation, however simple it may be said to be, must possess within itself a potential universe. The Son of God, the Firstborn of Creation, is the satisfactory solution to all questions which concern creation. Creation did not begin in chaos but in Christ. It will not end in ruin wrought by man but in universal reconciliation wrought by the blood of His cross.

<sup>4</sup> Their faith in Christ Jesus and their heavenly hope reminds us of the opening words of Ephesians. Before these letters were written the saints among the nations had no clear indications of a heavenly destiny. This is practically unknown outside Paul's epistles, and even in them it is gradually approached. The Thessalonians are taught the Lord's descent from heaven to meet them in the air (1 Thess. 4:16). The secret of the resurrection is made known to the Corinthians (1 Cor. 15:51), showing that our bodies will be changed to fit the celestial spheres. But not until the prison epistles were penned are we given definite assurance that the saints are destined to enjoy a heavenly allotment.

<sup>6</sup> A true realization of God's grace is the accomplishment most to be desired of all things, for it is impossible to please God without faith and an intelligent grasp of His gracious purpose. Zeal must be directed by knowledge.

THE SECRET OF CHRIST ITS REALIZATION

<sup>9</sup> Here we have a prayer which is well worthy of our imitation.

<sup>13</sup> The kingdom of His Son is a figurative allusion to the kingdom of Christ. Messiah's kingdom is literal and future and destroys and displaces earth's kingdoms (Dan. 2:44). The kingdom of the Son here spoken of is a present spiritual power. We are not rescued from earth's governments but from the powers of Darkness which direct and dominate them. The term "pardon" is borrowed from the kingdom phraseology to accord with this figure.

<sup>15</sup> God is an invisible Spirit (Jno. 4:24 1Ti. 6:16). The Son of God is the visible, tangible embodiment of Deity. Only in Him can we see God. All other images are condemned because they are false and dishonor God (Deut. 5:8). All creation was in Him, as the tree and its fruits are found in the seed. In Him

PAUL, an apostle of Christ Jesus, through the will of God, and brother Timothy, to the saints and faithful brethren in Christ in Colosse:

Grace to you and peace, from God, our Father, and the Lord Jesus Christ.

<sup>3</sup> We are thanking the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, praying always concerning you, when hearing of your faith in Christ Jesus and the love which you have for all the saints, because of the expectation which is reserved for you in the heavens, which you hear before in the true expression of the evangel, which, being present with you, according as in all the world also, is being fruitful and growing, according as it is among you also, from the day you hear and realized the grace of God in truth, according as you learned it from Epaphras, our beloved fellow slave, who is a faithful dispenser of Christ for us, and who makes evident also to us your love in spirit.

<sup>9</sup> Therefore we also, from the day we hear, do not cease praying for you and requesting that you may be filled with the realization of His will, in all wisdom and spiritual understanding, you to walk worthily of the Lord for all pleasing, being fruitful in every good work, and growing in the realization of God; being endued with all power, in accord with His glorious might, for all endurance and

The Secret of Christ

God created all else, for the whole universe was created in Him. This includes the celestial as well as the terrestrial spheres and every form of spiritual power and dignity. These exist through Him and for Him and He makes all a unit for the accomplishment of God's purpose.

18 As God's Complement, His supremacy becomes pre-eminent in redemption as well as creation. Their relation may be shown as follows:

THE PRE-EMINENCE OF THE SON OF GOD	The Image of God	Firstborn of all Creation The Universe Heaven and Earth Created in Him
	The Comple- ment of God	Firstborn from the Dead The Universe Earth and Heaven Reconciled thru Him

The two paramount points in universal history are the creation and the resurrection of the Son of God. Through His death and vivification He will yet more than restore the lost creation to the Father. The cross, which speaks of His estrangement from God, is the basis on which reconciliation is built. The benefits it brings are not confined to earth or mankind, but include the celestial realms as well.

20 Just as His glories in creation take us back to the very beginning, so the greater glories of reconciliation take us to the very consummation. The universal reconciliation cannot be fully accomplished until the close of the eonian times, when all sovereignty and authority and power and even death are rendered inoperative (1Cor. 15:24-27) and when all mankind are saved (1Tim. 4:10) and justified (Rom. 5:18). This takes us far beyond the new earth portrayed at the end of the Unveiling of Jesus Christ, for there He still reigns, many of mankind are still lost, and death is not yet abolished.

21 At present reconciliation includes only those who, like the Colossians, believe in Him and have not lost their hold on this great truth (or indeed, have never heard of it). Salvation depends only on the work of Christ and is not affected by our moods: reconciliation depends, on our side, upon our enjoyment of His favor.

12 patience with joy; at the same time giving thanks to the Father, Who makes you competent for a part of the allotment of the 13 saints, in light, Who rescues us out of the authority of darkness, and transports us into the king-
14 dom of the Son of His love, in Whom we are having deliverance, 15 the pardon of sins, Who is the Image of the invisible God, Firstborn
16 of every creature, seeing that the universe in the heavens and on the earth is created in Him—the visible and the invisible, whether thrones or dominions or sovereignties or authorities—the universe has been created through Him and 17 for Him, and He is before all, and the universe has its cohesion in 18 Him. And He is the Head of the body, the ecclesia, Who is Sovereign, Firstborn from among the dead, that in all He may be be-19 coming first, seeing that the entire complement delights to dwell in 20 Him, and through Him to reconcile the universe to Him (making peace through the blood of His cross), through Him, whether on the earth or in the heavens.

21 And you, being once estranged and enemies in comprehension, in acts of wickedness, yet now He reconciles by His body of flesh, through 22 His death, to present you holy and flawless and unimpeachable, in His 23 sight, at least if you are persisting in the faith grounded and settled, and are not removed from

The Secret of Christ

<sup>23</sup> The scope of reconciliation is not confined to mankind; it is as broad as creation. Its proclamation was made to every creature under heaven. It is God's loving purpose to bind all His creatures to Him with the cords of affection. To accomplish this purpose demands suffering—not only the essential suffering of Christ on the cross, but those of His afflictions which He endures in His members in the course of its dispensation.

<sup>25</sup> This epistle was not by any means the last of the Greek scriptures to be penned. The Unveiling of Jesus Christ and all of John's writings were written, we are told, long afterward. Paul completed or filled up the word of God in another sense. All the other scriptures were limited in their scope to the earth, as to space, and to the eons, as to time. They were concerned with a fragment of the universe. In them the nations could have only a subordinate place and portion. As the secret of Christ breaks beyond the barriers of Judaism, these restrictions vanish. On earth Messiah never left the land of Israel. Now, in spirit, He walks among the nations, dispensing blessing as He did in the days of His earthly sojourn. Christ, Who never went among the nations before His ascension, met Paul outside the land, on the Damascus road, not as the lowly Jesus, but as the glorified Son of God. Gradually, in spirit, through the apostle's ministries, He unfolds His secret purpose to be to the nations, in spirit, all that He had been to Israel in flesh, and far more. This is the secret: Christ among the nations, a glorious expectation. Not a subordinate place in the earthly kingdom, but a pre-eminent place in His celestial domains.

Let us, too, note the tremendous importance which he attaches to an appreciation of this most marvelous mystery or secret. It satisfies both the heart and the head. It reveals depths of affection in which we may revel. It discloses the treasures of wisdom and knowledge for which earth's sages and philosophers have been groping without avail. It solves the riddle of the universe—its beginning and its end, its creation and its reconciliation.

the expectation of the evangel which you hear, which is being proclaimed in the entire creation which is under heaven, of which I, <sup>24</sup> Paul, became a dispenser. I am now rejoicing in my sufferings for you, and fill up in my flesh, in His stead, the deficiencies of the afflictions of Christ, for His body, <sup>25</sup> which is the ecclesia of which I became a dispenser, in accord with the stewardship of God, which was granted to me for you, to complete <sup>26</sup> the word of God—the secret which has been concealed from the eons and from the generations, yet now <sup>27</sup> is made manifest to His saints, to whom God wills to make known what are the glorious riches of this secret among the nations, which is: Christ among you, a glorious ex- <sup>28</sup> pectation—Whom we are announcing, admonishing every <sup>h</sup>man and teaching every <sup>h</sup>man in all wisdom, in order that we should present every man mature in Christ Jesus; <sup>29</sup> for which I am toiling also, struggling in accord with His operation, which is operating in me in power.

2 For I want you to perceive the stupendous struggle I am having for your sakes and for those in Laodicea, and as many as have not seen <sup>2</sup> my face in flesh, that their hearts may be consoled, being united in love, even unto all the riches of the assurance of understanding, unto a realization of the secret of <sup>3</sup> the God and Father of Christ, in Whom all the treasures of wisdom <sup>4</sup> and knowledge are concealed. ## DOCTRINAL CORRECTION

<sup>8</sup> It is difficult to discern that the divine religion given to Israel in the flesh may be one of the greatest hindrances toward an appreciation of the grace which is ours in Christ Jesus. Hence the spirit of God forces it down to the same level with human philosophy and tradition by alternating them in this passage. The empty seduction and rudiments, the circumcision, baptism, and shadows refer to the rites and ritual Jehovah gave His earthly people. Yet they are interspersed with references to the authority and teachings of men. Ritual is just as dangerous an enemy as rationalism. As God's Complement, Christ is the answer to philosophy: as our Complement, He is the end of religion.

<sup>8</sup> By a striking figure the apostle warns us lest we lose all our possessions in Christ by a legal process, such as is served when property is seized for debt. Legality levies an attachment on us so that we lose the enjoyment of our possessions and philosophy interferes in the same way.

<sup>11</sup> The spiritual history of those who know Christ as their Complement may be summarized in three words: death, burial, and resurrection. Not, of course, literally, but in Him. Two rites, in Israel, set this forth in figure. Circumcision is the cutting off of the flesh. It signifies death. Baptism pictures both burial and resurrection. Now the believer need not be circumcised, for Christ, his Complement, descended into death itself. In Christ's burial he has been baptized. In His resurrection he has been raised from the dead. Faith in God's operation is all the ceremony needed to place the believer beyond the tomb in full possession of every privilege ever procured by the rites of religion. Christ, our Complement, makes full provision for our approach into the divine presence, just as the brazen altar and the laver provided for the approach of the priest in the tabernacle (Ex.27:130<sup>17</sup>).

I am saying this, that no one of you should be beguiled with persuasive words. For even if I am absent in flesh, nevertheless I am with you in spirit, rejoicing and observing your order and the stability of your faith in Christ.

<sup>6</sup> As, then, you accepted Christ Jesus, the Lord, be walking in Him, having been rooted and built up in Him, and being confirmed in the faith according as you were taught, superabounding in it with thanksgiving.

<sup>8</sup> Beware that no one shall be despoiling you through philosophy and empty seduction, in accord with human tradition, in accord with the elements of the world, and not in accord with Christ,

<sup>9</sup> seeing that in Him the entire complement of the Deity is dwelling bodily. And you are complete in Him, Who is the Head of every

<sup>11</sup> sovereignty and authority, in Whom you were circumcised also with a circumcision not made with hands, in the stripping off of the body of flesh in the circumcision

<sup>12</sup> of Christ. Being entombed together with Him in baptism (in Whom you were roused together also through faith in the operation of God, Who rouses Him from among <sup>13</sup> the dead, you also being dead in the offenses and the uncircumcision of your flesh), He vivifies us together jointly with Him, dealing graciously with all our of-

<sup>14</sup> fenses, erasing the handwriting of the decrees against us, which was hostile to us, and has taken it away out of the midst, nailing it to the

<sup>15</sup> Not only is the believer exempt from the authority of the apostles of the Circumcision, but, in spirit, he is beyond the reach of all human jurisdiction. Even before His resurrection our Lord reminded Pilate that he had no authority whatever in His case except what had been granted him from above (Jno.19<sup>10-11</sup>). By His rising He reversed the sentence of death pronounced against Him by the Sanhedrin and the Roman governor.

<sup>16</sup> The prohibition of certain foods under the law, the observance of festivals and fasts and rest days, all foreshadowed the rest and joy and plenty of that future kingdom on the earth, in which the body of Christ has no part. The divine picture of our portion is the physical body of Christ, risen and ascended and seated at God's right hand in the celestial spheres. As the physical members are to this body, so we, His spiritual members, are to Him. We, too, are roused and seated there, and are the instruments through which He will effect His Father's will in the empyrean.

<sup>19</sup> "Holding the Head" is a succinct expression of our duty as members of the body of Christ. A conscious connection and subjection to Him as our Head will sever us from the things of the world, whether it be its religion (however divine its origin) or its philosophy. Any attempt to improve our position before God by physical means, whether it be an appeal to the senses or a curbing of its normal needs, denies our completeness in Christ.

CORRECTION—DEPORTMENT

<sup>1</sup> The secret of pleasing God is a conduct conformed to our spiritual position. The key to this position is the great truth that we have not only died and have been roused with Christ, but we have ascended into heaven with Him. Our interests, our expectations, are no longer on earth at all, but in the celestial regions. Let this great and glorious truth be behind our motives and guide us into the path that pleases Him.

ties and authorities, He boldly makes a show of them, triumphing <sup>16</sup> over them in it. Let no one, then, be judging you in food or in drink or in a particular festival, or new moon, or sabbaths, which are a shadow of those things which are future—but the body is of
<sup>17</sup> Christ. Now let no one be arbitrating against you willfully, by humility and the ritual of messengers, parading what is seen, affectedly puffed up by his fleshly mind,
<sup>18</sup> and not holding the Head, out of Whom the entire body, being supplied and united through the assimilation and ligaments, is growing in the growth of God. If, then, you died together with Christ from the elements of the world, why, as living in the world, are you
<sup>19</sup> subject to decrees: "You should not be touching, nor tasting, nor having the slightest contact" (which things are all for corruption by use) in accord with the directions
<sup>20</sup> and teachings of men, which are, indeed, an expression having its wisdom in a willful ritual and a humble disposition and asceticism—not of any value against the surfeiting of the flesh.

3 If, then, you were roused together with Christ, be seeking that which is above, where Christ is sitting
<sup>3</sup> to that on the earth, for you died and your life has been hid together
<sup>4</sup> with Christ in God. Whenever Christ, our Life, should be manifested, then you also will be manifested together with Him in glory.

<sup>5</sup> Put to death, then, your members which are on earth: prostitution, uncleanness, passion, evil desire, and greed, which is idol-

<sup>5</sup> We are exhorted to transform faith into fact. Are we dead to the world? Then let us live as those who are past the practises which pollute it. How can we keep on in the course which will draw down God's indignation—not upon us—but upon those who do not trust Him?

<sup>9</sup> The old humanity, with its diversity and division, no longer reflects the Image of its Creator. In the new, or fresh, humanity, in which Christ displaces Adam, these divisions disappear. The religion of the Jew and the philosophy of the Greek, the privileges of the Circumcision and the proscription of the Uncircumcision, the subjection of the slave and the superiority of the freeman—all these find no place in the young humanity of which Christ is the Head. We should so behave that it will be recognized as created in His image.

<sup>12</sup> The greater our appreciation of our Lord's grace toward us, the greater grace will we show towards all who belong to Him. Without this compelling power we shall be able only to exercise our natural, ungracious dispositions.

<sup>14</sup> Love, the greatest of the abiding trinity (1Cor.13:13), is the tie which binds us to the Lord and should be the tie which unites us to our fellow saints. Before maturity, in the preparatory era preceding the present economy, the saints were united (or rather divided) by a common rite, as Circumcision, or a common ancestor, as Israel. Now that these are abolished there is a spiritual unity unmarred by any division (Eph.4:6). Love is the tie that makes us one, peace is the tie that keeps us one.

<sup>16</sup> The sincerest source of song is a heart full of grace. It should be the overflow of a heart surcharged with an appreciation of God's love. All other motives are a mockery, and discordant to His ears.

<sup>17</sup> God is jealous that His Son be duly honored in all we do or say. Even our thanksgiving must be accompanied by the incense of His name.

<sup>8</sup> Yet now you also be putting away all these—anger, fury, malice, calumny, obscenity out of <sup>9</sup> your mouth. Do not lie to one another, stripping off the old humanity together with its practises, <sup>10</sup> and putting on the young, which is being renewed into recognition, to accord with the Image of the <sup>11</sup> One Who creates it, wherein there is no Greek and Jew, Circumcision and Uncircumcision, barbarian, Scythian, slave, freeman, but all and in all is Christ.

<sup>12</sup> Put on, then, as God's chosen ones, holy and beloved, pitiful compassion, kindness, humility, <sup>13</sup> meekness, patience, bearing with one another and dealing graciously among yourselves, if anyone should be having a complaint against any. According as the Lord also deals graciously with you, thus also you.

<sup>15</sup> the tie of maturity. And let the peace of Christ be arbitrating in your hearts, for which you were called also in one body; and become thankful. Let the word of Christ make its home in you richly, in all wisdom, teaching and admonishing yourselves; with psalms, hymns, spiritual songs, singing, in the grace which is in <sup>17</sup> your hearts, to God. And everything, whatever you may be doing, in word and in act, let all be in the name of our Lord Jesus Christ, <sup>17</sup> We should always distinguish between our place "in Christ" and "in the Lord". "In Christ" physical distinctions vanish, even the distinction between the sexes is gone. There is neither male nor female (Gal. 3:28). But "in the Lord" these are all recognized and regulated. Let us never base conduct on our place in Christ, always in the Lord. Service is to the Lord, not to Christ. In the Lord, woman is subject, in Christ, she is the equal of the man.

<sup>22</sup> As slavery is almost a thing of the past, these injunctions may well be the guide of those whose service is voluntary rather than compulsory. It is a marvelous help to look beyond all earthly masters and work for One above. Our employer may be hard to please, or unjust, or harsh, not giving proper compensation, but if we become the slave of Christ our work will be sincerely done and we will look to Him for appreciation and due deserts. On the other hand we will be restrained from injurious acts by the fear of Him in that day.

ITS EXPRESSION

<sup>2</sup> The great burden on the apostle's heart at this time was the transcendent revelation of Christ and His secret glories, which had been ~~which smoothes the way for subjection~~ his message when he was a prisoner at the court of Rome? God's ways are not our ways. If the apostle had been free he would probably have proclaimed Christ's universal dignities by word of mouth. Being bound, he committed his message to writing, a method which has been immeasurably more effective.

giving thanks to God, the Father, through Him.

<sup>20</sup> Children, be obeying your parents in all things, for this is well pleasing in the Lord. Fathers, do not be vexing your children, lest they may be disheartened.

<sup>22</sup> Slaves, in all things be obeying your masters according to the flesh, not with eye-slavery as man pleasers, but with singleness of heart, fearing the Lord. All whatever you may be doing, be working from the soul, as to the Lord and not to men, being aware that you will be getting the compensation of the enjoyment of an allotment from the Lord: you are slaving for the Lord Christ. For he who is injuring shall be requited for that which he injures, and there is no partiality.

<sup>4</sup> Masters, be tendering that which is just and equitable to your slaves, being aware that you also have a Master in heaven.

<sup>2</sup> Be persevering in prayer, watching in it with thanksgiving, and praying at the same time concerning us, that God should open up for us a door of the word, to speak the secret of Christ, because of which I have been bound also, that I should be making it manifest, as I must speak. Be walking in wisdom toward those outside, reclaiming the era, your word being always with grace, seasoned with salt, perceiving how you must answer each one.

Mutual Reports

7 Tychicus is well named, for who ever had a better "chance" than the bearer of this epistle as well as the letter to the Ephesians? (Eph.6<sup>21</sup>). The spiritual wealth with which he was entrusted passes our utmost comprehension.

10 The mention of Mark is another affectionate touch. Barnabas and Saul brought him from Jerusalem to Antioch (Acts12<sup>25</sup>) and took him with them on their first missionary journey, but he forsook them and returned to Jerusalem (Acts13<sup>13</sup>). For this Paul refused to take him the next time, causing the separation of Paul and Barnabas (Acts 15<sup>37-40</sup>). But Paul has been drinking deeply of grace. He no longer holds Mark's failure against him. He tells Timothy that "he is useful for the service" (2 Ti. 4<sup>11</sup>). Now he makes sure that his friends receive him. And this man, whose service was so unsatisfactory, is the one chosen by God to write the account of the perfect Servant!

10 Aristarchus, Mark and Justus are not to be reckoned as members of Christ's body destined to a celestial allotment. They were of the Circumcision, who still proclaimed the kingdom. Here we have the point of contact between these two companies. The course of the Circumcision is traced in the epistle to the Hebrews.

12 Epaphras seems to have been the principal teacher in the Colossian ecclesia (17) through whom they learned the grace of God. How effectively that grace wrought in his own heart is evident by his prayers and anguish while absent from them. His great concern was that they should be mature and complete in all the will of God. How rare are such saints in these days!

16 It is likely that the Laodicean epistle here referred to is the same as that now called the epistle to the Ephesians. It has the character of a circular letter, copies of which were sent to various ecclesias.

18 The epistle was probably penned by a professional scribe, but the apostle appended the greeting with his own hand.

loved brother and faithful servant
8 and fellow slave in the Lord, whom I send to you for this same thing, that you may know what concerns you and he should be consoling
9 your hearts, together with Onesimus, a faithful and beloved brother, who is one of you. They shall make known to you all things here.

10 Aristarchus, my fellow captive, is greeting you, and Mark, cousin of Barnabas (concerning whom you obtained directions—if he should be coming to you, receive 11 him), and Jesus, termed Justus, who are of the Circumcision: these are the only fellow workers for the kingdom of God who became a 12 solace to me. Epaphras is greeting you, who is one of you, a slave of Christ Jesus, always struggling for you in prayers, that you may stand mature and fully assured in 13 all the will of God. For I am testifying of him that he has much misery over you and those in Laodicea and those in Hierapolis.

14 Luke, the beloved physician, is 15 greeting you, and Demas. Greet the brethren in Laodicea, and Nympha, and the ecclesia at her
16 home. And whenever the epistle should be read to you, cause that it should be read in the Laodicean ecclesia also, and that you also may 17 be reading that of Laodicea. And say to Archippus: "Look to the service which you accepted in the Lord, that you fulfill it."

18 The salutation is by my hand—
Paul. Remember my bonds!

Grace be with you! Amen!

PAUL'S PROMISE EPISTLES

THE blessed expectation of our Lord's return before the day of His indignation is the subject of these, Paul's earliest epistles. It is the early opening wedge between those who received his ministry among the nations and those of the Circumcision, who looked for Messiah's advent after the display of His indignation and the destruction of man's kingdoms.

The historical background for this change is given in the book of Acts, though the doctrine itself is not found there because the Acts is a treatise on the kingdom of God for Israel. In the ministry of our Lord and His twelve apostles His coming is always presented in its connection with the promised kingdom. It will be with power and great glory (Mt.24<sup>30</sup>Mk.13<sup>26</sup>Lu.21<sup>27</sup>). His feet shall stand on the Mount of Olives (Acts11<sup>11-12</sup>Zech. 14<sup>1-5</sup>). All the predictions of the prophet Daniel and in the Unveiling of Jesus Christ will be fulfilled at that time. It will follow an era of the most awful and terrific judgments mankind will ever be called upon to endure. So long as the kingdom was impending these judgments, also, were hanging over a rebellious race.

At first Paul, like all the rest, confined his ministry to the Jews. At Antioch, where the disciples were first called "Christians," there were none except Jews and proselytes. From this he was separated (Acts 13<sup>2</sup>). At Pisidian Antioch he first turned to the nations, or Gentiles. After that, though he spoke to the Jews first, he proclaimed Christ freely among the nations, preaching grace. One of the first questions for these believers among the nations was, What shall become of us in the great judgments which precede the coming of the kingdom? Will God pour out His bowls of wrath upon our heads? In answer to this the apostle is given an entirely new revelation concerning the future presence of the Lord. The believers among the nations were saved on the ground of grace. This is to characterize all God's dealings with them. Hence they cannot remain in the scene which is visited by His indignation. They must be sheltered or removed. Some saints in Israel are sheltered, but the new company, composed principally of saints from the other nations who have believed Paul's preaching, are to be removed. Paul receives the revelation that, long before the Lord descends in glory to set up His kingdom, He will descend, not to the earth, but to the air, and His saints will be caught up to meet Him there. Thus they will be above the lightnings and thunders of the terrible day of the Lord.

In later epistles, as the truth was gradually developed, more details were added to this glorious revelation. The Corinthian mind found difficulties in this doctrine, so the apostle unfolds to them the secret or mystery of the resurrection (Co.15<sup>51,52</sup>), that our bodies, which, at present, are adapted only to an earthly environment, are to be changed to suit the celestial spheres. The Philippian letter caps the climax by the added revelation that they shall be transfigured into the glorious likeness of our Lord Himself!

I THESSALONIANS

THE historical setting and occasion for this epistle is found in the book of Acts (17:1-15:18<sup>5</sup>). By constraint of the spirit of God, after he had revisited the scenes of his first missionary journey, Paul is led to go across to Macedonia. He perceived a vision in which a Macedonian entreated him, "Cross over into Macedonia. Help us!" In response to this appeal Paul and his party founded an ecclesia in Philippi, to which also he afterwards penned the epistle of that name. After being beaten and imprisoned, they are besought to leave the city, and came to Thessalonica.

Paul first reasoned with the Jews in the synagogue for three sabbaths, showing from their scriptures that Christ must suffer and rise from the dead and that Jesus was their Messiah. Some believed but some did not. As at Pisidian Antioch (Acts 13:46-48), Paul then turns to those outside the pale of Judaism and of these a vast multitude believe. But, as at Pisidian Antioch, the unbelieving Jews stirred up a persecution against them so that they were sent away. After going to Berea (Ac. 17:10) and Athens (Ac. 17:15-34), he came to Corinth, where both Silas and Timothy joined him (Acts 18:5, 1 Thess. 3:6) and where he probably wrote this, the first of all the writings of the Greek scriptures.

Paul did not desire to leave the Thessalonians. They had only just received the evangel and needed to be taught and confirmed in the faith. He was deeply concerned about them and sought twice to return to them, but was hindered. So he sent Timothy in his stead. The report of Timothy greatly comforted him. Not being able to go to them, he pens this epistle.

The literary framework shows that the whole epistle takes its color from the persecutions endured by the Thessalonians. At present they are suffering from the anger of men, but they shall be saved from the indignation of God. The Jews who persecute them are drawing down God's indignation, but the Thessalonians will never be subjects of His wrath (1<sup>10</sup> 2:16<sup>5</sup>).

The doctrinal burden of the epistle is based on the truth of the Lord's future presence. He had taught this during the few days he was with them but it needed further explanation.

Some had died and some were indifferent. Would these two classes be left out when He comes? The answer is that those who are asleep will be roused first and accompany the living when they are caught up to meet the Lord in the air. They will not be left behind.

So, too, those who do not watch. The death of Christ provides for their salvation from future wrath quite apart from their present walk. All who are His, whether watchful or drowsy, shall live together with Him.

PAUL'S THANKSGIVING

<sup>2</sup> This is the pattern pastoral epistle. Paul's deep concern leads him to constant prayer for them, for he knows their need and has been torn from them before it was possible for him to teach them much.

<sup>3</sup> It is most significant to find in the opening strain of this, Paul's earliest epistle, that abiding trinity, faith, expectation and love, which have continued the leading characteristics of his ministry and which alone remain throughout this economy (1 Cor. 13<sup>13</sup>). Expectation is expounded in these Promise Epistles. Faith is fully set forth in the Preparatory Epistles, especially Romans. Love overflows in the Perfection Epistles. When all the "gifts" vanished, these remained.

It is the character not the quantity of work that counts with God. Apart from faith it is impossible to please Him. Let us avoid all efforts which are not firmly founded on faith. Even toil and weariness depend on their motive to meet His approbation. Love alone can give value to our toil. Expectation, not the indefinite, uncertain desire which "hope" suggests, but an assured and confident prospect of their Lord's return, gave these young believers their endurance in the midst of persecution.

<sup>4</sup> Paul might well question the reality of the work done in Thessalonica. In a few weeks' time a great multitude heard and believed. There was danger that the enthusiasm of the moment had carried many into their company who were never the subjects of God's grace. But as Paul reflects upon the vision which sent him there (Ac. 16<sup>9</sup>) and the mighty power of the preaching, and their subsequent service and sufferings, he is convinced that God has chosen them. At this very time God assures him that He had many people in Corinth (Ac. 18<sup>10</sup>).

<sup>6</sup> What fervor, what zeal, was shown by this ecclesia! Only a few months before they bowed down to idols. Now, in the face of a furious persecution, they fearlessly proclaim Christ. They have no thought of confining themselves to their own city or even their own province. This was indeed a model even at that time, and how

PAUL and Silvanus and Timothy to the ecclesia of the Thessalonians in God, the Father, and the Lord Jesus Christ:

Grace to you and peace, from God, our Father, and the Lord Jesus Christ.

<sup>2</sup> We are thanking God always concerning you all, making mention
<sup>3</sup> of you in our prayers, unintermittingly remembering your work of faith and toil of love and endurance of expectation of our Lord Jesus Christ, in front of our God
<sup>5</sup> God, seeing that the evangel of our God did not come to you in word only, but in power also, and in holy spirit and much assurance, according as you are aware, such as we became among you because of you.

<sup>6</sup> And you became imitators of us and of the Lord, receiving the word in much affliction with joy of <sup>7</sup> holy spirit, so that you become models to all those who are believing in Macedonia and in Achaia.
<sup>8</sup> For from you the word of the Lord has been sounded forth, not only in Macedonia and in Achaia, but in every place your faith toward God has come out, so that we have
<sup>9</sup> no need to be speaking aught, for they are reporting, concerning us, what kind of entrance we have had to you, and how you turned back to God from idols, to be serving for the living and true God

much more so now! Every member was a missionary. Their conduct forced the very enemies of Paul to bear testimony to the reality of his work amongst them (Ac.17<sup>e</sup>).

<sup>10</sup> Waiting has no English equivalent. It is used in the papyri of those who were required to settle their debts without waiting the full term.

The secret of Paul's Thessalonian evangelism is twofold. He did not seek to turn them from their idols. That was incidental. He turned them to God. God and His grace provide the impelling power. In doing this they must needs turn their back on the idols they had worshiped. But more than this, he put before them a vital expectation. It was not a dead Christ he proclaimed to them. Nor did he stop with the resurrection. He engaged their hearts with the ascended Son of God, Whom they might expect to leave His place in heaven in order to receive them to Himself.

PAUL'S ENTRANCE

<sup>4</sup> There is an overwhelming temptation to please men, in evangelistic work. The marvelous success of Paul's short ministry in Thessalonica arose from his determination to please God at any cost.

<sup>5</sup> The apostle, in discussing his own motives and methods, gives us an ideal by which to test all such efforts. Flattery is barred out. Avarice is denounced. He himself did not even get a living for his labor, for the Philipians sent him aid even in Thessalonica (Phil.4<sup>16</sup>). How many are willing to work for such wages today? As an apostle he deserved the highest honors, and could have demanded them, but he preferred to get no glory from men. His personal presence was weak and his oratory despicable (so said the Corinthians, 2 Cor.10<sup>10</sup>), but his love was great, his tenderness was touching, his toil and labor, to avoid being a burden to them, were more eloquent than words, and his conduct above reproach.

of the heavens, Whom He rouses from among the dead, Jesus, Who is rescuing us out of the coming indignation.

<sup>2</sup> For you yourselves are aware, brethren, that our entrance to you has not come to be for naught, <sup>2</sup> but, though suffering before and being outraged at Philippi, according as you are aware, we are bold in our God to speak the evangel of God to you with a vast struggle. <sup>3</sup> For our entreaty is not out of deception, nor yet out of uncleanness, <sup>4</sup> nor yet with guile, but, according as we have been tested by God to be entrusted with the evangel, thus are we speaking, not as pleasing men, but God, Who is testing our <sup>5</sup> hearts. For neither did we at any time become flattering in expression, according as you are aware, neither with a pretense of greed, <sup>6</sup> God is witness, neither seeking glory from men, neither from you, nor from others, when we could be <sup>7</sup> a burden as Christ's apostles. But we became gentle in your midst, as if a nurse should be cherishing her <sup>8</sup> own children. Thus being ardently attached to you, we are delighting to share with you not only God's evangel, but our own souls also, because you came to be beloved by us.

<sup>9</sup> For you remember, brethren, our toil and labor: working night and day so as not to burden any of you, we proclaim to you God's <sup>10</sup> evangel. You are witnesses, and God, how benignly and justly and blamelessly we became to <sup>11</sup> you who are believing, even in

7 What figure could more touchingly convey the apostle's genuine affection for the Thessalonians than that of a nursing mother? How unselfish and gentle and self-sacrificing is her care! The soul is the seat of sensation. To impart his own soul to them conveys the thought that he, like the true mother, would endure any discomfort or weariness for their sakes.

11 The figure of a father is no less affectionate. His solicitude for his own is spontaneous and real. He has the welfare of his children at heart. So Paul dealt with the beloved saints at Thessalonica.

PAUL'S THANKSGIVING

13 Nothing is more important than that the scriptures, in their pristine purity, be received as the word of God. Greece and the adjacent provinces were famed for their philosophies. Yet which of them ever produced effects to compare with the few words spoken by the apostle? He who fails to get beyond the preacher to the One Whose word he speaks has less than nothing. The one who hears the words of God receives everything.

16 What an exhibition of God's sovereign grace! The Jews, with all their advantages and their divine ritual, suffer a foretaste of God's indignation as it will be displayed in the day of the Lord. After the siege of Jerusalem under Titus, their temple was destroyed, their city razed and their whole polity brought to an end. When they go back to their land and establish their religious rites again they will meet the more disastrous indignation of Jehovah. The Thessalonians, who had no claims on God's mercy, suffer, indeed, from their countrymen, but are promised immunity in the day of His indignation.

PAUL BEREAVED

17 Paul was torn from the Thessalonians long before he wished to go, but God had other work for him to do, especially in Corinth, where he wrote this letter. It does not seem that his desire was gratified till some years later, when he went over Macedonia on his way to Greece (Ac.20<sup>2</sup>).

accord with what you are aware—to each one of you, as a father to his own children, consoling and comforting you and testifying unto you to walk worthily of God, Who calls you to His own kingdom and glory.

13 And therefore we also are thanking God unintermittingly that, in accepting the word heard from us, you receive of God, not the word of men, but (according as it truly is) the word of God, which is operating also in you who are believing.

14 For you became imitators, brethren, of the ecclesias of God which are in Christ Jesus in Judea, seeing that you suffered the same—even you by your own fellow-tribesmen according as they also 15 by the Jews, who also killed the Lord Jesus and the prophets and banish us, and are not pleasing to God, and are contrary to all mankind, forbidding us to speak to the nations that they may be saved, to fill up their sins always. Yet they have a foretaste of the consummating indignation. See (internal 1909)

17 Now we, brethren, being bereaved of you for the period of an hour, in face, not in heart, endeavor the more exceedingly to see your face, with much yearning,
18 because we want to come to you, indeed I Paul, once—even twice—19 and Satan hinders us. For what is our expectation, or joy, or wreath of glorying? Is it not even you, in front of our Lord Jesus, at

<sup>10</sup> The "deficiencies" in the faith of the Thessalonians are met in this epistle and in his second letter to them, as well as in all his nine letters to the seven ecclesias. The historical order of Paul's epistles should always be borne in mind. While the Thessalonian epistles come after the Ephesian group in the canon, they were written long before, during one of the earlier ministries of the apostle. Perhaps one of the important lessons for the apostle himself lay in his enforced absence from Thessalonica. The spiritual contact of an epistle accords much more with the trend of his ministries than his personal presence. His epistles, also, have ministered to millions who have found themselves in need of the same help that he extended to the Thessalonians.

This is the key to much that is inexplicable in the later epistles of Paul. He is always looking forward with confidence to a physical presence with those to whom he wrote. Even if the expectations were fulfilled, the Scriptures are silent, and leave us with the impression that his presence, like his ministry, forsook the physical.

<sup>3</sup> Wherefore, when we could by no means longer refrain, it seems well
<sup>2</sup> for us to be left at Athens alone, and we send Timothy, our brother and God's servant in the evangel of Christ, to establish and to console <sup>3</sup> you in behalf of your faith. Now no one is to be swayed by these afflictions, for you yourselves are aware that we are located for this.
<sup>4</sup> For even when we were with you we predicted to you that "we are about to be afflicted", according as it occurred also, and you are aware.

<sup>5</sup> Therefore, when I could by no means longer refrain, I send to know of your faith, lest somehow the tryer try you and our toil may be coming to be for naught.
<sup>6</sup> Yet at present, because of Timothy's coming to us from you and bringing us the evangel of your faith and love, and that you have a good remembrance of us always, longing to see us even according as <sup>7</sup> we also you — therefore we were consoled, brethren, over you in all our necessity and affliction, through <sup>8</sup> your faith, seeing that now we are living if you are standing in the
<sup>9</sup> Lord. For what thanksgiving are we able to repay to God concerning you for all the joy with which we are rejoicing because of you in <sup>10</sup> front of our God, night and day beseeching exceedingly to see your face and to readjust the deficiencies <sup>11</sup> of your faith? Now may God Himself, even our Father, and our Lord Jesus, direct our way to you!

THE LORD'S PRESENCE

<sup>12</sup> Paul gives us the true motive and incentive of a holy life and a steadfast faith. It springs from the overflow of love to our fellow saints and to all others as well. It looks forward to the presence of Him Who does not decide by the outward appearance, but rewards according to the secret motives of the heart. The presence of our Lord is to be understood in its plainest literal sense. This is His absence. Whenever He is actually near and known, He will be present.

ASKING AND ENTREATING

<sup>3</sup> Looseness in marriage relations is one of the saddest spots on the history of mankind. The gods of the nations were most offensive in this regard and their reputed misdeeds gave ample excuse for the trespasses of their devotees. Besides this the religious ceremonies and rites by which they were worshiped gave sanction to the most debasing excesses and abuses. No wonder the apostle speaks plainly and sharply. He will allow no trifling. Each one is to have his own wife and is not to interfere with his brother in this matter. No doubt the apostle refers to special customs and abuses in Thessalonica.

WRITING NOT NECESSARY

<sup>9</sup> One of the earliest impulses of the new life of the believer is to love his fellow saints. We are taught by God. It is instinctive and should be fostered and encouraged. Let us not allow party lines and differences in details to divide between us and all who have the same life and harbor the same love.

<sup>11</sup> In the midst of such a great spiritual awakening as occurred at Thessalonica there is a temptation to neglect the necessary duties of life and mistake enthusiasm and noise for the quiet yet powerful operations of the spirit. The apostle urges them to attend to their own affairs and provide for their needs, so that their enemies will not find occasion to reproach them.

<sup>12</sup> Now may the Lord cause you to increase and superabound in love for one another and for all, even according as we also for you, to establish your hearts unblamable in holiness in front of our God and Father, in the presence of our Lord Jesus with all His saints.

<sup>4</sup> Furthermore, then, brethren, we are asking you and entreating in the Lord Jesus, that, according as you accepted from us how you must be walking and pleasing God (according as you are walking also), that you may be superabounding yet more, for you are aware what charges we give to you through the Lord Jesus. For this is the will of God—your holiness. You are to be abstaining from all prostitution; each of you is to be aware of his own vessel, to be acquiring it in holiness and honor, not in lustful passion even according as the nations also who have no perception of God. No one is to be circumventing and overreaching his brother in this matter, because the Lord is the Avenger of all these, according as we said to you before also and certify, for God calls us, not for uncleanness, but in holiness. Surely, in consequence, then, he who is repudiating is not repudiating men, but God, Who is also giving you His holy spirit.

<sup>9</sup> Now concerning brotherly affection we have no need to be writing to you, for you yourselves are taught by God to be loving one another, for you are doing it also to all the brethren who are in the

THOSE REPOSING

<sup>13</sup> We do not sorrow when our dear ones are literally reposing. The reference is to death under a most beautiful figure for the distressed Thessalonian saints. The resurrection of Jesus is the guarantee that all who are His will likewise be raised. Until Paul received this revelation, the only resurrection of the saints was the "resurrection of life" (Jn.5:29) called the "former" resurrection (Un. 205), at the beginning of the thousand years, after the judgment period. Then the Lord comes down to earth. The saints are not snatched into the air. But this resurrection follows the Lord's presence in the air long before His coming to the earth. It precedes the great judgment era which ushers in the day of Jehovah. Being justified in the blood of Christ, we shall be saved from God's indignation through Him (Rom.5<sup>9</sup>). God has not assigned us to indignation but to the procuring of salvation (5<sup>9</sup>). This new revelation is further unfolded to the Corinthians (1Co.15<sup>51</sup>), where the secret is disclosed that the living, as well as the dead, will be changed. Both will be given incorruptible, spiritual, celestial bodies, without which, indeed, they could hardly meet Him in the air. The crowning glory of this blessed expectation was made known to the Philippians. These bodies of humiliation will be transfigured to conform them to that glorious body which blinded Paul when first he beheld Him (Phil.3:21Ac.9<sup>3,8,18</sup>).

<sup>17</sup> "We, the living." Paul does not insist that he must survive to the advent, any more than he meant to assert positively that he should die when he said the Lord Jesus "shall raise us up" (2 Cor.4:14).

<sup>2</sup> This is man's day (1 Cor.4<sup>3</sup>). It is near its end. The day of Jehovah, with its awful divine judgments, is fast approaching. It will give no notice of its coming. On the contrary, it will seem unnecessary and impossible. Is it not true that never, in the history of the race, was there such a hope and expectation of the end of war? The parliament of nations; the reduction of armaments, the federation of the world—are we not already boasting in peace and security?

whole of Macedonia. Now we are entreating you, brethren, to be <sup>11</sup> superabounding yet more, and that you be ambitious to be quiet, and to be engaged in your own affairs, and to be working with your own hands, according as we charge you, <sup>12</sup> that you may be walking respectably toward those outside, and you may have need of nothing.

<sup>13</sup> Now we do not want you to be ignorant, brethren, concerning those who are reposing, lest you may be sorrowed according as others also <sup>14</sup> who have no expectation. For if we are believing that Jesus died and rose, thus also, those who are put to repose, will God, through Jesus, <sup>15</sup> lead forth with Him. For this we are saying to you by the word of the Lord, that we, the living, who are surviving unto the presence of the Lord, shall by no means outstrip those who are put to <sup>16</sup> repose, seeing that the Lord Himself will be descending from heaven with the shout of command, with the voice of the Chief Messenger, and with the trumpet of God, and the dead in Christ <sup>17</sup> shall be rising first. Thereupon we, the living who are surviving, shall at the same time be snatched away together with them in clouds, for meeting the Lord in the air. And thus shall we always be together with the Lord. <sup>18</sup> So that, be consoling one another with these words.

<sup>5</sup> Now concerning the times and the eras, brethren, you have no <sup>2</sup> need to be written to, for you yourselves are accurately aware that the day of the Lord is as a thief in the night—thus is it coming. Now whenever they may be <sup>3</sup> saying "Peace and security", then extermination is standing

THOSE DROWSING

4 The day of the Lord with its terrors and destruction is not for us. The cry of "peace and security" should not lull us to sleep. We should be on the alert, knowing the futility of all security and peace apart from Christ. And, though aware of the whirlpool into which this world is sweeping, we have no fear, for it will not engulf us. But, suppose that we, too, relax our vigilance and take a nap along with the rest. Will we be left for judgment? At His coming to set up the kingdom it is vital that they watch or they will lose their reward (Mt.24<sup>42</sup>25<sup>13</sup>Mk.13<sup>34</sup>Lu.12<sup>37</sup>Un.3<sup>31</sup>6<sup>15</sup>). Not so here. Those who received Paul's gospel of faith apart from deeds, find their salvation a matter of pure unadulterated grace. This is true of the future as well as the past. The death of Christ, not our conduct, our watchfulness or the lack of it, is the foundation on which our future salvation rests just as really as the salvation which we already enjoy. This confidence will not lead to laxness.

8 The believer's armor is defensive. His only weapon is the spirit's sword, the word of God. Not, indeed, every statement in the scriptures, for some of it is an inspired record of human philosophy and the very lies of the adversary are contained in its pages, but every actual declaration which has proceeded forth from God through His accredited prophets and apostles. These are powerful and effective. No other weapon should be used. For defense we rely on faith and love for the present and on the blessed expectation of our gathering together unto Him for the future. This is figured by the helmet. No judgment from above can harm us. When heaven's judgments fall we will be safe above them in His presence.

ASKING AND ENTREATING

12 Love and patience should characterize all our intercourse with fellow saints. Love will lead us to acknowledge those who are over us and to bear with those below. It will rule out all retaliation.

16 Constant joy, constant prayer, constant thanksgiving is the normal privilege of all saints.

over them unawares, even as travail over the pregnant, and they may by no means escape.

4 Now you, brethren, are not in darkness, that the day should be overtaking you as a thief, for you are all sons of the light and sons of the day. We are not of the night
6 nor of darkness. Consequently then, we should not be drowsing, even as the rest, but we may be watching and sober. For those who are drowsing are drowsing at night, and those who are drunk
8 are drunk at night. Yet we, being of the day, may be sober, putting on the cuirass of faith and love, and the helmet, the expectation of salvation, seeing that 10 God did not appoint us to indignation, but to the procuring of salvation through our Lord Jesus Christ, the One dying for us, that, whether we may be watching or drowsing, we should be living at the same time together with Him.
11 Wherefore, be consoling one another and edifying one the other, according as you are doing also.

12 Now we are asking you, brethren, to perceive those who are toiling among you and presiding over you in the Lord and admonishing you, and to deem them exceedingly distinguished in love, because of their work. Be at 14 peace among yourselves. Now we are entreating you, brethren, admonish the disorderly, comfort the faint-hearted, uphold the infirm, be patient toward all. See that no one may be rendering evil for evil to anyone, but always be pursuing that which is good for one another and for all. Be rejoicing always. Be praying unintermittingly. In everything be giving thanks, for this is the will of

<sup>20</sup> These exhortations are made in view of the changing character of Paul's ministries. They became more spiritual as time advanced. The gift of prophecy was especially adapted to meet the need of the saints until God's complete revelation should be given (1 Cor. 12:10, 13). Yet they were to be tested and only those in line with the ideal toward which God was working were to be permanent.

<sup>23</sup> The lame man who sat at the Beautiful gate of the temple (Ac. 3:2-16) had unimpaired health and strength after he was healed. The same word is used here but is extended to the soul and spirit as well. This, and far more, will be our lot in His presence even should any part be lame or deficient now!

God in Christ Jesus for you. <sup>19</sup> Quench not the spirit. <sup>20</sup> Scorn not prophecies, but be testing all, retaining the ideal. Be abstaining from every appearance of wickedness.

<sup>23</sup> Now may the God of peace Himself hallow you wholly; and may your unimpaired spirit and soul and body be kept blameless in the presence of our Lord Jesus Christ! <sup>24</sup> Faithful is He Who is calling you, Who will be doing it also. <sup>25</sup> Brethren, be praying for us also. <sup>26</sup> Greet all the brethren with a holy <sup>27</sup> kiss. I am adjuring you by the Lord, that this epistle is to be read to all the holy brethren.

II. THESSALONIANS

This second letter to the Thessalonians is a sequel to the first. The Thessalonians are still unable to distinguish between the rage of man and the wrath of God. Their continued trial and persecution leads them to conclude that God is against them instead of for them. The kingdom of God, which was proclaimed among them, is to be introduced with divine judgments. The day of the Lord, in which it will be set up, opens with an unparalleled display of divine indignation. They still persist in imagining that this day had begun, especially as, in some way, this was represented to be the apostle's teaching (2<sup>2</sup>).

In reply Paul and his fellow workers define these dreaded judgments as those which fall only on those being unacquainted with God and who do not obey the evangel, especially on such as their persecutors. Their main argument is founded on the teaching of the first epistle in reference to the Lord's presence and our assembling with Him in the air. There they had been definitely taught that this must occur before the day of His indignation.

The secret phase of lawlessness has been in operation throughout this economy, but its full development has been held in check by the presence of the saints. When we are taken out of the midst, then, and not till then, will the apostasy bear its bitter fruit. Its presence will be indicated by the presence of the man of lawlessness, corresponding to the head of the wild beast of the Unveiling of Jesus Christ (Un.13<sup>1</sup>) who will be seconded by the false prophet who does signs and miracles to prove his claims (Un.13<sup>11</sup>). By these mankind is deluded to its destruction.

But the Thessalonians are not deceived by God but preferred for salvation and belief of the truth and the glory of the Lord Jesus Christ.

The latter part of the epistle is devoted to some practical disorders, especially busybodies who do not work for their living.

SALUTATION, Peace and grace 3<sup>16</sup>-3<sup>18</sup>

The literary framework is a simple alternation within the salutations. A thanksgiving, a prayer, and an admonition are found in this order in both the former and latter half of the letter.

If the epistle is read with its leading thought in mind—that we are delivered from the coming divine indignation—it will be seen to give it color and warmth everywhere, and especially in the assurances of God's mind toward them in their trials.

THANKSGIVING

<sup>3</sup> The sufferings which were distressing the Thessalonians were the occasion of joy and boasting on the part of the apostle, for it proved the reality of their faith in Christ and developed their affection for one another. He adroitly turns their mistaken idea, that God is afflicting them, into the opposite, that their very sufferings are a sure index that those who afflict them will suffer at His hands. He lays due stress on the fact that God's indignation comes upon those who do not know Him and who do not obey the evangel. By thus turning the minds of the Thessalonians to the future he consoles them in their present trials. Then the opposers will suffer, not only for their sins, but for their persecution of God's saints, while those who are now in distress will enjoy ease and relaxation during the unveiling of the Lord Jesus from heaven. This passage alone should restrain us from including the saints of this economy in any of the companies of the saved mentioned in the scroll of His Unveiling. The persistence with which this thought clung to the Thessalonians is accounted for by the fact that the Circumcision did expect to go through the terrors of that day. Those who endured to the end would be saved. Paul was introducing a new and unknown doctrine, corresponding to his evangel for the nations, in which God's unadulterated grace is far more pronounced than in the gospel of the kingdom as proclaimed by the other apostles.

PRAYER

<sup>12</sup> His prayer for them was that they might respond to this grace of God by a present conduct, in the midst of suffering, which would glorify God and His Christ.

PAUL and Silvanus and Timothy to the ecclesia of the Thessalonians in God, our Father, and the Lord Jesus Christ:

<sup>2</sup> Grace to you and peace, from God, our Father, and the Lord Jesus Christ.

<sup>3</sup> We ought to be thanking God always concerning you, brethren, according as it is meet, seeing that your faith is flourishing and the love of each one of you all for one

<sup>4</sup> another is increasing, so that we ourselves glory in you in the ecclesias of God, for your endurance and faith in all your persecutions and the afflictions which you are

<sup>5</sup> bearing—a display of the just judgment of God, to deem you worthy of the kingdom of God, for <sup>6</sup> which you are suffering also, if so be that it is just of God to repay

<sup>7</sup> affliction to those afflicting you, and to you who are being afflicted, ease, with us, at the unveiling of the Lord Jesus from heaven with

<sup>8</sup> His powerful messengers, in flaming fire dealing out vengeance to those who are not acquainted with God and those who are not obeying the evangel of our Lord

<sup>9</sup> Jesus Christ, who shall incur the justice of eonian extermination from the face of the Lord, and from the glory of His strength; 25 only

<sup>10</sup> whenever He should be coming to be glorified in His saints and to be marveled at in all who believe (seeing that our testimony to you was believed) in that day—

<sup>11</sup> For which we are always praying also concerning you, that

ADMONITION—APOSTASY

<sup>1</sup> The controlling thought in this section of the epistle is based on the teaching of the first letter. Had they fully accepted and understood what he had already written to them they never would have been led to believe that the day of the Lord was already present. In the meantime it seems that Paul has been misrepresented in this matter, perhaps by a forged letter (<sup>317</sup>). He now gives two of the salient signs which will be present when the day of the Lord comes: the apostasy and the man of lawlessness. Neither of these was present at that time.

<sup>3</sup> The man of lawlessness (as the two best manuscripts name him) seems to correspond closely with the head of the wild beast (Un. 131<sup>3-8</sup>). The whole earth will worship him except the few whose names are written in the Lamb's scroll of life. It is evident from this passage that, at the time of the end, there will be a temple of God. That this should be elsewhere than Jerusalem seems impossible. So we may look, not only for a return of the Jews to their own land, but also for a restoration of their ancient ritual and a rebuilding of their temple. For anyone except a priest to enter the holy place is itself a terrible desecration, but for any man to usurp Jehovah's place in the holy of holies and demonstrate his own divinity is the most awful and appalling crime of which a human being is capable. This leads to the desolating abomination of Daniel 9<sup>27</sup>, which probably consists in placing the image of the wild beast (Un. 134<sup>4</sup>) in the holy place of the temple. Our Lord warns those living in Judea to flee to the mountains (Mt. 24<sup>15-22</sup>), for then the great affliction (which alarmed the Thessalonians) would come.

<sup>7</sup> The influences which will bring about the great apostasy of the end time have been at work from the beginning, but have been restrained by another, counteracting force. What is this? Some have supposed it to be the spirit of God. But the spirit of God will continue to work throughout the apostasy, enabling a few to endure to the end, and empowering our God should be counting you worthy of the calling, and should be fulfilling every delight of goodness and work of faith in power, so that the name of our Lord Jesus may be glorified in you, and you in Him, in accord with the grace of our God and the Lord Jesus Christ.

<sup>2</sup> Now we are asking you, brethren, in behalf of the presence of our Lord Jesus Christ and our assembling with Him, that you be not quickly shaken from your mind, nor yet be alarmed, either through a spirit, or through a word, or through an epistle as through us, as that the day of the Lord is present. No one should be deluding you by any method, for, should not the apostasy be coming first and the man of lawlessness be unveiled, the son of destruction, who is opposing and elevating himself above everything termed a god or an object of veneration, so that he is seated in the temple of God, demonstrating that he himself is God? Do you not remember that, being still with you, I told you these things?

<sup>6</sup> And now you are aware what is detaining, for him to be unveiled in his own era. For the secret phase of lawlessness, already in operation, is only till that which is detaining at present may be coming to be out of the midst. And then the lawless one will be unveiled (whom the Lord Jesus will despatch with the spirit of His mouth and will abolish by the advent of His presence), whose presence is in accord with the operation of Satan with all power and signs and false miracles, and with others to be faithful unto death. It has been suggested that Satan "holds fast" his place in the celestial spheres, for when he is cast out the apostasy commences. His ejection does mark the crisis between the secret and open manifestation of the apostasy, but that which is restrained is evidently the apostasy, not a place in the celestial realms. The apostasy is restrained by the presence of the saints. When we are taken out of the midst by our assembling with Christ in the air, then the apostasy and all its terrible train of afflictions will deluge the earth with fire. Thus the apostle proves that their own presence on earth is conclusive evidence that they were not enduring the afflictions of the Lord's day.

9 Nothing is more necessary in these declining days of this dispensation than to warn the saints of the danger of being deceived, not by that which appears evil, but by that which has all the outward evidences of good. Satan is transformed into a messenger of light and his servants are servants of righteousness (2Co.11<sup>14,15</sup>). But, in the next era, God will be back of the deception. The false prophet will do the very signs which, in Elijah's day, proved the deity of Jehovah (1Ki.18<sup>24</sup>Un.15<sup>13</sup>), and he is empowered even to give a spirit to the image of the wild beast (Un.13<sup>15</sup>) so that it will actually speak. Thus will the man of lawlessness demonstrate his divinity.

THANKSGIVING

13 The Thessalonian saints (and all who believe in Christ) need have no fear of the terrible trial which is coming on the earth, for God has not sent them a deception, to condemn them, but prefers them for salvation through belief of the truth and for the procuring of the glory of our Lord Jesus Christ. What a glorious contrast!

PRAYER

1 Paul desired their prayers that he might lead others into the blessed position which they occupied.

every seduction of injustice among those who are being destroyed, because they do not receive the love of the truth, for 11 their salvation. And therefore God will be sending them an operation of deception, that they
12 should believe the falsehood, that all may be judged who do not believe the truth, but delight in injustice.

13 Now we ought to be thanking God always concerning you, brethren, beloved by the Lord, seeing that God prefers you from the beginning for salvation, in hallowing of the spirit and belief of the 14 truth, into which He also calls us through our evangel, for the procuring of the glory of our Lord
15 Jesus Christ. Consequently, then, brethren, stand firm, and hold to the traditions which you were taught, whether through word or 16 through our epistle. Now may our Lord Jesus Christ Himself, and God, our Father, Who loves us, and is giving us an eonian consolation and a good expectation in 17 grace, console your hearts and establish you in every good work and word.

3 Furthermore, be praying, brethren, concerning us, that the word of the Lord may race and be glorified, according as it is with you also,
2 and that we may be rescued from abnormal and wicked men, for not
3 all have faith. Yet the Lord is faithful, Who will establish and guard you from the wicked one.
4 Now we have confidence in you in the Lord that what we are charging, you are doing also and will be
5 doing. Now may the Lord be

ADMONITION

<sup>6</sup> Discipline was necessary even in such a warm-hearted, zealous ecclesia as Thessalonica. The occasion was not doing wrong but doing nothing. Just as the grace of God provides for our salvation from all trial and all affliction in the future, but brings both in the present, so it will also bring rest and relaxation in that day but calls for toil and labor until then. We should not shirk our work. He who does not work has no right to eat. And if anyone goes about as a busybody, seeking his food from his friends, we should avoid him, yet treat him with all the grace necessary to correct his disorderly conduct.

<sup>7</sup> "Thou shalt not muzzle the ox that treadeth out the corn" is the divine law for God's servants. They have a right to require support, for the Lord has appointed that those who are proclaiming the evangel should live of the evangel. But Paul did not use this right, but availed himself of the higher privilege of making the evangel absolutely free (1 Cor. 9:1-19). He pursued the same course in Corinth and doubtless wrote this letter in an interval between evangelistic labors and tent making, for he worked with Aquila and Priscilla at that trade (Ac. 18:1-3). Thus he was able to point to his own conduct as a model for the disorderly. The power of such an argument is apparent.

directing your hearts into the love of God and into the endurance of Christ!

<sup>6</sup> Now we are charging you, brethren, in the name of our Lord Jesus Christ, that you be putting from you every brother who is walking disorderly and not in accord with the tradition which they accepted from us. For you yourselves are aware how you must be imitating us, seeing that we are not disorderly among you, neither did we eat bread gratuitously from any one, but, with toil and labor, we worked night and day, so as not to burden any of you. Not that we have not the right, but that we may be giving you ourselves as a model, that you should be imitating us. For even when we were with you we charged you thus, that "If anyone is not willing to work, neither let him eat". For we are hearing that some among you are walking disorderly, not working at all, but are meddling. Now such we are charging and entreating in the Lord Jesus Christ, that, quietly working, they may eat their own bread. Now you, brethren, should not be despondent in well-doing. Now if anyone is not obeying our word through this epistle, let this be a sign to you not to commingle with him, that he may be abashed, and do not deem him as an enemy, but be admonishing him as a brother.

<sup>16</sup> Now may the Lord of peace Himself give you peace continually by every means! The Lord be with you all!

PAUL'S PERSONAL EPISTLES

PAUL's letters to Timothy and Titus are concerned with conduct in service. Not only are they given instructions for their own guidance, but rules are laid down for the selection and service of elders, or supervisors, and servants. These two classes were officially recognized and appointed and their functions defined. Besides this there are exhortations for all the various classes in the ecclesias, old and young, the rich and the dependent widow, and slaves. Indeed, these epistles contain the constitution of the church. The second epistle to Timothy is especially applicable to the last days, showing whom and what to avoid, and with whom we may associate.

Philemon makes most gracious provision for those in bondage to believing masters.

I TIMOTHY

As a guide in understanding the great contrast between Paul's two epistles to Timothy it is important to know when the first epistle was penned. If it was written to Timothy in Ephesus while Paul went to Macedonia, we have no situation corresponding to it in the book of Acts, and it is difficult to understand why the instructions given should be needed in Ephesus where Paul had labored so long and which had the benefit of his personal superintendence for years.

If we reverse the situation and send Timothy to Macedonia to the ecclesias from which Paul had been driven before he could set them in order, and to which he dared not go on peril of his life, every precept in the epistle is full of point, and we have circumstances which exactly correspond in Acts 19<sup>22</sup>. This places the epistle at the second crisis in the apostle's ministry (Ac.19<sup>21</sup>Ro.15<sup>19</sup>2Cor.5<sup>16</sup>). His second epistle was written after the third and final crisis. This places a great gap between them which accounts for the vast difference in the aspect of affairs.

In the first epistle we have the ecclesia described as God's house, the pillar and base of the truth (3<sup>15</sup>). In the second it has become a "great house" with utensils of various kinds, both honorable and base (2<sup>20</sup>). In the first the pristine power of faith holds all together. In the second the dominant note is apostasy.

CONCLUSION 6<sup>21</sup>

<sup>3</sup> Translators have experienced much difficulty with this opening sentence, because it seemed to lack the principal verb. The A. V. adds so do, the Revisers, so do I now. If, however, we take the first word, "accordingly", as an independent link with some previous consultation of Paul and Timothy, and render "entreat" by its alternative, "console", (as in Mt.2:18 1 Thes.4:18 etc.), there is no need of supplying any verb. Furthermore, the clause "going into Macedonia that you may charge . . ." may be allowed its natural sense, which is, that Timothy, not Paul, is the one referred to. Then, connecting the infinitive with the verb to which it refers, we find that Paul is to remain in Ephesus. It was dangerous for Paul to go to Macedonia. Timothy entreats him to delay until he had gone first. So Paul dispatches him (Ac.19:22), following himself later (Ac.20:1). This letter combines Timothy's instructions and credentials.

<sup>4</sup> The interminable genealogies and teaching of the law point directly to the Circumcision. The unbelieving Jews were not only the bitterest enemies Paul encountered, as the record in Acts reveals, but those who joined the believers were often unable to break away from their inborn traditions. It was just at this time that Paul announced the new creation, in which physical relationships are ignored (2 Cor.5:16). The genealogies of Judaism have their place, but not in his evangel.

<sup>8</sup> The law, too, had its place and mission. It was never given to the nations (Ro.2:14). By it is the recognition of sin (Ro.3:20). It was added, long after the promise was given, to involve Israel in transgression, until the Seed came to Whom the promises were made (Gal.3:19). He redeems them from it and gives them the place of sons (Gal.4:5). Christ is the law's consummation to everyone who believes (Ro.10:4). Against the believer there is no law (Gal.5:23). We are not under law, but under grace (Ro.6:14).

<sup>11</sup> "Happy" seems to be the only word we have which enables us to distinguish between this term and "blessed".

PAUL, an apostle of Christ Jesus, according to the injunction of God our Saviour, and the Lord Jesus Christ, our Expectation, to Timothy, a genuine child in faith:

Grace, mercy, peace, from God, our Father, and Christ Jesus, our Lord.

<sup>3</sup> ACCORDINGLY, I console you by remaining in Ephesus, that you, while going into Macedonia, should be charging some not to be teaching differently, nor to be heeding myths and interminable genealogies, which are affording exactions, rather than God's stewardship which is in faith.

<sup>5</sup> Now the consummation of the charge is love out of a clean heart, and a good conscience, and unfeigned faith, from which some, swerving, were turned aside into vain prating, wanting to be teachers of the law, neither apprehending what they are saying, nor that concerning which they are insisting. Now we are aware that the law is ideal if anyone is using it lawfully, being aware of this, that law is not laid down for the just, but for the lawless and insubordinate, the irreverent and sinners, the malign and profane, parricides and matricides, homicides, paramours, sodomites, kidnapers, liars, perjurers, and if there is any other thing opposing sound teaching, in accord with the evangel of the glory of the happy God, with which I was entrusted.

<sup>12</sup> I am grateful to Him Who invigorates me, Christ Jesus, our Lord, seeing that He deems me faithful, assigning me a dispensation, who formerly was a cal-

 13 INTO THRU-SERVICE THE BEFORE-more

<sup>16</sup> Paul's case is a pattern of God's present ways in grace. Instead of reforming and repenting and seeking to gain God's favor, he was madly endeavoring to do all in his power against Christ and His people (Ac.9 1-2). He was the foremost sinner of his day, and deserved the direst doom. Instead, he receives the greatest grace. Once outside the land of Israel, where God's grace was unrestrained by the law and His dealings with the covenant people, God calls him and transforms him into His most brilliant exponent of grace. Corresponding to the gracious character of his call, he is assigned to the dispensation of God's grace among the nations, a ministry distinct and different from that of any of the twelve apostles. They had mercy for the nations as a result of Israel's blessing: he dispensed grace in spite of, and resulting from, Israel's failure.

<sup>1</sup> At the crisis in the apostle's career when this epistle was written, he first made known the secret of the evangel, the conciliation (Ro.5<sup>11</sup>). The scope of blessing has been gradually widening. The evangel of the kingdom, linked with the name of David, included only Israelites and proselytes. The evangel of God, associated with the name of Abraham, brought blessing to those among the nations who believed. The secret of the evangel (Ro.16<sup>25</sup>) set forth in the fifth of Romans, called the conciliation, refers us to Adam, and reaches the whole race, though it brings reconciliation only to those who receive it. Hence our sympathies and prayers should go out for all mankind.

<sup>4</sup> God's will for all mankind will not be fulfilled until the consummation (1 Cor.15<sup>24</sup>). Only those who believe receive eonian salvation now. Those who acknowledge that God is greater than man, and that His will is more powerful than man's will, believe and exult in the final salvation of all mankind.

umniator and a persecutor and an outrager: but I was shown mercy, seeing that I did it ignorantly, in <sup>14</sup>unbelief. Yet the grace of our Lord overwhelms, with faith and <sup>15</sup>love in Christ Jesus. Faithful is the saying, and worthy of all welcome, that Christ Jesus came into the world to save sinners, foremost <sup>16</sup>of whom am I. But because of this was I shown mercy, that in me, the foremost, Jesus Christ should be displaying all patience, for a pattern of those who are about to be believing on Him for eonian life.

<sup>18</sup> This charge I am committing to you, child Timothy, according to the preceding prophecies about you, that in them you may be warring the ideal warfare, <sup>19</sup>having faith and a good conscience, which some thrusting away, have made shipwreck as concerns the faith; of whom are Hy- <sup>20</sup>meneus and Alexander, whom I give up to Satan, that they may be trained not to blaspheme.

2 I am entreating, then, first of all, that petitions, prayers, pleadings, thanksgiving be made for all <sup>2</sup>mankind, for kings and all those in a superior station, that we may be leading a mild and quiet life <sup>3</sup>in all devoutness and gravity, for this is ideal and welcome before <sup>4</sup>God our Saviour, Who wills all mankind to be saved and to come into a realization of the truth.

<sup>5</sup> This passage is primarily intended to break down the bounds in which salvation had hitherto been confined. The testimony of past eras is no basis on which to build in this era. The testimony to the nations, committed to the apostle Paul (which he deems it necessary to solemnly affirm) is to the effect that Christ was not only the Son of David, to confirm the kingdom to Israel, or the Son of Abraham, to bring blessing to the faithful, but He is Adam's greater Son, a Man, and as such, is the Mediator for the whole human race. Nor is Israel's God limited to them: for there is only one God for all mankind. The Man Christ Jesus is giving Himself as a Ransom for all. Only a few, comparatively, are vitally affected by this fact at present, but, in due time, the offense of Adam will be much more than offset by the just award of the Man, Christ Jesus (Ro.5:18). Paul was assigned this testimony for the present era. No other apostle presents it, for it is foreign to their ministry. Christ gave His soul a ransom for many (Mt.20:28), but gives Himself a ransom for all. Redemption is for the saints, during the eons. Ransom is for all when the eons end.

<sup>14</sup> The part played by Adam in the temptation receives much light from this passage. While Eve was utterly deluded, Adam was not, and probably partook so as to involve himself in the same plight as Eve. In this light, his defense, "the woman that thou gavest to be with me, she gave me of the tree, and I did eat" (Gen.3:12) has more of truth than is usually conceded. Perhaps it is especially in this sense—as deliberately involving himself in Eve's transgression—that we are to consider him as a type of Christ.

<sup>6</sup> Man, Christ Jesus, the One giving Himself a correspondent Ransom for all (the testimony in its own <sup>7</sup> eras), for which I was appointed a herald and an apostle (I am telling the truth, I am not lying), a teacher of the nations in knowledge and truth.

<sup>8</sup> I am intending, then, that men pray in every place, lifting up benign hands, apart from anger and <sup>9</sup> reasonings. Similarly, the women also are to be adorning themselves in decorous raiment, with modesty and sanity, not with braids and gold, or pearls or costly vesture, <sup>10</sup> but (what is becoming to women professing a reverence for God)
<sup>12</sup> subjection. Now I am not permitting a woman to be teaching, neither to be domineering over a <sup>13</sup> man, but to be quiet (for Adam was first molded, thereafter Eve, <sup>14</sup> and Adam was not seduced, but the woman, being deluded, has come <sup>15</sup> to be in the transgression). Yet she shall be saved through the bearing of children, should they be remaining in faith and love and holiness with sanity.

<sup>4</sup> not fond of money, controlling his own household ideally, having his children in subjection with all

5 GRAVITY IF YET ANY

<sup>1</sup> Each ecclesia in Paul's day seems to have had two distinct classes of officers, if we may so term them. There were the supervisors (sometimes called overseers or bishops), and the servants (or deacons). The supervisors seem to have had a general oversight of the ecclesia and its members, while the servants took a subordinate place, rendering such service as the ecclesia stood in need of. The qualifications for these positions are here given. Young and untested men were not welcome to these responsibilities. Indeed, it seems taken for granted that the supervisor is an elder (Compare Tit. 1<sup>5</sup> and 1<sup>7</sup>). Both supervisors and servants must show their fitness by controlling their own households.

<sup>15</sup> In this epistle the ecclesia is the public exponent of the truth. It is called "God's house." Like a pillar in the temple it upheld and manifested the truth of God. In Paul's second letter to Timothy, written after the apostasy had set in, he calls the ecclesia a "great house" in which are utensils both honorable and otherwise. Such is the case today. The church is no longer "the pillar and base of the truth."

<sup>16</sup> Not only is the manuscript evidence against the reading "God manifest in flesh", but other considerations force us to the same conclusion. In the typical teaching of the tabernacle the curtain represented His flesh (Heb. 10<sup>20</sup>). Now the veil did not reveal, but rather hid the Divine presence. It could not be said to manifest it. The phrase "justified in spirit" is also inept when applied to Christ. The proclamation among the nations is out of place, as no such ministry was attempted until long after He had been "taken up in glory."

The whole passage is concerned with conduct. The secret of devout conduct is traced in its various manifestations in those who are its subjects. It should be manifested in flesh by the ideal acts which it produces, it enjoys justification in spirit, is the subject of angelic inspection (Eph. 3<sup>10</sup>), is proclaimed among the nations, and will be removed from the world before the Lord appears in judgment.

aware how to preside over his own household, how will he care for the ecclesia of God?—no novice, lest, being conceited, he should be falling into the judgment of the Slanderer.

<sup>7</sup> Yet he must have an ideal testimony also from those outside, that he should not be falling into the reproach and trap of the Slanderer.

<sup>8</sup> Servants, similarly, are to be grave, not double-tongued, not addicted to much wine, not avaricious, having the secret of the faith in a clear conscience. Now let these also first be tested: afterward let them be serving, being unimpeachable. The wives, similarly, are to be grave, no slanderers, sober, faithful in all things. Let servants be husbands of one wife, presiding over children and their own households ideally, for those who serve ideally are procuring for themselves an ideal rank and much boldness in the faith which is in Christ Jesus.

<sup>14</sup> These things I am writing to you, expecting to come to you speedily, yet, should I be tardy, that you may be perceiving how one must conduct one's self in God's house, which is the ecclesia of the living God, the pillar and base of the truth. And avowedly great is the secret of devoutness, which was manifested in flesh, justified in spirit, viewed by messengers, proclaimed among the nations, believed in the world, taken up in glory.

<sup>4</sup> Now the spirit is saying explicitly, that in subsequent eras some will be withdrawing from the faith, giving heed to deceiving spirits and the teaching of demons,

 2 OF-DEMONS IN HYPOCRISY

1 The signs of the last days are all present with us now. The teaching of deceiving spirits and demons has become one of the great and popular cults of the day. Their deception seems chiefly to take the form of pretended communication with the dead, whom they personate. Their teaching, so far, has been fragmentary and contradictory, but an effort is being made to collect and publish their vague presentations. The following is a condensed epitome of their creed:

1. The Fatherhood of God.
2. The Brotherhood of Man.
3. Continuous Conscious Existence.
4. The Communion of Spirits.
5. Personal Responsibility.
6. Compensation and Retribution in the Hereafter.
7. Endless Progression.

That most of these are held for truth in Christendom proves this passage to be true. We should thoroughly purge ourselves of these doctrines of demons.

3 The prohibition of marriage, for a limited class, has long defied this scripture, but now the sentiment against it is growing in many quarters which hitherto have not opposed it. Abstinence from certain foods, especially meat or flesh food, has become a recognized feature of some creeds.

7 Physical gymnastics has largely replaced spiritual exercise in many religious institutions.

9 There are three "faithful sayings" in this epistle (1<sup>53</sup>149). These should be especially heeded and enforced. There is a logical relation between this one and the first. If Christ Jesus came into the world to save sinners, and has saved the foremost, it follows that, since all men are sinners, He is the Saviour of all mankind. At present this takes effect only in those who believe: the rest are not saved until the consummation. Worthy of all welcome as this faithful saying is, it led Paul into reproach. Nevertheless, he charged Timothy: These things be charging and teaching.

15 How expressive is the phrase "be in them"! Such meditation makes these things a part of our very being and so molds our motives that our progress will appear in all our actions.

2 in the hypocrisy of false expressions, their own conscience having
3 been cauterized, forbidding to marry, abstaining from foods, which God creates to be partaken of with thanksgiving by those who believe and realize the truth, seeing that every creature of God is ideal and nothing is to be cast away, being taken with thanksgiving, for it is hallowed through the word of 6 God and pleading. By suggesting these things to the brethren, you will be an ideal servant of Christ Jesus, fostering with the words of faith and the ideal teaching which you have fully followed.
7 Yet be refusing profane and old womanish myths, but be exercising
8 yourself in devoutness, for bodily exercise is beneficial for a few things, but devoutness is beneficial for all, having promise for the life which now is, and that which is future.

9 Faithful is the saying and 10 worthy of all welcome (for for this are we toiling and being reproached), that we rely on the living God, Who is the Saviour of all mankind, especially of those 11 who believe. These things be
12 charging and teaching. Let no one be despising your youth, but become a model of those who are believing, in word, in behavior, 13 in love, in faith, in purity. Till I come, give heed to reading, to entreaty, to teaching. Neglect not the gracious gift which is in you, which was given to you through prophecy with the imposition of 15 the hands of the eldership. Be meditating on these things: be in them: that your progress may be 16 apparent to all. Be attending to

<sup>1</sup> Much love and consideration should characterize the acts of one who, like Timothy, has temporary oversight of an ecclesia. This applies especially to his dealings with the older men, some of whom, when he is absent, supervise its affairs. Widows presented a special problem, and they were the wards of the ecclesia under some circumstances. Young widows, or those having a claim on relatives, were not to become dependent on the ecclesia. The younger ones are charged to marry; those having children are expected to be supported by them.

<sup>3-16</sup> It is supposed that a list of church widows was kept, which probably included all widows of sixty years and over, whether self-supporting or not. Those who were entered on this list undertook certain duties and promised to give themselves to the work. The younger widows were not to be put on this list lest they should tire of their promise and break faith (<sup>13</sup>). They might grow restive, and so fall into judgment. As the whole passage refers to widows, this is supplied in verse fourteen, after "younger".

<sup>17</sup> The highest place in an ecclesia seems to be accorded to an elder who makes it his task to teach. Indeed, the passages quoted seem to suggest that such a one should receive support. In the East grain was threshed by driving cows over it to separate the grain from the stalk. It was a law (Deut.25<sup>4</sup>) that such animals should not be muzzled, but allowed to eat as much as they needed. The apostle claims this privilege for all who minister the word (1 Cor.9<sup>9</sup>). The Lord has prescribed that those who proclaim the evangel should live of the evangel (1 Cor.9<sup>14</sup>). The Lord Himself said to the seventy He sent forth, "The worker is worthy of his wages." (Lu.10<sup>7</sup>).

yourself and to the teaching. Be persisting in them, for doing this will save both yourself and those who are hearing you.

<sup>5</sup> You should not be upbraiding an elder but be entreating him as a father, the younger men as brethren, the elder women as mothers, the younger as sisters, in all <sup>2</sup> purity. Be honoring widows who <sup>3</sup> are really widows. Now if any <sup>4</sup> widow has children or descendants, let them learn to be devoted to their own household first and reciprocate by paying their progenitors, for this is welcome before God. <sup>5</sup> Now one really a widow, and alone, relies on God and is continuing in petitions and prayers <sup>6</sup> night and day. Yet she who is <sup>7</sup> living as a prodigal is dead. And these things be charging, that they <sup>8</sup> may be irreprehensible. Now if anyone is not providing for his own, and especially his family, he has disowned the faith, and is <sup>9</sup> worse than an unbeliever. Let no widow be listed of less than sixty years, having been the wife of one <sup>10</sup> man, having the testimony of ideal acts: if she nourishes offspring, if she is hospitable, if she washes the saints' feet, if she relieves the afflicted, if she follows up every <sup>11</sup> good work. Yet be refusing younger widows, for whenever they should be restive against Christ, <sup>12</sup> they are wanting to marry, having judgment, seeing that they repudiate their first faith. Yet they are <sup>13</sup> learning at the same time to be idle also, wandering about the homes. Yet not only are they idle, but <sup>14</sup> gossips also, and meddlers, speaking what they must not. I am intending, then, for younger

<sup>19</sup> Unless sufficient evidence to establish his guilt is produced, no charge against an elder is to be entertained. A single witness may be mistaken, or biased: he must be corroborated by one or more others. When, however, an elder's guilt is clearly established, his sin is to be made public. Such a punishment will deter others from similar offenses.

Paul's ministry was divided into four periods separated by three crises. The first crisis occurred in Antioch when he was severed from the rest (Ac.13<sup>2</sup>). The second crisis occurred while Paul is at Ephesus, and is brought before us in the words "As these things were fulfilled" (Ac.19<sup>21</sup>). The third was at Rome, when the Jews finally refused the kingdom (Ac.28 25-28). We have found that this letter was written at the second, central crisis in his career. Then it was that he no longer knew anyone according to the flesh. Except in the lingering testimony to the kingdom, all physical blessing vanishes. Otherwise he surely would have cured Timothy and Epaphroditus (Phil.2<sup>26</sup>). When once the progress of Paul's ministries is recognized, from glory to glory (2Co.3<sup>18</sup>), away from the earthly and physical to the celestial and spiritual, healing and other gifts will be seen to be among those things which belong to immaturity.

<sup>15</sup> ready turn aside after Satan. If anyone who is believing has widows let him be relieving them and let not the ecclesia be burdened, that it should be relieving those who are really widows.

<sup>17</sup> Let elders who have presided ideally be counted worthy of double honor, especially those who are toiling in word and teaching, for the scripture is saying: "You shall not be muzzling the threshing ox" and "The worker is worthy of his <sup>19</sup> wages". Be assenting to no accusation against an elder outside and except with two or three
<sup>21</sup> rest also may have fear. I am conjuring, before God and Christ Jesus and the chosen messengers, that you should guard these things, apart from prejudice, do-
<sup>23</sup> By no means still be drinking water, but be using a sip of wine for your stomach and your frequent
<sup>25</sup> are following up also. Similarly the ideal acts also are taken for granted, and those which are otherwise cannot be hid.

6 Let as many as are slaves under the yoke deem their own owners worthy of all honor, lest the name of God and the teaching may be <sup>2</sup> blasphemed. Yet let those having

 TEACHING MAY-BE-BEING-HARM-AYERBED

<sup>6</sup> Material gain, beyond what is needed for sustenance and shelter, is not true capital. It cannot give contentment in the present, and is a total loss in the future. True capital is contentment, which gives happiness now, and devoutness, which insures a reward in the life to come. These, indeed, are great capital—far greater than the billions which men amass, but which they cannot use, and which they are sure to lose. The really rich man is he who, having provided for shelter from the elements, a house and clothing and sustenance in the form of food and drink, banks the balance in such a way that it will follow him into the future.

<sup>9</sup> Those who refuse this course will find that they lose in every way. Riches do not give contentment, but breed foolish and harmful longings, the gratification of which is destructive to happiness and lead away from the faith. Money getting and the hoarding of means not needed for our own welfare, not only is a prolific source of evil, but robs the rich of happiness now, and only increases our loss in the life to come.

believing owners not be despising them, seeing that they are brethren, but rather let them slave for them, seeing that they are believing and beloved, being supported by the benefaction.

These things teach and entreat.

<sup>3</sup> If anyone is teaching differently and is not approaching with sound words, even those of our Lord Jesus Christ, and the teaching in <sup>4</sup> accord with devoutness, he is conceited, versed in nothing, but morbid concerning questionings and controversies, out of which is coming envy, strife, calumnies, wicked suspicions, altercations of men of a decadent mind and deprived of the truth, who infer that devout-
<sup>7</sup> for it is evident that we carry nothing into the world, neither can we
<sup>9</sup> we shall be sufficed. Now those intending to be rich are falling into a trial and a trap and many foolish and harmful desires, which are submerging men in extermination and
<sup>10</sup> destruction. For fondness for money is a root of all that is evil, which some, craving, were led astray from the faith and probe themselves on all sides with much pain.

 TENDING THE IDEAL CONTEST OF-THE

It is distinguished from resurrection (Jn.5<sup>21</sup>) in that it refers to spiritual life (Ro.8<sup>11</sup> 2Co.3<sup>6</sup>). Resurrection refers primarily to the body, rousing to the soul, and vivification to the spirit. Elsewhere we are told that all mankind will be vivified (1Co.15<sup>22</sup>). Here the whole universe is included in God's mighty purpose to defeat death.

<sup>16</sup> Christ Jesus is the only One Who has been vivified. No one else has life beyond the reach of death. Immortality is His exclusive possession. The glory of deathlessness shines forth in Him with an intensity beyond the possibility of human perception. The apostle himself came as near to this as anyone, but the brilliance blinded him. He saw Him (1Co.9<sup>1</sup>), but He appeared as a Light, which his eyes could not bear. At His advent, they shall be like Him, since they shall view Him as He is (1Jn.3<sup>2</sup>).

<sup>17</sup> Those who are rich, in contrast to those already considered, who are fond of money with the intention of becoming wealthy, are exhorted not to place their dependence on their possessions, which may desert them at any moment, but to rely on God, Who alone can make their enjoyment possible. Their most profitable course lies in the employment of their wealth for the benefit of others. This brings them present happiness (for it is blessed to give), and, at the same time deposits their wealth in the divine treasury where it will appear to their account in that day. In this way they will assure for themselves real life, both now and for the eons.

<sup>20</sup> All knowledge or "science" which is not in line with God's revelation has been found false in the past and will be so in the future. There is no conflict between true science and the Scriptures.

faith. Get hold of eonian life, for which you were called, and you avow an ideal avowal before many witnesses.

<sup>13</sup> I am charging you before God, Who is vivifying all, and Jesus Christ, Who witnesses an ideal
<sup>14</sup> avowal before Pontius Pilate, that you keep this precept unspotted, irreprehensible, unto the advent of
<sup>15</sup> our Lord, Christ Jesus, which will be showing, to its own eras, the happy and only Potentate, the King of kings and Lord of lords, <sup>16</sup> Who alone has immortality, making His home in light inaccessible, Whom not one of mankind perceived or can be perceiving, to Whom be honor and might eonian!
Amen!

<sup>17</sup> Be charging those who are rich in the current eon not to be haughty, nor to rely on the dubiousness of riches, but on God, Who is tendering us all things
<sup>18</sup> richly for our enjoyment; to be doing good acts, to be rich in ideal acts, to be liberal contributors,
<sup>19</sup> treasuring up for themselves an ideal foundation for the future, that they may get hold of real life.

II TIMOTHY

PAUL's second epistle to Timothy is, perhaps, the last letter from his pen. In all his other epistles he looks forward to further service. Now he tells Timothy that he had finished his career (47). The period of his dissolution was imminent (46). The whole epistle takes character from this fact.

The first epistle was probably written at that great crisis in the apostle's ministry when he first formed his purpose to go to Rome (Ac.19<sup>21</sup>). Its subject is service. Its object was the organization of the ecclesias to uphold God's truth. The subject of the second epistle is suffering (2<sup>3</sup>). The ecclesias themselves have become filled with evil. Separation from the evil becomes the duty of all who wish to please God.

This letter should be especially prized by the Lord's slaves in these last days, for the apostasy which began even in Paul's time has become worse with each succeeding century. The practical question, How shall we serve in the midst of present day departure? is fully answered in this, Paul's latest letter.

The remedy for the present distress is clearly shown in the literary framework. The epistle proper begins with an exhortation to have the pattern of sound words (1<sup>13</sup>). It closes with the charge to proclaim the word (42). Its central subject contains the command to "correctly partition" the word of truth (2<sup>15</sup>). The Sacred Scriptures are the one great need for these degenerate days (3<sup>15</sup>). It is the aim of the CONCORDANT VERSION to furnish a pattern of sound words, without which the truth has eluded us. It is the aim of the notes to "correctly partition" the truth, assigning each truth its proper place out of which it becomes dangerous error.

<sup>2</sup> Timothy had been with the apostle in Rome, whence he was probably sent to Philippi (Phil.2:19). The most loving and intimate relations existed between them, and Paul continually refers to him as his own child in the faith. His father was a Greek, but his mother was a Jewess (Ac.16:1). His grandmother Lois and his mother were believers and he seems to have inherited their faith. He was constantly associated with the apostle in his labors, often being sent on some mission which Paul himself could not fulfill. His name is joined with Paul's in the salutation of six of his epistles (2Cor.1:1, Phil.1:1, Col.1:1, 1Thess.1:1, 2Thess.1:1, Philemon:1). He seems to have suffered imprisonment for a time but was set at liberty (Heb.13:23). Paul gives him the highest possible praise, so that he himself is given as an example of true service and the letters sent to him are most important to all who wish to engage in a like service.

<sup>6</sup> The apostle's prolonged imprisonment, and the growing evils which were creeping into the ecclesias, seem to have had the effect of dampening and discouraging Timothy. To counteract this tendency the apostle reminds him that God's calling is not dependent on men's acts but on His own purpose and grace, and this cannot be disturbed or hindered by the flood of evil, for it was given us in Christ Jesus before eonian times. The eons are the times of evil. Before the times of the eons there was no evil, neither will there be any after they have run their course. As a result, God's purpose is before and above evil, and we should not be unduly moved by its presence. Death is sin's ultimate. The crucifixion of Christ is the furthest limit to which sin can go. The vivification of Christ is the first step in the abolition of death. He can die no more. At His coming advent the saints will triumph over death and receive eonian life. Its final abolition, however, is at the end of the eons, called the consummation.

<sup>10</sup> The abolition of death is put in the indefinite or aorist tense, as He has done it in His own case and will do it for all in the future.

PAUL, an apostle of Christ Jesus, through the will of God, in accord with the promise of life which is in Christ Jesus, to Timothy, a child beloved:

Grace, mercy, peace, from God, the Father, and Christ Jesus, our Lord.

<sup>3</sup> GRATEFUL am I to God, to Whom I am offering divine service from my ancestors with a clear conscience, as I have an unintermittent remembrance of you in my petitions, night and day, longing to see you, remembering your tears, that I may be filled with joy, getting a reminder of the unfeigned faith which is in you, which first makes its home in your grandmother Lois, and in your mother Eunice, and I am persuaded that it is in you also.

<sup>6</sup> For which cause I am reminding you to be rekindling the gracious gift of God which is in you through the imposition of my hands, for God gives us, not a spirit of timidity, but of power and of love and of sanity. Then you should not be ashamed of the testimony of our Lord, or of me, His prisoner, but suffer evil with me in the evangel in accord with the power of God, Who saves us and calls us with a holy calling, not in accord with our acts, but in accord with His own purpose and the grace which is given to us in Christ Jesus before eonian times, yet now is manifested through the advent of our Saviour, Christ Jesus, Who, indeed, abolishes death, yet illuminates life and incorruption through the evangel of which I was appointed a herald and an apostle and a teacher of the nations. For which cause I <sup>12</sup> The transcendent truths committed to the apostle Paul always meet with opposition and bring suffering on their exponents. But God Himself guards them and revives them from time to time even though the vast majority of His saints hardly know of their existence.

<sup>3</sup> To inflict evil is the object of the world's soldiers. All their training is to this end. To suffer evil is the duty of the ideal soldier in the ranks of faith.

<sup>5</sup> A most important principle, almost unheeded. Effort and endeavor is of no avail in God's service unless it be in strict conformity to the rules. Hence it is of prime importance to acquaint ourselves first of all with God's instructions and adhere to them closely. Otherwise the most pretentious effort, which seems to meet with most success, may be utterly rejected at the judge's stand. Do not attempt to work for God until you know the will of God.

am suffering these things also, but I am not ashamed, for I am aware Whom I have believed, and I am persuaded that He is able to guard what is committed to me, for that day.

<sup>13</sup> Have a pattern of sound words, which you hear from me, in faith and love which are in Christ Jesus.

<sup>14</sup> Guard that ideal thing committed to you, through the holy spirit which is making its home in us.

<sup>16</sup> May the Lord grant mercy to the household of Onesiphorus, seeing that he often refreshes me and <sup>17</sup> was not ashamed of my chain, but coming to be in Rome, he seeks <sup>18</sup> me diligently and found me. May the Lord grant to him to be finding mercy from the Lord in that day! And how much he serves in Ephesus you know quite well.

<sup>4</sup> soldier of Christ Jesus. Now no one who is warring is involved in the business of a livelihood, that he should be pleasing the One enlisting him. Now if anyone should be competing also, he is not given a wreath if he should not be competing lawfully. The farmer who is toiling must be first to partake of the fruits. Apprehend what I say, for the Lord will be giving you understanding in it all.

<sup>8</sup> Remember, Jesus Christ, Who has been roused from among the dead,

<sup>10</sup> "The salvation which is in Christ Jesus with eonian glory" is a most apt description of the grace shown to us.

<sup>11</sup> This faithful saying shows that our life and all that comes to us by His grace is immutable—it depends on His faithfulness. Service, however, has two sides, reward and loss. Endurance will be recognized by a place of authority in His celestial realm. If we disown Him we cannot expect Him to give us a public place of power in the future. This does not infringe in the least degree on our salvation or life or anything which is ours by His grace.

<sup>15</sup> Translators have found great difficulty in rendering the phrase "correctly partitioning". Desiring to improve on the common rendering "rightly dividing", the Revisers have translated it very loosely "handling aright". This is very vague. The meaning is clear from the illustration which follows. Hymeneus and Philetus did not deny the resurrection, like the Corinthians (1 Cor. 15<sup>12</sup>), but they misplaced it. They made it past, when it was future. So all truth has its appropriate place, out of which truth itself becomes the most insidious error, because it seems to have the support of scripture. We must not transfer the truth of one eon into another, nor of one economy into another. We should leave truth concerning Israel to them and that for us should not be mixed with it. In no other way can we really have the truth.

<sup>19</sup> God's solid foundation still stands. The "pillar of the truth" (1 Tim. 3<sup>15</sup>) has fallen under the flood of false teaching, which is found in the Bible, but through misplacement has become distorted into error. But the foundation is fixed. The Lord Himself is never at a loss to recognize His own. We, on our part, may demand that those who take His name upon them should act accordingly.

is of the seed of David, according <sup>9</sup> to my evangel, in which I am suffering evil unto bonds as a malefactor—but the word of God
<sup>10</sup> has not been bound. Therefore I am enduring all because of those who are chosen, that they also may happen upon the salvation which is in Christ Jesus with eonian glory.

<sup>11</sup> Faithful is the saying: "For if we died together, we shall be living
<sup>12</sup> together also; if we are enduring, we shall be reigning together also; if we are disowning, He also will <sup>13</sup> be disowning us; if we are unfaithful, He is remaining faithful—He cannot disown Himself."

<sup>15</sup> Endeavor to present yourself to God, qualified, an unashamed worker, correctly partitioning the <sup>16</sup> word of truth. Yet stand aloof from profane prattlings, for they will be progressing to more irreverence, and their word will spread as gangrene, of whom are
<sup>18</sup> Hymeneus and Philetus, who swerve from the truth, saying that the resurrection has already occurred, and are subverting the faith of some.

<sup>20</sup> Now in a great house there are not only gold and silver utensils, but wooden and earthenware also, some indeed for honor, yet some <sup>21</sup> for dishonor. If, then, anyone should be purging himself from 21 The figure of a "great house" is most appropriate in the present day. The struggling, persecuted, unrecognized ecclesia of the early days has become great, but with its greatness it has lost its primitive purity and power. Like the utensils needed in the service of a mansion, it harbors two classes. Some, like gold and silver plate, are fit for honorable uses: others, like the pots and buckets of the scullery, are for degraded service. The method of transforming ones self into holy and desirable utensils, fit for honorable uses, is very simple. We are to purge ourselves from the unclean utensils. It is personal, individual heart cleansing that is needed rather than outward reforms.

22 On the positive side, we are to confine our fellowship to those who call upon the Lord out of a clean heart. This is the true basis of fellowship in the midst of the failure in which we find ourselves. It is not doctrine, however desirable it is that we should agree. It is not church government. It is not the knowledge of the truth, but the motive which underlies it. We should not exclude from our fellowship anyone who calls on the Lord out of a clean heart, however much his person or his doctrine may repel us. Every creed, man-made, is crude and full of error. No one should subscribe to aught but the Word of God.

24 The Lord's slave must not fight, for his object is not destruction, but salvation. He does not aim to wound or disable, but to capture his antagonists alive and subject them to God's will.

1 We, who are living in these last days, will bear witness to the truth of the Scriptures, for no one today could give a more accurate indictment of the times than is given in this passage. The whole list from selfishness to self-gratification is characteristic, yet nothing more so than the form of devoutness which is devoid of its vital power. We are not asked to correct this condition, but to shun those who are involved in it.

6 The diminutive, "little women", expresses contempt.

these, he will be a utensil for honor, hallowed, and useful to the Owner, ready for every good act.

22 Now youthful desires flee: yet pursue righteousness, faith, love, peace, with all who are invoking the Lord out of a clean heart.

23 Now stupid and crude questionings refuse, being aware that they

24 are generating fightings. Now the Lord's slave must not be fighting, but be gentle to all, apt

25 to teach, bearing with evil, in meekness training those who are antagonizing, if perchance in time God may give them repentance to come into a realization of the truth, 26 and they should be sobering up out of the Slanderer's trap, having been caught alive by him for that one's will.

3 Now know this, that in the last days perilous periods will be present, for men will be selfish, fond

2 of money, ostentatious, proud, calumniators, stubborn to parents,

3 ungrateful, malign, without natural affection, implacable, slanderers, uncontrollable, fierce, averse

4 to the good, traitors, rash, conceited, fond of their own gratification

5 rather than fond of God, having a form of devotion, yet denying its

6 power. These, also, shun. For of these are they who are slipping into homes and are leading into captivity little women, heaped with sins,

7 being led by various lusts and gratifications, always learning and yet not at any time able to come into a

8 realization of the truth. Now, by the

 7 WHEN INTO ON-KNOWLEDGE OF-TRUTH

<sup>12</sup> This is a crucial test of our true state. Are we suffering persecution? If not, are we in earnest in our will to live devoutly in Christ Jesus? All who tread this path will be persecuted. Paul himself delighted in persecutions for Christ's sake (2Cor.12<sup>10</sup>). His bold stand for the evangel invited them at every turn. At Lystra they stoned him and left him for dead (Ac. 14<sup>19</sup>). Nor are we to look for any improvement in the course of time, for wicked men and swindlers will wax worse and worse, not only deceiving others but being themselves deceived.

<sup>14</sup> Again and again the apostle returns to the Sacred Scriptures as the one sufficient recourse. What Timothy had heard from Paul has since been incorporated in them, being recorded in the epistles he has penned, both in his personal letters and in his epistles to the seven ecclesias.

<sup>16</sup> The inspired Scriptures are the sole and sufficient equipment for the man of God in these trying times. All else has failed and fallen into ruin. It has become an imperative and absolute necessity that the sacred writings should be recovered in something like their pristine purity, for they alone are the last resort of the saints. Their inspiration is confined to the original text. Whatever promises the closest contact with the inspired records, and the safest index of their contents is the best equipment possible for the man of God. The accompanying version, with its consistent sublinear and its concordance, will, we trust, be used by God to meet the one prime necessity of the times.

<sup>3</sup> Proclaim the word! This is the greatest need in the last days. There is no lack of preaching or of proclaiming, but the word of God has entirely too little place in them. The next need is to stand by it, whether it seems opportune or not.

method by which Jannes and Jambres withstand Moses, thus these also are withstanding the truth, men of a depraved mind, disqualified for the faith. But they shall be progressing no more, for their folly shall be obvious to all, even as theirs became.

<sup>10</sup> Now you fully follow my teaching, motive, purpose, faith, <sup>11</sup> patience, love, endurance, persecutions, sufferings, such as occurred to me in Antioch, in Iconium, in Lystra: which persecutions I undergo, and out of them
<sup>12</sup> all the Lord rescues me. And all also who want to live devoutly in Christ Jesus shall be persecuted.
<sup>13</sup> Yet wicked men and swindlers shall wax worse and worse, deceiving and being deceived.

<sup>14</sup> Now you be remaining in what you learned and were entrusted with, being aware from whom you
<sup>15</sup> learned it and that from a babe you are acquainted with the sacred scriptures which are able to make you wise for salvation through faith in Christ Jesus.

<sup>16</sup> All scripture is inspired by God, and is beneficial for teaching, for exposure, for correction, for discipline in righteousness, that the man of God may be equipped, fitted out for every good act.

<sup>4</sup> I am conjuring you before God and Christ Jesus, Who is about to be judging the living and the dead, in accord with His advent and His

* The pathos of this passage appears when we recall the many plans of the apostle which it repeals. He intended to go into Spain (Ro.15<sup>24</sup>), he wished to winter in Nicopolis (Titus 3<sup>12</sup>) and he hoped to be granted to the Colossians (Philemon 22). There is no record that any of these wishes were fulfilled. Now he faces death with an exultant cry of triumph. His contest is over, his career is ended, the faith is kept, the reward remains. Hitherto the advent filled his heart and his horizon. Now that he realizes the imminence of his dissolution, he passes on that blessed expectation. The wreath of righteousness is promised to all who love His advent. This alone should be a sufficient incentive for us not only to love but to proclaim that blessed expectation. There is no evidence in the scriptures that Paul was released and later imprisoned a second time. Even if it was a fact, the truth demands the entire removal of everything physical from the scene.

9 "Loving the present eon" is in direct contrast to loving His advent. If the present evil eon appeals to us, and engages our affections, we will have no desire for the glorious grace which His advent will reveal.

11 How touching is this commendation of Mark! He had proven unfaithful (Ac.13<sup>13</sup>) and Paul had refused his services, notwithstanding it cost him the companionship of Barnabas (Ac. 15<sup>38</sup>). Yet God's grace operates in him so as to win this commendation from Paul and he is inspired to write the account of the Faithful Servant, for that is the character of our Lord in Mark's evangel.

16 There was a custom in Rome that, when a man was tried for any crime, his friends attended him in court to countenance and assist him. Roman law recognized the legality of such assistance and even the emperors did not shun their friends under such circumstances. The early believers were derided because they availed themselves of this privilege. How majestic stands the solitary figure of the apostle! His friends in Asia had abandoned him (1<sup>15</sup>). Demas abandoned him (4<sup>10</sup>). And now all abandoned, expose, rebuke, entreat, with all patience and teaching.

3 For the era will be when they will not tolerate sound teaching, but, their hearing being tickled, they will heap up for themselves teachers in accord with their own desires, and, indeed, they will be turning their hearing away from the truth and will be turned aside to myths.

5 Yet you be sober in all things, suffer evil as an ideal soldier of Christ Jesus, do the work of an evangelist, fully discharge your service. For I am already a libation, and the period of my dissolution is imminent. I have contended the ideal contest, I have finished my career, I have kept the faith. Furthermore, there is reserved for me the wreath of righteousness, which the Lord, the just Judge, will be paying to me in that day; yet not to me only, but also to all who have loved His advent.

9 Endeavor to come to me quickly, 10 for Demas, loving the current eon, abandoned me, and is gone to Thessalonica, Crescens to Galatia, 11 Titus to Dalmatia. Only Luke is with me. Taking Mark, lead him back with you, for he is useful to 12 me for service. Now Tychicus I 13 dispatch to Ephesus. When you come, bring the valise which I left in Troas with Carpus, and the scrolls, especially the vellums. 14 Alexander the coppersmith displayed to me much evil: the Lord will be paying him in accord with doned him to his fate. He stands before his accusers unfriended and alone, except for his faithful Lord. Nor did this embitter him. Like his Lord, he prays, "May it not be counted against them!" This is our last glimpse of the apostle of the nations. To the last he stands as God's herald, welcoming death itself if it only gives him an opportunity to proclaim the evangel to all the nations.

<sup>18</sup> Paul realizes, at length, that his work on earth is finished and he now looks forward to the celestial kingdom, of which he, and all who accepted his message, were participants.

<sup>20</sup> Trophimus is a picture of the place the nations occupied before Paul's final ministry. His name means "nourished". The nations were nourished at Israel's board. As their apostasy increased the nations received less and less spiritual food from them. If it had not been for Paul's last letters from Rome they, too, like Trophimus, would have pined away. His case is significant, too, of the fact that all blessing is now spiritual, else Paul could easily have healed him. But neither he nor Timothy nor Paul himself is healed. God's grace becomes their sufficiency, in the midst of physical weakness.

<sup>15</sup> his acts—whom you also guard against, for very much has he withstood words of ours. At my first defense no one came along with me, but all abandoned me. May it not be counted against them!

<sup>17</sup> Yet the Lord stood beside me, and He invigorates me, that through me the proclamation may be fully discharged, and all the nations should hear, and I am rescued out

TITUS

THE only recorded visit of the apostle Paul to Crete was when his ship was detained there some time on his journey to Rome (Ac.27<sup>7-12</sup>). The writer of the Acts was with the apostle, and doubtless others, as Demas and Crescens, accompanied him, including, it would seem, Titus, as far as Crete. Paul's direction that he should leave the island and meet him in Nicopolis (3<sup>12</sup>) seems to confirm this, for, later, Paul writes to Timothy that Titus had gone to Dalmatia (2Tim.4<sup>10</sup>). There was a Nicopolis on the Adriatic near the boundary of Macedonia and Dalmatia. Hence this letter was probably written from Rome not long after his arrival. His early intention to visit Spain (Rom.15<sup>24</sup>), and his decision to winter in Nicopolis (3<sup>12</sup>), seems to have failed of fruition, for he is still in Rome when he informs Timothy of his imminent dissolution (2Tim.4<sup>6</sup>).

The evident purport of the epistle is hortatory. It deals with the practical duties of life. No doctrine is developed. As shown by the literary framework, the chief subjects are the appointment of elders who are to serve as supervisors, and the conduct of those who are slaves. The paragraph dealing with elders is logically followed by one describing their duties and difficulties due to the insubjection of some. The section on slaves is fittingly followed by one on subjection, for even those who are not in physical bondage owe subjection to the government and to their fellow men.

The central subject sets forth the ideal character of men and women, old and young.

1 Paul writes this letter in the character of a slave. This shows that the epistle deals with service. He adds the title apostle, to give weight to his injunctions.

2 Eonian life, usually called "everlasting" life, is here put, as is usual in Paul's epistles, as a future expectation. God promised it before the times of the "evers" or eons and it will last until the eons come to an end (Heb.9<sup>20</sup>).

4 Titus is not mentioned in the narrative of the Acts, doubtless because his case and ministry were not at all in line with the subject of that treatise. Only that aspect of Paul's work is there touched upon which was in subjection to the Circumcision and connected with the proclamation of the kingdom to Israel. Titus was a Greek whom Paul refused to circumcise, so that he might be a standing reminder of the fact that circumcision was not a part of his evangel for the nations (Gal.2:1-5).

5 The island of Crete is now named Candia. It is the most fertile island in the Mediterranean.

6 The elder and supervisor seem to be different aspects of the same office. The name elder was given in recognition of their age and dignity. The term supervisor describes the character of their service. His relations with the world and his own family must be such as will not compromise the ecclesia which he serves. His name in the world must be above reproach, his domestic relations must be ideal. Men with many wives were not eligible.

10 It was very natural for the Circumcisionists to arrogate to themselves the supervision of the ecclesias to which they belonged, but they were often unfit for the office.

11 In the very early days impostors set themselves to use devious means for securing their own advantage and getting dishonest gain. This is a most destructive plague in teachers, for, as soon as they make wealth their

PAUL, a slave of God, yet an apostle of Jesus Christ, in accord with the faith of God's chosen ones and a realization of the truth which accords with devoutness, in expectation of eonian life, which God, Who does not lie, promises before eonian times, yet manifests His word in its own eras by a proclamation with which I was entrusted, according to the injunction of God, our Saviour; to Titus, a genuine child according to the common faith:

Grace and peace from God, the Father, and Christ Jesus, our Saviour.

5 ON this behalf I left you in Crete, that you should be amending what is lacking and constitute elders to suit each city, as I prescribe to you. If anyone is unimpeachable, the husband of one wife, having believing children not accused of profligacy or insubordinate—for a supervisor must be unimpeachable as a steward of God, not given to self gratification, not irritable, no toper, not quarrelsome, not avaricious; but hospitable, fond of that which is good, sane, just, benign, self-controlled; upholding the faithful word according to the teaching, that he may be able to entreat also with sound teaching and to expose those who contradict.

10 For many are insubordinate, praters and impostors, especially those of the Circumcision, who must be gagged, who are subverting whole households, teaching what they must not, for sordid gain.

12 One of them, their own prophet, said: "Cretans are ever liars, evil wild beasts, idle bellies." This object of pursuit, they necessarily endeavor to be popular and obtain the favor and support of the people. This is almost sure to be followed by corruption in teaching.

<sup>12</sup> It is supposed that this is a quotation from Epimenides, a poet and philosopher who lived about six hundred years before Christ. It was common to give the Cretans a bad name, for to "Cretanize" was the equivalent of lying and deception. Paul adds his confirmation in order to aid them in guarding against these grave defects in the national character.

<sup>15</sup> True cleanliness is an inward condition which views all without from its own standpoint. A defiled mind and conscience will defile even that which is, in itself, clean.

<sup>11</sup> The saving grace of God, properly appreciated, has no equal as a means for training God's saints to live ac-testimony is true. For which cause be exposing them severely, that they may be sound in the <sup>14</sup> faith, not heeding Jewish myths and precepts of men who are turning from the truth. All, indeed, is clean to the clean, yet to the defiled and unbelieving nothing is clean, but their mind as well as <sup>16</sup> conscience has been defiled. They are avowing an acquaintance with God, yet by acts are denying it, being abominable and stubborn, and disqualified for every good act.

2 Now you be speaking what is
<sup>2</sup> becoming to sound teaching. The aged men are to be sober, grave, sane, sound in the faith, in love, <sup>3</sup> in endurance; the aged women, similarly, in demeanor as becomes the sacred, not slanderers, nor enslaved by much wine, teachers of
<sup>4</sup> the ideal, that they may bring the young wives to a sense of their duty to be fond of their husbands,
<sup>5</sup> fond of their children, sane, chaste, domestic, good, subject to their own husbands, that the word of God
<sup>6</sup> may not be blasphemed. The younger men, similarly, be entreating to be sane, in all things tendering yourself a model of ideal acts, in teaching, uncorruptness, gravity, sound, uncensurable speech, that those of the contrary part may be abashed, having nothing bad to say concerning us.

<sup>9</sup> Slaves are to be subject to their own owners, to be pleasing them well in all things, not contradicting; not emblezzling, but displaying all good fidelity, that they may ceptably in His sight even in the midst of the abounding evil of this eon. It softens the heart, and attracts the will, and provides the power for putting its precepts into practise. The law was not so. Its demands withered the arm that would fulfill it. In some measure God's grace enables us to anticipate the overwhelming bliss which will be brought to us at His glorious advent, which will mark the end of sin and suffering for His saints.

14 The ransom of Christ has a present power. Lawlessness is that basic conception of sin in which it is viewed as a departure from the normal and natural course of things. The ransom of Christ will eventually restore us into that ideal condition which conformity to the laws of the universe produces. At present this takes the form of zeal for good deeds.

1 The place of the believer is one of subjection in this eon. It is not our time to reign (1 Cor.4<sup>8</sup>). That will come in the next eon. The path of the saints is not at all aggressive. It is not for them to redress wrongs, but to yield to injustice, not to speak evil of others even if they justly deserve it, not to stir up trouble, but to be pacific, making allowance for the failure of others, meekly enduring what would naturally inflame our indignation.

3 The emphatic we, repeated in the fifth verse, suggests that the apostle is now referring to himself as one of the Circumcision—those who, indeed, ought to have kept the law and who thought that their salvation depended on their righteousness, but who needed to be regenerated and renewed by the holy spirit, as the Lord taught Nicodemus (Jn.3<sup>5</sup>), according to His mercy.

5 The Septuagint uses this word loutron twice for a bath in the Song of Solomon (4<sup>26</sup>), but renders laver by another form, loutër, in all of its occurrences. Hence it is evident that here it is not the instrument which contained the water, but the element itself which is a figure of renascence. Though literally regeneration, the word is always used in a much looser sense of any renewal, much like our word renascence.

be adorning the teaching of God, our Saviour, in all things.

11 For the saving grace of God made its advent to all humanity,
12 training us that, disowning irreverence and worldly desires, we should live sanely and justly and devoutly in the current eon,
13 anticipating the happy expectation and glorious advent of our great God and Saviour, Jesus
14 Christ, Who gives Himself for us, that He should be redeeming us from all lawlessness and be cleansing for Himself a special people
15 zealous of ideal acts. Be speaking of these things and be entreating and exposing with every injunction. Let no one be slighting you.

3 Remind them to be subject to sovereignties, to authorities; to be yielding, and to be ready for every
2 good work, not to be calumniating anyone, to be pacific, lenient, displaying all meekness toward all
3 mankind. For we also were once foolish, stubborn, deceived, slaves of various desires and gratifications, led on by malice and envy, detestable, hating one another.
4 Yet when God our Saviour's kindness and fondness for humanity
5 made its advent, He saves us, not for works of righteousness which we do, but according to His mercy, through the bath of renascence
6 and renewal of holy spirit, which He pours out on us richly through 7 Jesus Christ, our Saviour, that, be-

<sup>9</sup> It would seem that by far the largest share of the difficulties of the early ecclesias was introduced by the Circumcision—the very ones who ought to have been a help instead of a hindrance. The record of the book of Acts is full of their opposition to the evangel and they were directly responsible for Paul's imprisonment in Rome. Even those who believed were the source of continual turmoil. They could not clear themselves of the trammels of Judaism. They could not rise to the new revelation vouchsafed to Paul. With their genealogies, and circumcision, and contentions about the law, they were continually drawing the saints from the ground of grace and faith down to law and works. Finally the apostle put a stop to the discussion of these subjects.

<sup>12</sup> Tychicus was later sent to Ephesus (2 Tim.4<sup>12</sup>). As he delivered the letter to the Ephesians (Eph.6<sup>21</sup>), it appears that this letter to Titus was written some time before the Perfection epistles. Titus seems to have gone to Nicopolis, but Paul remained in Rome.

ing justified by that grace, we should be becoming enjoyers, in expectation, of the allotment of eonian life.

<sup>8</sup> Faithful is the saying, and I am intending you to be insistent concerning these things, that those who have believed God may be concerned to preside for ideal acts. These things are ideal and beneficial for humanity. Yet stand aloof from stupid questionings and genealogies and strifes and fightings about law, for they are without benefit and vain. A sectarian man, after one and a second admonition, refuse, being aware that such a one has turned himself out, and is sinning, being self-condemned.

<sup>12</sup> Whenever I shall be sending Artemas to you, or Tychicus, endeavor to come to me in Nicopolis, for I have decided to winter there. Forward Zenas, the lawyer, and Apollos diligently, that nothing may be lacking to them. Now let those who are ours also be learning to preside for ideal acts for necessary needs, that they may not be unfruitful.

<sup>15</sup> All those with me are greeting you. Greet our friends in faith. Grace be with you all. Amen!

PHILEMON

THIS, the only private, personal letter from the pen of the apostle Paul, is a perfect specimen of its kind. Its powerful yet pathetic appeal is the ripe fruitage of that overwhelming grace which Paul dispensed from his Roman prison. Himself a prisoner, he captures the runaway slave and gives him the freedom of Christ, yet sends him back to the master from whom he had escaped.

This note was doubtless written at the same time as the epistles to the Colossians and Ephesians. Onesimus accompanied Tychicus (Eph.6<sup>21</sup>) to Ephesus and Colosse (Col.4<sup>7-9</sup>). From the fact that Onesimus is spoken of as "one of you" (Col.4<sup>9</sup>), we may infer that Philemon belonged to the ecclesia at Colosse, and that he was given the message to masters in that epistle at the same time (Col.4<sup>1</sup>). But this precious little letter goes far beyond what is "just and equal" so far as Onesimus is concerned. No picture of God's grace can better this. Not only a slave, but subject to torture and death for stealing from his master, he is first reconciled to God through Paul's preaching, and then is reconciled to his master through Paul's pleading. He is caught upon the very crest of the great tidal wave of grace which was just then ready to overflow the whole world. The transcendent grace of Paul's perfection epistles was doubtless his precious possession even before it was delivered to Philemon. Can we realize what this must have meant to him? To be taken from the deepest depths of social degradation and to be seated with Christ in the celestial realms, by faith, almost exhausts the possibilities of grace. And now upon all this, he is given this precious passport to his master's heart! Is it not a lovely little letter?

In literary form, too, it is a perfect example of a simple reversion. Every topic is repeated in reverse order, as set forth in detail in the following literary analysis.

Conclusion 23-25

<sup>4</sup> The name Philemon means "fond". He seems to have been a most exemplary character, whose reputation had reached Paul's ears, and had given him joy in the midst of the sorrows and dangers of his situation in Rome. But Paul is not thinking of himself but of the service Philemon renders to the saints.

<sup>8</sup> Paul's apostolic authority gives him the right to dictate to Philemon regarding Onesimus. It would have been perfectly proper to have held the runaway slave for his own comfort and service without consulting his master in the matter. Yet grace does not demand its rights, or stand upon its privileges, but, led by love, entreats. What a glorious sunset to such a life as Paul's! The rare graces of the gospel glow in the aged apostle and prisoner with greater splendor than ever before. Age has not soured but rather mellowed him.

<sup>11</sup> There is a pleasing play upon the name "Onesimus", which means profitable. Paul uses it as a verb in verse twenty. He may be regarded as a picture of those of the nations who had strayed away from God, who are the fruit of Paul's bonds as Onesimus was, and who now return to God to become His "profitable" slaves. He is also a marvelous example of God's method of transforming evil into good. No one would condone the act of Onesimus in running away from his master, yet God made it a blessing not only to Onesimus, but to his master and to Paul. All were enriched by it. In this way He is able to make all evil subserve His purpose. It is the background of His grace and will become the means of drawing His creatures infinitely closer to Himself and His affections than would be possible if sin had never invaded the universe.

<sup>15</sup> The short period of Onesimus' absence was not worth reckoning compared with the fact that, as a brother in Christ, Philemon would have him for all the eons. So the short term of sin (which seems to us so long) is not worth reckoning compared with the eonian and everlasting tenure of the bliss which follows it.

PAUL, a prisoner of Christ Jesus, and brother Timothy, to Philemon, the beloved, and our fellow worker, and to Apphia, our sister, and to Archippus, our fellow soldier, and to the ecclesia at your house:

<sup>3</sup> Grace to you and peace, from God, our Father, and the Lord Jesus Christ.

<sup>4</sup> I AM THANKING my God always, making mention of you in my <sup>5</sup> prayers, hearing of your love and the faith which you have toward the Lord Jesus and for all the
<sup>6</sup> saints, so that the fellowship of your faith may be becoming operative in the realization of every good <sup>7</sup> thing which is in us for Christ Jesus. For I have had much joy and consolation in your love, seeing that the compassions of the saints are soothed through you, brother.

<sup>8</sup> Wherefore, having much boldness in Christ to be enjoining you
<sup>9</sup> as to what is proper, through love I am rather entreating, being such a one as Paul the aged, and now a prisoner also of Christ Jesus.
<sup>10</sup> I am entreating you concerning my child, whom I beget in my
<sup>12</sup> you as well as to me, whom I send back to you. Him—this means my compassions—take to yourself, <sup>13</sup> whom I intended to be retaining for myself that, for your sake, he may be serving me in the bonds of the evangel. Yet apart from your opinion I will do nothing, that your good may not be as of compulsion <sup>15</sup> but voluntary. For perhaps he is separated for an hour because of

<sup>15</sup> Have as a liquidation, FROM-HAVE, is a special term used in the papyri for receiving in full for any debt or obligation. The noun means a receipt in full. Thus the Lord, in the sixth of Matthew, said concerning those whose deeds were done before men, that "they have their wages in full"—there is no more due them from God.

<sup>18</sup> Philemon was evidently called under Paul's preaching, so that he owed all he had in grace to his ministry. With all this to his credit, Paul may well assume all of Onesimus' debts to his master.

<sup>20</sup> There is a play on the name Onesimus, or Profitable. If he should be sent back to Paul, to serve him in the evangel, he would indeed be "Profitable" to Paul, both in name and in fact.

<sup>22</sup> At this time Paul still hoped to be released and return to his itinerant ministry. But the very spiritual character of his latest ministry did not demand his physical presence. It was more in keeping to convey it by epistles. We have no evidence to show that he ever went to Colosse.

<sup>23</sup> Later, all except Luke left him (2Ti.4<sup>11</sup>). Demas abandoned him. And to this very day his inspired epistles, by means of which he still speaks, and which are the only source of the truth for this economy of God's grace, are unheeded, neglected, abandoned, forsaken.

this: that you may have him as an eonian liquidation, no longer as a slave, but more than a slave, a brother beloved, especially to me, yet how much rather to you, both in the flesh and in the Lord! If, then, you have me for a mate, take him to yourself as me. Now if in anything he injures you, or is owing aught, be charging this to my account. I, Paul (I write with my own hand), I will refund it. (Not that I may tell you that you are owing me even yourself!) Yea, brother, may I be "profiting" from you in the Lord! Soothe my compassions in Christ!

<sup>21</sup> Being confident of your obedience, I write to you, seeing that I perceive that you will do even more than I say. Now, at the same time, make ready also a lodging for me, for I am expecting that, through your prayers, I shall be graciously granted to you.

THE CIRCUMCISION EPISTLES

At the notable conference in Jerusalem when Paul submitted his evangel to those of repute, they submitted nothing to him, but perceived that he had been entrusted with the evangel of the Uncircumcision as Peter had been with that of the Circumcision (Ga. 2<sup>6,9</sup>). James, Cephas and John gave him the right hand of fellowship. He was to be for the nations, they for the Circumcision. The decision of this conference is reflected in the epistles written by those who were present. The epistles written by James, Peter, John, and Jude, the brother of James, form the greater part of the following collection, hence we term them

THE CIRCUMCISION EPISTLES.

Nothing will contribute more to the understanding of these writings than the clear cut apprehension that, in every detail, they differ from Paul's epistles, and do not apply at all to the present interval of God's gracious dealings with the nations, during Israel's temporary defection. Not a single truth is discussed in these writings which cannot be duplicated on a higher plane in the writings for the Uncircumcision.

The vital difference is this: In these epistles all blessing comes to or through faithful Israel: in the present economy of grace all blessing overflows notwithstanding that Israel's apostasy choked the channel of blessing. We are blessed in spite of Israel's failure. They will be blessed, and the nations will be blessed through them, in the coming day to which these epistles apply, on the ground of their return to God.

The final sphere of blessing in Paul's epistles was transferred to heaven (Eph.1<sup>3</sup>). No such note is struck in the Circumcision epistles. They are all concerned with Israel on the earth, not with an election from the nations having a celestial destiny. They are all based on a physical relationship to Messiah, and lay great stress on His flesh, while Paul came to the point where he eliminated this from his ministry entirely (2 Co.5<sup>16</sup>).

They deal with Christ as He was on earth and as He will return to earth. Paul commences at His ascension and reveals a prior return of Christ, not to the earth, but to the air, to call His saints to Him there.

As Paul's name implies, he deals with an interval, a parenthesis in God's program. Hence we should read from the book of Acts right on to Hebrews and through to Jude (omitting Paul's parenthetic epistles) to get the true connection between the proclamation of the kingdom in the book of Acts, and the epistles dealing with the temporary consequences of its rejection.

Paul's ministries changed with fresh revelations, so that his career in the book of Acts is only premonitory to his written revelation, especially that given at its close. Not so with the other apostles. Nothing new is revealed in their epistles; they are but the modification of their former ministry due to the conditions consequent on the temporary rejection of the kingdom.

The perplexities of those Pentecostal believers who remained faithful to the end are answered in Hebrews. The difficulties of those who will suffer when the kingdom is once more on the divine program are met by Peter, who enters the kingdom through suffering and death. The course of those who will be guided through the time of trouble and enter the time of blessing alive is prefigured and provided for by John (See Jn.21<sup>18-23</sup>). James deals especially with the rebellious and the rich.

None of these writings can be "applied" to the saints today without incalculable confusion and loss. As it is of more present importance to distinguish this line of truth from our own than to fully understand its message for the Circumcision, special attention will be given to its contrast with the grace which is ours in Christ Jesus.

These epistles do not treat of such themes as the body of Christ, the church as a spiritual organism, the believers' identification with Christ before God, crucifixion with Christ, exemption from law, righteousness by faith, the conciliation, and the heavenly destiny. Failure or refusal to discern that Paul brought a distinct revelation accounts for the prevailing confusion as to what the gospel for the present administration really is.

Much has been written concerning the authorship of Hebrews, but nothing is so helpful as the fact that the writer did not reveal himself. Anyone who has imbibed the spirit of his epistles will agree that Paul not only did not but could not write such an exhortation. It is impossible for him to associate himself with a company of people from which he had been separated by the holy spirit, whose destiny is utterly different from his. In contrast with this, the epistles of James, Peter, John, and Jude are to be interpreted in the light of their characters and careers.

James links us with the last and lowest period, in the book of Acts, for the nation will be in an even more serious spiritual state when God begins to recall them to Himself. Peter was destined to suffer. Hence he writes with reference to the sufferings which are still in store for the apostate nation. John was to tarry to His coming. Consequently he writes for those who will live through the day of indignation, and will enter the kingdom without dying.

The main point to perceive is that all of these men belong to the Circumcision, and write for the Circumcision, not for the nations. Their ministry and message is in abeyance so long as the present administration of celestial favor, apart from the mediacy of Israel, will continue. Paul alone writes for us. He, with a few Hellenists, are granted a grace which far transcends anything in the Circumcision epistles. And, as it is pure grace, those among the nations who believe are associated with them on equal exalted terms.

THE EPISTLE TO THE HEBREWS

HEBREWS resumes the subject of the book of Acts. Paul's epistles are a parenthesis in God's administrations. In Acts the kingdom is proclaimed, and rejected by the nation of Israel as a whole. Yet there was a remnant who believed. Of these the Hellenists followed the revelations given to Paul and found a new and a celestial destiny. But the Hebrews, associated with the twelve apostles and James, whose destiny is the kingdom as promised by the prophets, are left in a distressing situation due to the national defection of Israel. What is to become of them during the time that the nation stumbles? The kingdom cannot come until after the fulness of the nations has come in. That could hardly be during their lifetime. The book of Hebrews deals with the problem of these Pentecostal believers and takes them back to the same position as was occupied by the patriarchs and prophets of old, as explained in the eleventh chapter. They died in faith, not having received the promises.

An important distinction between Hebrews and Hellenists will help in understanding this epistle. Both were Jews, of the stock of Israel as to the flesh. Both are brought before us in the sixth of Acts, where the widows of the Hellenists were distinguished from the widows of the Hebrews. Both spoke Greek. But the culture and training of the Hebrews was essentially Eastern and according to the traditions of their ancestors. The Hellenists, who were composed mostly of those who had lived in foreign lands, were Greek in culture and customs. So distinct were they that they had special synagogues in Jerusalem. The Hebrews were strong for ritual and the religion of their fathers. They are the special subject of this epistle, as is manifest from the opening strain.

As the faith of the Pentecostal believers rested on signs and wonders and miracles in anticipation of the powers of the kingdom, some fell away when these manifestations ceased and the promised kingdom failed to appear. Their apostasy is dealt with in the sixth and tenth chapters—passages which can have no application in the present administration of grace, but which have hung as a cloud over the heads of those who imagine themselves in a similar position. Saints in Israel were conditionally pardoned. Its continuance depended upon their extension of this pardon to the other nations, as in the parable of the ten thousand talent debtor. The pardon could be and was withdrawn. It is not in force now. We have the infinitely higher favor of justification.

Hebrews is the antitype of the wilderness journey of Israel from Egypt to the promised land. It brings Christ before us as the true Mediator, greater than Moses, the true Saviour, greater than Joshua, the true Chief Priest, greater than Aaron. It holds forth better promises concerning the land and the kingdom. Its type is the tabernacle and its ministry, before Israel entered the land.

<sup>2</sup> The Son is the Speaker to Whom the Hebrews are directed. His glories, as they relate to the kingdom and their blessing, is the great theme of the epistle. Beginning with a brilliant cluster, showing His relationship to God, He is given a place superior to angels, and to all the great figures in Hebrew history.

<sup>2</sup> "Tenant" seems the nearest word in English for one who has the possession and enjoyment of a thing, yet is not the owner. But it should also include the distribution by lot. So we have used the phrase "enjoyer of the allotment". The whole universe was created for the Son (Col. 1<sup>18</sup>). He is Elohim, the God of Space. He is Jehovah, the God of Time, for He also made the eons. Thus the Hebrews are informed that the Son is the God of their ancient oracles.

<sup>3</sup> We speak of seeing the sun, but it is hid behind its brilliant beams. So the Son is the Effulgence of the invisible God. The shekinah glory, which filled the temple, was a token of His presence. God condescends to assume certain characters in relation to His creatures in order to reveal Himself to them. Even as Father, He cannot be known except through the Son (Jn. 14<sup>9,10</sup>). It is only through His Emblem that God reveals Himself. Not only the creation, but the operation of the universe is in His hands. The entrance and presence of sin in the universe is all accounted for by one word—He has made a cleansing of sins. It is evident that, in His grand concerns, sins are considered only as a temporary stain on His escutcheon, already disposed of in truth, as they will be eventually in fact. The right hand of the divine Majesty is the true place of the One Who wields all the power of God, and Who, for creatures such as we, is the only One in Whom we can apprehend and approach the Deity.

By many portions and many modes, of old, speaking to the fathers in the prophets, God, in the last of these days, speaks to us in a Son, Whom He appoints enjoyer of the allotment of the universe, through Whom He makes the eons also; Who, being the Effulgence of His glory and Emblem of His assumption, as well as carrying on the universe by His powerful declaration, making a cleansing of sins, is seated at the right hand of the Majesty in the heights; becoming so much better than messengers as He has enjoyed the allotment of a more excellent name than they.

<sup>5</sup> For when said He to any of the messengers,

"Thou art My Son,

Today have I begotten Thee"?

And again,

"I shall be to Him for a Father
And He shall be to Me for a Son"?

<sup>6</sup> Now, whenever He may again be leading the Firstborn into the inhabited earth, He is saying,

"And let all the messengers of God worship Him."

<sup>7</sup> And, indeed, to the messengers He is saying,

"Who is making His messengers blasts,
And His ministers a flame of fire."

<sup>8</sup> Yet to the Son:

"Thy throne, O God, is for the eon of the eon,
And a scepter of rectitude is the scepter of Thy kingdom.

<sup>9</sup> Thou lovest righteousness and hatest injustice,
Therefore God, Thy God, anoints
Thee with the oil of exultation

<sup>10</sup> And

"Thou, Lord, in accord with sovereignties, dost found the earth,
And the heavens are the works of Thy hands.

<sup>11</sup> They shall be destroyed, yet Thou art continuing,
And they all shall age as a cloak,

<sup>5</sup> God has had many "sons". When earth's corner stone was laid, all the sons of God shouted for joy (Job 38<sup>7</sup>). Adam was a son of God (Lu.3<sup>38</sup>). The sixth of Genesis speaks of the sons of God. Hosea foretells the time when all Israel shall be called the sons of God (Hos.1<sup>10</sup>). So that the particular point in this passage is the introduction of His Son, not by creation, but by begetting. He is His only begotten Son (Ps.2(1)<sup>7</sup>; Mt.1<sup>23</sup>; Lu.1<sup>32,33</sup>; Jn.1<sup>14</sup>). As such He is infinitely better fitted to communicate the heart of God to man.

<sup>9</sup> As Christ, He reigns over the next eon, including the thousand years. After that, in the new earth, He reigns as Son. This is called "the eon of the eon", because it is the fruit of His reign during the preceding eon. When the Son has reigned to such purpose that there is no further need of His rule, He abdicates, turning over the kingdom to God the Father (1 Co.15<sup>28</sup>; see also Ps.45<sup>8,7</sup>).

<sup>12</sup> And, as if clothing, Thou wilt be rolling them up as a cloak, And they shall be changed. Yet Thou art the same, And Thy years shall not be defaulting."

<sup>13</sup> Now when has He declared to any of the messengers

"Be sitting at My right hand till I should be placing Thine enemies for a footstool for Thy feet"?

<sup>14</sup> Are they not all ministering spirits commissioned for service because of those who are about to be enjoying the allotment of salvation?

2 Therefore we must exceedingly be heeding what is being heard, lest at any time we may be

<sup>2</sup> drifting by. For if the word spoken through messengers came to be confirmed, and every transgression and disobedience obtained a fair re-

<sup>3</sup> ward, how shall we be escaping when neglecting a prodigious salvation, which, obtaining a beginning through the speaking of the Lord, was confirmed to us by those who

<sup>4</sup> hear Him, God corroborating, by signs as well as miracles and various powers and partings of holy spirit, according to His will?

"What is man, that Thou art mindful of him?

Or a son of man, that Thou art visiting him?

<sup>7</sup> Thou makest him some whit inferior to the messengers, Thou wreathest him with glory and honor,

And dost place him over the works of Thy hands.

For in the subjection of all to him, He leaves nothing unsubject

<sup>11</sup> The destruction of the earth and the heavens is but a crisis in their change (<sup>12</sup>), for they are not to be made non-existent, but created anew. All things are in a state of flux until the consummation. Only the Son remains the same, and through Him all else attains permanence and perfection.

<sup>13</sup> David's Son and David's Lord will, like him, subdue all His enemies (1 Chron.22<sup>18</sup>; Ps.110<sup>1</sup>). It is the very essence of His glory that this is only "till". When the last enemy has been abolished, the Son subordinates Himself. All enmity being banished, His sovereignty ceases.

<sup>14</sup> Nothing is said here of the great part which angels play in judgment, for judgment, in its last analysis, is but a prelude to salvation. Paul says nothing of angelic ministry now, because our nearness to God precludes the necessity of any intermediaries. The higher the revelation, the nearer we approach the consummation, the more intimate is the creatures' fellowship with God and the less need there is of any link until finally all these vanish when God becomes All in all.

<sup>5</sup> Nowhere are messengers or angels accorded a place of rule. In the future, in the heavens, we shall judge them. On the earth the Circumcision saints will have dominion. Even now the sovereignties and authorities in the heavens are distinguished from the messengers (Un.5<sup>8-12</sup>).

<sup>6</sup> Man's inferiority to angels is only temporary. In the resurrection they will no longer be greater in strength and power (2 Pe.2<sup>11</sup>). Even in the heavens the saints of this economy will be above them. This is only hint-to him. Yet now we are not as yet

<sup>9</sup> seeing all subjected to him. Yet we are observing Jesus, having been made some whit inferior to messengers (because of the suffering of death, wreathed with glory and honor), so that He should, by the grace of God, be tasting death for the sake of all. For it behooved Him, because of Whom all is, and through Whom all is, in leading many sons into glory, to perfect the Inaugurator of their salvation
<sup>10</sup> through sufferings. For He Who is hallowing as well as those who are being hallowed are all of One, for which cause He is not ashamed <sup>11</sup> to be calling them brethren, saying,
 "I shall be reporting Thy name to My brethren,
 In the midst of the ecclesia shall I be singing hymns to Thee."

<sup>13</sup> And again,
 "I shall have confidence in Him."
 And again,
 "Lo! I and the little children whom God gives Me!"

<sup>14</sup> Since, then, the little children have participated in blood and flesh, He also was very nigh in partaking of the same, that, through death, He should be abolishing him who has the control of death, that
<sup>15</sup> is, the Slanderer, and should be clearing those whoever, in fear of death, were through their entire life
<sup>16</sup> liable to slavery. For assuredly it is not taking hold of messengers, but it is taking hold of the seed of <sup>17</sup> Abraham. Whence He must in all things be made like the brethren, that He may be becoming a merciful and faithful Chief Priest in that which is toward God, to make ed in Hebrews. The immediate "all" refers only to the earth (Ps.8).

<sup>8</sup> The resurrection and exaltation of the suffering Saviour is the promise and pledge that He will elevate all who are His during the eons into the place of dominion over the universe. Only the One Who has been lowest can claim the place supreme.

<sup>9</sup> The words "by the grace of God" may, originally, have been "apart from God". This reading is supported by several early fathers and versions, as well as by the context.

Our calling is gracious (Ro.11<sup>29</sup>), for God's glory (1 Co.1<sup>26</sup>), fraught with the highest expectations (Eph.1<sup>18</sup>), not in accord with our acts, but in accord with His own purpose and the grace which was given us in Christ Jesus before eonian times (2 Tim.1<sup>9</sup>), but this calling is conditional (3<sup>6-14</sup>) as in Peter, who exhorts his readers to confirm their calling through ideal acts (2 Pet.1<sup>10</sup>).

The spiritual in Israel are God's house (1 Pet.2<sup>5</sup>). Just as, at the exodus, Moses was over the nation, so now, God's Son is their Mediator. And as Moses combined the office of apostle with that of priest, so Christ is commissioned by God to the people and stands before God for the people.

<sup>3</sup> Whence, holy brethren, partners of a celestial calling, consider the Apostle and Chief Priest of our avowal, Jesus, Who is faithful to Him Who makes Him, as Moses also was in His whole house. For this One is worthy of more glory than Moses by as much as He Who constructs it has more honor than the house. For every house is being constructed by some one, yet He Who constructs all is God. And Moses, indeed, was faithful in His whole house as an attendant, for a testimony of that which shall be spoken. Yet Christ, as a Son over His house—whose house we are, that is, if we should be retaining the boldness and glorying of the expectation confirmed unto the consummation.

<sup>7</sup> Wherefore, according as the holy spirit is saying,

"Today, if you should be hearing His voice,

<sup>8</sup> You should not be hardening your hearts

As in the embitterment of the day of trial in the wilderness,

<sup>9</sup> Where your fathers try Me in the testing

And were acquainted with My acts forty years.

<sup>10</sup> Wherefore I am disgusted with this generation, and said, 'Ever are they straying in heart; Yet they know not My ways,'

<sup>11</sup> As I swear in My indignation, 'If they shall be entering into My stopping—!'"

<sup>12</sup> Beware, brethren, lest at some time there shall be in any of you a wicked heart of unbelief, in withdrawing from the living God. But be entreating yourselves, each day, until what is called "today", lest any of you may be hardened by the seduction of sin. For we have become partners of Christ, type of the wilderness experiences. As Israel wandered forty years in the desert, so now they wander a like period in the wastes of unbelief. The kingdom does not come.

7 The Hebrew of Ps.95<sup>7-11</sup> reads "as at Meribah" and "the day of Massah", and the passage refers to the twentieth of Numbers. The quotation substitutes their meanings. Meribah is "contention," or "bitterness," Massah is "trial." Thus he brings before us the two great occasions which exhibited the unbelief of the people. They followed the report of the ten spies, and refused to go into the land (Nu. 13, 14). Jehovah proposed to wipe them out and make a greater nation of Moses. But He relented, yet doomed them all, but Caleb and Joshua, to die in the wilderness. At Meribah or Massah the people had no water and they murmured against Moses and Jehovah (Ex.17<sup>1-7</sup>; Nu.20<sup>1-13</sup>). All those in the wilderness had been redeemed out of Egypt, yet they failed to enter the land because of unbelief. The Pentecostal believers who are addressed here find themselves in precisely the same predicament. The Lord had come, offering the kingdom, but they had refused to enter in. Now again the kingdom had been proclaimed, and now those who had been redeemed murmur because the kingdom is not set up. This epistle is meant for those at Meribah.

This quotation is the keynote of the warnings of this epistle. Despite them the bulk of the nation drew back, and we witness its wanderings to this day. Abraham was not an Israelite, nor a Jew, but his descendants who imitated his faith in obedience to the exhortations of this epistle are Hebrews indeed.

3 That the entrance into the land was only a typical suggestion of the reality is evident when the psalmist speaks of a future entrance. The word "rest" is not a correct rendering of the Hebrew "sabbath" or the Greek word here used. God was not tired when He first instituted the sabbath (Gen.2<sup>2</sup>). He stopped, not rested. So the unbeliever is not asked to rest from his works, to gather strength to resume them, but to stop because God has finished His work.

that is, if we should be retaining the beginning of the assumption confirmed unto the consummation, while it is being said

"Today, if you should be hearing His voice,
You should not be hardening your hearts
As in the embitterment."

16 For some, hearing, embitter Him; but not all who come out of Egypt through Moses. Now with whom is He disgusted forty years? Was it not with those who sin, whose carcasses fall in the wilderness? 18 Now to whom does He swear, not to be entering into His stopping, except to those who are stubborn? 19 And we are observing that they could not enter because of unbelief.

4 We may be fearing then, lest, when a promise is being left of entering into His stopping, some one of you may be seeming to have been deficient. For we also have been evangelized, even as they. But the word heard does not benefit them, not having been blended with faith 3 in those who hear. Then we who believe are entering into the stopping, according as He has declared,

"As I swear in My indignation,
'If they shall be entering into My stopping—!'" although the works occur from the 4 disruption of the world. For He has declared somewhere concerning the seventh thus: "And God stops on the seventh day from all 5 His works." And in this again, "If they shall be entering into My stopping—!"

6 Since, then, it is left for some to be entering into it, and those to whom the evangel was formerly preached did not enter because of 7 stubbornness, He is again specifying

<sup>8</sup> Joshua (in Greek the same as Jesus) signifies Jehovah the Saviour. He brought them into the land. Hence, while Moses and Aaron are discussed at length, their ministry being in the wilderness, Joshua is barely mentioned. This shows how consistently this epistle clings to the wilderness experiences of Israel. It is not concerned with the entrance into the promises.

<sup>9</sup> The sabbatism which remains for Israel is the millennial kingdom. Those who, like Caleb and Joshua, spy out the land, and have confidence that God will fulfill His promise, enjoy the sabbatism by faith. All the rest are strewn along the wilderness.

<sup>12</sup> The soul has to do with the physical senses. It is usually confused with the spirit. The nation in the wilderness was soulish. They sighed for the flesh pots of Egypt. They were sensual. So too with the people in our Lord's day, who responded to the loaves and fishes, but could not digest His words. And this is the danger with these Hebrew believers. They sighed for the physical blessings of the kingdom. But when the signs which accompanied its proclamation in the Pentecostal era withdrew, they fell away. Only the word of God is able to judge whether an action is spiritual or soulish.

<sup>13</sup> "Him to Whom we are accountable" is an impressive and suggestive description of God whose Word makes apparent every thought of the heart.

<sup>14</sup> Priesthood is a standing symbol of distance and alienation. There was no priest in Eden. There is no temple in the new creation (Un.21<sup>22</sup>). In the present economy of grace each one has unhindered access, by one spirit, to the Father (Eph.2<sup>18</sup>). The Aaronic priesthood arose out of Moses' inability to perform all the functions of a mediator. As Christ has no such disabilities He exercises all the duties pertaining to mediatorship, and thus becomes a Priest of a different order. From the time when no priest was needed, through Melchisedec, who was both priest and king, down to Aaron was a descent. The ascent is through Christ, Who is both Priest and King, to the last eon, when priesthood vanishes in reconciliation.

ing a certain day, "Today"—saying in David after so much time, according as has been declared before,

"Today, if you should be hearing
His voice,
You should not be hardening your hearts."

<sup>8</sup> For if Joshua causes them to stop, He would not have spoken concerning another after these days.

<sup>10</sup> for the people of God. For he who is entering into His stopping, he also stops from his works even as God from His own.

<sup>11</sup> We should be endeavoring, then, to be entering into that stopping, lest some should be falling into the <sup>12</sup> same example of stubbornness. For the word of God is living and active, and keener than any two-edged sword, and penetrating up to the parting of soul and spirit, as well as the articulations and marrow, and is a judge of the sentiments and thoughts of the heart.

<sup>13</sup> And there is not a creature which is not apparent before it. Now all is naked and bared to the eyes of Him to Whom we are accountable.

<sup>14</sup> Having, then, a great Chief Priest, Who has come through the heavens, Jesus, the Son of God, we may be holding to the avowal.

<sup>15</sup> For we have not a Chief Priest not able to sympathize with our infirmities, but One Who has been tried in all respects alike, apart from <sup>16</sup> sin. With boldness, then, we may be approaching the throne of grace, that we may be obtaining mercy and finding grace for opportune help.

1 The chief priest in Israel was able to sympathize with the human frailties of the people because he himself had the same, and sinned, like the rest. But Christ's sufferings, unspeakably more trying than any priest's, never led Him into sin. The priest could offer a sacrifice for himself. Christ could not, for He was the Sacrifice, which must be without blemish. Yet, though He had no sin and did no sin, His close contact with sin and its sufferings enables Him to enter into perfect sympathy with those thus placed.

4 The honors of the priesthood have been coveted or usurped only at awful cost. Korah, Dathan and Abiram claimed the priesthood and were swallowed up by the earth (Nu.16). The censers of those with them were made into broad plates to cover the altar as a memorial that no stranger, not of the seed of Aaron, may come near to offer incense before the Lord (Nu. 16<sup>40</sup>). King Uzziah also transgressed against the Lord his God, and went into the temple of the Lord to burn incense upon the altar of incense. In consequence, the leprosy rose up in his forehead before the priests, and he was thrust out, and was a leper to the day of his death (2 Chron.26<sup>16-21</sup>). Hence it would appear a most serious matter for anyone outside the line of Aaron to set himself up as a priest. Only one called by God dare aspire to the honor. It is necessary, therefore that Christ Himself, Who was not of the tribe of Levi, much less a son of Aaron, should have a definite call. Not by personal ambition, but by the call of God which involved such suffering as is most repugnant to flesh and blood, did Christ obtain His priesthood. God did save Him out of death, but not from the "cup".

11 The Jews were blind to the failures and disabilities connected with the Aaronic priesthood, hence could not appreciate the necessity of a new order for the Messiah. This made the whole subject a difficult one to unfold to them. The principal lessons are drawn from the inspired omissions in the record, which require a measure of spiritual apprehension which they did not possess.

men in that which is toward God, that he may be offering oblations as well as sacrifices for sins, able to be moderate with the ignorant and straying, since he also is encompassed with infirmity, and because of it, he ought, according as for the people, thus for himself also, be offering concerning sins.

4 And no one is getting the honor himself, but on being called by God, according as even Aaron, also. 5 Thus Christ also does not glorify Himself by becoming a chief priest, but He Who speaks to Him,

"Thou art My Son,
Today have I begotten Thee,"

6 according as in a different place also He is saying,

"Thou art a priest for the eon
According to the order of Melchisedec,"

7 Who, in the days of His flesh, offering petitions as well as supplications with strong clamor and tears to Him Who is able to save Him out of death, was hearkened to also for 8 His piety. And even He, being a Son, learned obedience from that 9 which He suffered. And, being perfected, He became the cause of eonian salvation to all who are obeying Him, being accosted by God "a 10 Chief Priest according to the order of Melchisedec," concerning whom 11 there are words, many and abstruse, for us to say, since you have become dull of hearing.

12 For when also, because of the time, you ought to be teachers, you have need again of one to teach you what are the rudimentary elements of the oracles of God, and you have come to have need of milk, and not 13 of solid nurture. For every one

<sup>1</sup> The six rudiments which form the foundation which the Hebrews are exhorted to leave for more mature teaching are closely connected with the proclamation of the kingdom, and are not the substructure of present truth. Repentance and baptism are the keys to the kingdom, and are not for the body of Christ. Peter, at Pentecost, proclaims repentance and baptism to the Jews—perhaps to some who later received this epistle. Faith is the basis on which the present administration of grace is built. The Jews were zealous religionists. Their ritual was the dead works of which they repented when they turned to Messiah.

"Faith on God" is probably the equivalent of our "belief in God", that is believing that He is, rather than what He has said. Believing God, as in Abraham's case, leads to justification, a grace entirely absent from this list.

<sup>2</sup> Paul did not put baptism in the foundation of his evangel. He insisted that Christ had not sent him to baptize, but to evangelize (1 Co.1<sup>17</sup>). Now there is only one baptism—that in spirit, which unites us into one body (Eph.4<sup>5</sup>). In the kingdom proclamation, however, baptism in water was essential.

The imposition of hands for the conveyance of spiritual benefits especially through the apostles is also a characteristic of the kingdom economy.

There seems to be no reference here to the "resurrection from among the dead", but rather to resurrection in general, apart from which the kingdom cannot be set up. At that time will the saints in Israel awake and possess the kingdom promised to them in the prophets.

Eonian judgment characterizes the inception and progress of Messiah's reign. It begins with the severest judgments this earth has known.

These are the six foundation stones cast down by those who fell away among the Hebrews. They should have left them for maturity. Instead, they forsake them for apostasy. Instead of going back to Judaism, they would crucify again for themselves the Son of God.

who is partaking of milk is untried in the word of righteousness, for he <sup>14</sup> is a minor. Now solid nurture is for the mature, who, because of habit, have faculties exercised to discriminate between the ideal and the evil.

<sup>6</sup> Wherefore, leaving the rudiments of the word of Christ, we should be brought on to maturity, not disrupting again a foundation of repentance from dead <sup>2</sup> works, and faith on God, of the teaching of baptizings, besides the imposition of hands as well as the resurrection of the dead, and <sup>3</sup> eonian judgment. And this will we be doing, that is, if God should be permitting.

<sup>9</sup> Now we are persuaded better things concerning you, beloved, and those which have salvation, even if <sup>10</sup> we are speaking thus. For God is not unjust, to be forgetting your work and the love which you display for His name, when you serve <sup>11</sup> the saints, and are serving. Now costal blessings. They were enlightened, they tasted the celestial gratuity, they became partakers of holy spirit, and God's declaration, and they only experienced the powers of the kingdom eon, and many of them fell aside. These blessings were based on their repentance, or change of mind, which was induced largely by the miracles which they saw. When the kingdom failed to appear, and its powers vanished, their repentance went also. Hence the impossibility of renewing it, for the means which produced it were no longer in evidence. Such a course is not possible in a day of grace, such as we live in. In place of repentance and pardon, we have faith and justification, which know no falling away, being entirely of grace, from first to last.

<sup>12</sup> "Through faith and patience" the promises may be enjoyed even by those who are actually strangers and expatriates on the earth.

<sup>13</sup> That all are not to apostatize is evident from God's oath to Abraham. This truth is offered as an incentive to those who still remain faithful, to persevere to the consummation. It is only thus that the salvation of the Pentecostal saint was assured. The general fulfilment of God's oath to Abraham was beyond question, for God swore by the highest possible power to fulfil it, yet the special blessing of each one of his physical descendants depends, in some degree, not merely on their faith, but their faithfulness. This is the great distinguishing feature, which sinks it far below the grace which is lavished on us, sinners of the nations. We do not need this anchor of the soul, hence it is extended only to those who belong to Abraham by ties of flesh.

<sup>1</sup> Melchisedec is notable chiefly for what is not recorded of him. There is no reason to believe that he was, personally, the mystical and miraculous character which is his as a picture of the priesthood of Christ. He doubtless was a man like other men, for God had some among the nations who we are yearning for each of you to be displaying the same diligence toward the assurance of the expectation until the consummation, that you may not be becoming dull. Now be imitators of those who through faith and patience are enjoying the promises of the allotment.

<sup>13</sup> For God, promising Abraham, since He had no one greater to swear by, swears by Himself, saying, "In sooth, if it is blessing, I shall be blessing you, and multiplying, I shall be multiplying you!" And thus, being patient, he happened on the promise.

<sup>16</sup> For men are swearing by a greater, and to them an oath for confirmation is an end of all contradiction, in which God, intending more superabundantly to exhibit to the enjoyers of the allotment of the promise the immutability of His counsel, interposes with an oath, <sup>18</sup> that by two immutable matters, in which it is impossible for God to lie, we may have a strong consolation, who are fleeing for refuge to lay hold of the expectation lying <sup>19</sup> before us, which we have as an anchor of the soul, both secure and confirmed, and entering into the interior beyond the curtain, where <sup>20</sup> the Forerunner, Jesus, entered for our sakes, becoming Chief Priest according to the order of Melchisedec for the eon.

<sup>7</sup> For this Melchisedec, king of Salem, priest of God Most High, who meets with Abraham returning from the combat with the kings <sup>2</sup> and blesses him, to whom Abraham parts a tithe, also, from all, being had been brought to a close acquaintance with their Creator.

The Melchisedec priesthood should be studied in its contrasts with the Aaronic priesthood. Its greatest difference lies in the fact that it combines the office of king with that of priest. This is the ideal way. It was only because of the failure of Moses that Aaron was given a share in his mediatorial office. It is God's purpose that the nation of Israel shall be a kingdom of priests (Ex.19<sup>e</sup>), a royal priesthood (1 Pet.2<sup>s</sup>). They will rule the nations for God and bring the nations' offerings to God. So it behooves their Head to be both Priest and King.

The other great point of dissimilarity lies in the matter of succession. The continuance of the Aaronic priesthood was made a matter of descent, and nothing was so vital to a priest as his genealogy. He must be able to tell his father and his mother and trace his lineage clear back to Aaron or he could not even be a priest. And he must provide for this succession by marrying within the priestly caste. In notable contrast to this we have no recorded genealogy of Melchisedec whatever, no mention of father or mother, and no succession, for his death is carefully excluded from the fleeting glimpse we get of him on the pages of inspiration. These omissions are intentional, for only thus can his priesthood picture the priesthood of Christ, Who does not require a genealogy or a successor.

first, indeed, translated "king of righteousness", yet thereupon king of Salem also, which is "king of Peace", fatherless, motherless, without a genealogy, nor having a beginning of days or consummation of life, yet picturing the Son of God, is remaining a priest to a finality.

<sup>4</sup> Now you are beholding how eminent this one is to whom the patriarch Abraham gives a tithe also of the best of the booty. And, indeed, those of the sons of Levi who obtain the priestly office have directions to take tithes from the people according to the law, that is, their brethren, though they have come out of the loins of Abraham. Yet he who is not in their genealogy has tithed Abraham, and has blessed him who has the promises.

<sup>7</sup> Now, beyond all contradiction, the inferior is blessed by the better. <sup>8</sup> And here, indeed, dying men are obtaining tithes, yet there one of whom it is testified that he is living. <sup>9</sup> And, so to speak, through Abraham, Levi also, who is obtaining tithes, <sup>10</sup> has been tithed, for he was still in the loins of his father when Melchisedec meets with him.

<sup>11</sup> Indeed, then, if perfection were through the Levitical priesthood (for the people have been placed under law by it) what need is there still for a different priest to arise according to the order of Melchisedec, and not be accounted according to the order of Aaron? <sup>12</sup> For, the priesthood being transferred, of necessity there is coming to be a transference of law also, for He of Whom these things are said has partaken of a different tribe, from which no one has given heed to the altar. <sup>14</sup> For it is taken for granted that our Lord has risen out of Ju-which, in Israel, was the special portion of the Levites. Abraham, himself, the progenitor of the nation, actually paid tithes to this priest; and in him, the whole Levitical priesthood paid tithes to another and higher order. Nor is this all, for Melchisedec blessed Abraham, and so bestowed his benediction on the Levitic succession. This alone shows that his order is distinctly superior to that of Aaron.

11 It would be very difficult for the Hebrews to acknowledge the failure of the Aaronic priesthood. Yet this is distinctly involved in the announcement of a priest after a different order. Had our Lord come of the family of Aaron, He would have been associated with an order which began in failure and which will never effect the reconciliation between God and His creatures which priesthood is intended to bring about: Hence His genealogy proclaims Him Israel's King, but He ignores all genealogies in His priestly place. Instead, He has the much higher honor of being qualified for office by the divine oath, including an assurance that, unlike the Aaronic priesthood, there will be no regrets for the failure and insufficiency of His ministry.

23 If the Melchisedec priesthood should last forever (instead of for the eon) then it too, would come under the condemnation of never bringing anything to perfection or finality. Then there would be a temple and priesthood on the new earth; indeed, it would continue beyond the consummation, and form an insurmountable barrier between God and some of His creatures. Priesthood is a sign of estrangement; it vanishes when God is at peace with His people. Hence, though the Lord's life is indissoluble (7<sup>16</sup>) and the priesthood inviolate (7<sup>24</sup>), unbroken by death, it is always limited to one eon, beyond which there can be no priesthood, because there is no estrangement.

26 The glories of this Chief Priest refer to His relation to God, to men, to the law. He is knit to God by loving devotion. He is innocent of any tinge of malice toward men, and He is undefiled by a spot of moral defilement. He is separate from sinners because of His exaltation to His office.

dah, to which tribe Moses speaks nothing concerning priests. And it is still more superabundantly sure, if a different priest is arising according to the likeness of Melchisedec, Who has not come to be according to the law of a fleshy precept, but according to the power of an indissoluble life: For He is testifying that

According to the order of Melchisedec."

18 For, indeed, there is coming to be a repudiation of the preceding precept, because it is weak and without benefit, for the law perfects nothing, yet is the superinduction of a better expectation, through which we are drawing near to God.

20 And, inasmuch as it was not apart from the swearing of an oath (for they, indeed, are priests, having become so apart from the swearing of an oath, yet He with the swearing of an oath by Him Who is saying to Him,

"The Lord swears and will not be regretting it,
'Thou art a priest for the eon
According to the order of Melchisedec;'"

22 by so much also has Jesus become the sponsor of a better covenant.

23 And they, indeed, are more [than one], having become priests because death prevents them from abiding, yet He, because He is remaining for the eon, has an inviolate priesthood. Whence, also, He is able to save to the uttermost those approaching God through Him, always being alive to be pleading for their sakes.

26 For such a Chief Priest became us, benign, innocent, undefiled, separated from sinners, and coming to

AND HIGHER OF-THE heavens

<sup>27</sup> The fact that the sacrificial system under the law demanded sacrifices for the sins of the priests as well as for the people, shows that it was a weak and imperfect and temporary expedient. Add to this the fact that these sacrifices continued to be offered daily, and never brought any permanent relief, and we see clearly that it was never intended to do more than suggest the true Sacrifice, which the Son offered once, which needs no repetition. It is evident, therefore, that He could not have associated Himself with the Aaronic order without degrading His great sacrifice. They served among the shadows of the heavenly tabernacle. He entered the true.

<sup>1</sup> The tabernacle and temple furniture did not include a seat. The high priest's work was never completed, hence, he never sat down in the holy places. In striking contrast, the Chief Priest of the new order has finished His work, and sits at the right hand of the Majesty in the heavens.

The "sum" is that the sanctuary is heaven itself: the Chief Priest is the Son of God. His priestly work began after His ascension (v. 4). Aaronic priesthood was instituted at Sinai (Ex.24) after Israel had been redeemed, for the purpose of maintaining the people in the blessedness of redemption.

<sup>5</sup> The tabernacle and its service were patterned after a heavenly original. It was not an exact copy, however, but an adumbration or shadow, merely giving the main outlines. The heavenly offerings seem to be mainly oblations or gifts, and probably had no sacrificial victims other than the great sacrifice of Christ. The earthly copy was given to teach the great lessons of God's righteousness and holiness, and man's unfitness and distance from Him, as well as the way of approach which is acceptable to Him until the true Sacrifice pours out His soul and makes an end of sins.

<sup>6</sup> The heavenly tabernacle is not associated with the covenant and promises which came from Sinai along with the earthly model. Everything connected with the new Mediator is better. This is especially true of the new covenant which He will make when the kingdom commences.

<sup>27</sup> be higher than the heavens, Who has no necessity daily, even as the chief priests, to be offering up sacrifices previously for their own sins, thereupon for those of the people, for this He does once, when offering up Himself. For the law is constituting men chief priests who have infirmity, yet the word sworn in the oath which is after the law, the Son, perfected for the eon.

8 Now this is the sum of what is being said: We have such a Chief Priest, Who is seated at the right of the throne of the Majesty in the heavens, a Minister of the holy places and of the true tabernacle, which the Lord pitches, and not man.

<sup>3</sup> For every chief priest is constituted to offer oblations as well as sacrifices. Whence it is necessary for This One also to have something which He may offer. Indeed, then, if He were on earth He would not even be a priest, there being those who offer oblations according to the law, who are offering an example and shadow of the divine service of the celestials, according as Moses has been apprized when about to complete the tabernacle, "For be seeing," He is averring, "that you shall be doing all in accord with the model shown you in the mountain."

<sup>6</sup> Yet now He has happened upon a more excellent ministry, inasmuch as He is the Mediator, also, of a better covenant, which has been instituted on better promises. For if that first one were unblamable, no place would have been sought for a second. For, blaming them, He is saying,

"Lo! the days are coming", the Lord is saying,

'And I shall be concluding with the house of Israel and with the <sup>8</sup> Few phrases are so unfortunately confusing as "the New Testament". The Greek word for "testament" and its Hebrew equivalent never carry the ordinary meaning of a will, or legal instrument for the disposal of property after death. They are close equivalents of our "covenant" or "contract". To speak of the Greek Scriptures as "the New Testament", and the Hebrew as "the Old Testament" is most misleading, because, as a matter of fact the new covenant is found in the "Old Testament". Jeremiah gives it in full (Jer.31<sup>31-34</sup>). It has never been in force yet, and "New Testament times" will not come until after the time of great affliction when Jehovah calls Israel and Judah back to Himself. In truth, the new covenant is not for the nations at all, though, of course, a large section of the "New Testament" is especially for the nations.

The "old covenant" is not the Hebrew scriptures, but the compact made with Israel at Mount Sinai. It was two-sided. The people proposed to do their part and Jehovah engaged to do His. They promised to obey Him, but dismally failed to do so, consequently He could not fulfill His promises to bless them.

The new covenant which He will make with them after they have been restored to their land, and have received their Messiah, is radically different from the old. The people have no active part in it whatever. All depends on Jehovah. Hence it will not be a failure. The law that was written on stones will be written on their hearts. Instead of demanding a penalty for every infraction, He will be propitious. Instead of recalling their sins and lawlessnesses, He will blot them out. Instead of an "atonement" or shelter for sin made by the blood of he-goats and calves, the blood of Christ will put them completely away. At present we have the infinitely higher privilege of confidence in God Himself, not His promises or His covenants. The law is not inscribed on our hearts, but we were caused to die to the law through the body of Christ. We are not a regeneration but a new creation.

house of Judah a new covenant,
<sup>9</sup> Not in accord with the covenant which I make with their fathers In the day of My taking hold of their hand to be leading them out of the land of Egypt, Seeing that they do not remain in My covenant, And I neglect them', the Lord is saying,
<sup>10</sup> 'Seeing that this is the covenant which I shall be covenanting with the house of Israel after those days,' the Lord is saying: 'Imparting My laws to their comprehension, Even on their hearts shall I be inscribing them, And I shall be to them for a God, and they shall be to Me for a people.
<sup>11</sup> And by no means should each be teaching his [fellow] citizen, And each his brother, saying, "Know the Lord!" Seeing that all will be acquainted with Me, from their little to their great, <sup>12</sup> Seeing that I shall be propitious to their injustices, And of their sins and their lawlessnesses should I under no circumstances be still reminded."

<sup>13</sup> In saying "new" He has made the former old. Now that which is aging and decrepit is near its disappearance.

<sup>9</sup> The former also, indeed then, had just statutes of divine service, besides a worldly holy place. For a tabernacle is constructed, in the front of which is the lampstand as well as the table and the showbread, which is termed the holy place.

<sup>4</sup> holy of holies, having the golden censer and the ark of the covenant covered about everywhence with gold, in which was the golden urn having the manna, and Aaron's staff which germinates, and the

The holy place speaks of man's need in approaching God. The holy of holies exhibits the higher truth of God's desire for worship. Sweet incense floated up to Him from the golden altar. His Presence abode above the ark of the covenant between the cherubim. The stone tablets of the covenant were securely hid from sight beneath the lid of the ark, which was the propitiatory or mercy seat. Here it is that Jehovah met the mediator of His people.

The word rendered "censer" is sometimes translated "golden altar". But it is used twice in the LXX of a "censer in his hand" (2 Chron.26<sup>19</sup>; Ezek.8<sup>11</sup>), and never of the golden altar. This was before the curtain, not in the holy of holies. Worship is not in view, so the altar is not mentioned.

<sup>6</sup> The chief lesson of the tabernacle structure (as well as that of the temple) never seems to have entered the minds and hearts in Israel. A God Who hid Himself behind thick curtains, and Who forbade access into His presence except on rare occasions, Who divided the holy places into two compartments and dwelt alone in the furthest one, out of reach of all except the high priest once a year, makes it evident that the way to Him is far from open. And, as a consequence, the services based on these barriers must be impotent to clear the way, and were temporary measures, lasting only until Christ would crush all barriers by His surpassing sacrifices, and open the way of access to His presence.

<sup>5</sup> tablets of the covenant. Now up over it were the cherubim of glory overshadowing the propitiatory, concerning which there is nothing in particular to be said now.

lowing to the cleanness of the flesh, <sup>14</sup> how much rather shall the blood of Christ, Who, through the eonian spirit offers Himself flawless to

<sup>13</sup> This refers to the two great sin-offerings of Lev. 16 and Num. 19. The victim was burned, the ashes preserved, and water that flowed over them availed to purify. This ordinance fills an important place in Israel's future as well as its past (Ezek. 36<sup>25</sup>).

<sup>15</sup> This new covenant is for Israel and Judah only. The nations have no part in it at all. They never had the law and never will have it. They never had a divine service or a tabernacle, neither were the promises made to them. All of this is for the Hebrews only.

<sup>16</sup> Covenants, in ancient times, were ratified by means of sacrifices. When Jehovah wished to confirm His covenant with Abram, five different animals were divided into halves, which were laid over against one another so that the contracting parties could pass in between them, thus indicating that they ratified the covenant (Gen. 15<sup>8-21</sup>). As this covenant was one of pure grace on God's part, Abram was not allowed to pass between the pieces. The symbols of Jehovah's presence passed through alone, thus confirming the covenant without conditions on the part of Abram. Until the victims have been slain no covenant was considered binding.

<sup>16</sup> The rendering "testament" and "testator" has no concord whatever with the context. It is true that a testament is of no force while the testator is living, but that has no possible application here. If the covenant with Abram were a testament made by God, then, according to the reasoning, it has no force so long as God lives! The old covenant was confirmed by death—not the death of either party to the covenant, but by the sacrifices which the young men offered (Ex. 24<sup>5-8</sup>). The blood of these victims was sprinkled on the scroll of the covenant and on the people.

<sup>18</sup> The old covenant, under which the people rashly contracted to do all that the law demanded, was dedicated with the blood of calves and he-goats. The new is inaugurated with the blood of Christ, which has power to fend all failure, and refuses all human help.

God, be cleansing your conscience from dead works to be offering divine service to the living and true God?

<sup>15</sup> And, therefore, He is the Mediator of a new covenant, so that, a death occurring for the deliverance of the transgressions of those under the first covenant, they who have been called may be obtaining the promise of an eternal enjoyment of the allotment. For, where there is a covenant, it is necessary to bring in the death of the covenant [victim], for a covenant is confirmed over the dead, since it is availing at no time when the covenant [victim] is living.

<sup>18</sup> Whence neither the first has been dedicated apart from blood. <sup>19</sup> For, every precept being spoken by Moses to the entire people according to the law, taking the blood of calves and of he-goats, with water and scarlet wool and hyssop, he sprinkles the scroll itself as well as the entire people, saying, "This is the blood of the covenant which God <sup>21</sup> directs with you." Now the tabernacle also, and all the vessels of the ministry he likewise sprinkles with <sup>22</sup> blood. And almost all is being cleansed in blood according to the law, and apart from bloodshedding is coming no pardon.

<sup>23</sup> It is necessary, then, for the examples, indeed, of what is in the heavens to be cleansed by these, yet the celestial things themselves by <sup>24</sup> better sacrifices than these. For Christ entered not into holy places made by hands, representations of the true, but into heaven itself, now to be disclosed before the face <sup>25</sup> of God for our sakes. Nor is it that He may be offering Himself

<sup>26</sup> It is evident that Christ did not appear at "the end of the world", nor, indeed, at the conclusion of the eons. Neither has sin been completely eliminated. Such, however, is the efficacy of His sacrifice, that we know that sin must eventually be banished from the universe. And we know also that this will be at the conclusion of the eons. Hence this somewhat complicated sentence has been rendered to this effect.

<sup>27</sup> This is not a general statement concerning all men, but the men who have been in view continually, that is, the Levitical priests. The word judgment has no reference to the judgment of mankind for sin, but the setting to rights of those cases in Israel which continued until the death of the high priest. The innocent man-slayer lived in the city of refuge until the death of the great priest (Nu.35<sup>22-29</sup>). Then he might return to his patrimony. This was his "judgment". The parallel demands that this judgment correspond with the salvation which will come to those who are awaiting Christ. He, the great Chief Priest, has died, and in due time Israel, the man-slayer, shall return to the land of his possession.

<sup>28</sup> This appearance of Christ refers to His return to Israel. He will bring salvation to all, whether they watch or are drowsy (1 Thess.5<sup>10</sup>) when He comes for us. But to Israel He brings salvation to those awaiting Him. Just as the high priest entered the holy of holies on the great day of atonement and came out to bless the waiting throng, so Christ has entered the heavenly sanctuary and will bring a benediction when He comes.

<sup>5</sup> The unbeliever's objection that the God of Israel was a terrible God Who delighted in the blood of slain beasts, is here directly denied. The whole sacrificial system, not only as an often, even as the chief priest is entering into the holies of holies <sup>26</sup> yearly by the blood of others, since then He must often be suffering from the disruption of the world, yet now, once, has He been manifested through His sacrifice, for the repudiation of sin at the conclusion of the eons.

<sup>27</sup> And, inasmuch as it is reserved to the men to be dying once, yet <sup>28</sup> after this a judging, thus Christ also, being offered once for the bearing of the sins of many, will be seen a second [time], by those awaiting Him, apart from sin, for salvation, through faith.

10 For the law, having a shadow of future good, not the very image of the matters, they with their same sacrifices which they are offering yearly are never finally able to perfect those approaching. Else should they not cease being offered, because those offering divine service, having been once cleansed, have no longer a <sup>3</sup> conscience as to sins? But in them there is a recollection of sins <sup>4</sup> yearly, for it is impossible for the blood of bulls and of he-goats to be eliminating sins.

"Sacrifice and offering

Thou wilt not,

Yet a body dost Thou adapt to Me.

<sup>6</sup> In holocausts and those concerning sin

Thou dost not delight.

<sup>7</sup> Then said I,

'Lo! I am arriving (in the summary of the scroll it is written concerning Me)

To do Thy will, O God.'

<sup>8</sup> Further, when saying that "Sacrifice and offering and holocausts atonement for sin, but also as a means of worship by whole burnt offerings, gave Him no pleasure in itself, but only as it was typical of the true. The physical perfection of an animal was nothing to Him except as a reminder of the moral and spiritual perfection of the One Who came to do His will. The blood of beasts could cover sins, but had no power to put them away, yet it foretold the true Sacrifice, and the sufferings which suffice to offset all sins—covered or uncovered—and eventually to justify all who have committed them as well as to vindicate God for the presence of sin in the world. These grander results are not, of course, in view in this epistle.

7 So Christ "offers Himself flawless to God", not at the cross, but on coming into the world, as the Israelite presented his sacrifice at the door of the tabernacle (Lev.11-5).

11 The great difference between the Levitical sacrifices and that of their Antitype is graphically brought before us in the action of the chief priests and the inaction of Christ. Indeed, had the sacrifices of the law been really efficacious, like that of Christ, there never would have been a priesthood and a sacrificial system. Moses would have offered one sacrifice, such as that at the inauguration of the covenant (Ex.24<sup>6</sup>), and, there being no further necessity for sacrifice, there would have been no need for a priesthood. The Aaronic priesthood is built on its own inadequacy. Its continuous round of unavailing ritual knew no goal, brooked no cessation, and gave no rest. No priest was allowed to sit in the holy places, for his work was never final. In these things the type is in contrast with the antitype, for Christ is seated in the holy of holies so far as His priesthood is concerned.

15 Under the new covenant, when Judah and Israel are restored to their land, the sin offering will be offered again (Eze.43<sup>22</sup>), but it is evident that it will not be for those who have been pardoned.

19 The "recently slain way" is a reference to the path into the temple. On either side were the bodies of the sacrifices which had just been slain, and offered to Jehovah. It, however, was a dead way, and no one but a priest and those concerning sin Thou wilt not, neither dost Thou delight" (which are being offered according to law) then He has declared, "Lo! I am arriving to do Thy will, O God!" He is despatching the first, that He should be establishing the second. By which will we are hallowed through the offering of the body of Jesus Christ once.

11 And every chief priest, indeed, stands ministering daily and offering often the same sacrifices, which never can take sins from about us. 12 Yet This One, when offering one sacrifice for sins, is seated to a finality at the right hand of God, 13 waiting furthermore till His enemies may be placed as a footstool 14 for His feet. For by one offering He has made those who are hallowed perfect to a finality.

15 Now the holy spirit also is testifying to us, for after having declared, "This is the covenant which I shall be covenanting with them after those days", the Lord is saying, 'imparting My laws to their hearts, I shall be inscribing them on their comprehension also, and of their sins and their lawlessnesses shall I under no circumstances be still reminded.' " Now where there is a pardon of these, there is no longer offering concerned with sin.

19 Having, then, brethren, boldness for the entrance of the holy places 20 by the blood of Jesus, by a recently slain and living way which He dedicates for us, through the curtain, that is, His flesh, and a great 21 Priest over the house of God, we may be approaching with a true dared enter upon it. The way now lies through the death and resurrection of Christ, hence is a living way, though recently slain. Then even the priest dares not venture through the curtain, behind which the Shekinah glory dwelt. Now, however, the Hebrews of every tribe have access, not only into the outer court of the priests, but into the holy place and into the holy of holies, where the high priest went but once a year. He went with fear and trembling, but they are invited to enter with assurance, because of the efficacy of this sprinkled blood and the cleanliness which comes through His word (Jn.15<sup>3</sup>). It is as worshipers they are to approach. This epistle speaks of Christ's priesthood, and not of that of His people.

<sup>27</sup> Under the law, one who sinned "presumptuously" (Nu.15<sup>30</sup>), or, as the Hebrew has it, "with a high hand", was to be cut off from among his people, because he had despised the word of Jehovah and broken His commandment. The man who gathered sticks on the sabbath day was stoned to death (Nu.15<sup>32-36</sup>). The voluntary sin here referred to is doubtless the repudiation of the truth and apostasy from the faith. The faith of the Hebrews, having been founded on the powers and signs which were given as a token of the near approach of the kingdom, was sorely tried when these signs ceased and the kingdom did not come. But those who drew back could not do so without reproaching God and trampling on the Son of God and inviting the fiery jealousy of Jehovah. For such there is no sin offering, since they refuse the only Sacrifice that is of any avail. They are calling down the vengeance of God.

How great is the contrast between these Hebrews and those who came under the ministry of Paul! Their faith did not fail for lack of evidence, because it was never founded on it (2 Co.5<sup>7</sup>). They come so completely under the dominion of grace, that persistence in sin would only increase the outflowing of favor (Ro.6<sup>1</sup>). We are beyond the sphere of condemnation (Ro.8<sup>1</sup>). The Hebrews were never introduced into such grace as this, for their destiny is the kingdom.

heart, in the assurance of faith, with hearts sprinkled from a wicked conscience, and a body bathed in clean water.

<sup>23</sup> We may be retaining the avowal of the expectation without wavering, for faithful is He Who promises. And we may be considering one another to incite to love and <sup>24</sup> ideal acts, not abandoning the assembling of ourselves together, according as the custom of some is, but entreating, and so much rather as you are observing the day drawing near.

<sup>32</sup> Now be recollecting the former days in which, being enlightened, you endure a vast competition of <sup>33</sup> sufferings, in this, indeed, being a gazing stock of reproaches as well as afflictions, yet in this, becoming participants of those behaving

<sup>1</sup> Faith is neither "substance" nor "evidence", as is the usual rendering of this passage. The word "substance" is changed to "confidence" in most later translations, as this word seems to agree with its context in 2 Co. 9:4; 11:17. But "confidence" is not at all suitable in He. 13, where the A. V. has "person". The Revisers change this to "substance"—the very rendering they refuse in this passage! But faith is intangible, the very opposite of substance. It assumes that to be truth which it expects to become fact in the future. The word "assumption" fits every passage in which this word occurs and opens up a marvelous vista of truth, as when we are told that the Son is the Emblem of the divine assumptions. God assumes various characters during His administration of the eons. He is Creator, Saviour, Judge, and Reconciler. In every assumption He is represented by His Son, Who, as His Emblem, is also the Creator, Saviour, Judge, and Reconciler. In his second epistle to the Corinthians, Paul assumes the attitude of boasting. Faith cannot become "substance" without being transmuted into sight.

<sup>2</sup> That the worlds were framed is not pertinent to this passage. It deals with the change in God's administration of the eons as a result of the refusal of the kingdom proclamation. God has come in afresh, and, through the revelations made to the apostle Paul, has readjusted the eons to suit the conditions brought about by the apostasy of Israel. Those associated with this new grace find that, in spirit, not the kingdom, but the new creation has come (2 Co. 5:17), and not only so, but the very consummation has arrived (1 Co. 10:11). This does not preclude the actual kingdom in the future for which the Hebrews hope. They died in faith, like the elders, not having received the promises. The faith of the Pentecostal Hebrews was largely founded on miracles and signs. Our sheer faith has no foundation but God's declaration. Therefore, in spirit, we soar far ahead of the Hebrews, beyond the Regeneration, into the New Creation.

<sup>34</sup> thus. For you sympathize with my prisoners also, and anticipate the pillage of your possessions with joy, knowing you yourselves have better and permanent property in the heavens.

<sup>35</sup> You should not, then, be casting away your boldness, which is having a great reward, for you have need of endurance, that, doing the will of God, you should be requited with the promise. For still how very little, "He Who is coming will be arriving and not delaying." "Yet My just one shall be living by faith," and "If he should be shrinking, My soul is not delighting in him." Yet we are not of those shrinking back to destruction, but of faith for the procuring of the soul. 10:21-19

<sup>11</sup> Now faith is an assumption of what is being expected, a conviction concerning matters which are not being observed; for in this testimony was borne to the elders. By faith we are apprehending the eons to have been readjusted to a declaration of God, so that what is being observed has not come out of what is apparent.

<sup>4</sup> By faith Abel offers to God more of a sacrifice than Cain, through which it was testified that he was just, having God's testimony to his oblations, and through this, dying, he is still speaking.

<sup>5</sup> By faith Enoch was transferred, so as not to perceive death, and was not found, because God transfers him. For before his transference he has the testimony of having been well pleasing to God.

<sup>6</sup> Now apart from faith it is impossible to be well pleasing, for he who is approaching God must believe that He is, and is becoming a Re-which it has "acquired" from the cursed ground. Abel, "vanity", recognizing sin, was the first man whose blood was shed. Cain would not shed the blood of an animal, but does not shrink from shedding his brother's.

<sup>5</sup> Enoch, in order to believe God, had a special revelation. Jude quotes from this early prophecy (Ju.<sup>14,15</sup>). Though he walked with God, he evidently walked in the midst of a most ungodly generation, which, indeed, prepared the earth for the deluge. He registered his faith in the approaching judgment by naming his firstborn son Methuselah, which has been interpreted as "when he is dead it shall be sent". The deluge came in the year of his death. His longevity speaks of God's longsuffering.

<sup>7</sup> As Enoch's faith kept him out of the impending judgment to which he testified, so Noah's faith led him safely through it. One was called upon to warn, the other to work. The building of the ark must have been a tremendous task to undertake in the face of the derision and opposition of the whole world. It was a continual reminder of the threatened doom, and condemned them by its very presence.

<sup>8</sup> In this account God takes no notice of the failures of faith. Abraham, indeed, obeyed, when called out of Ur. Yet it was a partial obedience, and tardy, for he did not leave his father's house, but tarried in Haran until his father's death. Neither is there any hint here of his sojourn in Egypt (Gen. 12<sup>10</sup>), of his effort to fulfil God's promise by taking Hagar, or, at the very height of his faith, requiring a covenant to confirm Jehovah's promise (Gen. 15<sup>8</sup>). Such lapses as these are not in line with this catalogue of the faithful, but, in Abraham's case especially, it helps us to see that even he failed in his highest excellence.

<sup>13</sup> Here we have the key to this notable chapter. The Hebrews did not desire faith; they wanted fulfilment. They wanted no more promises, but performances. They wanted the kingdom to come. But the time had not yet arrived. The nation is apostate. God had begun a work among the nations, through the apostle Paul, which must be finished first. What then, is left for the Hebrews? They are ex-warder of those who are seeking Him out.

<sup>7</sup> By faith Noah, being apprized of that which is not as yet being observed, being pious, constructs an ark for the salvation of his house, through which he condemns the world, and became an enjoyer of the allotment of the righteousness which is in accord with faith.

<sup>8</sup> By faith Abraham, being called, obeys, coming out into the place which he was about to obtain to enjoy as an allotment, and came out, not versed in where he is coming.

<sup>9</sup> By faith he sojourns in the land of promise as an alien, dwelling in tabernacles with Isaac and Jacob, the joint tenants of the same promise. For he waited for the city having the foundations, whose Artisan and Architect is God.

<sup>11</sup> By faith Sarah herself also obtained power for the disruption of seed, and brought forth beyond the period of her prime, since she deems the Promiser faithful. Wherefore also were begotten by one, and these of one made dead, according as the constellations of heaven in multitude, and as the sand beside the sea shore innumerable.

<sup>13</sup> These all died in faith, not being requited with the promises, but, perceiving them at a distance, salute them also, and avow that they are strangers and expatriates on the earth. For they who are saying

horted to take the same ground as the faithful of old, who died in faith, not having received the promised blessings. Only in resurrection would they find the fulfilment which they longed for. Abraham never really enjoyed the land which was given to him. In the resurrection he and his seed will not only possess the land, during the day of the Lord, but they will have the still higher and better portion of the holy city, new Jerusalem, in the new creation.

17 That all this is in resurrection is further enforced by the offering of Isaac. Abraham had such confidence in God, that he was ready to slay his son, believing that God would rouse him from the dead in order to fulfil His promise. This is the faith that pleases God and which will count in the kingdom. Though Isaac was not killed on this occasion, his very birth had been like life from the dead, and his sacrifice was practically accomplished, so far as Abraham's faith was concerned.

20 Isaac was the depository of the promises, and it was his faith that led him to pass on the blessing. Nothing is said here of his failure to perceive that Jacob, not Esau, the firstborn of the flesh, was in the line of promise. See Gen. 27.

21 Jacob had learned one lesson of faith, doubtless from his own case. The firstborn of the flesh are not necessarily the first in the purpose of God. So Jacob had received the blessing Isaac intended for Esau. And now, when blessing Joseph's sons, he guided his hands deliberately so as to give the greater blessing to the younger son, even though Joseph had purposely placed them so that the first-born should be at his right hand (Gen. 48<sup>8-20</sup>). And so Ephraim was preferred to Manasseh, though Joseph would have desired to have it otherwise.

22 Joseph believed the word that God had spoken to Abraham, saying that his people should sojourn in Egypt and be afflicted, and afterward should come out (Gen. 15<sup>13,14</sup>). Therefore he told them before his death, "God will notably note you, and you shall bring up my bones from this place" (Gen. 50<sup>25</sup>).

celestial, wherefore God is not ashamed of them, to be invoked as their God, for He makes ready for them a city.

17 By faith Abraham, being tried, has offered Isaac, and he who receives the promises offered the 18 only begotten; he to whom it was spoken that "In Isaac shall your 19 seed be called," reckons that God is able to be rousing him from among the dead also, whence he recovers him in a parable also.

20 By faith Isaac blesses Jacob and Esau concerning the future also.

21 By faith Jacob, when dying, blesses each of the sons of Joseph, and worships on the top of his staff.

22 By faith Joseph, at his decease, remembers concerning the exodus of the sons of Israel, and gives directions concerning his bones.

23 By faith Moses, being born, was hid three months by his fathers, because they perceived that the little boy was handsome, and they were not afraid of the mandate of the king.

24 By faith Moses, becoming great, disowns the term "son of Pharaoh's daughter", preferring rather to have evil with the people of God than to have a temporary enjoyment of sin, deeming the reproach of Christ greater riches than the treasures of Egypt, for he looked 27 away to the reward. By faith he left Egypt, not being afraid of the fury of the king, for he is staunch as seeing the Invisible.

28 By faith he has the passover made and the pouring of blood, lest

<sup>23</sup> Moses' fathers also believed what God had spoken to Abram, and looked for Him to judge Egypt and deliver His people. No mandate of Pharaoh could thwart God's purpose or hinder the fulfilment of the promise. They were confident that the mandate would not be carried out. It is quite evident that it was not, or there would not have been a man in Israel, at the exodus, under forty years of age. On the contrary, this astute method of curbing Israel's power was used by God to place Moses in the family of Pharaoh, so that the brilliant king himself might provide the very instrument to defeat his own purpose.

<sup>27</sup> Moses feared when he found that his attempt to help his brethren became known (Ex.2<sup>14</sup>). And we would naturally suppose that it was fear that drove him to the back side of the desert, but we are assured that he did not fear, though he fled. Far greater still must have been the faith that stood firm before Pharaoh, that prepared the passover, that led the people out of the land in defiance of the forces of Egypt, and brought the people into the wilderness through the Red Sea.

<sup>30</sup> The wilderness seems to be almost devoid of faith, for the enumeration of faith's victories passes from Egypt to the land. Indeed, with faith there would not have been the wanderings in the wilderness. And this is the inspired type of which the Pentecostal era is the antitype! Had the nation believed, the kingdom would have come. Now the few faithful who are left are pointed to the worthies who, like themselves, have nothing but God's bare word, yet believed it, and anticipated its fulfilment, seldom receiving the benefits which it promised.

<sup>32</sup> And what may I still be saying?

For time will be lacking for me to relate concerning Gideon, Barak, Samson, Jephtha, David, as well as

<sup>36</sup> Now others got a trial of scourgings and scourgings, yet still further of bonds and jail. They are

<sup>37</sup> stoned, they are sawn, they are tried, they died, murdered by the sword, they wandered about in sheep skins, in goat skins, in want, <sup>38</sup> afflicted, maltreated (of whom the world was not worthy), straying in wildernesses and mountains and caves and the holes of the earth.

<sup>1</sup> This cloud of "witnesses" consists of those just enumerated, who witness to the life of faith. It has no reference to any who are watching the Hebrews. A witness is one who testifies, and it is the testimony of all the faithful, from Abel down, which constituted the moral atmosphere in which the Hebrews lived. Nevertheless, their popular sin was unbelief. Even as their fathers had witnessed the faith of Moses and saw the signs, yet were strewn along the wilderness for their lack of faith in God, so the Hebrews were prone to question the promises and to turn from the trials that lay along the path of faith.

<sup>2</sup> All the other examples of faith pale before the supreme Example. Even Abraham, the father of the faithful, failed once and again in the very virtue for which he is distinguished. But the Saviour, as a man, never faltered in His implicit confidence in God. He did always those things which pleased God without regard to the consequences to Himself. When His message was rejected, He acquiesced. Even though His God forsook Him in the hour of deepest need and sorest suffering, it did not shake His faith, for, at the very last, He committed His spirit into the Father's hands. And He alone, of all the faithful, has risen and received some reward for His faithfulness, for He has ascended to the right hand of God's throne. Such an example as this should be the most powerful of all incentives for the Hebrews to endure the trials of the way, and persevere to the end.

<sup>7</sup> God's discipline is too often mistaken for His indignation. The presence of trials and distresses are not a proof of sin and God's anger, but may be the tokens of His love. Job's friends tried to convince him that his calamities came as the penalty of his own misdeeds. Job himself thought that God was his enemy and had conspired against him. All were wrong, for the blessed result of a closer knowledge of his Maker fully vindicated God for all the afflictions He had brought upon him. Job had heard of Him, but after his trial he could say that he had seen Him—a more intimate acquaintance.

<sup>40</sup> God's promise concerning us, looking forward to something better, that, apart from us, they may not be perfected.

<sup>12</sup> Surely, in consequence, then, we also, having a cloud of so many witnesses encompassing us, putting off every impediment and the popular sin, may be racing with endurance the contest lying before us, <sup>2</sup> looking off to the Inaugurator and Perfecter of faith, Jesus, Who, instead of the joy lying before Him, endures a cross, despising the shame, besides has been seated at the right hand of the throne of God.

<sup>3</sup> For take into account One Who has endured such contradiction by sinners among them, lest you should be faltering, fainting in your souls. <sup>4</sup> You did not as yet repulse unto <sup>5</sup> blood, contending against sin. And you have been oblivious of the entreaty which is arguing with you as sons,

"My son, do not disdain the discipline of the Lord,
Nor faint when convicted by Him.

Yet He is scourging every son to whom He is assenting."

<sup>7</sup> You are enduring for discipline; God is bringing it to you as to sons, for what son is there whom the father is not disciplining? Now if you are without discipline, of which all have become partakers, consequently you are bastards and <sup>9</sup> not sons. Thereafter, indeed, we had discipliners—the fathers of our flesh—and we respected them. Yet shall we not much rather be subject to the Father of spirits and be living?

<sup>10</sup> Human discipline is too often without a definite object, or lacks entirely the corrective element which should always be present. Punishment as a mere deterrent, or as a penalty, is of little use in forming character. The ideal chastening is that which fits the offense in such a way that it forms and strengthens those elements in character which are weak and which led to the evil doing. God is the only Father Who has the requisite wisdom to choose such chastening for His children. However heavy His hand may seem we may be sure that it is held by a heart that sympathizes with our passing distress, and helps us to bear fruit for our own profit and His glory.

<sup>12</sup> Flaccid hands and paralyzed knees are a realistic picture of utter discouragement on the part of those who fail to see the presence of God's hand in their disheartening circumstances, or that these are but part of the process by which He is bringing them into the larger and nearer place He has prepared for them.

<sup>16</sup> The example of Esau should have made a powerful appeal to the Hebrews, in their perplexity and distress. They, too, could ease their souls and enjoy the pleasures of the world by rejecting their birthright, for they were the firstborn of the kingdom. If they should barter their birthright for a brief respite then they, too, would be rejected, however much they might regret it later on.

<sup>17</sup> Esau was not seeking forgiveness nor salvation, but to undo the effect of a former state of mind with regard to the birthright. But his bargain was irrevocable. These Hebrews were in danger of forfeiting their birthright.

<sup>18</sup> The nation in the wilderness, at Mount Sinai, came to the terrible spectacle which inaugurated the law (Ex. 19:12-20). The whole scene was prophetic of the relation they would sustain to Jehovah under the legal covenant. He forbade a near approach under pain of death. It brought no peace or assurance, but fear and terror. This is the function of the law. It came, not to bring them near to God, but to convict them of their inability and unworthiness.

a few days as it seemed [best] to them, yet He for our expedience, for us to be partaking of His holiness. Now all discipline, indeed, at present is not seeming to be a joy, but a sorrow, yet subsequently it is rendering the peaceable fruit of righteousness to those exercised through it. Wherefore stiffen the flaccid hands and the paralyzed knees, and make upright tracks for your feet, that the lame may not turn aside, yet rather may be healed.

<sup>14</sup> Be pursuing peace with all, and holiness, apart from which no one shall see the Lord; supervising, that no one be wanting of the grace of God, nor any root of bitterness, sprouting up, may be annoying you, and through this the majority may be defiled, nor any paramour, or profane person, as Esau, who, for one feeding, gave up his own birthright. For you are aware that afterwards also, wanting to enjoy the allotment blessedness, he is rejected, for he did not find a place of repentance, though seeking it carefully with tears.

<sup>18</sup> For you have not approached that which is tangible and burning with fire, and murkiness, and gloom, and tornado, and the blare of a trumpet, and the voice of declarations, which they who hear refuse, that no word be added to them, for they did not carry out that which was cautioned, "And if a wild beast should come in contact with the mountain, it shall be pelted with stones," and, so fearful was the spectacle, Moses said, "I am terrified and in a tremor;" but you have approached mount Zion, and the city of the living God, the celestial

OF-God LIVING JERUSALEM

<sup>22</sup> There is a studied contrast here between the scene presented to the physical eye at Mount Sinai and the prospect of faith in connection with the new covenant. Mount Sinai itself is suggestive of another mountain which is the ultimate home of Israel in the new earth. The Lord is present, as He was in the wilderness, but here He is the Light, rather than the Lightning. Instead of being warned away for fear of death, the saints dwell near Him and enjoy the fruits of the tree of life and the draught of the river of life (Un.21, 22).

The law was given by the mandate of messengers (Ac.7<sup>53</sup>). Now they are ministering spirits commissioned for service because of those who are about to be enjoying the allotment of salvation (Heb. 1<sup>14</sup>).

The universal convocation here referred to is probably that which is convoked at the opening of the day of the Lord when the representatives of the whole creation are summoned together before the judgments which usher in the kingdom are visited on the earth (Un.4, 5).

God as Judge is especially appropriate to those who were waiting for Him to arise and judge His own people and the whole earth, as a preparation for the establishment of the kingdom. Not so do we know God.

Jerusalem, and ten thousands of messengers, a universal convocation, and the ecclesia of the firstborn registered in the heavens, and to God the Judge of all, and to the spirits of the just perfected, and to Jesus, the Mediator of a fresh covenant, and to the blood of sprinkling which is speaking better than Abel.

<sup>25</sup> Beware! You should not be refusing Him Who is speaking! For if those escaped not, refusing the One appraising on earth, much rather we, who are turning from Him from the heavens, Whose voice then shakes the earth! Yet now He has promised, saying, "Still once more shall I be quaking, not only the earth, but heaven also." Now the "Still once more" is making evident the transference of that which is being shaken, as of that having been made, that what is not being shaken should be remaining.

<sup>28</sup> Wherefore, accepting an unshakable kingdom, we may be having grace through which we may be offering divine service in a way well pleasing to God with piety and dread, for our God is also a consuming fire.

<sup>13</sup> Let brotherly affection be remaining. Be not forgetting hospitality, for through this some were oblivious when lodging messengers. Be mindful of those bound, as bound together; of those maltreated, as being yourselves also in the body. Matrimony is honorable in all, and the bed undefiled, for God will be judging prostitutes and adulterers.

<sup>5</sup> In manner not fond of money, being sufficed with what is present, for He has declared,

<sup>7</sup> The leaders were not official rulers, but men who were guides in ministry of the word and exemplary conduct.

<sup>8</sup> It should be remembered that "the same" is a pronoun, and has reference to His personality, not to His administrations or assumptions. The same One pours out grace upon us and indignation on the nations in the Lord's day. The same One Who was weary at Sychar's well is now all-powerful. He Who was once lowly is now exalted, Who healed hundreds when on earth, refused to remove Paul's thorn in the flesh, Who hung on Calvary's cross and lay lifeless in the tomb is now alive and has ascended to God's right hand. His person, service, and dispensations change to accord with God's purpose, but He Himself remains the same.

<sup>9</sup> It is evident that the strange teachings here referred to do not tend toward grace but physical gratification.

<sup>9</sup> Foods and drinks, which were a part of the ritual of the first tabernacle, (9<sup>8-10</sup>) cannot confirm the heart in grace. In connection with Christ's sacrifice there is no sacrificial meal. The carcass of the sin offering was not eaten either by priests or people, but was burned.

<sup>11</sup> The camp can refer to nothing else than the established ritual of Judaism. The great Sin Offering suffered outside the city of Jerusalem. So it behooved His followers to forsake the city and the system of religion which cast Him out, and follow Him outside of it all. Jerusalem was not the permanent abode of God's saints. It was to be utterly destroyed. This was done not long after this epistle was written. The eye of faith looked forward to the heavenly Jerusalem on the earth.

Neither may I be abandoning you by any means."

<sup>6</sup> So that we have courage to say,
"The Lord is my helper,
And I shall not be afraid of what man shall be doing to me!"

<sup>7</sup> Be remembering your leaders, who speak the word of God to you, contemplating the sequel of their behavior, whose faith be imitating: Jesus Christ, yesterday and today; the same for the eons also.

<sup>9</sup> Be not carried aside by varied and strange teachings, for it is ideal to confirm the heart by grace, not by foods, by which those who walk were not benefited.

<sup>10</sup> We have an altar from which they have no right to be eating, who offer divine service in the tabernacle. For the animals whose blood is carried into the holy places by the chief priest for sin, the bodies of these are burned up outside the camp.

<sup>12</sup> Wherefore Jesus also, that He should be hallowing the people through His own blood, suffered outside the gate. Now, then, we may be coming out to Him outside the camp, carrying His reproach.
<sup>14</sup> For here we are not having a permanent city, but we are seeking for the future one. Through Him, then, we may be offering up the sacrifice of praise to God continually, that is, the fruit of the lips, avowing His name.

<sup>16</sup> Now be not forgetful of well doing and contributing, for with such sacrifices God is well pleased.

<sup>17</sup> Be persuaded by your leaders, and be deferring to them, for they are vigilant for the sake of your souls, as having to render an account, that they may be doing this with joy, and not with groaning, for this is disadvantageous for you.

<sup>13</sup> This is the climax of the epistle. The choice is between faith and apostasy. The reference is to the ritual of the golden calf (Ex.33). It would have been apostasy to go outside the camp had there not been apostasy in the camp. Israel had again ceased to be "the congregation of the Lord", and they must either take sides with Messiah who suffered outside the gate or apostatize. An apostate recognizes truth and refuses to obey it.

<sup>20</sup> The God of peace—what an anchor for the turbulent souls of the Hebrews in the tumult of the times in which they lived! Josephus could write a whole book on the subject of the Jewish War which kept Palestine in continual turmoil up to the destruction of Jerusalem under Titus. How fitting to close the epistle with this title! In the coming kingdom Christ will be King of Salem (or peace) as well as King of righteousness. In perfect keeping with this is the pastoral picture of the great Shepherd. As the good Shepherd He gave His soul for the sheep. Now, as the great Shepherd, in resurrection, He still cares for and protects His own. Beautiful as this picture is, it finds its place on earth, and may be applied only to Israel, the nation of His choice. The church is not a sheepfold. Israel is not "one fold", as in A. V., but "one flock" (Jn.10<sup>16</sup>). Within the fold sheep do not need the Shepherd's care, but when they are led out to pasture he guides and defends them. These Hebrews were far from the fold.

<sup>18</sup> Be praying concerning us, for we are persuaded that we have an ideal conscience, in all wanting to behave ideally. Now I am entreating you more exceedingly to do this, that I may be restored to you more speedily.

<sup>20</sup> Now may the God of peace, Who is leading up our Lord Jesus, the great Shepherd of the sheep, from among the dead by the blood of the eonian covenant, adapt you to every good work, to do His will, doing in us what is well pleasing before Him, through Jesus Christ, to Whom be glory for the eons of the eons. Amen!

<sup>22</sup> Now I am entreating you, brethren, bear with the word of entreaty, for I dispatch the letter to you by bits. Know that our brother Timothy has been released, with whom, if he should be coming more speedily, I shall be seeing you.

JAMES TO THE TWELVE TRIBES

NONE of the Circumcision epistles so clearly indicates the class to whom it is written as the letter of James to the twelve tribes in the dispersion. Its conflict with Paul's epistles is so pronounced that Luther rejected its authority, and endless attempts have been made to find a means of reconciliation, without coming to any satisfactory solution. Once it is apprehended that this epistle is for a different people and a distinct administration, all need of reconciliation vanishes and we are not tempted to tone down Paul or drag up James to a common level.

The contrast between the ministry of James and that of Paul is graphically illustrated in their lives: Paul was born at a distance from the land of Israel, and had no relations with the Lord until after His ascension into heaven. James, on the contrary, was born of the same mother as the Lord, and lived in the land all his life. In Paul the spiritual comes to the fore, in James, the physical.

The very name of James is suggestive. It is practically the same as Jacob, or Supplanter, who, in his career, exemplified the energy of the flesh, and whose name was changed to Israel when the flesh was subdued. The name was also applied to the nation when their crooked ways called for it rather than for the name Israel. Hence it may be taken to indicate the low spiritual state of those to whom this epistle is addressed.

In the early part of Acts Peter has his rightful place at the head of the apostles, but, even as early as Paul's first visit to Jerusalem, James had a prominent place, though he was not an apostle (Gal.1<sup>19</sup>). Fourteen years later he had risen to be one of the pillars in Jerusalem and was named before Peter and John (Gal.2<sup>9</sup>). Peter was afraid of some who came from James (Gal.2<sup>12</sup>).

At the council in Jerusalem to consider the question of circumcising the nations and putting them under the law, James had the decisive word and formulated the decrees, which were hostile to the nations (Col.2<sup>14</sup>), and which were nullified when the present secret administration was inaugurated (Eph.2<sup>15</sup>).

At Paul's last visit to Jerusalem James was apparently the only one worth mentioning in authority in the city. The Lord's chosen apostles have disappeared and in their position the people have placed one whose chief claim was his physical relation to our Lord. James rises in proportion to the depth of the nation's apostasy.

So that, at the close of Acts we have two men who embody the two divergent lines, the downward trend of Israel and the upward trend of the nations. Paul repudiates all physical relationship to Messiah and enters the realm of spiritual blessedness among the celestials (2 Co.5<sup>16</sup>). James emphasizes his physical kinship with Christ and drags the nation down into the sphere of flesh, thus preparing the way for their repudiation by God.

In this light we are able to understand the unusually low plane of truth in this epistle. It begins with physical limitations and closes with physical healing. It teaches justification by works and law keeping. All these had their place in that failing economy, but let us beware that we do not adulterate the precious truth for the present with such unspiritual doctrines.

There are three Jameses mentioned in the Greek Scriptures, James, the son of Zebedee, the first martyr among the Twelve (Acts 12<sup>2</sup>); James the Less, the son of Alphaeus (Mat.10<sup>3</sup>); and the writer of this epistle.

1 James is never called an apostle and does not write this epistle in that character. Rather, he puts himself in the place of a slave. Hence the epistle is not concerned with authoritative teaching so much as with service.

1 Nothing can be plainer than the fact that this letter is addressed to a special class. It is not for the tribes in the land. It is absolutely impossible to apply it indiscriminately to the nations without causing the utmost confusion. It is solely and exclusively for the sons of Israel outside the land, in the dispersion.

2 The tumultuous times, the provocation and persecution of the Romans, the fanatical commotions of the Jews, the repeated insurrections and revolts in the land, all contributed to bring many trials upon those of the dispersion who espoused the cause of Christ. At one time Claudius commanded all Jews to depart from Rome (Ac.18<sup>2</sup>), and those of the Circumcision who believed never ceased considering themselves Jews. The "Christians" were understood to be a Jewish sect.

3 It has been pointed out that the papyri sometimes use the word "testing" as an adjective, the equivalent of "tested" or "genuine", as it is in this passage and especially in 1 Pe.17, the only other occurrence. But it was not their faith which was producing endurance, but the testing of their faith. Hence the word has its usual grammatical force here. In Peter also, the Greek idiom, which we have tried to carry over into English, accounts for the difficulty, and allows us to translate the word uniformly. The papyri were mostly written in upper Egypt, far from the land of Israel and the countries to which the scriptures were first sent. Not only are they tinged with local idiom, but were written loosely, as we write English in our every day transactions, with little regard for the correctness and accuracy which characterize a divine revelation. They are no criteria as to the meaning of words which occur several times in the scriptures, or are found in the Septuagint.

5 This letter records more of our Lord's teaching as recorded in the gospels than any other epistle.

JAMES, a slave of God and of the Lord Jesus Christ, to the twelve tribes in the dispersion, Rejoice!

2 ALL joy deem it, my brethren, whenever you should be falling into 3 various trials, knowing that the testing of your faith is producing
4 endurance. Now let endurance have its perfect work, that you may be perfect and unimpaired, lacking in nothing.

5 Now if any of you is lacking wisdom let him be requesting it from God, Who is giving to all generously, and is not reproaching, and it
6 shall be given to him. Yet let him be requesting in faith, doubting nothing, for he who is doubting simulates a surge of the sea driven by 7 the wind and tossed. For let not that man be surmising that he shall be obtaining anything from the 8 Lord: a man double-souled, turbulent in all his ways.

9 Now let the humble brother be
10 glorying in his exaltation, yet the rich in his humiliation, seeing that, as the flower of grass, he shall pass
11 by. For the sun rises, together with a scorching wind, and withers the grass, and its flower falls off, and the comeliness of its aspect was destroyed. Thus the rich also in his goings shall fade.

12 Happy is the man who is enduring trial, seeing that, becoming qualified, he will be obtaining the wreath of life, which He promises
13 to those loving Him. Now let no one, being tried, be saying that "I am being tried by God", for God is not tried by evil, yet He is trying no one.

<sup>5</sup> Even faith is different in quality in James from that found in Paul's writings. There faith is the necessary channel of grace, because it has no merit in itself. Here faith is more in the nature of a meritorious act, apart from which no blessing can be expected.

<sup>9</sup> James doubtless has a very special application to Israel in the time of the end. At that time (we seem to be on the verge of it even now) there will be many wealthy men among the Jews, so that their combined riches will enable them to have "a kingdom over the kings of the earth". They will form a plutocracy such as the earth has never seen. Yet they will be destroyed in the fall of Babylon (Un.18). Some of God's people will be in the city (Un.18<sup>4</sup>). James' warning seems to be most apt in the case of these. Should they lose their wealth in the destruction of the city, they would have nothing but their own allotment in the land. Even if not involved in Babylon's overthrow, it is impossible for a rich man to enter the kingdom with his riches (Mk.10<sup>23</sup>); for the readjustments of that day will take his wealth from him.

<sup>12</sup> Life, in James, is the result of endurance to the consummation. Hence it is figured by the victor's wreath. We cannot boast of our life in Christ, but, in the kingdom, life comes to those who overcome.

<sup>17</sup> It is a fact that all physical blessing may be traced to the sun as its source. All life that teems on the earth is directly or indirectly dependent on it. Hence God is compared to the sun in His beneficence. All spiritual good comes down from Him just as all natural good descends from the sun. The moon, however, is not a source of light, but a mere reflection. It is inconstant, now full orb'd and now a faint streak in the sky. The earth, too, in its turning, changes from light to darkness.

<sup>21</sup> The salvation of the soul has to do with the feelings and experience, not, as is usually supposed, with ultimate destiny. The soul is the seat of sensations. If these are pleasant and agreeable, if there is comfort and joy, the soul is saved. To lose the soul is to part with the power of enjoyment.

<sup>15</sup> own desire. Thereafter, the desire, conceiving, is bringing forth sin. Now sin, fully consummated, is teeming forth death.

<sup>17</sup> brethren. All good giving and every perfect gratuity is from above, descending from the Father of lights, in Whom there is no mutation or shadow from its revolution. By intention, He teems forth us by the word of truth, for us to be some first-fruit of His own creatures.

<sup>19</sup> Now be aware, my beloved brethren! Yet let every man be swift to hear, tardy to talk, tardy to anger, for the anger of man is not working the righteousness of God.

<sup>23</sup> yourselves, seeing that, if anyone is a listener to the word and not a doer, this one simulates a man considering the face he inherited in
<sup>24</sup> a mirror, for he considers himself and has come away, and immediately forgot what kind he was. Now
<sup>25</sup> he who peers into the perfect law of freedom and abides, not becoming a forgetful listener, but a doer of the work, this one will be happy in his doing.

<sup>26</sup> The outward form of divine service, the rites and ceremonies of the sacerdotal system of Moses, was but the exterior shell of truth. It was the letter: truth was the spirit. The ritual was full of precious meaning. But most ritualists feed on the husks and throw away the kernel. It should have its counterpart in a righteous and beneficent life. With us, who serve God in spirit, and have no confidence in flesh, ritual is a relapse into the shadows, when we have the substance in Christ. We are warned against it in the epistle to the Colossians. "Now let no one be arbitrating against you willfully, by a humble disposition and the ritual of messengers, parading what is seen, affectingly inflated by his fleshly mind, and not holding the Head . . ." (Col.2<sup>18</sup>).

<sup>2</sup> The scene here depicted could hardly be imagined outside the traditional synagogue of that early day, for the ecclesias or "churches" had not yet become as like the synagogues as those we know today. One of the signs of present apostasy is this spirit of toadying to the rich and despising the poor. It can have no place where our position in Christ is appreciated. A rich man who enjoys God's grace is pained by such partiality.

<sup>8</sup> James writes to those under the law. Showing partiality to the rich and offending the poor is an infraction of the precept to be loving your associate as yourself. But the law is not only intersocial. It has a divine side. A single transgression, no matter what it is, brings in a breach between the One Who gave the law and the culprit. The breaker of one commandment is not "guilty" of all, but enters into the same condemnation as those who commit all the other crimes in its category.

but seducing his heart, the ritual of this one is vain, for clean ritual and undefiled with God, even the Father, is this, to be visiting the bereaved and widows in their affliction, to be keeping oneself unspotted from the world.

2 My brethren, be having no partialities in the faith of our Lord Jesus Christ of glory. For if there should be entering into your synagogue a man with a gold ring, in splendid attire, yet there should be entering a poor man also in filthy attire, and you should be looking on the one wearing the splendid attire and be saying, "You be sitting here in this fine seat," and to the poor be saying, "You be standing there", or "Be sitting here under my footstool," were you not discriminating among yourselves and did you not become judges with wicked reasonings?

<sup>5</sup> Hear, my beloved brethren! Does not God choose the poor in the world, rich in faith and enjoyers of the allotment of the kingdom which He promises to those who are loving Him? Yet you dishonor the poor one. Are not the rich tyrannizing over you? And they are drawing you to tribunals. Are not they blaspheming the ideal name which is being invoked over you?

<sup>8</sup> Howbeit, if you are discharging the royal law, according to the scripture, "You shall be loving your associate as yourself", you are doing ideally. Now if you are showing partiality, you are working sin, being convicted by the law as transgressors. For anyone who should be keeping the whole law, yet be tripping in one thing, has be-

<sup>14</sup> James looks at faith entirely from the human side, Paul from the divine. What a man says he has, if he has it not, cannot, of course, save him. But James is not speaking of a pretended faith. He boldly says that faith cannot save. He insists that faith apart from works is dead. Yet Paul is affirming that righteousness is through faith, that it may accord with grace (Ro.4<sup>16</sup>). And he insists that if it is grace, it is no longer out of works, else grace comes to be no longer grace (Ro.11<sup>6</sup>). The salvation to which James refers does not include justification, hence there is not the necessity for grace. Paul speaks of grace continually, and refers to it over a hundred times in his epistles. James only mentions it twice in one passage. (4<sup>6</sup>). James is dealing with a nation in covenant relationship with God, and an administration in which faith and works are mingled, whereas Paul is connected with the dispensation of unadulterated grace to those who have no claim on God whatever.

Such a combination as James insists on would do away entirely with all the blessings which have come to the nations on the ground of grace, for it is impossible for grace to operate except through sheer, unaided faith. It will not do to say that such faith is vital and must manifest itself in works. This is true, yet such works are in no sense the root of righteousness. They are the fruit. To add works to a dead faith would not vivify it.

Briefly, the differences between Paul and James are not to be explained away. They are irreconcilable contradictions if we take them to refer to the same divine administration and the same people. Left to their own time and place, there is no reason why they should agree. God is continually changing His methods, to conform to the various objects He has in view.

<sup>18</sup> The solid foundation stands with this seal: "The Lord knew those who are His" (2 Ti. 2<sup>19</sup>). Suppose we do not know? That does not affect their salvation. God knows the heart and does not need any demonstration. Not so with men. Before we accept a man's faith we demand that he depart

<sup>11</sup> come liable for all. For He Who is saying, "You should not be committing adultery" said also "You should not be murdering." Now if you are not committing adultery, yet are murdering, you have become a transgressor of law. Thus be speaking and thus be doing, as those about to be judged by means of the law of freedom. For the judgment is merciless to him who exercises no mercy. Mercy is vaunting against judgment.

<sup>14</sup> What is the benefit, my brethren, if anyone should be saying he has faith, yet may have no works? The faith cannot save him. If a brother or sister should be naked and lacking nurture for the day, yet any of you may be saying to them, "Go away in peace, be warmed and satisfied", yet you should not be giving them what is requisite for the body, what is the benefit? Thus, also, is faith, if you should not have works: it is dead by itself.

<sup>18</sup> But someone will be declaring, "You have faith and I have works." Show me your faith apart from the works and I shall be showing you my faith by my works.

<sup>19</sup> You are believing that God is one. You are doing ideally. The demons also are believing and shuddering.

<sup>22</sup> on the altar? You are observing that faith worked together with his works, and by works was faith from iniquity. This is the ground of James. It is not what appears to the Lord, but to men.

<sup>20</sup> The case of Abraham is most helpful in further defining the distinct viewpoints of Paul and James. The former refers us to the fifteenth chapter of Genesis, the latter to the twenty-second. In the fifteenth chapter Abram's spiritual seed alone is in view, for Abram is taken outside his tent and shown the stars of heaven. And the Lord said to him, "So shall your seed be." And he believed the Lord; and He counted it to him for righteousness. This was followed by the unconditional covenant.

The twenty-second chapter is a trial of the faith which he had, in that the seed through whom his promised posterity should come was to be sacrificed and slain. Here we have the perfecting of his faith and the fulfillment of the previous passage.

The fifteenth chapter deals with Abram before circumcision, and his spiritual seed, and their justification. The twenty-second chapter deals with Abraham after his circumcision, and his physical seed (some of whom would be spiritual also), and their blessing, as well as their becoming a channel of blessing to the other nations. Paul cannot take the latter passage because he speaks of faith righteousness to the uncircumcised in an era when no blessing flows through Abraham's physical seed. James naturally and rightly takes it because it is the one which refers especially to the twelve tribes to whom he is writing. It was Abraham's faith combined with his obedience which was the basis of their blessing, and it is their faith combined with works which saves them. The works of Abraham were meritorious only as an evidence of faith.

Let us leave this to those who belong to the Circumcision, who are Abraham's seed according to the flesh, and who live under the kingdom administration. We have an immeasurably better and higher place than can be accorded those who mix their own efforts with God's beneficence. His undiluted grace brings blessings which are possible only when God is left to carry out the dictates of His heart unhindered by human help.

ness", and he was called "the friend of God". You see that a man is being justified by works, and not by faith only.

<sup>25</sup> Now likewise, was not Rahab the prostitute also justified by works when entertaining the messengers and ejecting them by a different way? For even as the body apart from the spirit is dead, thus also faith apart from works is dead.

3 Do not become many teachers, my brethren, being aware that we shall be getting greater judgment.
<sup>3</sup> bridle the whole body also. Now if we are putting the horses' bits into their mouths so that they are yielding to us, we are steering their <sup>4</sup> whole body also with it. Lo! the ships also, being prodigious, and driven by the hard winds, are being steered by the least rudder, where the impulse of the helmsman is

Lo! A stupendous fire is kindling a stupendous amount of material. And the tongue is a fire, a world of injustice. The tongue is constituted among our members that which is spotting the whole body, and setting the wheel of our lineage aflame, and is set aflame by Gehenna.

<sup>7</sup> For every nature, of wild beasts as well as flying creatures, reptiles as well as of the salt sea, is being tamed and has been tamed by human nature. Yet the tongue can no man tame, a turbulent evil, distended with death-dealing venom. With
<sup>9</sup> it we are blessing the Lord and Father, and with it we are cursing

It seems almost incredible to find such a low moral standard in this epistle, especially as works are demanded for salvation. The untamable tongue, cursing, jealousy, strife, battles and fighting are all spoken of as common amongst the twelve tribes. They are charged as being friends of the world, sinners, impure of heart and double souled. What a contrast is this with such epistles as Philipians and Thessalonians, even though these are written to those who, but a short time before, were steeped in heathenism and idolatry! The pure grace of God, unaided by legal precepts or other inducements, is far more potent in producing conduct which is pleasing to God than all the efforts prompted by the desire for salvation or controlled by the terrors of the law.

9 Our conduct should accord with God's attitude. Now that grace reigns, we are told to bless and not to curse (Ro.12<sup>14</sup>). But James seems to have no such precept in his royal law. The law curses all who break its commandments, and did not forbid cursing, so we should not be surprised when James includes the saints, "we are cursing men."

12 The fig, the olive, and the vine, are all symbols of Israel. The fig speaks of national righteousness. When our Lord saw a fig tree on the road He sought some figs, but finding none, He cursed the tree and it withered away. So He came seeking national righteousness. As there was none the nation has withered away. The olive, being the source of the illuminating oil in the holy places, is a symbol of the light of God's revelation, which comes through Israel. The olive tree is Israel, the nations are simply temporary grafts, while Israel is apostate. God's word is confided to our keeping only until Israel is restored. Israel was an empty vine. They did not cheer the heart of God or man. Christ came as the real Vine. In the kingdom, as in Cana of Galilee, there will be spiritual joy and gladness from the vine Jehovah planted.

4 There can be little doubt that the adultery here referred to is defined in the next statement. In the Hebrew scriptures, an alliance with the world men who have come to be in accord with God's likeness.

10 Out of the same mouth is coming forth blessing and cursing. There is no need, my brethren, for this to become thus. Is any spring venting out of the same hole the sweet and the bitter? Can a fig tree, my brethren, produce olives, or a grape vine figs? Thus neither does sweet water produce brine.

13 Who is wise and an adept among you? Let him show his works by an ideal behavior in meekness of wisdom. Now if you are having bitter jealousy and strife in your heart, are you not vaunting against and falsifying the truth? This is not the wisdom coming down from above, but terrestrial, soulish, demoniacal. For where jealousy and strife are, there is turbulence also, and every foul practise.

17 Now the wisdom from above is first, indeed, pure, thereupon peaceable, lenient, compliant, bulging with mercy and good fruits, 18 indiscriminating, unfeigned. Now the fruit of righteousness is being sown in peace, by peacemakers.

4 Whence are the battles and whence the fightings among you? Are they not hence: from your gratifications warring in your members? You are coveting and have not. You are murdering and are jealous, and you cannot encounter it. You are fighting and battling, and you have not because you 3 are not requesting. You are requesting and not obtaining because you are requesting evilly that you should be spending on your gratifications.

was often spoken of in this way. Its fullest and most fitting application will be in the time of the end. Israel, as a nation, was to be separate and holy to the Lord. Now that they are scattered among the nations they are not only in the world but of it. Their chief object is to get as much of this world's goods as possible, and they are ready to make any alliance to accomplish this end. There will be a strong temptation for the believers among them in that day to fall in with this prevailing apostasy. Some of them will be found in great Babylon when it is destroyed.

<sup>5</sup> This passage has puzzled the commentators, and there are many and various explanations offered to solve what seems to be one of the most difficult passages in the scriptures. A simple explanation, which allows a literal translation, is that the natural spirit of the Jew is to be envious. They are jealous of others' possessions or welfare. God uses this trait of their character in bringing them back to Himself. He provokes them to jealousy by dealing out grace to the nations. It is this envying of others' good which tempts them to make friends with the world, so that they may possess themselves of what seems so desirable in others. The attainment of this longing produces pride.

<sup>6</sup> The preceding verses contain one of the strongest possible indictments. In this there breathes a different spirit from that usually found in the epistle. Grace follows severity. Though God's love is outraged he does not readily spurn the faithless. He offers a grace conditioned on obedience and humility.

<sup>8</sup> When we are still sinners, Christ died for us (Ro.5<sup>8</sup>). The whole tenor of Paul's epistles is against the application of this term to the believer in Christ Jesus. The exhortation to cleanse their hands cannot but suggest that they have been employed in defiling pursuits.

<sup>15</sup> The abbreviation D. V., from the Latin Deo volente, God being willing, probably had its origin in this passage. It is one of the most characteristically Jewish pictures in the whole epistle. Who are like them in going from city to city, trafficking and getting gain?

Are you not aware that the friendship of this world is enmity with God? Whoever, then, should intend to be a friend of the world is constituted an enemy of God. Or are you supposing that the scripture is saying for naught,<sup>2</sup> the spirit which dwells in us is longing to envy? Yet He is giving greater grace. Wherefore He is saying, "God is resisting the proud, yet is giving grace to the humble."

<sup>7</sup> Be subject, then, to God, yet withstand the Slanderer and he will be fleeing from you. Draw near to God and He will be drawing near to you. Cleanse your hands, sinners, and purify your hearts, double souled! Be wretched and mourn and lament. Let your laughter be converted into mourning, and joy into dejection. <sup>10</sup> Be humbled, then, before the Lord and He shall be exalting you.

<sup>11</sup> Do not be speaking against one another, brethren. He who is speaking against a brother, or judging his brother, is speaking against law and is judging law. Now if you are judging law, you are not a doer of law, but a judge. <sup>12</sup> There is One Lawgiver and Judge, Who is able to save and to destroy. Now who are you who are judging an associate?

<sup>13</sup> Come now, you who are saying, "Today or tomorrow we will be going into some city and should be spending a year there, and we will be trafficking and getting gain"

<sup>14</sup>—who are not versed in that which is the morrow's, for what is your life? For you are an exhalation, appearing briefly and thereupon disappearing—instead of your saying "Should the Lord be willing, and we shall be living, we also will

 16 DOING this or that NOW

<sup>1</sup> This is a most unpopular passage, for the church, in its spiritual poverty, caters to the rich, and does not desire to offend them by pressing this denunciation. And, indeed, it is evident that it cannot be applied universally without great injustice to some. But if we apply it to the last days, and to the sons of Israel in the coming era of Jacob's affliction, its full force is readily seen, and its just condemnation can be easily conceded. The immense accumulations of the Jews are being continually augmented by pandering to the lowest passions of the gentile peoples. Almost all forms of diversion and amusement are in their hands. No wonder such riches are rotted! Their income from interest alone equals the world's production of gold, so that they receive, without any effort on their part, all the gold that is mined. Their grasping for gain has become a proverb. No other people, as a class, is as shrewd and unscrupulous in making money. This condition of affairs is continually growing, so that, at the time of the end, it will be the most prominent feature of Judaism. Hence, if James' epistle is especially designed for that day, as we believe, it is a striking confirmation to find this strong denunciation of the rich Israelites as a part of its message.

<sup>7</sup> The "presence" of the Lord is specially applied to that period of time, at the opening of the day of the Lord, when He begins His work of judgment up to His open manifestation. Then will be the judgment of the rich men, and its close will witness the reward of those who patiently plod on for the prize. In that era He will act as Judge (<sup>9</sup>), for it is in this character that He purges His people. How much better is our expectation! We are awaiting a Saviour (Phil. 3<sup>20</sup>), not a Judge. Rich or poor, for us there is no condemnation.

<sup>11</sup> The supreme exhortation to the Circumcision is endure. Salvation itself depends on enduring until the consummation. This is the natural accomplishment of the gospel of the kingdom in which faith and works are both essential. In fact faith and works combine to produce endurance. Without faith there would be no in-

be doing this or that." Yet now you are vaunting in your ostentations. Every such boast is wicked. Then to one perceiving to be doing the ideal and not doing it, to him it is sin.

<sup>5</sup> Come now, rich ones, lament, howling for your wretchedness which is coming on you. Your riches have rotted and your garments have become food for moths. Your gold and silver have corroded and their venom will be a witness to you, and the venom will be eating your flesh as fire. You hoard in the last days. Lo! the wages of the workers who are mowing your country places, of which you have cheated them, are crying, and the imploring of those who reap has entered into the ears of the Lord Sabbath. You luxuriate on the earth, and squander. You nurture your hearts as in a day of slaughter. You convict, you murder the just. He is not resisting you.

<sup>7</sup> Be patient, then, brethren, till the presence of the Lord. Lo! the farmer is awaiting the precious fruit of the land, being patient about it till he should be getting the first and late fruit. You, also, then, be patient, establish your hearts, seeing that the presence of the Lord has drawn near.

<sup>10</sup> Be taking, my brethren, the example of suffering evil and patience you have—the prophets who speak in the name of the Lord. Lo!

centive to continue, and those who are striving would lose heart. With us the emphasis is on believe. Faith in God is the ground of grace which allows of no admixture of works, so far as salvation is concerned.

<sup>15</sup> "The prayer of faith will save the sick" is a very loose rendering of this passage. The word which they translate "prayer" thirty-seven times is not here. In its place is one of its elements, which the A. V. itself renders "vow" on the only other occasions on which it occurs (Ac. 18<sup>15</sup>; 21<sup>23</sup>). In neither context can it possibly mean prayer. So we are sure that a vow, not a prayer, is intended here.

So, also, with the word "falter". In Heb 12<sup>8</sup>, the only other occurrence, they rendered it "wearied", because it is evidently a synonym of "faint". But they were not willing to say "shall save the wearied". It may be that the confession of sins to one another here inculcated, as a condition for healing, is the text which originally led to the confessional. It has no appeal for those who realize their completeness in Christ and the exclusively spiritual character of God's transcendent grace in this economy.

<sup>17</sup> Elijah prayed in his prayer. He did not apportion praise and blame to men, or seek to flatter men and dictate to God.

<sup>18</sup> This epistle, in a vague way, seems to be a literary reversal, that is, each subject is considered once in the first half, and referred to again in the second half, but in reverse order. We have the request for wisdom in the beginning (<sup>15</sup>) and the prayer for healing near the end (5<sup>13-16</sup>). But the correspondences are not sufficiently close or consecutive to create a real skeleton of the epistle.

we are counting those happy who endure. You hear of the endurance of Job, and you perceived the Lord's consummation, seeing that the Lord is very compassionate and pitiful.

<sup>12</sup> Now before all, my brethren, do not be swearing, either by heaven, or by earth, or any other oath. Now let your "yes" be "yes", and "no" be "no", lest you should be falling under judgment.

<sup>13</sup> Is anyone suffering evil among you? Let him be praying. Is anyone cheerful? Let him be playing

<sup>14</sup> [music]. Is anyone infirm among you? Let him call the elders of the ecclesia, and let them pray over him, rubbing him with olive oil in

<sup>15</sup> the name of the Lord. And the vow of faith will be saving the faltering and the Lord will be rousing him up, and, should he have done sins, they will be forgiven him.

<sup>16</sup> Then be confessing sins to one another and be praying over one another, so that you may be healed.

The active petition of the just is availing much. Elijah was a man of like emotions with us, and he prays in prayer for it not to rain, and it does not rain on the earth <sup>18</sup> three years and six months. And again he prays, and heaven gives a shower and the earth germinates her fruit.

<sup>19</sup> My brethren, if anyone among you should be led astray from the way of the truth, and some one <sup>20</sup> should be turning him back, let him know that he who turns back a sinner out of the deception of his way will be saving his soul from death and covering a multitude of sins.

PETER TO THE DISPERSION

PETER'S EPISTLES correspond with Peter's personal experiences. In contrast with Paul, he was a devout Israelite who accepted the Messiah at the beginning of His ministry, not a fierce persecutor after His ascension. His name was changed from Simon (Hearing), the son of John, to Peter (Rock), the son of Jonah (Dove). As such he becomes the foundation on which the Circumcision ecclesia is founded. He was the chief of the twelve apostles, yet was superseded by the Lord's brother, James, who was no apostle, when the Pentecostal ecclesia became apostate. He was given the keys to the kingdom—repentance and baptism—and he used them in opening its proclamation. He was chosen to open it to proselytes, as Cornelius, but obeyed only after receiving a special vision. His course was much criticised by the Jerusalem ecclesia.

If it were not for his epistles we would be much puzzled as to "what had become of Peter", for he (as well as the rest of the twelve apostles) vanishes from the history in the book of Acts soon after Paul becomes prominent.

The character of Peter's epistles is indicated by the personal commission given him by the Lord after His resurrection (Jn.20<sup>15-19</sup>). They are based on his special fondness for his Lord. In these he carries out the command to graze the lambs and tend the sheep of His flock. And in these he reflects the sufferings with which he himself was about to glorify His Lord. These epistles are especially suited to the believing remnant in Israel who suffer and die in the terrible persecutions which precede the inauguration of the kingdom. They are in contrast with John's epistles, in that he and his writings are especially in point for those who (like himself, in spirit) live through the time of trial and enter the kingdom without dying.

The special occasion of Peter's writing seems to have been the great persecution of the Christians under Nero, because of the false charge that they had burned Rome. Not only were they put to terrible torture in the imperial city but the persecution spread to the provinces throughout the sphere of Roman rule.

Peter wrote to the expatriates of the dispersion in the upper provinces of what is now called Asia Minor. This conclusively confines it to the Circumcision, for the gentiles were never scattered there from their own land. This cannot, however, refer to the general dispersion of the Jews, for few of them were of the faith. It doubtless refers to the fact that, from the dispersion at the stoning of Stephen, continuous persecutions in the land had driven many Jewish Christians into exile. After seeking an asylum from their fierce fellow countrymen among the idolators, they now find that these, too, turn persecutors because of Nero's edict.

While these epistles can have no present interpretation, they doubtless will find their fullest application to the sons of Israel after the present economy of God's grace has passed by, and God deals once more with the Circumcision at the opening of the day of the Lord. Then judgment will begin at the house of God, and they will be beset with trials, such as these epistles foretell and provide for. Only in such an atmosphere and at such a time will the message Peter brings be fully appreciated and really understood. Just as it was difficult for him to apprehend the epistles of Paul (2 Pt.3<sup>16</sup>), so it is only by an earnest effort to place ourselves in the position of those to whom these epistles are sent, that we shall be able to partially apprehend their message.

Peter received his commission to write these epistles from the Lord, after His ascension. On the shores of the sea of Tiberius, after the miraculous draught of fishes, he is charged to graze His lambkins and to tend His sheep (Jn.21<sup>15,16,17</sup>). This is the ministry which he fulfills in these two pastoral epistles.

The people addressed, unlike "the church which is his body", are "a chosen race, a royal priesthood, a holy nation".

1 Note the contrast between Peter, an apostle of Jesus Christ, and Paul, an apostle of Christ Jesus. Peter proceeds on the ground of His present rejection on earth, Paul on His exaltation in heaven.

1 The expatriates were those Jews who had left their homes in the land of their fathers, probably as a result of persecution. Since then the Jews have been scattered all over the earth. Peter's epistles will have a special appeal for those of them who, at the time of the end, after the Lord once more begins to deal with His people Israel, are chosen among the nations, and suffer for their faith.

4 The allotment of the Circumcision is heavenly in character and source, but will be enjoyed on earth. A concrete example is the heavenly Jerusalem, which comes down out of heaven, all prepared for their dwelling on the new earth. The kingdom is called the kingdom of the heavens, not that it will be in heaven, but because the heavens will rule.

5 There are two distinct salvations brought before us in this passage, neither of which refers to what is usually intended by the term. The first one is the salvation which the faithful of Israel have long desired, that deliverance which comes to them at the advent of their Messiah. It is not salvation from sin, but from the nations and from Satan, and from the judgments of the time of the end. It ushers in the millennium. It was not a present possession, but is to be revealed at the unveiling of Jesus Christ.

9 The other salvation was a present experience. We seldom read of the salvation of the soul in Scripture. The soul is the sentient part of man, that which feels, that which suffers and enjoys. Ultimately all salvation will result in satisfying and delicious sensations. In the time of trial to which Peter refers, there seems to be little place for such a salvation, yet it is found in the joy and exultation of faith.

10 The prophets foretold the salvation proclaimed by Peter; the grace which has come to us was hid from them (Eph. 3<sup>8,9</sup>).

PETER, an apostle of Jesus Christ, to the chosen expatriates of the dispersion of Pontus, Galatia, Cappadocia, [the province of] Asia, and Bithynia, according to the foreknowledge of God the Father, in hallowing of the spirit, for obedience and sprinkling of the blood of Jesus Christ:

May grace and peace be multiplied to you!

3 BLESSED be the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, Who, according to His vast mercy, regenerates us into a living expectation, through the resurrection of Jesus Christ from among the dead, for the enjoyment of an allotment incorruptible and undefiled and unfading, having been kept in the heavens for you, who are garrisoned by the power of God, through faith, for salvation ready to be revealed in the last era, in which you are exulting: briefly, at present, if it must be, being sorrowed by various trials, that the testing of your faith, much more precious than gold which is perishing, yet, being tested by means of fire, may be found for applause and glory and honor at the unveiling of Jesus Christ, Whom, not perceiving, you are loving, in Whom, not seeing at present, yet believing, you are exulting with joy unspeakable and glorious, being requited with the consummation of your faith, the salvation of your souls. Heb 10:39

10 Concerning which salvation the prophets seek out and search out, who prophesy concerning the grace which is for you, searching into what or what manner of era the spirit of Christ in them made evident, when testifying beforehand to the sufferings pertaining to

<sup>11</sup> The sufferings pertaining to Christ were clearly foretold in the Hebrew Scriptures, especially in such types as Joseph and Moses, David and Hezekiah. His earthly glories were also revealed, including His exaltation as the Son of Man and the Son of David. He receives the place supreme on earth, but there is no hint of heavenly headship. These are the traceable riches of Christ. The prophets knew nothing of "the untraceable riches". These consist in His heavenly exaltation, and were revealed to Peter and Paul. Peter tells us that He has "gone into the heavens, messengers and authorities and powers being made subject to Him" (3<sup>22</sup>). Paul gives Him the place of universal supremacy, and tells of a time when all in the heavens as well as on the earth will be headed up in Him (Eph.1<sup>10</sup>). Of this the prophets are silent. It was a secret or "mystery" unrevealed until the heavenly destiny of the ecclesia which is Christ's body was made known.

<sup>13</sup> The grace which is for us comes before the unveiling of Jesus Christ, at His presence in the air, previous to the apocalyptic judgments which accompany His manifestation. Not so with those to whom Peter writes. It is only after His unveiling that the blessings which they expect will become theirs. The unveiling itself is God's means of bringing in the kingdom and all its accompanying benefits.

<sup>20</sup> The fact that Christ's sacrifice was foreknown even before the disruption throws a marvelous light upon God's plan and purpose. It shows that sacrifice is not an afterthought intended to repair an unforeseen disaster, but that it precedes sin, and that sin was introduced to give it occasion. Speaking as a man, there never would have been sin unless God had previously prepared a Sacrifice, and neither should be considered by itself, but as one of the necessary factors in God's great purpose to reveal the deep recesses of His love and the boundless expanse of His affection.

Christ and the glories after these.

<sup>12</sup> To whom it was revealed that, not to themselves, yet to you they dispensed them, of which you are now informed through those who are preaching the evangel to you by holy spirit dispatched from heaven: into which messengers are yearning to peer.

<sup>13</sup> Wherefore, girding up the loins of your comprehension, being sober, expect perfectly the grace which is being brought to you in the unveiling of Jesus Christ. As obedient children, not configuring to the former desires, in your ignorance, but, according as He Who calls you is holy, you also become holy in all behavior, because it is written that "You shall be holy, seeing that I am holy."

<sup>17</sup> And if you are invoking the Father, Who is judging impartially according to each one's work, you may behave, for the time of your sojourn, with fear, being aware that you were ransomed from your vain behavior, handed down by tradition from the fathers, not with corruptible silver or gold, but with the precious blood of Christ, as of a flawless and unspotted lamb, foreknown, indeed, before the disruption of the world, yet manifested in the last times because of you, who through Him are believing in God Who rouses Him from among the dead and is giving Him glory, so that your faith and expectation is to be in God.

<sup>22</sup> Having purified your souls, by the obedience of truth, for unfeigned fondness for the brethren, love one another earnestly, out of a true heart, having been regenerated, not of corruptible seed, but of incorruptible, through the word of

will not become a physical reality until after the thousand years. There is a vast difference between the two. Paul does not proclaim the new birth. That is not nearly sufficient to describe the great change necessary for fitting us for our celestial destiny. In the resurrection we shall not only be renewed but changed (1 Co.15<sup>52</sup>). As at present constituted we could not enter into our celestial allotment. Hence we are the subjects of a radical recreation. The Circumcision in the kingdom on the earth will need no such great change to adapt them to conditions as they will be in that day, so the figure used of them is that of regeneration. The Lord spoke of the kingdom as "the regeneration" (Mt. 19<sup>28</sup>), during which the old creation will be renewed, the curse removed, the law observed, by a people who have a "change of heart" (Jer.31<sup>36</sup>), and the old earth will enjoy its sabbath. So regeneration is not the creation of a new man but the regeneration of the old.

24 Isa.40<sup>6-8</sup>.

4 Our Lord, speaking to the chief priests and elders, told them that the kingdom of God would be taken from them and given to a nation bringing forth its fruits, in proof of which He also quotes Ps.118<sup>22-23</sup>. The parable of the vineyard was spoken to them on this occasion (Mt.21<sup>33-46</sup>). They fulfilled this parable in rejecting Him, and He takes the kingdom from them and gives it to those who receive Him, and who form the nucleus of the believing nation of that day.

6 Isa.28<sup>16</sup>.

7 Peter himself, soon after the day of Pentecost, before the chief priests, charged them with rejecting the Stone which was to be the head of the corner (Ac.4<sup>11</sup>).

9 When Jehovah brought His people to Himself on eagles' wings, He purposed that they should be His peculiar treasure above all peoples, and that they should be a kingdom of priests and a holy nation (Ex.19<sup>4-6</sup>). Hitherto, through unbelief, they have not realized this ideal, but those who receive Christ shall fulfill it in the coming kingdom. As kings they will then rule the nations for God and as priests bring the nations to God.

24 God, living and permanent. Because

"All flesh is grass,

And all its glory is as the flower of grass.

The grass is withered

And the flower falls off,

25 Yet the declaration of the Lord is remaining for the eon."

Now this is the declaration preached to you in the evangel.

2 Putting off, then, all malice and all guile and hypocrisies and envies
2 and all vilifications, as recently born babes long for the logical, unadulterated milk, that by it you
3 may be growing for salvation, if so be that you taste that the Lord
4 is kind: Whom approaching, a living Stone, having been rejected indeed by men, yet chosen by God,
5 held in honor, you, also, as living stones, are being built a spiritual house, into a holy priesthood, to offer up spiritual sacrifices, most acceptable to God through Jesus Christ.

6 Wherefore it is included in the scripture,

"Lo! I am laying in Zion a corner
Eph 2:20 capstone, chosen, held in honor;

And he who is believing on it may by no means be disgraced."

7 To you, then, who are believing is the honor, yet to the unbelieving
"The Stone which the builders reject,
This came to be for the head of the corner,"

8 And

"A stumbling block and a snare rock;"

who also are stumbling at the word, being stubborn, to which also they were appointed.

9 Yet you are "A chosen race, a royal priesthood, a holy nation, a procured people" that you should be recounting the virtues of Him Who calls you out of darkness into <sup>10</sup> The phrases "not a people" and who "have not been shown mercy" are usually referred to the gentile nations, in contrast with Israel. This passage is then adduced in favor of applying Peter's epistles indiscriminately to all men at all times, especially to the present ecclesia which is Christ's body. But a closer consideration will show that this passage proves the very opposite, for it quotes from the prophecy of Hosea, who speaks of the sons of Israel, and cannot possibly be interpreted of any other people. One passage reads as follows (Hos.19-11):

And He is saying:

"Call his name 'Lo Ammi' [Not My people].

For you are not my people

And I will not be yours.

And the number of the sons of Israel

Shall be as the sand of the sea

Which shall not be measured

And shall not be numbered.

And it shall occur, in the place where it is being said to them

'You are not My people,'

It shall be said to them

'Sons of the living Deity.'

And the sons of Judah and the sons of Israel

Shall be gathered together as one,

And shall place over them one head,

And ascend from the land,

For great is the day of Jezreel."

The companion passage is equally plain (Hos.223):

And I compassionate the uncompassioned,

And I say to Lo Ammi [Not My People].

'You are My people!'

And he shall say, 'My God!'"

By no means may these quotations refer to any people but the chosen nation.

<sup>12</sup> "Your behaviour among the nations," or gentiles, confirms our conclusion that Peter is addressing those of his own nation outside the land.

<sup>13</sup> The word "creation" here is the same word which is always so rendered in every other occurrence. Possibly the idea that creation is a prerogative of God led our translators to alter to "ordinance" here. Yet such contexts as this are the very ones which the English reader needs to correct his conception of this word, for according to this passage, man can create, and the word does not mean to bring into being that which heretofore had no existence.

<sup>10</sup> His marvelous light, who once were "not a people" yet now are "the people of God", who "have not been shown mercy", yet now are "being shown mercy."

<sup>11</sup> Beloved, I am entreating you, as sojourners and expatriates, to be abstaining from fleshly lusts, which

<sup>12</sup> are warring against the soul, having your behavior among the nations ideal, that in that in which they are talking against you as evil doers, being spectators of ideal acts, they should be glorifying God in the day of visitation.

<sup>13</sup> Be subject to every human creation because of the Lord, whether to the king, as a superior, or governors, as being sent by Him for vengeance on evil doers, yet for the applause of doers of good, seeing that

<sup>14</sup> thus it is the will of God, by doing good to be muzzling the ignorance of imprudent men; as free and not as having freedom for a cover of

<sup>15</sup> evil, but as slaves of God. Honor all; be loving the brotherhood; be fearing God; be honoring the king.

<sup>16</sup> Domesticated, be subject to your owners, with all fear, not only to the good and lenient, but to the

<sup>17</sup> crooked also, for this is grace, if, because of conscience toward God, anyone is undergoing sorrows, suffering unjustly. For what credit is it if, sinning and being buffeted, you shall be enduring it? But if, doing good and suffering, you shall be enduring, this is grace with God.

<sup>18</sup> For for this were you called, seeing that Christ also suffered for your sakes, leaving you a copy, that

<sup>21</sup> Following in the footprints left by our Lord while He was on earth is often taken as the ideal of human deportment for believers in Christ. And so it is—for the Circumcision, to whom Peter writes. His path may be copied by them, for they find themselves in similar circumstances and under identical conditions. Not so with the nations in this economy of God's grace. In preparing Paul for his part as the channel through which the truth for today was to be revealed, God kept him from contact with Christ during our Lord's life on earth, both before and after His resurrection. It was only after His ascension into glory that He called Saul, and changed his name to Paul, and made him the medium for the special truth which is in force during the apostasy of Israel. Saul's call might have occurred long before, but it was deliberately deferred so as to conform to the truth with which he was entrusted. He, and we, know Christ only as ascended and glorified. If we were connected with His earthly life, then we, like the Syro-phenician woman (Mk. 7<sup>26</sup>) could get nothing more than a few crumbs from Israel's board. He does not act in glory as He acted on earth. Now He makes no distinction between Jew and gentile, but lavishes unutterably greater grace on both than was possible when He was the Servant of the Circumcision (Ro.15<sup>8</sup>). The key to conduct which pleases God is to copy His present attitude toward us in our relations with our fellow men. It is not reasonable to follow in His steps when He came only to the lost sheep of the house of Israel and kept Himself from contact with the outside nations. His walk in the land is no model for our conduct outside the land. Hence we are exhorted to be imitators of Paul, as he is of Christ (1 Co.11<sup>1</sup>), for he knew Christ ascended and glorified. And we are exhorted to be imitators of God, as beloved children (Eph.5<sup>1</sup>). Such a place we, sinners of the gentiles, did not have when Christ confined Himself to the favored nation.

you should be following up in the
<sup>23</sup> mouth, Who, being reviled, reviled not again, suffering, threatened not, yet gave it over to Him Who <sup>24</sup> is judging justly, Who Himself bears our sins in His body on the tree, that, having come away from sins, we should be living for righteousness; by Whose welt you
<sup>25</sup> may be healed. For you were as straying sheep, but now you turned back to the Shepherd and Supervisor of your souls.

3 Likewise wives are being subject to their own husbands, that, if any also are stubborn as to the word, they will be gained without a word, through the behavior of
<sup>3</sup> your pure behavior in fear, whose adornment, let it not be the outside, in braiding the hair and decking with gold, or putting on of
<sup>4</sup> garments, but the hidden human of the heart, in the incorruptibility of a meek and quiet spirit, which is
<sup>5</sup> costly before God. For thus once the holy women also, whose expectation was in God, adorned themselves, being subject to their own
<sup>6</sup> husbands, as Sarah obeys Abraham, calling him "lord", whose children you became, doing good and fearing no dismay.

<sup>7</sup> Husbands, likewise, are making a home with them according to knowledge, awarding honor to the feminine as to the weaker vessel, as to those who are also joint enjoyers

Christ and the church; Peter points back to Sarah and Abraham.

<sup>9</sup> Like our Lord in His sermon on the mount, the apostle sets a much higher mark than the law for the conduct of those who are candidates for the kingdom. Compare Mt.5<sup>39</sup>, etc., and Lu.6<sup>27</sup>, etc. An eye for an eye, or strict justice, gives place to a forgiving spirit. This is carried even further in connection with the present grace. We are to vanquish evil with good (Ro.12<sup>21</sup>), and to heap embers of fire on the heads of our enemies and to bless those who persecute us (Ro.12<sup>14</sup>). In a word, we are to be walking in love (Eph.5<sup>2</sup>).

<sup>10</sup> This quotation from Ps.34<sup>12-16</sup>, without any introductory phrase to show its relation to the subject in hand, clearly indicates that the Psalms as a whole are perfectly in accord with the administration to which Peter and the twelve belonged. Our experience should harmonize with them to a certain point, but should rise far above their highest conceptions of conduct. To "love life and see good days" is a much lower motive than is presented to us.

<sup>14-15</sup> In view of the coming storm of persecution Peter quotes and varies a word from Isa.8<sup>12-13</sup> spoken in similar circumstances, but with the significant substitution of "the Lord Christ" for "Jehovah of Hosts". Remembering Jewish reverence for the letter of scripture and the intense dread of having any God but one, we see how firmly Peter is convinced that Christ is the Jehovah of the Hebrew Scriptures.

<sup>18</sup> A grasp of the apostle's argument here will help us through this difficult passage. The subject is suffering for doing good. The Example is Christ and those sufferings which came to Him as they come to His disciples, because of the sin which surrounded Him. The argument is that He, though put to death, has now been exalted, even over the messengers and authorities and powers of the spirit realm (<sup>22</sup>), therefore those who suffer for doing good will also be exalted in due time.

With this in mind, it is evident that it is not the evangel which is proclaimed to the spirits in prison, for that would be entirely out of line with of the varied grace of life, that your prayers be not hindered.

<sup>8</sup> Now the finish: Be all of a like disposition, sympathetic, fond of the brethren, tenderly compassionate, of a humble disposition, not rendering evil for evil, or reviling for reviling—yet, on the contrary, blessing, seeing that you were called for this, that you should be enjoying the allotment of blessedness.

<sup>10</sup> "For he who is wanting to love life and be acquainted with good days,

Let his tongue cease from evil
And his lips from speaking guile.

<sup>11</sup> Now let him avoid evil and do good.

Let him seek peace and pursue it,
<sup>12</sup> Seeing that the eyes of the Lord are on the just

And His ears are for their petition,
Yet the face of the Lord is on evil doers."

<sup>13</sup> And who will be ill-treating you, if you should become zealous of good?

<sup>14</sup> Yet if you suffer also because of righteousness, happy are you. Now you should not be afraid with their
<sup>15</sup> fear, nor yet be disturbed, yet hallow the Lord Christ in your hearts, ever ready with a defense for everyone who is demanding from you an account of the expectation in you,
<sup>16</sup> but with meekness and fear, having a good conscience, that, in what they are talking against you as evil doers, those traducing you may be mortified by your good behavior in Christ.

<sup>17</sup> For it is better to be suffering for doing good, if it be the will of God, <sup>18</sup> than for doing evil, seeing that Christ also, for our sakes, once died concerning sins, the just for the sake of the unjust, that He may the argument. It would imply that, as a result of their sufferings, their enemies will be evangelized. Such grace is foreign to Peter's epistles. The word here used is not evangelize, but proclaim. It tells us, not that they were blessed, but that He was exalted. And what is more likely than that, after His ascension, He should be proclaimed the universal Suzerain to all creation, obedient or rebellious?

The fact that they are called spirits, assures us that they are not human. The proclamation was not made to them during our Lord's death, but after He had been made alive. It was a token of His exaltation.

<sup>6</sup> This difficult passage depends, for its interpretation, on the force of the interjected "indeed", which is usually omitted in translation. Even when present in the English, its force is not readily perceived. It must be evident to all that there is a turn in the argument, for the evangel is not the precursor of judgment from God, nor is it according to men. This judgment, then, is not God's but man's. Men judged them according to their own standards. They are judged, "indeed", but not in the judgment of the living and the dead just mentioned (<sup>5</sup>). The next statement, that they should be living according to God, makes it evident that the evangel was not preached to them after they had died. Men could not judge them, in flesh, nor could they live according to God, in spirit, after they had died. They are dead now, but the preaching and judging and living were all a part of their experience before they fell asleep.

be leading us to God; being put to death, indeed, in flesh, yet vivified <sup>19</sup> in spirit, in which, being gone to the spirits in the jail also, He <sup>20</sup> proclaims to those stubborn at one time, when the patience of God awaited in the days of Noah while the ark was being constructed, in which a few, that is eight souls were conveyed safely through water, the representation of which, baptism, is now saving you also—not putting off the filth of the flesh, but the inquiry of a good conscience to God, through the resurrection of Jesus <sup>22</sup> Christ, Who is at God's right hand, being gone into heaven, messengers and authorities and powers being made subject to Him.

<sup>4</sup> Christ, then, having suffered for our sakes in flesh, you also arm yourselves with the same thought, seeing that he who is suffering in flesh has ceased his sins, by no means still to spend the rest of his time in the flesh in human desires, <sup>2</sup> but in the will of God. For sufficient is the time which has passed by to have effected the intention of the nations, having gone on in wantonnesses, lusts, debauches, revelries, drinking bouts, and illicit idolatries, in which they are thinking it strange of you not to race together into the same puddle of profligacy, <sup>4</sup> calumniating you: who shall be rendering an account to Him Who is in readiness to judge the living <sup>5</sup> and the dead. For for this an evangel is preached to the dead also, that they may be judged, indeed, according to men in flesh, yet should be living according to God, in spirit.

<sup>7</sup> Now the consummation of all has drawn near. Then be sane and sober for prayers, before all, having <sup>8</sup>

<sup>8</sup> The human love that covers over the sins of those on whom it is placed is but an intimation of the divine love which is the source of all affection. But human love is limited, both in its ideals and its performances. There is a striking similarity, however, between the expression of divine love under the law, before the sacrifice of Christ, and the love here spoken of. In both cases sin was covered, not put away or pardoned, much less justified. As we hide the misdeeds of our loved ones, so the blood of slain animals served to cover over the sins of Israel. Propitiation is not for us. Paul refers to it but once, and then in reference to the sins of the past (Ro.3<sup>25</sup>). It is for the Circumcision and the nations in the day of the Lord (1Jn.2<sup>2</sup>).

<sup>9</sup> All other graces flourish where love is found. It not only stimulates their growth but enhances their quality. To do what is loving is well: to do it in a loving way is better. The manner of hospitality means more than mere hospitality itself. Gracious giving glorifies the gift.

<sup>12</sup> Peter is the representative of the suffering saints of the Circumcision, and his ministry is especially intended for such. The persecutions of the first century were foretastes of the terrible time which precedes the coming of the kingdom. Hence these exhortations fit both occasions equally well. Then judgment will begin from the house of God, as detailed in the second and third chapters of the Unveiling.

<sup>15</sup> Paradoxical as it may seem, only Jews are Christians in the Scriptures. The term is never applied to the nations, but only to Jews or proselytes. Paul never uses the name in his epistles. It occurs only in Acts, which is concerned with the past rejection of the kingdom, and in Peter, which looked forward to its future realization. It is a notable example of the manner in which Scriptural terms have been utterly perverted from their original use.

earnest love among yourselves, seeing that love is covering a multitude of sins. Be hospitable to one another without murmuring. Each, according as he obtained the gracious gift, be dispensing it among yourselves, as ideal stewards of the varied grace of God; if anyone is speaking, as the oracles of God; if anyone is dispensing, as out of the strength which God is furnishing, that God may be glorified in all, through Jesus Christ, to Whom is the glory and the might for the eons of the eons. Amen!

<sup>12</sup> Beloved, do not think the conflagration among you, which is becoming a trial to you, strange, as something strange befalling you, but be rejoicing, according as you are participating in the sufferings of Christ, that you may be rejoicing, exulting in the unveiling of His glory also. If you are being reproached in the name of Christ, happy are you, seeing that the spirit of glory and power, and that of God has come to rest on you.

<sup>15</sup> For let not any of you be suffering as a murderer, or a thief, or an evil-doer, or as an interferer in other's affairs, yet if as a Christian, let him not be ashamed, yet let him be glorifying God in this name, seeing that it is the era for the judgment to begin from the house of God. Now if first from us, what is the consummation of those who are stubborn as to God's evangel? And "If the just one is hardly being saved, where will the irreverent and sinner appear?" So that, let those also who are suffering according to the will of God, commit their souls to a faithful Creator, in the doing of good.

ness He guided them like a flock (Ps. 78<sup>52</sup>). When the Lord came Israel was as a flock having no shepherd (Mt. 9<sup>36</sup>). He is the Great Shepherd of the sheep (Heb. 13<sup>20</sup>; 1 Pt. 2<sup>25</sup>). As the Good Shepherd He laid down His soul for the sheep (Jn. 10<sup>11</sup>). As the Chief Shepherd He will reward the under shepherds for their work when He comes again in the day of His manifestation (5<sup>4</sup>). It must be remembered that, in the East, a shepherd does not drive his flock, but leads them. He does not send a dog after them, but calls them each by name. His care and protection is symbolized by his crook and his club, the former for the sheep and the latter for their enemies. The nearest that Paul ever comes to including the nations in this figure is the single occurrence of the word "shepherd" or pastor (Eph. 4<sup>11</sup>), but its context shows that it is there a faded metaphor and has lost its figurative meaning, just as its Latin equivalent "pastor", which once also meant a shepherd. A pastor is not now a literal shepherd.

5 The apron was a part of a slave's uniform which distinguished him as a slave and which he put on when he meant work. Humility serves (Jn. 13 1-16), and service tests humility.

7 The writer was loth to lose this precious promise when he began to see his place in Paul's epistles. How restful to toss all his worries on Him, and confide all to His care! But he soon found that he forfeited nothing by "losing" this passage, for the truth found in Paul's epistles eclipsed it and made it inoperative. Paul takes higher ground, and says, "Let nothing be worrying you, but in every prayer and petition let your requests be made known to God with thanksgiving, and the peace of God, being superior to every mental state, shall garrison your hearts and your apprehensions in Christ Jesus" (Phil. 4<sup>7</sup>). If, then, I allow nothing to worry me, how can I toss all my worries on Him? This is a specimen of the constant differences between the ministries of Peter and Paul.

10 The grace of God is indicated by the short seasons of suffering and the long eons of glory to which they are the preparation and the prelude.

5 The elders then among you I am entreating (who am a fellow elder and a witness of the sufferings of Christ, and a participant of the glory about to be revealed),
2 shepherd the flocklet of God among you, supervising, not of compulsion, but voluntarily, according to God, nor yet avariciously, but
3 eagerly, nor yet as lording it over the allotments, but becoming models
4 for the flocklet, and, when the Chief Shepherd is manifested, you will be requited with an unfading wreath of glory.

5 Likewise, younger men, be subject to the elder, yet all wear the servile apron of humility with one another, seeing that God is resisting the proud, yet is giving grace
6 to the humble. Be humbled, then, under the mighty hand of God, that He may be exalting you in 7 season, tossing your entire worry on Him, seeing that He is caring concerning you.

8 Be sober! Watch! seeing that your plaintiff, the Slanderer, is walking about as a roaring lion, seeking some one to swallow up:
9 whom withstand, solid in the faith, having perceived the same sufferings completed in your brotherhood in the world.

10 Now the God of all grace, Who calls you into His eonian glory in Christ, while briefly suffering, will Himself be readjusting, establishing, firming, founding you. To Him be glory and might for the eons of the eons. Amen!

12 Through Silvanus, a faithful brother, as I am reckoning, I write briefly to you, entreating and de-

<sup>1</sup> The introduction of the name Simeon, before Peter, and slave in addition to apostle, gives us a clue to the character of this second epistle. The emphasis is laid on practise rather than precept. It is concerned with living rather than learning.

<sup>2</sup> The recognition of God and of Jesus Christ, our Lord, is the source of grace and peace, as well as all that tends to life and devoutness. This is indicated by beginning the epistle proper by "So . . ." and by the repetition of the thought: "through the recognition of Him Who calls us to His own glory and virtue." The word "recognition" probably includes the wider range of realization and appreciation. It is a favorite word in this epistle, for it occurs again in verse 8, and again in 2<sup>20</sup>. Standing, as it does, at the threshold of an epistle devoted to conduct, it teaches the important lesson that knowledge is essential to good deportment. Those who refuse to recognize God are given over to a disqualified mind to commit the whole catalogue of crime (Ro.1<sup>28</sup>). The only salvation from these things is a vision of His glory and virtue, in this manner becoming a participant of the divine nature which flees from corruption. Consequently, the most powerfully practical course to pursue is to gain a grasp of God's glories and virtues, so that they may operate in us to produce their like.

<sup>5</sup> The path of the saint is one of progress or apostasy. If he is not adding, he will probably be subtracting. Hence Simeon Peter exhorts his readers to advance, making each spiritual grace the container of another and a better, until they all unfold for the display of love, the highest and best of all.

<sup>10</sup> Peter, like James, is apt to present the human side of redemption. Calling and choice are purely divine, yet their confirmation in the eyes of men depends on the evidence of ideal acts. The divine side is hidden to all but the one who is called. His conduct should

SIMEON PETER, a slave and an apostle of Jesus Christ, to those who are chancing upon equally precious faith with us, in the righteousness of our God and Saviour, Jesus Christ:

<sup>2</sup> May grace and peace be multiplied to you in the recognition of God and of Jesus Christ our Lord!

<sup>3</sup> So His divine power has presented to us all that tends to life and devoutness: through the recognition of Him Who calls us to His own glory and virtue: through which have been presented to us the precious and greatest promises, that through these you may become participants of the divine nature, fleeing from the corruption which is in the world by lust.

<sup>5</sup> Now for this very thing also, employing all diligence, in your faith supply virtue, yet in virtue knowledge, yet in knowledge self control, yet in self control endurance, yet in endurance devoutness, yet in devoutness brotherly fondness, yet in brotherly fondness love. For possessing these and increasing is constituting you that you are neither idle nor unfruitful in the recognition of our Lord Jesus Christ. For he in whom these are not present is blind, closing his eyes, getting oblivious of the cleansing from the penalty of his old sins.

<sup>10</sup> Wherefore, rather, brethren, endeavor, through ideal acts, to confirm your calling and choice: for, doing these things, you should under no circumstances be tripping at any time. For thus an entrance into the conian kingdom of our confirm his confession before the world.

<sup>14</sup> In that marvelous resurrection scene in John's evangel, where our Lord commissions Peter for the ministry which he fulfills in writing these epistles, He also intimates the character of his death. Peter was to follow Him to the very end, and die like his Master, Who said, "Verily, verily, I am saying to you, when you were young you girded yourself and walked whither you would, yet, whenever you may be decrepit, you will stretch out your hands, and another shall be girding you and carrying you whither you would not" (Jn.21<sup>18</sup>). And it is immediately added, "Now thus He said, signifying by what death he will be glorifying God."

<sup>16</sup> Peter and James and John were especially chosen to accompany the Lord to the Mount of Transformation (commonly called the Transfiguration) to witness a foreglimpse of the coming kingdom and its power and magnificence. Thus they perceived undeniable evidence of its reality and glory. They heard the voice from heaven saying, "This is My beloved Son, in Whom I delight. Be hearing Him!" They saw the lowly Nazarene transformed so that His face shone as the sun, and His garments became white as light. They recognized Moses and Elijah talking with Him concerning His impending exodus (Mt.17<sup>1-3</sup>, Mk.9<sup>2-7</sup>, Lu.9<sup>28-35</sup>). Here were all the elements of the kingdom. Moses might well represent the dead in Israel awakened from their sleep. Elijah may typify those who are living at His advent. His own face and form assume the glory which belongs to them. The power and glory of the kingdom are anticipated in this scene. It is at once a sample and an assurance of the magnificence and splendor of His millennial reign. There were seven persons present, Peter, James, and John are types of those believers on earth who shall witness the coming of the Lord and enter the kingdom. This reference to Christ's Transformation by one of the eyewitnesses is one of the internal proofs of the Petrine authorship of this epistle.

Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ will be richly supplied to you.

<sup>12</sup> Wherefore I shall ever be about to be reminding you concerning these things, though you are aware of them and have been established in <sup>13</sup> the present truth. Now I am deeming it just, as long as I am in this tabernacle, to be rousing you by a <sup>14</sup> reminder, being aware that my tabernacle is to be put off swiftly, according as our Lord Jesus Christ <sup>15</sup> also makes evident to me. Now I shall endeavor to have you, after my exodus, to be reminded of these things, ever and anon.

<sup>16</sup> For we make known to you the power and presence of our Lord Jesus Christ, not following out wisely made myths, but we became spectators of His magnificence. <sup>17</sup> For, getting from God, the Father, honor and glory, what a voice is being carried to Him by the Glory Magnifical: "This is My beloved <sup>18</sup> Son, in Whom I delight!" And this voice we hear being carried out of heaven, being with Him in the holy mountain.

<sup>19</sup> And we are having the prophetic word more confirmed, which you, doing ideally, are heeding (as a lamp appearing in a dingy place, till the day should be breaking and the day-star should rise) in your <sup>20</sup> hearts, knowing this first, that no prophecy of scripture is becoming <sup>21</sup> its own explanation. For prophecy was not at any time carried on by the will of man, but holy men of

can find his way in this world without the illumination of the prophetic word. All is dark without it. But prophecies often seem obscure. The prophets themselves did not always know the import of their predictions. Now, however, that the word of God is complete, and some has been fulfilled, and each intimation may be sorted and compared with all of like tenor, the whole outline of prophecy may be readily perceived. Prophecy is not an attempt by the prophet to explain the purposes of God in current or future events. It is not the result of his observation and experience, or his interpretation of God's ways. Not the human will but God's spirit produced the words of the writers of prophecy.

The program of prophecy has gradually become clearer with added revelation. The pre-exile prophets, Isaiah, Jeremiah, Hosea, Joel, Amos, Obadiah, Jonah, Micah, Nahum, Habakkuk, and Zephaniah know only one advent. In the post-exile prophets the second advent is distinguished from the first, and Israel's dispersion comes in between. Ezekiel, however, sees still further, and predicts an end to the Messianic kingdom. This is also the farthest range of Peter in his epistles and John in the Unveiling. But Paul goes far beyond, and sees a conclusion to the post-Messianic eon, when kingly government is brought to an end and the Son abdicates because all need for rule has disappeared. Then God becomes All in all. This is the climax of prophecy. It explains its purpose and solves its enigmas.

<sup>4</sup> Peter recounts the ancient judgments of God with a view to establishing the certainty of the impending judgments of the end time. That, too, will be a judgment on spirit beings, for Satan will be bound. It will be visited on a world which has reverted to the wickedness which drew down the deluge, and which is guilty of the sins of Sodom and Gomorrah. Then, too, the righteous shall be delivered, as Lot out of Sodom, and as Noah through the flood.

God speak, being carried on by holy spirit.

<sup>2</sup> Yet there came to be false prophets also among the people, as among you also there will be false teachers, who will be smuggling in destructive sects, and disowning the Owner Who buys them, bringing on themselves swift destruction.

<sup>2</sup> And many will be following out their wantonness, through whom the glory of the truth will be calumniated, and in greediness, with <sup>3</sup> suave words, they will traffic in you, whose judgment of old is not idling, and their destruction is not nodding.

<sup>4</sup> For if God spares not sinning messengers, but, thrusting them into the gloomy caverns of Tartarus, gives them up to be kept for <sup>5</sup> chastening judgment, and spares not the ancient world, but guards Noah, an eighth, a herald of righteousness, bringing a deluge on the <sup>6</sup> world of the irreverent, and condemns the cities of Sodom and Gomorrah, reducing them to cinders by an overthrow, having placed them for an example for those <sup>7</sup> about to be irreverent, and rescues just Lot, harried by the wanton behavior of the dissolute (for the <sup>8</sup> just man dwelling among them, observing and hearing from day to day, tormented his just soul by lawless acts), the Lord is acquainted with the rescue of the devout out of trial, yet is keeping the unjust for the chastening in the day of <sup>10</sup> judgment, yet specially those going after the flesh in defiling lust and despising dominion.

<sup>10</sup> No one acquainted with the world as it is, and especially the tendency of the times, but will conclude that Peter's epistles will have a very special fulfillment in the dreadful days that are to come. Even now, the revolt against authority has overthrown vast empires, and undermines all established government. Millions "despise dominion", and are drifting toward a worse despotism than any the world has ever seen. But this is most evident in the sphere of religion. The sovereignty of God is unknown and unrecognized. Whole nations defy the Deity and seek to deny His existence. And this leads to the second great sin of the end time. Loosed from the restraints of even formal religion, the world is plunging into the defilements of the flesh. The marriage bond is slack or slighted altogether. Divorces are becoming more and more frequent. The world is rapidly ripening for the time when these sins will have the sanction of religion and the worship of the wild beast will be encouraged by the gratification of the lowest lusts of the flesh.

<sup>15</sup> The story of Balaam (Num.22-25) shows the fearful lengths men will go for reward, even in the face of divine displeasure. They are lower than the brute beasts in their rejection of God's revealed will, if it leads to preferment or pecuniary advantage.

<sup>17</sup> This paragraph brings before us some of the same characters which are found in the sixth and tenth chapters of Hebrews. There were and will be apostates among the Circumcision who will go great lengths in following the Messiah, even as Judas did, yet finally they fall away and repudiate their profession. Our Lord had many such followers who left Him.

Recognition of the truth concerning Christ may prevail with men for a time so as to compel separation from defilements that still allure. The apostle is not contemplating such as have become participants of the divine nature, and so flee the corruption that is in the world by lust; but those whose inner malady is not healed, who have reformed under the influence of truth, and who are still curs and swine.

Audacious, given to self gratification, they are not trembling when calumniating glories, where messengers, being of greater strength and ability, are not bringing against them a calumniating judgment before the Lord. Now these, as irrational animals, born naturally for capture and corruption, calumniating in that in which they are ignorant, shall be corrupted also in their corruption, being requited with the wages of injustice.

Deeming gratification by day a luxury, they are spots and flaws, luxuriating in their love feasts, carousing together with you, having the distended eyes of an adulteress, and that do not stop from sin, luring unstable souls, having a heart exercised in greediness, children of a curse.

<sup>17</sup> These are waterless springs, and mists driven by a storm, for whom the gloom of darkness has been kept. For, uttering pompous vanity, they are luring by the lusts of the flesh, in wantonness, those who are scarcely fleeing from those who are behaving with deception; promising them freedom, they belong with slaves of corruption, for by whom anyone is discomfited, to this one he has been enslaved also. For if, while fleeing from the defile-

<sup>1</sup> It is the special function of the Circumcision epistles to reaffirm and enforce the ancient prophetic scriptures and the words of our Lord before His death and ascension. This is notably lacking in Paul's epistles. Seldom is the life of our Lord referred to, or His teaching recalled. There is little of prophetic reference. When the prophets are quoted it is usually to show their harmony or agreement, rather than direct fulfillment. The quotations are introduced by such connectives as "as" or "according to". This is because Paul is detailing an administration outside of the range of the prophets and beyond the scope of our Lord's ministry. Not so Peter and the Circumcision. They are concerned with the fulfillment of the prophetic predictions and are engaged in the same ministry as our Lord when on earth, for He proclaimed the kingdom as well as they.

<sup>3</sup> Not only scoffers, but many who believe the Bible, have fallen into the error of supposing that all things have continued without change from the beginning. The great disruption chronicled in the second verse of the first of Genesis—"the earth becomes waste and sterile" (for it was not created so, Isa.45<sup>18</sup>)—has been well nigh forgotten. What system of biblical cosmogony accounts for an earth "cohering out of water and through water"? This is more in accord with some of the theories of science than theology. It seems evident from this passage, as well as the accounts in Genesis and Job, that the earth has gone through much the same processes which we observe in the present condition of other planets. It probably was swathed in vapors like Venus or Jupiter, and once had rings like Saturn. The Hebrew "heavens" is dual, meaning a pair of heavens. We know that, in the new earth, there will be no seas, as on the moon or Mars. It has been and is subject to vast geologic changes, effected, in the past, by water. It is stored with fire, which will be one of the means of its next great cataclysmic renovation. Fire in the heavens (perhaps a nebula) and in the earth will form the crucible for the new creation.

ments of the world by the recognition of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ, yet, being again involved in these, they are being discomfited, their last state has become worse
<sup>21</sup> than the first. For it were better for them not to have recognized the way of righteousness, than, recognizing it, to go back again to what was behind, from the holy precept
<sup>22</sup> given over to them. Now the true proverb has befallen them: "A cur turning back to its own vomit," and "A bathed swine to its wallowing in the mire."

3 This is already, beloved, the second epistle I am writing to you, in which I am arousing your sincere
<sup>2</sup> comprehension by a reminder to remind you of the declarations declared before by the holy prophets, and the precept of your apostles
<sup>3</sup> of the Lord and Saviour, knowing this first, that, in the last days scoffers will be coming with scoffing, going according to their own desires, and saying,
<sup>4</sup> "Where is the promise of His presence? For from what time the fathers were put to repose, all is continuing thus from the beginning of creation."

<sup>5</sup> For they want to be oblivious of this, that there were heavens of old, and an earth cohering out of water and through water, by the word of
<sup>6</sup> God; through which the then world, being deluged by water, was <sup>7</sup> destroyed. Yet the heavens now, and the earth, by the same word, are stored with fire, being kept for the day of the judgment and destruction of irreverent men.

<sup>8</sup> Time, with God, has none of the limitations which it has with us. The events of a day are vivid in our minds for a brief period, then they vanish and are forgotten. We know nothing of the future. But past and future are alike to God. As the psalmist says, "A thousand years in Thy sight are as yesterday when it is past" (Ps.90*). We can readily recall the record of the previous day. It seems but a brief space of time. So a thousand years seems to Him. Since Peter penned these words nearly two thousand years have passed and His promise to Israel is not yet fulfilled, but there are indications that the time is near.

<sup>10</sup> The day of the Lord, though it lasts for more than a thousand years, is treated as though its arrival is to be immediately followed by its end, in harmony with the preceding paragraph. It will come as a thief (1 Thes. 5<sup>2</sup>). It will close with the great cataclysm (Un.20<sup>11</sup>;21<sup>1</sup>) which ushers in the day of God, in the new creation. Two great convulsions divide the history of the heavens and the earth into three grand divisions. One is found at the forefront of revelation, this one is near its finish. The heavens and earth were destroyed by water (Gen. 1<sup>2</sup>). In the future this will be effected by fire. The past was a physical regeneration. The future will be a chemical recreation. Water, in the form of seas, is found only on the present earth. It was not on, but about, the previous one. It will be absent in the third earth (Un.21<sup>1</sup>). The changing character of the earth on which we live is due largely to the presence of water. It disintegrates the solid rocks. As glaciers, it grinds down the mountains. In streams, it washes the soil into the sea. This is undoubtedly a parable of the impermanent moral processes through which mankind is passing. The new earth will be unchanging, permanent. Having passed through the great crucible of the divine Alchemist, its stones will be precious gems, hard as flint, and indestructible. And this will also be a parable of the moral purity which has been purged by fire and abides. This chapter reveals the fact that the new creation will be the third earth and third heaven (2 Co. 12<sup>2</sup>).

<sup>8</sup> Now of this one thing you are not to be oblivious, beloved, that one day with the Lord is as a thousand years and a thousand years as one day. The Lord is not tardy as to the promise, as some are deeming tardiness, but is patient because of you, not intending any to be destroyed, but all to make room for repentance.

<sup>10</sup> Now the day of the Lord will be arriving as a thief, in which the heavens shall be passing by with a booming noise, yet the elements will be dissolved by combustion, and the earth and the works in it will be found. All these, then, being dissolved, what manner must you belong to in holy behavior and devoutness, hoping for and hurrying the presence of the day of God, because of which the heavens, being on fire, will be dissolved, and the elements are decomposed by combustion! Yet we, according to His promises, are hoping for new heavens and a new earth, in which righteousness is dwelling.

<sup>14</sup> Wherefore, beloved, hoping for these things, endeavor to be found by Him in peace, unspotted and flawless. And be deeming the patience of our Lord salvation, according as our beloved brother Paul also writes to you, according to the wisdom given to him, as also in all the epistles, speaking in them concerning these things, in which are some things hard to apprehend, which the unlearned and unstable are twisting, as the rest of the scriptures also, to their own destruction.

<sup>17</sup> You, then, beloved, knowing this before, be on your guard lest, being <sup>15</sup> It is evident that Peter, great apostle though he was, could not apprehend fully the ministry of Paul. He did see, however, that the seeming delay in the setting up of the kingdom was being used by God, through Paul, and that salvation was by no means dependent upon Israel's attitude. This subject, which is merely alluded to by Peter, is fully set forth by Paul in the eleventh chapter of his epistle to the Romans.

THE EPISTLES OF JOHN

PERHAPS no greater service can be rendered to students of the writings of John than to point out their inapplicability to the present secret economy. John, just as truly as Peter and James, ministered to the Circumcision, and referred to the nations as outside the sphere of fellowship (3 Jn. 7). Even when he widens the scope of blessing to include the whole world, he lays the heaviest stress on its relation to the favored nation. "He is the Propitiation concerning our sins (Israel's) yet not concerning ours only, but concerning the whole world also" (1 Jn. 2<sup>2</sup>).

Furthermore, while our present grace is based on the repudiation of all privilege which comes through the flesh (2 Co. 5<sup>16</sup>), since the nations have no physical connection with Christ, John commences his epistle by enforcing the physical evidence on which his ministry is founded. He knew Christ after the flesh for many years, and had rested in His bosom. This is the sphere into which he introduces us in his writings. In contrast to this, Paul never met Christ until He was glorified, and thus became the divine illustration of our relationship with Him.

The clue to the character and application of John's ministry, both personal and written, lies in the Lord's question to Peter (Jn. 21<sup>22</sup>) "If I should want him to be remaining till I am coming, what is it to you?" The Lord did not say that he actually would remain alive until His return, but we have little room to doubt that, in spirit, this is true. His writings have special application to those who enter the kingdom without dying, and provide the doctrinal basis of the kingdom itself. This is further confirmed by the fact that, in his apocalyptic visions, John enters the kingdom, in spirit.

And this is the reason why his writings have made such an appeal to the saints of today. During the kingdom eon blessing will flow through Israel to the nations. So in John we have God's love for the world (Jn. 3<sup>16</sup>) and Christ's propitiation is world-wide in its scope. But never is there any hint anywhere of blessing for the nations during Israel's apostasy, as is the case in the Pauline epistles.

It is a fact but little realized that John's writings were not penned until after the death of Paul and Peter and most of the saints who come before us in the Scriptures. They all preached and taught without having ever seen the gospel or the epistles of John. Paul's marvelous ministries were not only carried out without these writings, but he followed lines of truth decidedly distinct from that of John's record. They are ours to read and interpret in their true setting, but not to apply to a time for which they are neither fitted nor intended. John's gospel and epistles were written too late to be used by most of the Circumcision in the past, hence have their special sphere and application in the future. John has not yet come to his own, and will have to tarry for his fullest ministry till the Lord comes.

The subject of these epistles is life in the saints rather than life in Christ. This life manifests itself in conduct which must satisfy the severe tests applied for the exposure of a spurious spirituality. The professor is tested as to where he walks (1<sup>6</sup>), his profession of sinlessness (1<sup>8</sup>) and perfection (1<sup>10</sup>), his knowledge of God (2<sup>4</sup>), his remaining in Christ (2<sup>6</sup>), his love of the brethren (2<sup>9</sup>) and his love of God (4<sup>20</sup>). John's "if we should say," is like James' test "If anyone should be saying," John sets God before the believer as Light, Love and Spirit, while Paul sets the believer before God in Christ.

John's teaching approximates that of Hebrews in many respects. It puts Jesus Christ as a Entreater between the Father and His children as Hebrews puts the Son of God as Priest between God and believing Israelites.

John says very little about himself. In his gospel there is only one John—the Baptist. He speaks of himself as one whom Jesus loved (Jn. 13<sup>23</sup>; 21<sup>20</sup>). A single page of Paul is more self-revealing than all John has written, and this picture of our pattern (1 Ti. 1<sup>16</sup>) is given for our imitation.

<sup>2</sup> Jesus Christ is the title of our Lord's humiliation, the time to which John refers. Christ Jesus is the title of His exaltation, which, as viewed in John's writings is still future, but which, for us is His present place. So that our fellowship is not with Jesus Christ but with Christ Jesus.

THAT which was from the beginning, which we have heard, which we have seen with our eyes, which we gaze at, and which our hands handle, is concerned with the word of life. And the life was manifested, and we have seen and are testifying and reporting to you the eonian life which was toward the Father and was manifested to us.

<sup>3</sup> That which we have seen and heard we are reporting to you, that you also may be having fellowship with us, and yet this fellowship of ours is with the Father and with His Son, Jesus Christ. And these things we are writing that our joy may be full.

<sup>5</sup> And this is the message which we have heard from Him, and are informing you, that God is light, and darkness in Him there is none.

<sup>6</sup> If we should be saying that we are having fellowship with Him and should be walking in darkness, we are lying and are not doing the truth. Yet if we should be walking in the light as He is in the light, we are having fellowship with one another, and the blood of Jesus, His Son, is cleansing us from every sin.

<sup>8</sup> If we should be saying that we have no sin we are deceiving ourselves, and the truth is not in us.

<sup>9</sup> If we should be avowing our sins, He is faithful and just that He may be pardoning us our sins and should be cleansing us from all injustice.

<sup>10</sup> If we should be saying that we have not sinned we are making Him a liar, and His word is not in us.

<sup>2</sup> My little children, I am writing these things to you that you may <sup>8</sup> Fellowship with God as the Light leads to the discovery of all that is of the darkness. Sin in the saint is made manifest by the light. Away from the light sin may not be detected; it may be unknown. The Circumcision have constant recourse to the pardoning and cleansing virtues of the blood. Under the present reign of grace sin is always submerged by God's favor, so that no pardon is required or possible. Some will say that this puts a premium on sin. This is the very objection which is discussed and refuted in the sixth chapter of the epistle to the Romans. But it works out the very opposite in practise. Man is a contradiction. When the law says "Thou shalt not" it awakens in him a desire to do the very thing that God prohibits. And it is a blessed fact that, when the sluice gates of grace are opened wide so that there is no condemnation no matter what he does, he loses the desire to sin and finds in the very grace which guarantees immunity a latent power which enables him to rise above it.

<sup>1</sup> The rendering "Advocate", in the sense of an attorney before a judge, is not at all in keeping with the character God assumes here. An advocate does not practise before a Father. The Revisers recognized this, and put "Comforter", "Helper", and "Paraclete" in their margin as alternatives. It is rendered "Comforter" four times in John's evangel. The verb covers the territory which we assign to the two words "entreat" and "console". A paraclete is either an entreater or a consoler. The latter hardly seems possible in connection with sin. We have made it an Entreater in this passage and a Consoler in John's evangel.

<sup>2</sup> The strong contrast indicated by the emphatic "ours" should be noted. It is between Israel, the favored nation, and the whole world. Under the law propitiation was confined to them, but in the great antitype it embraces all mankind.

<sup>15</sup> John speaks of the world oftener than all other writers of the Greek scriptures put together. It means to him the prevailing system lying in the wicked one (<sup>5:19</sup>) which knows not God, hates His children, and is filled with lust and vanity. Fellowship with not be sinning. And if anyone should be sinning, we have an Entreater with the Father, Jesus Christ the Just. And He is the propitiation, concerned with our sins, yet not concerned with ours only, but concerned with the whole world also.

<sup>3</sup> And in this are we knowing that we know Him, if we should be keeping His precepts. He who is saying that "I know Him" and is not keeping His precepts, is a liar, and the truth of God is not in him. Yet whoever may be keeping His word, truly in him the love of God has been perfected.

In this we are knowing that we are in Him: he who is saying that he is remaining in Him ought also himself to be walking according as He walks. Beloved, I am not writing a new precept to you, but an old precept, which you had from the beginning. The old precept is the word which you hear.

<sup>8</sup> Again, I am writing a new precept to you, which is true in Him and in you, seeing that the darkness is passing by, and the true light already is appearing. He who is saying that he is in the light and is hating his brother is a liar and is in darkness hitherto. He who is loving his brother is remaining in the light, and there is no snare in him. Yet he who is hating his brother is in darkness and is walking in darkness, and is not aware whither he is going, seeing that the darkness blinds his eyes.

<sup>12</sup> I am writing to you, little children, seeing that your sins have been forgiven you through His name. I am writing to you, fathers, seeing that you know Him Who is from the beginning. I am writing

God is forfeited by attachment to it, and the proof of evil is that it comes into competition with the love of God. In spirit on Patmos he has seen this world pass away and give place to one which will be in harmony with God.

<sup>18</sup> The term "antichrist" occurs only in John's epistles. The prefix "anti" now has the meaning of "against", and antichrist signifies one who is against Christ. But "anti" originally meant "instead of", and this is its significance in "antichrist". An antichrist is one who takes Christ's place, a substitute or counterfeit christ. John speaks of them as coming out from amongst the circle of the saints.

The indiscriminate use of this term for the coming prince of Daniel (Dan. 9<sup>26</sup>), the lawless one of Paul (2 Thes. 2<sup>8</sup>), and the first wild beast of the Unveiling (Un.13<sup>1</sup>) is to be deplored. No clear conceptions can come of confusing these titles. Antichrist, as a substitute for Christ, is probably to be identified with the second wild beast which had horns like a lambkin (Un. 13<sup>11</sup>). This one only has a likeness to Christ and deceives those dwelling on the earth.

The antichrists are probably identical with the false christs which were foretold by our Lord (Mt.24<sup>24</sup>; Mk.13<sup>22</sup>) who would deceive, if it were possible, the very elect. The spirit of antichrist is already in the world and may be known by certain definite characteristics. One is the denial that Jesus is the Christ. The second is the disowning of the Father as well as the Son. The third is the disavowal of the flesh of Christ, that He has come in flesh in the past (1 Jn.4<sup>3</sup>) and that He is coming in flesh in the future (2 Jn. 7). Only those who definitely deny these things are in reality possessed of the spirit of antichrist. It should not be applied to all who oppose Christ, or who teach false doctrine, but rather to those who deceive by pretending to take the place of Christ. The term is never associated with open opposition but rather with secret deception. Whoever, and whatever, displaces Christ is imbued with the spirit of antichrist. It will culminate in the future manifestation of one who will be received by Israel as their long desired Messiah.

to you, youths, seeing that you have <sup>14</sup> conquered the wicked one. I write to you, little children; seeing that you know the Father. I write to you, fathers, seeing that you know Him Who is from the beginning. I write to you, youths, seeing that you are strong and the word of God is remaining in you and you have conquered the wicked one.

<sup>15</sup> Be not loving the world, neither what is in the world. If anyone should be loving the world, the love <sup>16</sup> of the Father is not in him, seeing that everything in the world, the desire of the flesh, and the desire of the eyes, and the ostentation of living, is not of the Father, but is of <sup>17</sup> the world. And the world is passing by, and its desire, yet he who is doing the will of God is remaining for the eon.

<sup>18</sup> Little children, it is the last hour, and, according as you hear that the antichrist is coming, now also there have come to be many antichrists, whence we know that it <sup>19</sup> is the last hour. They come out from us, but they were not of us, for if they were of us, they would have remained with us. But it was that they may be manifested that <sup>20</sup> they are not all of us. And you have an anointing from the Holy One, and all are aware.

<sup>25</sup> The life eonian is life for the course of the eons. It will last during the millennial kingdom and the following eon, up to the consummation, when death is abolished. It would be of little import to promise "eternal" life, for this will become the portion of all when there is no death. The special portion of the saints is life up to the consummation, during the eons, for it is only during the times of the eons that death has any place in God's universe. Moreover, this eonian life is not for this eon, but for the last two eons. It does not commence now, or God's saints would never die. It is impossible to speak of being in present possession of "eternal" or "everlasting" life without claiming immunity from death. None of the saints who have died had "everlasting" life, or they would not now be dead. All had eonian life, which will be enjoyed by them in the resurrection at the presence of Christ.

<sup>1</sup> Relationship to God is expressed by various figures of speech. The Father has children by regeneration and sons by the new creation. Entrance into the kingdom on earth for the Circumcision is aptly figured by a new begetting. They will go through a process corresponding to a birth to fit them for the millennial kingdom (Jn.3<sup>s</sup>). Such a change would not be radical enough to fit us for the heavenly realms, so Paul speaks of a secret connected with the resurrection, by which we are to be changed from terrestrial to celestial creatures (1 Co. 15<sup>51</sup>). Hence we are not in the regeneration, but in a new creation in Christ (2Co.5<sup>17</sup>). As in John three sixteen, John stresses the manner of God's love. It is not sons here, but children. It is the affection of the family circle. God is known as Father.

<sup>24</sup> Let that which you hear from the beginning be remaining in you. If that which you hear from the beginning should be remaining in you, you also shall be remaining in the Son and in the Father. And this is the promise which He promises us: the life eonian.

<sup>26</sup> These things I write to you concerning those who are deceiving you. And the anointing which you obtained from Him is remaining in you, and you have no need that anyone should be teaching you, but as His anointing is teaching you concerning all, and is true, and is no lie, according as it teaches you also, be remaining in it.

<sup>28</sup> And now, little children, be remaining in it, that, should He be manifested, we should be having boldness and not be put to shame before Him in His presence. If you should be perceiving that He is just, you know that everyone also who is doing righteousness has been begotten of Him.

3 Lo! what manner of love the Father has given us, that we may be called children of God! And we are! Therefore the world is not knowing us, seeing that it knew Him not. Beloved, now are we children of God, and it was not as yet manifested what we shall be. We are aware that, if He should be manifested, we shall be like Him, seeing that we shall see Him according as He is. And every one who has this expectation on Him is purifying himself, according as He is pure.

<sup>4</sup> Every one who is doing sin is doing lawlessness also, and sin is lawlessness. And you are aware that He was manifested that He should be taking away our sins, and

8 The title "Slanderer" has far more aptness than is at first apparent. Satan is known to us only through his work. He never appears otherwise than as the evil creature indicated by his titles. From his very beginning his work has been to oppose and destroy. In Eden's garden he is seen as the Slanderer of God. He imputed a false motive to the commandment not to eat of the tree of the knowledge of good and evil. He aimed directly at the character of God and brought in the estrangement. On the other hand, he is also the Slanderer of the saints (1 Pt. 5<sup>8</sup>). As such, he accused Job falsely (Job 2<sup>9</sup>).

Sin was introduced and is being perpetuated by his slanders. Wrong thoughts and mistaken notions concerning God are at the root of all lawlessness, and lawlessness is sin. God is misunderstood, misjudged and hated because of the Slanderer's lies. Hence the Son of God has come to annul his acts by making God known.

The work of the Slanderer is really one of the essential factors for a true knowledge of God. Sin is a necessary prelude to salvation, and estrangement precedes reconciliation, and it is only through these that God's heart could be bared and His affections shared by mankind. But the office of sin and estrangement is not effected until they are annulled and replaced by righteousness and peace.

The purpose for which the Son of God was manifested was to undo what the Slanderer had done. We do not see this purpose accomplished yet. It will have a partial fulfillment in the next eon, when the Slanderer will be bound. Its complete culmination will not be seen until the consummation when death, the Slanderer's crowning success, is abolished, and he himself, together with all creation, will be reconciled to God (Col. 1<sup>20</sup>). Thus it is that the Son of God will completely annul the acts of the Slanderer.

10 Two spiritual paternities are indicated by conduct, righteousness and love on the one side and unrighteousness and hate on the other. The latter tendency reaches its goal in murder (1<sup>2</sup>) and the former in self-sacrifice (1<sup>6</sup>).

6 in Him is no sin. Every one who is remaining in Him is not sinning. Every one who is sinning has not seen Him, neither has known Him.

7 Little children, let no one be deceiving you. He who is doing righteousness is just, according as 8 He is just. Yet he who is doing sin is of the Slanderer, seeing that the Slanderer is sinning from the beginning. For this was the Son of God manifested, that He should be annulling the acts of the Slanderer.

9 Every one who is begotten of God is not doing sin, seeing that His seed is remaining in him, and he cannot sin, seeing that he has been
10 begotten of God. In this are apparent the children of God and the children of the Slanderer: every one who is not doing righteousness and who is not loving his brother, 11 is not of God, seeing that this is the message which you hear from the beginning, that we may be loving 12 one another, not according as Cain was of the wicked one and slays his brother. And for what does he slay him? Seeing that his acts were wicked, yet his brother's just.

13 Marvel not, brethren, if the 14 world is hating you. We are aware that we have proceeded out of death into life, seeing that we are loving our brethren. He who is not loving is remaining in death.
15 Every one who is hating his brother is a man-killer, and you are aware that no man-killer has eonian life remaining in him.

16 By this we know love, seeing that He lays down His soul for our sakes. We also ought to lay down our souls for the sake of the brethren.

<sup>18</sup> This is a warning against a danger of the so-called "social gospel". It makes mere philanthropic talk and social theory a substitute for personal deeds of compassion. True beneficence is the product of a regenerate and instructed heart, and not of ostentatious and superfluous organization that seeks to raise the masses while it neglects the heart needs of the individual.

<sup>23</sup> This precept seems almost an anticlimax, for believing is usually put down as entirely outside the category of practical virtues. Yet believing is the most practical exercise in the world. All action is dependent on belief; all effort is qualified by it. Eve believed the serpent and opened the sluice gates of sin. Christ believed God and secured salvation. The fall resulted from lack of faith in God and every phase of the return to Him is founded on faith.

Take the practical precepts of the preceding paragraphs. One who heartily believes God has the most powerful incentive possible to please Him by relieving the distress of his needy brother, for his faith would find an impelling motive in the love which belief has engendered. True faith is not idle: it acts. But the important point is the fact that the quality of its acts meets the approval of God.

Furthermore, as is implied in the second part of the precept, true faith is the most fertile field of love. It is only as the love of God is realized that it is possible to display it to others. It is intensely practical to recognize this, for every effort to cultivate love apart from faith will be fruitless. If, then, more and greater love is needed, it is to be found in the fuller appreciation of God's love, not in the contemplation of our own.

<sup>1</sup> The only true standard for testing spirits is the written revelation of God and its testimony to the living revelation, which became flesh and remains flesh. In this passage the reference is to His coming in the past. In John's second epistle he warns against the deceivers who are not avowing Jesus Christ coming in flesh—that is, in the future. In both cases those who make Him a spirit are associated with the spirit of antichrist (2 Jn. 7).

<sup>17</sup> Now whoever may be having the world's living, and may be beholding his brother in need, and should be locking his compassions from him—how is the love of God remaining in him? Little children, we should not be loving in word, neither in tongue, but in act and truth.

<sup>19</sup> And in this shall we be knowing that we are of the truth and shall be persuading our hearts in front of <sup>20</sup> Him, seeing that, if our heart should be censuring us, God is greater than our heart and is knowing all.
<sup>21</sup> Beloved, if our heart should not be censuring us, we have boldness to-
<sup>22</sup> ward God, and whatever we should be requesting, we are obtaining from Him, seeing that we are keeping His precepts and are doing what is pleasing before Him.

<sup>23</sup> And this is His precept, that we should be believing in the name of His Son, Jesus Christ, and may be loving one another according as He <sup>24</sup> gives us a precept. And he who is keeping His precepts is remaining in Him, and He in him. And in this we are knowing that He is remaining in us, by the spirit which He gives us.

<sup>4</sup> Beloved, be not believing every spirit, but be testing the spirits, if they are of God, seeing that many false prophets have come out into <sup>2</sup> the world. In this you are knowing the spirit of God: every spirit which is avowing Jesus Christ
<sup>3</sup> having come in flesh is of God, and every spirit which is not avowing Jesus the Lord having come in flesh is not of God. And this is of the <sup>3</sup> The spirit of antichrist is the spirit of the world. It does not want the Christ of the Scriptures, but prefers some substitute more suited to its taste. This spirit has come to pervade, not only the world, but the nominal church, which has become largely a religious world. In it rites and ceremonies are substituted for the salvation of Christ, the energy of the flesh takes the place of the power of the spirit, and the wisdom of men displaces the wisdom of God. The world is to be saved by social service and sanitation and reconciled by reform. Everywhere are signs that the majority of the churches have lost faith in God's Christ and are attempting to find some better means of carrying on God's work than through the power of His Son.

<sup>8</sup> We are never told that God is justice, or God is power, or God is wisdom. These are His attributes, not His essence. The distinction is of vital import, in the conflicting maze of reasoning concerning God's ways and words. Justice and power and wisdom are relative, but love is absolute. He is never so just as when He justifies the unjust, for that is in line with love. He is never so strong as when His weakness overpowers human strength, for that links it to love. He is never so wise as when His foolishness confounds the wisdom of men, for that glorifies love. All His attributes appear and withdraw at the beck of love. All serve it, and never go counter to its commands. We cannot reason that God will do thus and so because He is just, or strong or wise. Love may not give leave. But we can safely lay our heads on the bosom of His love and there learn the great lesson that He IS love, and has both the power and wisdom to carry out the dictates of His affection. What clearer proof can be given that all that He has done and is doing is leading up to that grand ultimate when He will be All in all, and love will rest in being loved?

antichrist, of which you have heard that it is coming, and is now already in the world. You are of God, little children, and you have conquered them, seeing that greater is He Who is in you than he who is in the world. They are of the world, therefore they are speaking of the world and the world is hearing them. We are of God. He who is knowing God is hearing us. He who is not of God is not hearing us. By this we are knowing the spirit of truth and the spirit of deception.

<sup>7</sup> Beloved, we may be loving one another, seeing that love is of God, and everyone who is loving God has been begotten of God, and is <sup>8</sup> knowing God. He who is not loving knew not God, seeing that God <sup>9</sup> is love. In this was manifested the love of God among us, that God has dispatched His only begotten Son into the world that we should <sup>10</sup> be living through Him. In this is love, not that we love God, but that He loves us, and dispatches His Son, a propitiation concerned with our sins.

<sup>11</sup> Beloved, if God loves us thus, we also ought to be loving one another. No one has ever gazed upon God. If we should be loving one another, God is remaining in us, <sup>13</sup> and His love is perfected in us. In this we are knowing that we are remaining in Him, and He in us, seeing that He has given us of His <sup>14</sup> spirit. And we have gazed [upon Him], and are testifying that the Father has dispatched the Son, the <sup>17</sup> The day of judgment here spoken of is not the so-called "general judgment", of which the Scriptures know nothing, but one of the many judgments which it makes known. It is difficult to imagine this judgment in some far-off future day. It is spoken of as a time when love will give boldness and cast out fear. As the believer of this present economy cannot by any means come into condemnation, and shall not enter any judgment, we shall do well to leave this experience with the Circumcision, to whom John wrote. They will enter the day of judgment which precedes the day of the Lord. They will pass through the terrible tribulations portrayed in the Unveiling. Heaven above will conspire with the earth beneath to pour out God's hoarded wrath upon the earth. The earth will reel, the stars will fall, the elements will be charged with death. In such a time there will be much meaning to the passage we are considering. Nothing but perfect love, that is, love in the maturity of its powers, will be able to stand unshakable in that day.

<sup>18</sup> The inculcation of love to God is of little avail, unless first of all His love has been expounded and finds a place in our hearts. It should be the aim of the evangelist and teacher to elaborate God's love in the gift of His Son, in the salvation which He has provided, in the mercy or grace which attends it, and in the future bliss which it will provide, and the nearness to Himself which it involves. The power of such a presentation will produce a responsive love in all who believe, such as could by no means be provoked by exhortations or commands.

<sup>1</sup> The new birth is confined to the Circumcision, nevertheless, as we also are members of God's family, it should be natural for us to love all who know Him as their Father. This should break through all barriers of church or creed, race or nationality, for spiritual kinship is stronger than any natural tie. Children of God are one by a permanent and indissoluble tie, and the renewed life is put under the stimulus and inspiration of the greatest of all relationships.

<sup>15</sup> Saviour of the world. Whoever should be avowing that Jesus is the Son of God, God is remaining in him and he in God. And we know and have believed the love which God is having in us. God is love, and he who is remaining in love is remaining in God, and God is remaining in him.

<sup>17</sup> In this has love been perfected with us, that we may have boldness in the day of judgment, seeing that, according as He is, so are we also in this world. Fear is not in love, but perfect love is casting out fear, seeing that fear has chastening. Now he who is fearing has not been <sup>19</sup> perfected in love. We are loving God, seeing that He first loves us.

<sup>20</sup> If anyone should be saying that "I am loving God", and should be hating his brother, he is a liar, for he who is not loving his brother whom he has seen cannot be loving God

<sup>21</sup> Whom he has not seen. And this precept have we from Him, that he who is loving God may be loving his brother also.

<sup>5</sup> Everyone who is believing that Jesus is the Christ has been begotten of God. And everyone who is loving Him Who begets is loving him also who has been begotten by

<sup>2</sup> Him. In this we are knowing that we are loving the children of God, whenever we may be loving God and

<sup>3</sup> may be doing His precepts. For this is the love of God, that we may be keeping His precepts. And His

 OF-THE God IS-CONQUERING THE SYSTEM

<sup>6</sup> It is a remarkable fact that the word testify is used concerning the Lord's baptism in water (Jn.13<sup>4</sup>), and concerning His crucifixion (Jn.19<sup>35</sup>), and here again of the spirit (<sup>6</sup>). This is confirmed by the statement of the seventh verse. Three are testifying, the spirit, and the water and the blood. First there was His baptism in water accompanied by the testimony of John the Baptist as well as the descending dove and the voice from heaven, saying, "This is My Son, the Beloved in Whom I delight" (Mt. 3<sup>17</sup>). At His crucifixion one of the soldiers punctures His side with a lance head, and immediately blood and water came out (Jn.19<sup>34</sup>). After His glorification, the spirit which He poured forth testified to His exaltation. So that we have testimony to His anointing, to His death, and to His exaltation. These three unite to prove that Jesus is the Son of God. This three-fold testimony concerning God's Son is stronger than any mere human evidence. It was given at the very commencement of His ministry, and again at its close. Nothing in between these two points contradicts this testimony, but much that He did and said confirmed it. Only the Son of God could deal with the demons and eject them. He alone could command the elements. The quaking earth at His crucifixion convinced the centurion, who exclaimed "Truly this was the Son of God!"

<sup>11</sup> John, the beloved disciple, is dead. How then could he insist so strongly that he had "everlasting" life, and that all who are not believing this have made God a liar? It is evident that he did not have what we would understand by "everlasting" life or he would still be living. The rendering "eonian" avoids this difficulty. This life does not commence until the resurrection and lasts until death is no longer in action, at the consummation at the close of the eonian times. It will be, in effect, without end, but it would be foolish to predicate life when there is no death.

<sup>13</sup> As in his gospel (20<sup>31</sup>) so here John states his purpose in writing. The epistle aims to confirm the faith of believers, to deepen in their hearts a knowledge of security, and to establish that peace and confidence in God conquest which conquers the world: our faith.

<sup>5</sup> Now who is he who is conquering the world if not he who is believing that Jesus is the Son of God?

<sup>6</sup> This is He Who is coming through water and blood and spirit—Jesus Christ—not in the water only, but in the water and in the blood. And it is the spirit which is testifying, seeing that the spirit is the truth, <sup>7</sup> seeing that there are three that are <sup>8</sup> testifying, the spirit, and the water, and the blood, and the three are for the one thing.

<sup>9</sup> If we are obtaining the testimony of men, the testimony of God is greater, seeing that this is the testimony of God, that He has testified concerning His Son. <sup>10</sup> He who is believing into the Son of God has the testimony in himself: he who is not believing God has made Him a liar, seeing that he has not believed into the testimony which God has testified concerning His <sup>11</sup> Son. And this is the testimony, that God gives us eonian life, and <sup>12</sup> this life is in His Son. He who has the Son has the life. He who has not the Son of God has not the life.

<sup>13</sup> These things I write to you that you who are believing into the name of the Son of God may be perceiving that you have eonian life. And <sup>14</sup> this is the boldness which we have toward Him, that if we should be requesting anything according to <sup>15</sup> His will, He is hearing us. And should we be aware that He is hearing us, whatever we may be requesting, we are aware that we have the requests which we have requested from Him.

which is essential to unselfish service. Such assurance belongs of right to all "who are believing in the name of the Son of God". Knowledge of God's gift translates itself into confidence toward God, which asks great things of God, so releasing his power and becoming the agent of his purposes.

<sup>16</sup> The sin to death is probably the same as that of the sixth and tenth of Hebrews—apostasy from the faith of Christ, or, in view of the times for which this is written, the reception of the emblem of the wild beast (Un. 14<sup>10</sup>). That this is the setting in which this passage is to be interpreted is further suggested by the phrase in the nineteenth verse, "the whole world is lying in the wicked one". This will be especially true in the time of the end. Furthermore, we have the striking conclusion of the epistle, which can hardly be understood in any other light. "Little children, guard yourselves from idols." What idols? Does it not seem clear that the apostle, with prophetic eye, is anticipating that marvelous image, which all will be compelled to worship under pain of death? (Un. 13<sup>15</sup>).

<sup>16</sup> If anyone should be perceiving his brother sinning a sin not to death, he shall be requesting and He will be giving life to him—to those sinning not to death. There is a sin to death: I am not saying that he should be asking concerning that. All injustice is sin, and there is a sin not to death.

<sup>18</sup> We are aware that everyone who has been begotten of God is not sinning, but he who is begotten of God is keeping himself, and the wicked <sup>19</sup> one is not touching him. We are aware that we are of God, and the whole world is lying in the wicked <sup>20</sup> one. Yet we are aware that the Son of God is arriving, and has given us a comprehension, that we are knowing the True One, and we are in the True One, in His Son, Jesus Christ. He is the true God and eonian life.

<sup>4</sup> The main characteristics of the Circumcision epistles reappear in this brief letter. There is the emphasis on conduct and the physical aspect of truth. The very brevity of the letter tells us that the elder much preferred to convey his message in person. Even if we should take the lady as a type of Israel, the tie which is recognized is a physical one. In all this there is a great contrast with the latest ministry of Paul.

<sup>6</sup> The difference in viewpoint between John and Paul is seen in their attitude toward the law. In one case "he who is loving another has fulfilled law" (Ro.13<sup>a</sup>). In the other love is the motive that they may be walking according to His precepts. In one case there is emancipation from law. In the other there is ability to fulfill law. God will write the law on their hearts, under the new covenant (Heb. 8<sup>10</sup>). We are not under law, but under grace (Ro.6<sup>15</sup>). We were exempted from the law . . . so that it is for us to be slaving in newness of spirit and not in oldness of letter (Ro.7<sup>6</sup>).

Truth is emphasized in this as love is emphasized in the third epistle. The many deceivers cause grave con-

THE ELDER to the chosen lady and her children, whom I am loving in truth, and not I only, but all also, who have known the truth, because of the truth which is remaining in us, and shall be with us for the eon.

<sup>3</sup> With us will be grace, mercy, peace from God, the Father, and from the Lord Jesus Christ, the Son of the Father, in truth and love.

<sup>4</sup> I WAS OVERJOYED that I have found of your children walking in truth, according as we obtained a
<sup>5</sup> precept from the Father. And now I am asking you, lady, not as writing a new precept to you, but the precept which we have from the beginning, that we may be loving <sup>6</sup> one another. And this is love, that we may be walking according to His precepts. This is the precept, according as you hear from the beginning, that you may be walking <sup>7</sup> in it, seeing that many deceivers came out into the world, who are not avowing Jesus Christ coming in flesh. This is the deceiver and <sup>8</sup> the antichrist. Be looking to yourselves, lest you should be destroying your work, but that you may be getting full wages.

<sup>9</sup> Everyone who is taking the lead and not remaining in the teaching of Christ has not God. He who is remaining in the teaching, this one has both the Father and the Son.
<sup>10</sup> If anyone is coming to you and is not bringing this teaching, be not taking him into your home, and say <sup>11</sup> not to him "Rejoice!" For he who is saying to him to be rejoicing is participating in his wicked acts.

<sup>12</sup> Having much to be writing you, I resolved not to do it with paper and

<sup>2</sup> The prosperity of the soul must not be confounded with spiritual prosperity. Like the salvation of the soul (1 Pt.1<sup>o</sup>), it refers to that physical enjoyment and satisfaction which will be fully known in the coming kingdom. The Circumcision are promised all physical blessing on the earth; we are blessed with every spiritual blessing among the celestials (Eph.1<sup>3</sup>). Such a salvation as this is not at all suited to our calling above in Christ Jesus.

<sup>7</sup> "Getting nothing from the nations" is positive proof of the Jewish character of this note. If this were literally obeyed by those who proclaim the truth today, they would have no support whatever. This statement is like a flash of light in a dark place. It shows us that, in early days, there were two entirely distinct churches, one connected with the kingdom proclamation and the hope of Israel, which has since passed away, and the other connected with the preaching of Paul to the nations.

Much of the confusion today is the result of mingling truth intended for one church into that which belongs to the other. The truth found in the Circumcision epistles will come into play again after the present administration of grace has come to an end.

<sup>9</sup> It is significant that any man would dare to oppose an apostle. Diotrefes evidently did it in order to secure for himself the highest place in the ecclesia. There is no suggestion of any difference in doctrine. This spirit, which was severely condemned by our Lord, has been the cause of much harm to the saints. True servants of the Lord are taught by His example, and do not desire to exalt themselves, knowing well that He will abase such, and will Himself exalt all who truly deserve it in that day. Diotrefes exalted himself and, as a result, his name has been a by-word down the centuries since. Demetrius does not seem to have thought of himself yet his name is honored and his place a permanent one in the annals of the good.

Three typical characters, Gaius, Diotrefes, and Demetrius supply the topics of the letter. "The elder, Gaius", showed fidelity and hospitality. Pride

THE ELDER, to Gaius, the beloved, whom I am loving in truth:

<sup>2</sup> BELOVED, concerning all I am wishing that you be prospered and sound, according as your soul is prospered. For I was overjoyed at the coming of the brethren and your testimony to the truth, according as you are walking in truth. I am having no greater joy than this, that I am hearing of my children walking in the truth.

<sup>5</sup> Beloved, you are doing a faithful thing whatever you should work for the brethren, and strangers at that, who testify of your love before the ecclesia, to whom you will be doing ideally by sending them forward worthily of God, for they come forth for the sake of the Name, getting nothing from the nations. We, then, ought to be taking up with such, that we may become fellow workers in the truth.

<sup>9</sup> I write somewhat to the ecclesia, but Diotrefes, who is fond of being foremost among them, is not receiving us. Therefore, if I should be coming, I shall be reminding him of his acts which he is doing, babbling about us with wicked words, and not being sufficed with this, he is not receiving the brethren besides, and is forbidding those who are intending to, and is casting them out of the ecclesia.

<sup>11</sup> Beloved, do not be imitating the evil, but the good. He who is doing good is of God. He who is doing evil has not seen God. <sup>12</sup> Demetrius has been testified to by all, and by the truth itself. Now we also are testifying, and you are aware that our testimony is true.

<sup>13</sup> I had much to write to you, but do not want to be writing to you with ink and pen.

of place seems to be the sin of Diotrephes. He rails against John and refuses his message, excommunicating from the church those who receive the brethren. Demetrius receives a triple commendation. He is testified to by all, by the truth, and by John.

<sup>15</sup> Peace be to you! The friends are greeting you. Greet the friends by name.

THE EPISTLE OF JUDE

JUDE, the last of the epistles to the Circumcision, is the prelude to the apocalyptic judgments. Its framework reveals the fact that the central theme is the coming of the Lord in judgment upon the irreverent (14,15). Indeed, it seems to suggest that Enoch himself will prophesy, as one of the two witnesses (Un.113-12), to (not of) these, in the Lord's day. As Peter's second epistle is especially concerned with this same judgment period, it contains many parallel passages. Compare Jude 3 with 2 Pe.15, 4 with 21, 6 with 24, 7 with 26-10, 8 with 210, 9 with 211, and 10 with 212, 11 with 215, 12-13 with 213-17, 16 with 218, 17-18 with 31-3.

As Jude speaks of the apostles (17), he is not the apostle of this name (Jn. 1422). Neither was James, his brother, an apostle, for James and John were the two sons of Zebedee (Mt.2637). The other James was not prominent enough to be referred to in this way. So Jude was evidently the brother of James, the Lord's brother, who occupied by far the most prominent place among the saints of the Circumcision, although he was not an apostle. This makes Jude himself a brother of the Lord.

This fact throws much light on the character of its teaching, its harmony with the other Circumcision epistles, and its strong contrast with the later teaching of the apostle Paul. Paul repudiates even the distant physical bond existing between him and the Lord, and bases all on a spiritual relationship in grace. Jude deals with the judgment of those who are closely united to Him in the flesh.

While the apostasy here set forth is not to be applied to the Uncircumcision during the present period of grace, its beginnings can be clearly seen among the Jews, as God is gathering them from the nations and restoring them to their own land. As in the exodus from Egypt, He will deal with the nation of Israel as a whole, yet destroy the apostates among them during the era of His indignation. With this in view, Jude addresses this epistle to the faithful, lest they, too, become involved in the apostasy.

Unlike those to whom Paul writes these will not have justification, but only a pardon of sins, which can be revoked. Hence even believers among the Circumcision may fall away, especially during the fearful afflictions of the time of the end.

The framework shows that the main theme, the judgment of apostasy, is presented, as usual, from the divine side first and then reviewed, in inverse order, from the human aspect.

From verse fifteen, as shown by the framework, we return over the same ground as we came, but from a different viewpoint. In the former division all was viewed in its Godward aspect: then we look on the manward side. First we have the mercy from God (2), lastly the mercy shown to man (21-23). And so with each subject.

The closing ascription is in close harmony with the epistle. Glory, majesty, might and authority belong to God when He is executing His strange work of judging the earth and inaugurating the reign of His Christ, as is set forth in detail in the book of His unveiling.

GODWARD

<sup>1</sup> Jude's stress on human relationships is very strong, especially as James, his brother, gained the ascendancy among the Circumcision because of his physical relationship to the Lord. Even Peter and John were eclipsed by James, in the latter part of Acts, though he was not even an apostle.

<sup>2</sup> The absence of grace from this salvation is very striking. As it will have its prime fulfilment in an era of divine indignation, nothing higher than mercy is possible.

<sup>3</sup> This faith, once given over to the saints, is the evangel of the Circumcision (Ga.27) which was entrusted to Peter and the twelve apostles. It is radically distinct from the evangel of the Uncircumcision, entrusted to Paul. The error of the present day, of mixing their mercy into the present grace, will have its counterpart when they seek to mingle our grace with their mercy. Then the usual objection to grace will be fulfilled, for, being out of place, it will degenerate into a license to do evil, and lead to insubordination. Now, the transcendent grace of God is the most powerful incentive to a godly life; then it will be an excuse for lax morals. Misplaced truth is mighty error.

<sup>5</sup> The present day decadence of morals and contempt for government is but an index of the trend of the apostasy in Israel in the last days. As in the exodus, where all Israel was redeemed out of Egypt, yet nearly all bleached their bones in the wilderness, so it will be again. Only a remnant will enter the kingdom, for lack of faith and following the flesh.

<sup>6</sup> The word "habitation" is used but once elsewhere, and then it refers to the glorified human body (2 Co.5<sup>2</sup>). By such means alone could the angels commit an unnatural act comparable to the sin of Sodom.

<sup>7</sup> The destruction of Sodom and the surrounding cities is still apparent to all who visit the region. In this way these cities are experiencing the justice of eonian fire. The fire has long ceased but its effects will remain and testify to God's judgment until the close of this eon, after which Sodom shall return to her former estate (Ezek.16<sup>53-56</sup>).

JUDAS, a slave of Jesus Christ, yet a brother of James, to those who are called, beloved in God the Father, and kept by Jesus Christ.

<sup>2</sup> May mercy and peace and love be multiplied to you!

<sup>3</sup> BELOVED, while giving all diligence to be writing to you concerning our common salvation and life, I have had the necessity to write entreating you to be contending for the faith once given over to the saints.

<sup>4</sup> For certain men slip in who long ago have been written beforehand for this judgment; irreverent, bartering the grace of our God for wantonness, and disowning our only Owner and Lord, Jesus Christ.

<sup>5</sup> Now I am intending to remind you, you who once are aware of all, that the Lord, when saving the people out of the land of Egypt, secondly destroys those who believe

<sup>6</sup> not. Besides, the messengers who keep not their own sovereignty, but leave their own habitation, He has kept in imperceptible bonds under gloom for the judgment of

<sup>7</sup> the great day. As Sodom and Gomorrah (and the cities about them, in like manner to these) committing ultra-prostitution, and coming away after other flesh, are lying before us, a specimen, experiencing the justice of eonian fire.

<sup>8</sup> Howbeit, these dreamers also, likewise are indeed defiling the flesh, yet are repudiating dominion, and calumniating glories. Now when Michael, the chief messenger, doubting the Slanderer, argued concerning the body of Moses, he dares not bring a calumniating judgment, <sup>11</sup> The way of Cain is the bloodless religion which offers the fruit of its own cursed toil (Gen.4<sup>3</sup>;3<sup>17</sup>), yet, for all its abhorrence of sacrifice, does not hesitate to shed fraternal blood. They will work for God's favor, but will not debase themselves so as to receive it as His gift, through the blood of His Anointed.

<sup>11</sup> The temptation to profit by the priestly or prophetic office seems to be the ruling principle of all religions. Balak, when he wished Israel cursed (Nu.22<sup>17</sup>), was told by Balaam that he would require great wages for the work. So the religion of the end time will be a popular vocation, affording a good opportunity for money making.

<sup>14</sup> The statement that Enoch "prophecies" is indefinite as to time. It does not necessarily recognize the so-called "Book of Enoch" which has been found in an Ethiopic translation, and contains a passage substantially the same as the one given by Jude. The indefinite form of the verb allows the possibility that Enoch, as one of the two witnesses (Un.11<sup>3</sup>) may yet deliver this prophecy to the irreverent in the great crisis at the time of the end.

but said, "May the Lord rebuke you!" Yet these indeed are calumniating whatever they are not acquainted with, yet in whatever they are instinctively adept, as the irrational animals, in these things they are being corrupted.

<sup>11</sup> Woe to them! seeing that they were gone in the way of Cain, and in the deception of Balaam's wages they were poured out, and they were destroyed in the contradiction of Korah.

<sup>13</sup> rooted, wild billows of the sea frothing forth their own shame, straying stars, for whom the gloom of darkness has been kept for an

<sup>14</sup> eon. Now Enoch, the seventh from Adam, prophesies to these also, saying, "Lo! the Lord came among

<sup>15</sup> tens of thousands of His saints, to do judgment against all, and to expose all the irreverent concerning all their irreverent acts in which they are irreverent, and concerning all the hard words which irreverent
<sup>16</sup> sinners speak against Him." These are murmurers, complainers, going according to their desires, and their mouth is talking pompous things, marveling at the aspect of things on behalf of benefit.

<sup>17</sup> Yet you, beloved, remember the declarations which have been declared before by the apostles of our
<sup>18</sup> Lord Jesus Christ, that they said to you, "In the last time there will come scoffers, going according to their own irreverent desires."

<sup>14</sup> The following quotations from an English translation of the Book of Enoch are notable: "I, as the seventh, am born in the first heptad, while justice and judgment were delayed" (93:3). This is true of the period from Adam to Messiah. Another passage confirms this: "In the seventh heptad there shall arise an apostate generation" (60:8).

<sup>20</sup> This faith, as in the beginning of the epistle, is the evangel of the Circumcision. The very wording of the exhortation shows that it is not for those who know the depths and heights of grace revealed for us. "Building yourselves up" and "keep yourselves in the love of God" is foreign to the phraseology of unforced favor which is ours in Christ Jesus. We do not anticipate the "mercy" of Jesus Christ at His coming but the transcendent riches of glorious grace at His presence.

<sup>21</sup> faith, praying in holy spirit, keep yourselves in the love of God, anticipating the mercy of our Lord
<sup>22</sup> Jesus Christ for eonian life. And to some, indeed, who are doubting, <sup>23</sup> be merciful, yet others be saving, snatching them out of the fire, yet to others be merciful with fear, hating even the tunic which has been spotted by the flesh.

<sup>24</sup> Now to Him Who is able to guard you from tripping and to stand you flawless in sight of His

THE UNVEILING OF JESUS CHRIST
COMMONLY CALLED THE REVELATION

THE PURPOSE AND SCOPE OF THE UNVEILING

THE title of this scroll, "THE UNVEILING OF JESUS CHRIST," is an epitome of this whole prophecy. Hitherto Christ has hid Himself. Here He is about to throw off the covering and take His public place in the affairs of mankind. He must be unveiled. His name and title are the clue to the character of this unveiling.

Our Lord's personal name, JESUS, means Jehovah the Saviour. Jehovah is the God of Israel. Hence Christ is presented in this prophecy as the Saviour of the people of the covenant. The name Jehovah is emphasized by its translation into "Him Who is, and Who was, and Who is coming" (14).

Our Lord's official title, CHRIST (the Anointed), is the key to His unveiling, for it contains within itself the three characters in which He appears. Just as our realization of the beauties and blessings of light is greatly enhanced when we see it refracted into its three primary colors, yellow, red and blue, so the three-fold elements of the title CHRIST are presented to us separately, yet mingled now and then, that we may get a clear and cordial appreciation of the blessings and beauties which will be seen when He rises as the Sun of Righteousness upon this dark and dismal world. Of old three classes were anointed: prophets, potentates and priests. Each of these received the holy anointing oil upon entering his office. Samuel the prophet, David the king, and Aaron the priest, were all "christs" by virtue of their anointing. JESUS CHRIST combines these three offices in Himself. In this prophecy He is first unveiled as Prophet to His people (14-32<sup>22</sup>), then as King (41-111<sup>18</sup>) and as Priest (111<sup>19</sup>-201<sup>15</sup>). After the climax is reached at the new creation (21<sup>1</sup>) these titles are rehearsed in reverse order in the concluding division. The Temple (211-27<sup>7</sup>) and the Throne (221-5) occupy us first and then the Prophet reappears with His closing message (226-17<sup>7</sup>).

The literary structure divides this book into two grand divisions, one staged on this present earth and the other on the next. The first deals with the day of Jehovah, the second with the day of God.

The time occupied by this prophecy is called the eons of the eons—the two final eons or ages. The first division covers the first of these eons, the second is in the last, which is called the eon of the eons. The second division may last a long time, but is very briefly told; while the first division, if we except the thousand years, of which little is said, occupies the bulk of the book, though it is a very short period. This is the great judgment era which prepares the earth for the advent of Messiah.

The judgments of this book are for the purpose of enforcing the right of Christ to be its Potentate and Priest. Judgment must begin at God's house, hence He first presents His claims as Prophet among the synagogues of His own people Israel in the messages to the seven ecclesias.

Then heaven's throne is set and His regal rights are established. The world He ransomed as the Lamb will be redeemed by the Lion. The Throne Judgments are divided into three closely related yet distinct sections; the Seals, the Trumpets and the Thunders. The opening of the Seals gives us a general record of the whole period right up to the establishment of the kingdom. The judgments, especially the first four, are providential in character and affect saint and sinner alike. The fifth seal calls for vengeance on Israel's foes. The Trumpets are the answer to this cry. The intervening section makes provision for the protection of the saints during the sounding of the trumpets, the 144,000 being sealed and shielded from them. These judgments result in the kingdoms of this world coming under the sovereignty of our Lord's Anointed.

The Temple Judgments are twofold. First God's covenant with Israel is in view and Jerusalem is shielded from the wild beast. Then the law is exposed and its curses are poured out, especially upon those of the apostate nation who enjoy a false sovereignty over the earth in Babylon. This is followed by the marriage of the Lambkin, and the millennium. The section ends with the Great White Throne judgment, which winds up the affairs of this present earth.

In the last grand division God is reconciled to all mankind. Priesthood vanishes but rule continues to the consummation.

DAY OF GOD

THE TIME PERIODS OF THE UNVEILING

The chart is designed to give, at one glance, all the time periods mentioned or referred to, from the grand eons or ages down to the days of Daniel's visions. In order to accomplish this the short era of judgment at the inception of the Lord's Day is expanded, as indicated by the oblique lines. In this era most of the events in this scroll occur.

The Eons or Ages are five in number. This scroll is a prophecy covering the last two, which, as they spring out of the first three, are called "the eons of the eons" (16,1849,10518712106111814111571932010225).

The first of these two eons includes the day of the Lord, the second the Day of God. The present is Man's Day (1 Co.4<sup>3</sup>).

The Seventy Heptads, or "Weeks", are foretold in Daniel (9<sup>24</sup>). From the twentieth year of Artaxerxes (Neh.21,5), to Christ's entry into Jerusalem (Lu.19<sup>37,44</sup>) was a period of exactly 173,880 days, or 69 heptads of years, counting 360 days to a year. The seventieth heptad is still future (Dan.9<sup>26</sup>). Daniel divides it in half by the breaking of a treaty when the sacrifice and gift offering are stopped (Dan.9<sup>27</sup>). This leaves us the period often referred to in this scroll of 42 months (11<sup>2</sup> 13<sup>5</sup>), 1260 days (11<sup>3</sup> 12<sup>6</sup>), and "season, seasons and half a season" (12<sup>14</sup>). These are principally in the last half of the heptad. The middle of the heptad is the beginning of most of the movements in this scroll and the end closes them.

This prophecy is not given in chronological order, but gives a general view under the Seals, expands the seventh seal under the Trumpets, and probably expands the seventh Trumpet under the Bowls. The end of the seventieth heptad is reached at least five times, and the narrative goes back again to fill in further details.

The days after Christ's epiphany are taken from Daniel's prophecy.

THE DAY OF JEHOVAH

The day of the Lord, or Jehovah (Isa. 13<sup>9</sup>), is a day of destruction, a cruel day with wrath and anger (Isa.13<sup>13</sup> Zeph.22<sup>3</sup>), in which the stars and constellations, and the sun and moon will be darkened (Joel 2<sup>10,30,31</sup> 3<sup>15</sup> cf. Un.6<sup>12</sup>), in which He punishes the inhabitants of the world for their evil, in which Babylon will be overthrown (cf. Un.18), and when Jehovah sets His people Israel in their own land and gives them rest (Isa.14<sup>1,3</sup>). It is a day of battle (Eze.13<sup>5</sup>), a day of famine (Joel 1<sup>16</sup> cf. Un.6<sup>8</sup>), and fire (Joel 1<sup>19</sup> cf. Un.8<sup>7</sup>), a day of thick darkness and subterranean horrors (Joel 2<sup>2,4</sup> cf. Un.9<sup>17</sup>), a great and terrible day (Joel 2<sup>11</sup>), when He roars out of Zion (Joel 3<sup>16</sup>), a day of woe (Amos 5<sup>18,20</sup> cf. Un.8<sup>13</sup>). It will judge the nations (Obad. 15, 21 Eze.30<sup>3</sup>), and in it He will take the kingdom (Un.11<sup>15</sup>). It is a day of wrath (Zeph.1<sup>14,15</sup> cf. Un.6<sup>17</sup>), of trouble and distress (Zeph.1<sup>15</sup> cf. Un.7<sup>14</sup>). In that day Jerusalem will be besieged and taken by an army from all nations (Zech.14<sup>2</sup> cf. Un.16<sup>14</sup>), and His feet shall once more stand upon the Mount of Olives (Zech.14<sup>4</sup> Ac. 1<sup>10,12</sup>). In it

"The haughtiness of human eyes is lowered,
And the height of men prostrated,
And Jehovah alone is an inaccessible retreat in that day" (Isa. 21<sup>1,12</sup>).

This is in contrast with the present, which is "man's day" (1 Co.4<sup>3</sup>), when men are haughty and high and self-sufficient.

The day of Jehovah will come as a thief in the night (1 Thes.5<sup>2</sup> 2 Pt.3<sup>10</sup>). It cannot come until after the apostasy (2 Thes.2<sup>3</sup>). It closes with the dissolution of the heavens and the earth (2 Pet. 3<sup>10,13</sup> cf. Un.20<sup>11</sup>) and the creation of a new heavens and a new earth (Isa.65<sup>17</sup> 2 Pt.3<sup>13</sup> cf. Un.21<sup>1-5</sup>).

Those under Paul's preaching were promised deliverance from that day of wrath (1 Thes.1<sup>10</sup> 5<sup>1-11</sup> 2 Thes.2<sup>2</sup> Ro.5<sup>9</sup>). Before it comes they will be assembled together to the Lord at His presence (2 Thes.2<sup>1</sup>).

At the end of Jehovah's day the heavens will be dissolved and the elements will melt with heat because of the presence of the day of God (2 Pt.3<sup>12</sup>). Then there will be a new heavens and a new earth (2 Pt.3<sup>13</sup> cf. Un.21<sup>1</sup>).

<sup>1</sup> This is the unveiling of a Person—Jesus Christ—not merely a prediction revealed through Him. God gives it to Him as a reward for His sufferings.

<sup>1</sup> Swiftly—not soon, but with speed. On the morning of the resurrection John and Peter started together, but John ran more swiftly than Peter (Jn. 20<sup>4</sup>). If this prophecy started soon after John wrote, it has moved very slowly indeed. When it does commence, it will run with great rapidity. God lingers in dispensing grace but hastens in executing judgment. This calls for an entirely future fulfillment.

<sup>3</sup> Near denotes a conditional proximity. The kingdom of the heavens was near during the early part of our Lord's ministry. It was postponed by His rejection. It was near again when proclaimed by the apostles but once more rejected by the nation of Israel. Peter writes "the consummation of all things is near" (1 Pt. 4<sup>7</sup>), yet nearly twenty centuries have passed and the consummation or end is still future.

THE PROPHETIC SECTION

<sup>4</sup> The Divine Name, JEHOVAH, is a union of the three tenses of TO BECOME.

The reverse arrangement of this is used once (4<sup>8</sup>) by the four animals. Here and in 1<sup>8</sup> the present tense is put first to emphasize the fact that He is now present:

Ο ΩΝ Ο ΗΘΙΟ ΕΡΧΟΜΕΝΟΣ
THE BEING THE WAS THE COMING-ONE

In 11<sup>17</sup> and 16<sup>5</sup> the phrase "Who is coming" is omitted, because He is regarded as having come at that time. The Name is flexible and adapts itself to times and conditions.

THE UNVEILING OF JESUS CHRIST, which God gives to Him, to show to His slaves what must occur swiftly: and He signifies it, dispatching through His messenger to His slave, John, who testifies to the word of God and the testimony of Jesus Christ, whatever he perceived.

<sup>3</sup> HAPPY is he who is reading and they who are hearing the word of the prophecy, and who are keeping that which is written in it, for the era is near.

<sup>4</sup> JOHN, to the seven ecclesias which are in the [province of] Asia: Grace to you and peace from Him Who is, and Who was, and Who is coming, and from the seven spirits which are before His throne, and from Jesus Christ, the Faithful Witness, the Firstborn of the dead, and the Suzerain of the kings of the earth.

To Him Who is loving us and looses us from our sins by His blood and makes us a kingdom and priests to His God and Father, to Him be glory and might for the eons of the eons! Amen! Lo! He is coming with clouds, and every eye will be viewing Him—those, also, who stab Him—and all the tribes of the land will be grieving over Him. Yea! Amen!

<sup>8</sup> "I am the A and the Z", the Lord God is saying, "Who is, and Who was, and Who is coming, the Almighty."

<sup>9</sup> I, John, your brother and joint participant in the affliction and kingdom and endurance in Jesus Christ, came to be in the island which is called Patmos, because of the word of God, and because of the testimony of Jesus Christ.

The Prophetic Section

<sup>10</sup> In spirit, John is transported into the future day of Jehovah of which the prophets have often spoken. The Hebrew phrase "the day of the Lord" is changed to "the Lord's day" in order to shift the emphasis from the character of the day to the time, which is the important point in this passage. This is done in three ways, by changing the grammatical form, the rank, and the order of the words. The direction of the thought is altered by putting "Lord" in the dative instead of the genitive case, so that it locates rather than describes the day. Its force is further weakened by making it an adjective rather than a noun, and by shifting it from its prominent place at the end of the sentence and giving that striking location to "day".

<sup>13</sup> Seven lampstands stand for a scattered Israel, as the one seven-branched lampstand in the tabernacle and temple stood for a united nation. These ecclesias are all in the "dispersion".

<sup>13</sup> The description and acts here ascribed to Christ are not priestly, but accord with His prophetic office. The prophet's function was to point out God's method of procedure. At first this was done privately, by the seers; then officially by prophets. Prophets are sent especially in apostasy. Christ wears none of the priestly vestments except the girdle, and this is of gold, not of fine twined linen (Ex.39<sup>29</sup>). The scene is one of judgment, which the apostle tells us must begin at the house of God (1Pet.4<sup>17</sup>). The sword indicates this (cf. Dan.10<sup>5</sup>).

<sup>20</sup> There are three "mysteries" or secrets in this scroll. The seven stars and lampstands are in Christ's hands as Prophet. The secret of God (10<sup>7</sup>) is finished when Christ as King receives the sovereignty of the world. The secret of Babylon is in the Temple section (17<sup>5,7</sup>).

<sup>10</sup> I came to be, in spirit, in the Lord's day, and I hear behind me a voice, <sup>11</sup> loud as a trumpet, saying: "What you are observing write in a scroll and send to the seven ecclesias: to Ephesus and to Smyrna and to Pergamos and to Thyatira and to Sardis and to Philadelphia and to Laodicea."

<sup>12</sup> And I turn about to look for the voice which talked with me. And, turning about, I perceived seven <sup>13</sup> golden lampstands, and in the midst of the seven lampstands One like a son of mankind, dressed in a garment reaching to the feet, and girded about the breasts with a <sup>14</sup> golden girdle. Now His head and hair are white as white wool—as snow, and His eyes are as a flame <sup>15</sup> of fire; and His feet are like white bronze, as fired in a furnace; and His voice is as the sound of many <sup>16</sup> waters. And He has in His right hand seven stars; and issuing out of His mouth is a sharp two-edged saber; and His countenance is as the sun appearing in its power.

<sup>17</sup> And when I perceived Him, I fall at His feet as dead. And He places His right hand on me, saying, <sup>18</sup> "Fear not! I am the First and the Last, and the Living One: and I became dead, and lo! I am living for the eons of the eons. (Amen!) And I have the keys of <sup>19</sup> death and of the unseen. Write, then, what you perceived, and what they are, and what is about to be <sup>20</sup> occurring after these things: the secret of the seven stars which you

 OF-THE SEVEN GLEAMERS which

The Prophetic Section

<sup>20</sup> The vision is figurative. The explanation is literal. It must not be further "explained". The seven stars are seven messengers. The seven lampstands are seven ecclesias. These will be found at the places indicated at the opening of the Lord's day. They are God's luminaries in the dense darkness of that judgment era.

THE SEVEN LETTERS

These letters fall into two groups. In the first three the injunction to hear precedes the promise. In the last four this order is reversed. In the former the wilderness experiences of Israel are recalled: their first love in Ephesus, their trials in Smyrna, Balaam in Pergamós. The latter recall their history in the land—two for Israel and two for Judah; Jezebel in Thyatira, Israel's blotting out in Sardis, the temple in Hezekiah's reign in Philadelphia, and the declining days of the Minor Prophets in Laodicea.

EPHESUS

SMYRNA

<sup>8</sup> In each message the Lord alludes to such particulars of the preceding vision as meet the case of the ecclesia. His resurrection life is a pledge of the wreath of life He promises to those who are faithful until death.

<sup>9</sup> What force can there be to the claim to be Jews unless the Smyrna ecclesia was composed of Jews? Their allegiance to Satan's (or the Adversary's) synagogue would have no point if the Smyrnaites did not belong to God's synagogue.

perceived on My right hand, and the seven golden lampstands. The seven stars are messengers of the seven ecclesias, and the seven lampstands are seven ecclesias.

<sup>2</sup> "I am aware of your acts, and your toil, and your endurance, and that you can not bear evil, and you try those saying that they themselves are apostles, and are <sup>3</sup> not, and you found them false, and you have endurance, and you bear because of My name, and are not <sup>4</sup> wearied. But I have against you that you desert your first love. <sup>5</sup> Be remembering, then, whence you have fallen, and repent, and do the former acts. Otherwise, I am coming to you, and shall be moving your lampstand out of its place, if <sup>6</sup> you should not be repenting. But this you have, that you are hating the acts of the Nicolaitans, which <sup>7</sup> I, also, am hating.

To the one who is conquering, to him shall I be granting to be eating of the tree of life, which is in the center of the paradise of God."

<sup>8</sup> And to the messenger of the ecclesia in Smyrna write: 'Now this He is saying. Who is the First and the Last, Who became dead, and lives.

<sup>9</sup> "I am aware of your acts and affliction and poverty (but you are rich) and the calumny of those professing themselves to be Jews and are not, but are a synagogue of <sup>10</sup> Satan. Be fearing naught of what

<sup>10</sup> The ten days' affliction alludes to Israel's trial in the wilderness. That lasted forty years. This will be brief. Jews often suffer from anti-Semitic riots.

<sup>10</sup> A wreath or garland, often of laurel, was awarded the successful contestant in the ancient games. This was the trophy of victory. It is not the symbol of rule, but the reward of faithful effort. The wreath of life will be worn by all who gain life as a reward of their deeds. It is given to the one who endures trial (Ja.1<sup>12</sup>). The life we have in Christ is a gratuitous gift, in no sense the reward of our efforts, so it cannot be figured by a wreath.

<sup>11</sup> The allusion in this promise is to the entrance of death when Adam sinned. The fulfillment of the promise will wait until the great white throne judgment (20<sup>11</sup>). This promise cannot be applied now, for all in Christ are beyond judgment.

PERGAMOS

<sup>14</sup> Balaam (Nu.25). The sorry scene at Shittim will be repeated in the day of Jehovah. In ancient times sacrifices to the gods were accompanied by ceremonial prostitution, which will also characterize the worship of the wild beast. Compare 2209<sup>20</sup>, 2114421822<sup>15</sup> Jude 15, 18, 23. Balaam was killed with the sword (Nu.318 Josh.13<sup>22</sup>). The Nicolaitans are threatened with a similar fate. This is put in execution when the followers of the wild beast are "killed by the saber which is coming out of the mouth of Him Who is sitting on the horse" (19<sup>21</sup>).

<sup>17</sup> Unless they worship the image of the wild beast they will not be able to obtain food, unless God gives it as He gave the manna. So the star-crowned woman will be nourished in the wilderness (12<sup>14</sup>). Then they will pray as He taught them: "Be giving us today our dole of bread" (Mt.6<sup>11</sup>), for every other source is cut off.

The white pebble was used in allotting the land. Each man's name was written on a pebble, and these were put into a bag. As each allotment is called, a pebble is withdrawn. The allotment is given to the man whose name is on it. Thus the white pebble will be an earnest of their allotment in the kingdom. This is for Israel, not for the body of Christ.

you are about to be suffering. Lo! the Slanderer is about to be casting some of you into jail that you may be tried, and you will be having affliction ten days. Become faithful until death, and I shall be giving you the wreath of life.

<sup>11</sup> Who has an ear, let him hear what the spirit is saying to the ecclesias.

The one who is conquering may under no circumstances be injured by the second death."

<sup>12</sup> And to the messenger of the ecclesia in Pergamos write: 'Now this He is saying Who has the sharp two-edged saber.

<sup>13</sup> "I am aware where you are dwelling—where Satan's throne is—and you are holding My name, and do not disown My faith in the days in which Antipas, My faithful witness, was killed among you, where Satan is dwelling. But I have a few things against you, that you have there those holding the teaching of Balaam, who taught Balak to cast a snare before the sons of Israel, to be eating idol sacrifices, and to commit prostitution.

<sup>15</sup> Thus you, also, have those holding the teaching of the Nicolaitans, likewise. Repent then! Otherwise, I am coming to you swiftly and shall be battling with them with the saber of My mouth.

<sup>17</sup> Who has an ear, let him hear what the spirit is saying to the ecclesias.

To the one who is conquering, to him shall I be giving of the hidden manna, and I shall be giving him a white pebble and on the pebble a new name written, which no one is aware of except the one who is obtaining it."

<sup>18</sup> And to the messenger of the ecclesia in Thyatira write: 'Now this the Son of God is saying,

THYATIRA

18 Tertullian and Epiphanius say that there was no ecclesia in Thyatira when John wrote these letters. On this ground many rejected this prophecy in early times. There is no difficulty in this if we recognize the fact that, in spirit, John was transported into the day of Jehovah. Then there will be an ecclesia in Thyatira which will correspond perfectly with the epistle addressed to it.

23 "Kidneys and hearts" is a Hebrew phrase signifying purity of motive.

24 The depths of Satan are in contrast to the depths of God (1Co.2<sup>10</sup>). The latter are explored by the spirit and are unknown to the soulish man. Satan's depths are found in consecrating the most debased passions to religion. Every appeal to the senses, whether to the eye, in magnificent buildings and ritual, or to the ear by the mesmeric influence of music, or to the taste in suppers and banquets, or to the lower sensual appetites, is a descent into the depths of Satan. In the beginning he appealed to the woman through her senses (Gen.3<sup>1,6</sup>). His desire for worshippers leads him to offer them the strongest sensual inducements disguised under the sacred sanction of divine worship.

27 The shepherd's mace was a heavy club with a thong to hold it securely to his wrist, and a large head, bristling with spikes, at the end. He carried a crook for the sheep and a club for their enemies (12<sup>2</sup>19<sup>15</sup>). He will rule with rigor. Israel, not the body of Christ, will rule the millennial earth.

27 In the East pottery was crushed into bits to make a kind of cement.

28 The Morning Star is especially appropriated by the Son of David (22<sup>16</sup>). He is the Herald of approaching day. A place in the earliest phase of the kingdom is awarded the conqueror.

Who has His eyes as a flame of fire, and Whose feet are like white bronze.

19 "I am aware of your acts and love and faith and service and your endurance; and your last acts are more than the former. But I have much against you, seeing that you pardon that woman of yours, Jezebel, professing herself to be a prophetess, and she is teaching and enticing my slaves to commit prostitution and to be eating idol sacrifices. And I give her time that she may be repenting, and she is not willing to repent of her prostitution. Lo! I will be casting her into a couch, and those committing adultery with her into great affliction, if they should not be repenting of her acts. And I shall be killing her children with the plague, and all the ecclesias will know that I am He Who is searching the kidneys and hearts. And I shall be giving to each of you in accord with your acts. Now to you I am saying—to the rest in Thyatira, as many as have not this teaching, those who do not know 'the depths of Satan,' as they are saying—I will be casting on you no other burden. Moreover, hold what you have until I should be arriving.

26 And the one who is conquering and keeping My acts until the consummation, to him shall I be giving authority over the nations; and he shall be shepherding them with an iron club, as vessels of pottery are being crushed, as I also have obtained from My Father. And I shall be giving him the morning star.

29 Who has an ear, let him hear what the spirit is saying to the ecclesias."

SARDIS

1 The seven spirits of God are literal. They are seen under various figures, according to the connection. Before the throne they appear as torches of fire (45). On the Lambkin they are seen as seven horns and seven eyes (56). They are commissioned for the entire earth. The stars are limited to the ecclesias.

3 Christ's coming is presented under various figures. He comes as a thief in the day of the Lord (1 Th.5:2 2 Pt.3:10 cf. 16:15). The Lord warned His disciples of this aspect (Mt.24:42,44 Lu.12:39). When they shall say "peace and security" then sudden destruction will come upon the unwatchful (1 Th.5:3). But we are not in darkness that it should overtake us as a thief (1 Th.5:4,11).

5 Any man, woman, family or tribe who turned from Jehovah to worship the gods of the nations was to be rubbed out (Deut.29:18,20). David rubs out the names of some of his mighty men because they did not remain true to him (2 Sa.23:39). Joab, once over all the host (2 Sa.20:23), and Ahithophel were also erased. Here too, life and position depend on conduct. Our life is hid with Christ in God (Col.3:3).

5 The scroll of life is referred to seven times in this book. It contains the names of those who do not worship the wild beast (13:17:8). It is opened at the great white throne (20:12) and any whose names were not found written in it were cast into the lake of fire (20:15). Those enrolled in it may enter the new Jerusalem (21:27). Those who take from the sayings of this prophecy will have their part taken from the scroll of life (22:19).

PHILADELPHIA

7 David's key (Isa.22:15-25) refers to the deposing of Shebna and the raising up of Eliakim to be the treasurer of the temple, or minister of the court (See Isa.36:22). This letter moves in the temple, where the treasures are, where safety is found, and where worship is carried on.

9 It is impossible to escape the inference that the Philadelphian ecclesia is composed only of Jews and are members of God's synagogue. As every other consideration points in this direction we may conclude that all of these ecclesias are Jewish. Each will worship in a synagogue, which has a "messenger" who will read to them.

3 And to the messenger of the ecclesia in Sardis write: 'Now this He is saying Who has the seven spirits of God and the seven stars.

"I am aware of your acts, that you have a name that you are living and are dead. Become watchful, and establish the rest who were about to be dying; for I have not found your acts complete before My God. Be remembering, then, how you have obtained, and hear, and be keeping and repent. If ever then, you should not be watching, I shall be arriving on you as a thief, and under no circumstances will you be knowing at what hour I shall be arriving on you. But you have a few names in Sardis which do not pollute their garments, and they shall walk with Me in white, seeing that they are worthy.

5 The one who is conquering, he shall be clothed in white garments, and under no circumstances shall I be erasing his name from the scroll of life, and I shall be avowing his name in front of My Father and before His messengers.

6 Who has an ear, let him hear what the spirit is saying to the ecclesias."

7 And to the messenger of the ecclesia in Philadelphia write: 'Now this is saying the True, the Holy One, Who has the key of David, and Who is opening and no one shall be locking, and locking and no one shall be opening.

8 "I am aware of your acts. Lo! Before you have I granted an open door which no one is able to lock, seeing that you have a little power, and you keep My word and you do not disown My name. Lo! I have granted to those of the synagogue of Satan, (who are professing themselves to be Jews and are not, but are lying)—Lo! I shall be mak-

<sup>10</sup> The English idiom to keep out, conveys a false impression to many. Here it does not mean to keep from, but to keep those who are in the trial so that they come out victoriously.

<sup>12</sup> The conqueror with but little power who hides in the temple during the hour of trial will be openly acknowledged in the kingdom by giving him a place of prominence and power like the great pillars, Jachin and Boaz. It may be that they will have a special place of authority over the vast crowd who serve Him day and night in His temple (7<sup>15</sup>).

LAODICEA

<sup>21</sup> The promises to the conquerors increase in proportion to the apostasy with which they contend. In Ephesus they are promised a place in the paradise of the new earth. This will doubtless be shared by all the other conquerors as well. In Laodicea, the nauseating ecclesia, the conqueror is promised a place with Christ on His millennial throne. This is the highest place to which an Israelite could aspire (Mt. 20<sup>21</sup>). This is fulfilled when the wages are paid (11<sup>18</sup>) and the saints reign with Him the thousand years (20<sup>4</sup>).

ing them that they will be arriving and worshiping before your feet, and they may know that I love you.

<sup>10</sup> Seeing that you keep the word of My endurance, I, also, shall be keeping you out of the hour of trial which is about to be coming on the whole inhabited earth to try those who are dwelling on the earth. <sup>11</sup> I am coming swiftly! Be holding to that which you have, that no one may be taking your wreath.

<sup>12</sup> The one who is conquering, him shall I be making a pillar in the temple of My God, and he may be coming out nevermore, and I shall be writing on him the name of My God, and the name of the city of My God, the new Jerusalem, which is descending out of heaven from My God, and My new name.

<sup>14</sup> And to the messenger of the ecclesia in Laodicea write: 'Now this He is saying Who is the Amen, the Faithful and True Witness, and God's creative Original.

<sup>15</sup> "I am aware of your acts, that you are neither cool nor zealous. You ought to be cool or zealous!

<sup>16</sup> Thus, seeing that you are indifferent, and are neither cool nor zealous, I am about to spew you out of

<sup>17</sup> My mouth. Seeing that you are saying that 'I am rich!' and 'I have become rich and have need of nothing!' and you are not aware that you are wretched and forlorn and poor and blind and

<sup>18</sup> naked, I am advising you to buy of Me gold refined in the fire that you should be rich, and white garments that you should be clothed, and the shame of your nakedness should not be made manifest, and eyesalve

22 A low state of spirituality is denoted by the hearing ear. Job said "I heard of Thee by the hearing of the ear, but now my eye sees Thee (Job 42<sup>5</sup>)."

THE THRONE SECTION

CHRIST AS KING

This section deals with the establishment of the kingdom of Christ and His saints (Dan.7<sup>14,18</sup>) over the whole earth, as the Temple Section (11<sup>19-20</sup><sup>15</sup>) breaks down all opposition to the worship of Jehovah and the priesthood of Israel. There are three distinct divisions in this section: the Seals, the Trumpets, and the Thunders. Each of these is preceded by a preparatory vision, the Seals by the Throne, the Scroll and the Lambkin, the Trumpets by the 144,000 and the Vast Multitude, the Thunders by the Messenger and the Open Scroll.

1 The "openings" of this prophecy should be given careful consideration. They are like the rising curtain which reveals the next act in this great tragedy. There are four pairs of "openings", each of which should be studied together. They are as follows:

HEAVEN—A Door (41) Providential Judgments.

Heaven (1911) Public Judgments.

THE EARTH—A Well (92) The Terrible Cavalry.

Its Mouth (1216) Swallows the Flood.

THE SCROLLS—Seven Seals (5234596135791281).

The Scrolls (2012) Individual Judgment.

THE TEMPLE—The Temple (1119) Ark, Covenant.

Tent of Testimony (155) Law Exposed.

3 The emerald rainbow assures us that God will remember His covenant with every living creature (Gen.9<sup>12,17</sup>). There shall not be another deluge. These days will be like the days of Noah in many other respects (Mt.24<sup>37</sup> Lu.17<sup>26</sup>).

4 Elder, or senior or presbyter, is a title of honor and respect implying authority rather than advanced age, as in our "alderman". These elders follow the living creatures in worshipping the Creator (410). An elder assures John that the Lion will break the seals (5<sup>5</sup>) and when He takes the scroll they celebrate (5<sup>8,11</sup>). They fall and worship in unison with all creation (5<sup>14</sup>). They echo the worship of the vast crowd (7<sup>11</sup>) and one of them tells John who they are (7<sup>14</sup>).

to anoint your eyes, that you may be observing.

19 As many as I should be fond of, I am exposing and disciplining. Be zealous, then, and repent! Lo! I stand at the door and am knocking. If ever any one should be hearing My voice and be opening the door, I shall also be coming in to him and dining with him, and he with Me.

21 The one who is conquering, to him shall I be granting to be seated with Me on My throne as I, also, conquer, and am seated with My Father on His throne.

22 Who has an ear, let him hear what the spirit is saying to the ecclesias. " " "

4 After these things I perceived, and lo! a door has been opened in heaven, and lo! the first sound which I hear, is as of a trumpet talking with me, saying, "Ascend here! and I shall be showing you what must be occurring after these things".

2 Now immediately I came to be in spirit, and lo! a throne, located
3 in heaven, and on the throne One sitting. And He who is sitting is, to sight, like a jasper stone and a carnelian. And a rainbow surrounding the throne is, to sight, like an emerald.

4 And surrounding the throne are twenty-four thrones, and on the twenty-four thrones elders are sitting, clothed in white garments, and on their heads are golden wreaths.

5 And out of the throne are issuing lightnings and voices and thunders. And seven torches of fire are burning before the throne, which are the seven spirits of God.

6 And before the throne it is as a glassy sea, like crystal.

Throne Section—The Scroll

At the seventh trumpet they fall and worship, the tenor of their words showing that they are not included among His slaves the prophets or the saints (11:16). They hear the song of the 144,000 (14:3) and join the hallelujahs at the destruction of Babylon (19:4). David patterned the twenty-four courses of the priesthood after them (1 Chr.24:3, 5 Heb.8:9<sup>23</sup>). They lead heaven's worship and combine the offices of prophet, priest and king, for they sit on thrones, present the worship of others, and speak for God. Their "crowns", however, are not regal, but wreaths of victory.

<sup>6</sup> The throne attendants of the Divine Majesty vary according to the character and title which He assumes. Jehovah is attended by the Living Ones, or Cherubim. These are intensely animate and are incorporated into the very throne itself. All creation is represented in this august session. The heads of the heavenly hosts sit on thrones. The messengers attend. All of these are heavenly spirit beings.

The realm of earth is represented by the heads of the animal kingdom, including man. These are the divisions of creation (Gen.1) except fish and creeping things. With these only God established His covenant after the flood (Gen.9<sup>9,10</sup>). They are living souls, rather than spirits. They conform to the scene about them. When we first see the cherubim, guarding the way to the tree of life (for this tree was a source of the life they represented) no wings are mentioned (Gen.3<sup>24</sup>). When they form part of the mercy seat, they seem to have had two wings (Ex.25<sup>20</sup>). When Ezekiel sees them they have four wings (Eze.1<sup>6</sup>). Here they have six wings each. Ezekiel tells us they looked like living coals of fire. Here they are full of eyes. Ezekiel calls them by the same name they are given here when he says: "It is the animal which I saw under the God of Israel at the stream Chebar: and I know that they are cherubim" (Eze.10<sup>20</sup>). According to these passages they do not seem to be confined to a set physical manifestation, but conform to their spiritual activity and environment. Isaiah calls them Seraphim or Burning Ones in connection with the title Adonai.

And centering in the throne and around the throne are four animals replete with eyes in front and behind. And the first animal is like a lion, and the second animal is like a calf, and the third animal has a face like as a human being, and the fourth animal is like a flying vulture. And the four animals—each one of them has six wings apiece. Around and inside they are replete with eyes.

And they have no rest day and night, saying,

"Holy! holy! holy!
Lord God Almighty,
Who wast and Who art
And Who art coming!"

<sup>9</sup> And whenever the animals should be giving glory and honor and thanks to Him Who is sitting on the throne, Who is living for the eons of the eons (Amen!), the <sup>10</sup> twenty-four elders, also, will be falling before Him Who is sitting on the throne and will be worshipping Him Who is living for the eons of the eons (Amen!), and they are casting their wreaths before the throne, saying,

<sup>11</sup> "Worthy art Thou, O Lord, our Lord and God,
To get glory and honor and power;
For the universe Thou dost create,
And because of Thy will it is created and was."

<sup>9</sup> The elders and animals are bought, not redeemed. They celebrate Israel's deliverance. The failure to note this distinction and the consequent attempt to reconcile the two parts of this song, has led to much confusion in the manuscripts.

<sup>3</sup> seals?" And no one in heaven, nor on earth, nor underneath the earth, was able to open the scroll, neither to look at it. And I lamented much that no one was found worthy to open the scroll, neither to look at it. And one of the elders is saying to me, "Do not be lamenting! Lo! He conquers! The Lion out of Judah's tribe, the Root of David, is to open the scroll and to loose its seven seals!"

<sup>6</sup> And I perceived, in the center of the throne and of the four animals and in the center of the elders, a Lambkin standing, as though slain, having seven horns and seven eyes, which are the seven spirits of God, commissioned for the entire earth. And It came and has taken it out of the right hand of Him Who is sitting on the throne.

<sup>8</sup> And when It took the scroll, the four animals and the twenty-four elders fall before the Lambkin, each having a lyre and golden bowls brimming with incenses, which are the prayers of the saints. And they are singing a new song, saying,

"Worthy art Thou to be taking the scroll and to open its seals,
For Thou wast slain and dost buy us for God by Thy blood.

Out of every tribe and language and people and nation

<sup>10</sup> Thou dost also make them a kingdom and a priesthood for our God,
And they will be reigning on the earth."

<sup>11</sup> And I perceived, and I hear a sound as of many messengers around the throne and the animals and the

Throne Section—The Seals

*And every creature which is in heaven
And on earth and under the earth
And in the sea and all those in them.*

And I hear Him Who sits on the throne, Who says,
"To the Lambkin be given blessing and honor and glory and might
For eons of eons!"

The Greek word zugon was used of two different Hebrew words: ol, a yoke, and maznim, balances, scales (Lev.19<sup>36</sup> Job 31<sup>6</sup> Dan.5<sup>27</sup> Chaldee). It may mean either a yoke or a pair of balances, according to the context. Here it seems to stand for the weighing of food in time of famine. Thus Ezekiel was given ten ounces of food and a pint of water each day (Eze.4<sup>9-12</sup>).

elders, and their number was ten thousands of ten thousands and <sup>12</sup> thousands of thousands, saying with a loud voice,

*"Worthy is the Lambkin which has been slain
To get power and riches and wisdom and strength
And honor and glory and bliss!"*

<sup>13</sup> And every creature which is in heaven and on the earth and underneath the earth and on the sea, and all those in them, I hear saying,

*"To Him Who is sitting on the throne—
To the Lambkin—
Be bliss and honor and glory and might
For the eons of the eons!"*

<sup>14</sup> And the four animals said, "Amen!" And the elders fall and worship.

<sup>6</sup> And I perceived when the Lambkin opens one of the seven seals; and I hear one of the four animals saying, as with a voice of thunder, "Come!"

<sup>2</sup> And I perceived, and lo! a white horse, and he who is sitting on it has a bow, and to him was given a wreath. And he came forth conquering and that he should be conquering.

<sup>3</sup> And when It opens the second seal, I hear the second animal saying, "Come!"

<sup>4</sup> And another horse, fiery red, came forth, and it was given to him who is sitting on it to take peace out of the earth, and that they should be slaying one another. And a huge sword was given to him.

<sup>5</sup> And when It opens the third seal, I hear the third animal saying, "Come!" And I perceived and lo! a black horse, and he who is sitting on it has a pair of bal-

<sup>6</sup> ances in his hand. And I hear as it were a voice in the midst of the four animals saying, "A chenix

Throne Section—The Seals

<sup>9</sup> The soul is the seat of sensation. As the spirit is associated with the breath and the body with the soil, so the soul (not the life) is in the blood (Gen.9<sup>4</sup> Lev.17<sup>11,14,14</sup>). Christ poured out His soul unto death. It represents the suffering and anguish which He endured. The blood of the sin offering was poured out at the foundation of the altar (Lev.4<sup>7</sup>). In Solomon's temple there was a vast pit under the altar to receive the blood of the sacrifices. Abel's blood cried from the ground, where it had been poured. So these martyrs are accounted by God as sacrifices on the altar. Their sensations of suffering called for vengeance on those who had sacrificed them because of their testimony. This event marks the middle of Daniel's seventieth heptad.

"For He will avenge the blood of His servants,
And will return vengeance to His foes"
(Deut.32<sup>43</sup>).

[11½ pints] of wheat a denarius [15.7¢, 7d 3f], and three chenix of barley a denarius—and you should not be injuring the olive oil and the wine!"

<sup>7</sup> And when It opens the fourth seal, I hear the voice of the fourth
<sup>8</sup> animal saying, "Come!" And I perceived, and lo! a greenish horse, and the name of him who is sitting upon it is Death, and the Unseen followed him, and jurisdiction was given them over a fourth of the earth to kill with the saber and with famine and with the plague and by the wild beasts of the earth.

<sup>9</sup> And when It opens the fifth seal, I perceived underneath the altar the souls of those who have been slain because of the word of God and because of the testimony which <sup>10</sup> they had. And they cry with a loud voice, saying: "Till when, O Owner, holy and true, art Thou not judging and avenging our blood on those who are dwelling on the earth?" And to each of them
<sup>11</sup> was given a white robe, and it was declared to them that they should be resting still a little time, till their fellowslaves, also, and their brethren, who are about to be killed as they also were, should be completing them.

<sup>12</sup> And I perceived, when It opens the sixth seal, and a great cataclysm occurred, and the sun became black as sackcloth of hair, and the <sup>13</sup> whole moon became as blood, and the stars of heaven fall on the earth as a fig tree is casting its shriveled figs, quaking under a great wind.
<sup>14</sup> And heaven recoils as a scroll being rolled up, and every mountain and island was moved out of its

Throne Section—The 144,000

<sup>4</sup> Twelve is the number of government and the kingdom. There were twelve patriarchs, twelve tribes, etc. The Lord chose twelve commissioners who will rule the twelve tribes. The twelve times twelve thousand sealed will administer the kingdom. Here they are seen as slaves. Later they are seen as worshipers. Just as Jehovah reserved seven thousand for Himself in Ahab's days (1 Ki.19<sup>18</sup>), so He keeps these for Himself during this judgment era. Just as 1000 were taken from each tribe to go against the Midianites and none were lacking at the close (Nu.31<sup>49</sup>), so with this chosen company. The full 144,000 will enter the kingdom unscathed.

<sup>15</sup> place. And the kings of the earth, and the magnates, and the captains, and the rich, and the strong, and every slave and freeman, hide themselves in the caves and in the rocks of the mountains. And they are saying to the mountains and to the rocks, "Fall on us and hide us from the face of Him Who is sitting on the throne, and from the indignation of the Lambkin, seeing that the great day of Their indignation came, and who is able to stand?"

<sup>7</sup> And after this I perceived four messengers standing at the four corners of the earth, holding the four winds of the earth that the wind may not be blowing on the land, nor on the sea, nor on any tree.

<sup>2</sup> And I perceived another messenger ascending from the orient, having the seal of the living God. And he cries with a loud voice to the four messengers to whom it was given for them to injure the land and the sea, saying, "You shall not be injuring the land, nor the sea, nor the trees, until we should be sealing the slaves of our God on their foreheads." And I hear the number of those who have been sealed: a hundred forty-four thousand who have been sealed out of every tribe of the sons of Israel.

<sup>5</sup> Out of the tribe of Judah twelve thousand have been sealed; out of the tribe of Reuben twelve thousand; out of the tribe of Gad twelve thousand; out of the tribe of Asher twelve thousand; out of the tribe of Nephthalim twelve

Throne Section—The Vast Multitude

<sup>7-8</sup> Levi and Joseph appear here as tribes in place of Dan and Ephraim, who are "blotted out" because they introduced idolatry into Israel. Jehovah threatened to blot out the name of any tribe that served other gods and worshiped them (Deut.29<sup>18-26</sup>). The accounts of their apostasy will be found in Judg.18, 1 Ki.12<sup>28-30</sup>. Ephraim, later, was joined to his idols (Hos.4<sup>17</sup>). They will, however, be restored to their allotment in the land (Eze.48) when the kingdom comes. But none of these are protected by God's seal during this time of affliction.

<sup>9</sup> Palm branches were used in celebrating the feast of tabernacles (Lev. 23<sup>40</sup>). It was a sign that they had come into the land. Here it is the assurance of entrance into the kingdom. The 144,000 are the first fruits (14<sup>4</sup>). These correspond to the feast of ingathering after the full harvest (Lev. 23<sup>39</sup>). The fact that they come out of every nation and all tribes and peoples and languages does not forbid their being Israelites, for Jews are scattered among all the peoples of the earth. The fact that they keep this feast is sufficient evidence that they, like the 144,000, are out of the sons of Israel. These are those of the dispersion who conquer through the blood of the Lambkin (7<sup>14</sup>12<sup>11</sup>) and do not love their souls until death. They are the martyrs needed to complete those slain before the great affliction (6<sup>11</sup>) seen under the altar under the fifth seal.

<sup>14</sup> This great affliction was foretold by our Lord (Mt.24<sup>21</sup>). It will be unexampled in the annals of the race. It will be shortened, or not even the elect would be saved. It is essentially an anti-Semitic outbreak on the part of the nations of the earth, in a last attempt to wipe out the name of Jehovah from the earth.

thousand; out of the tribe of Manasseh twelve thousand; out of the tribe of Simeon twelve thousand; out of the tribe of Levi twelve thousand; out of the tribe of Issachar twelve thousand; out of the tribe of Zebulun twelve thousand; out of the tribe of Joseph twelve thousand; out of the tribe of Benjamin twelve thousand have been sealed.

<sup>9</sup> After these things I perceived, and lo! a vast throng which no one was able to number, out of all nations and the tribes and peoples and languages, standing before the throne and before the Lambkin, clothed in white robes and palms in their hands. And they are crying with a loud voice, saying,

*"Salvation be our God's,
Who is sitting on the throne,
And of the Lambkin!"*

"Amen!

The bliss and glory and wisdom and thanks

*And honor and power and strength be our God's
For the eons of the eons.*

Amen!"

<sup>13</sup> And one of the elders answered, saying to me, "These who are clothed in white robes—who are they, and whence came they?"

<sup>14</sup> And I have declared to him: "My lord, you are aware." And he said to me, "These are they who are coming out of the great affliction. And they rinse their robes, and they whiten them in the blood of

15 THE BLOOD OF-THE LAMBkin THRU

Throne Section—The Trumpets

<sup>15</sup> The fact that they perform priestly functions shows that they are of the priest nation. No other nation will have access to the temple (Ex.19<sup>1</sup> 1 Pt. 2<sup>9</sup>Un.16).

<sup>16</sup> This description of millennial blessing is in accord with many passages in the prophets, notably the description of Jerusalem by Isaiah (45,6).

<sup>7</sup> Blood and fire are signs of the day of the Lord (Joel 2<sup>30</sup>). One of the plagues of Egypt was sounds and hail, and fire (Ex.9<sup>23-25</sup>). This will be repeated on a grander scale. Compare Joel 1<sup>19</sup>. We have no more reason to make the effects of the Trumpets figurative than the effect of Moses' rod in Egypt. A greater One than Moses is here.

<sup>15</sup> the Lambkin. Therefore they are before the throne of God and are offering divine service to Him day and night in His temple. And He Who is sitting on the throne will be
<sup>16</sup> tabernacling over them. They shall be hungering no longer; nor shall they be thirsting any longer; no, nor should the sun be falling on <sup>17</sup> them, nor any heat, seeing that the throne-centered Lambkin shall be shepherding them, and shall be guiding them to living springs of water, and every tear shall God be brushing away from their eyes."

8 And when It opens the seventh seal, a hush occurred in heaven as it were half an hour.

<sup>2</sup> And I perceived the seven messengers who stand before God, and seven trumpets were given to them.

<sup>3</sup> And another messenger came and was standing at the altar, having a golden thurible. And much incense was given him that he will be imparting to the prayers of all the saints, on the golden altar before the throne. And the fumes of the incense with the prayers of the saints ascended out of the messenger's hand before God. And the messenger has taken the thurible, and he crams it with the fire of the altar and casts it into the earth. And thunders and voices and lightnings and an earthquake occurred.

<sup>6</sup> And the seven messengers who have the seven trumpets make themselves ready that they should be trumpeting.

<sup>7</sup> And the first trumpets. And there came to be hail and fire mixed with blood, and it was cast into the

<sup>9</sup> If we believe that the river of Egypt was turned into blood and the fish in the river died (Ex.7<sup>20,21</sup>) when Moses smote the waters, what reason is there why we should not look for a similar judgment in Jehovah's day? (Ps.78<sup>44</sup> 105<sup>29</sup>). But under no circumstances may these judgments be found in this day of grace.

THE WOE TRUMPETS

The last three trumpets, because of the unexampled and terrible nature of their inflictions, are called the three woes.

earth, and a third of the earth was burned up, and a third of the trees were burned up, and all the green grass was burned up.

<sup>8</sup> And the second messenger trumpets. And as it were a huge mountain burning with fire was cast into the sea, and a third of the sea became blood, and a third of the creatures which are in the sea, which have a soul, died, and a third of the ships decayed.

<sup>10</sup> And the third messenger trumpets. And a large star falls out of heaven, burning as a torch. And it falls on a third of the rivers and <sup>11</sup> on the springs of water. And the name of the star is said to be Absinth. And a third of the waters became absinth and many of mankind died of the waters, seeing that they were made bitter.

<sup>12</sup> And the fourth messenger trumpets. And a third of the sun and a third of the moon, and a third of the stars were eclipsed, that a third of them may be darkened, and day should not be appearing for a third of it, and night likewise.

<sup>13</sup> And I perceived, and I hear one vulture flying in mid-heaven saying with a loud voice: "Woe! woe! woe! to those dwelling on the earth as a result of the rest of the soundings of the trumpets of the three messengers who are about to be trumpeting!"

<sup>9</sup> And the fifth messenger trumpets. And I perceived a star fallen out of heaven into the earth. And to him was given the key of <sup>2</sup> the well of the abyss. And he opens the well of the abyss, and

Throne Section—The Locusts

<sup>3</sup> The detailed description of these locusts forbids our taking them in any way but as literal creatures just as they are described. Their time limit is the same as natural locusts—five months—but they differ from them in many ways. Common locusts are harmless to mankind. They devour only the vegetation (Ex.10<sup>12</sup>). These are designed to torment mankind without killing them, yet do no damage to the grass or the herbs or the trees.

They are a fourfold combination of the horse, the lion, the scorpion and the human. They are swift as horses, terrible as lions, intelligent as human beings and malignant as scorpions. It will be a far more terrible scourge than anything which has preceded it. There is good reason for calling it a woe!

Locusts have no king over them (Prov.30<sup>27</sup>), but these are the subjects of the messenger of the abyss. His name is given in both Greek and Hebrew. Both Apollyon and Abaddon signify "Destroyer".

Defensively they are armed with iron cuirasses, an armor covering the entire trunk with both breast and back plates. Their offensive power lies in their tails, which are like scorpions. The sting of the scorpion is very painful, much more so than that of the hornet. Men have been known to die of its effects.

Just as Satan was licensed to torment Job, but forbidden to take his life, so these locusts are limited to their work of torment and cannot take life. Their sting is so terrible, however, that the votaries of the wild beast would be glad to die, if they could, to escape it.

All of this is in direct contrast and actual opposition to God's dealings in the present economy of grace. Hence it is worse than futile to seek any fulfillment in the history of the past. Such scenes as this can come only once in the history of the race and must necessarily be of brief duration. Those who have God's seal will escape.

The locusts in the introduction to Joel's prophecy represent the four Assyrian invasions which devastated the land in the four generations referred to. Two of these, involving Judah, are the immediate subjects of Joel's prophecy.

fumes ascended out of the well as the smoke of a large furnace, and the sun and the air are darkened <sup>3</sup> by the fumes of the well. And out of the fumes came forth locusts into the earth, and license was granted them as the scorpions of the
<sup>4</sup> earth have license. And it was declared to them that they should not be injuring the grass of the earth, nor any green thing, nor any tree, except those of mankind who have not the seal of God on their fore-
<sup>5</sup> heads. And it was granted to them, not that they may be killing them, but that they shall be tormented five months; and their torment is as the torment of a scorpion, whenever it should be striking a man.
<sup>6</sup> And in those days mankind will be seeking death, and under no circumstances shall they be finding it. And they will be yearning to die, and death is fleeing from them.
<sup>7</sup> And the likenesses of the locusts are like horses made ready for battle, and on their heads are as it were wreaths like gold, and their faces are as it were human faces,
<sup>8</sup> and they had hair as the hair of women, and their teeth are as if
<sup>9</sup> they were lions'. And they had cuirasses, as it were iron cuirasses, and the sound of their wings is as the sound of many chariot horses
<sup>10</sup> racing into battle. And they have tails like scorpions, and stings, and their license is to injure mankind
<sup>11</sup> five months with their tails. They have a king over them—the mes-

THE SECOND WOE

The second woe is even more terrible than the first and, like it, cannot be understood otherwise than literally.

<sup>14</sup> These are probably the messengers who were delivered into chains of darkness to be reserved for the judgment (2Pt.24), or, as Jude says, reserved in imperceptible [everlasting] chains under darkness, for the judgment of the great day (<sup>6</sup>). Now that the specific hour and day and month and year has come, they are sent about their work of killing a third of mankind. The detailed description of these creatures is necessary because no one has ever seen such monsters. It is difficult to imagine two hundred million cavalry such as these, in which the horses themselves are provided with death-dealing mouths and tails. This is certainly one of the marvels "which are not created in all the earth, nor in all the nations" (Ex.34<sup>10</sup>).

None of men's instruments of destruction can compare with these. They combine the latest methods of warfare, flame projectors and poison gas, with the serpent's sting.

Preceding judgments may have reduced the population of the earth to about six hundred million. A third of this is two hundred million, which will allow every horse a human victim. None of man's armies can kill so effectively.

<sup>17</sup> Amethystine, the ancient hyacinth, corresponds to our amethyst, a transparent, violet colored gem, or our sapphire, of purple hue. The context here suggests the amethyst.

<sup>17</sup> Sulphur was much used as a purifier in the religious rites of the nations, hence its name in the Greek is "divine". Fire and sulphur were regarded as the divine lustrations or purifying agents.

<sup>20</sup> That such a judgment should not change the minds of those who are spared seems incredible. Yet such is man. The most terrible trials but harden his heart instead of producing repentance. They continue as before in their idolatry and sin. We may learn from this that men do not change their minds from compulsion or fear, even in the proclamation of the kingdom. This will be accomplished by milder means.

senger of the abyss. His Hebrew name is Abaddon, and in Greek he has the name Apollyon.

<sup>13</sup> And the sixth messenger trumpets. And I hear one voice out of the horns of the golden altar which

<sup>14</sup> is before God, saying to the sixth messenger who has the trumpet:

"Loose the four messengers who have been bound at the great Eu-<sup>15</sup> phrates river." And the four messengers were loosed, who have been made ready for the hour and the day and the month and the year, that they may be killing a third of <sup>16</sup> mankind. And the number of the troops of cavalry was two hundred millions—I hear their number.

<sup>17</sup> And thus I perceived the horses in the vision, and those who are sitting on them, having fiery and amethystine and sulphurous cuirasses; and the heads of the horses are as the heads of lions, and out of their mouths are issuing fire and

were killed: by the fire, and the fumes and the sulphur, which is <sup>19</sup> issuing out of their mouths. For the license of the horses is in their mouths and in their tails, for their tails are like serpents, having heads, and with them they are in-

<sup>20</sup> juring. And the rest of mankind who were not killed in these calamities repent not of the acts of their hands—that they will not be

The opened scroll shows that the incumbrance has been lifted, just as the sealed scroll was a sign of the bond which burdened it. Were it not for the fact that this opened scroll is, according to the best readings, always called a little scroll (biblaridion) while the closed scroll was the usual diminutive (biblion), we would be tempted to identify these two scrolls. It seems best to take this as a still smaller scroll which deals with the deliverance of Israel as the larger scroll dealt with the whole earth. It is evident from the messenger's acts and his words that the earth and the sea are no longer under bond, and that there will be no further delay in ejecting the usurpers out of the sovereignty which is Christ's.

<sup>3</sup> Besides the seven thunders here introduced, thunder is mentioned seven times, three before and four after these special seven. Thrice it describes the voice of one speaking: one of the four animals saying Come! (6<sup>1</sup>), the song of the 144,000 (14<sup>2</sup>), and the voices of God's slaves saying "Hallelujah, for the Lord God, the Almighty reigns!" Four times it is associated with voices and lightnings. They issue out of the throne (4<sup>5</sup>), follow the casting of the thurible into the earth (8<sup>5</sup>), the opening of the temple (11<sup>19</sup>), and the pouring out of the seventh bowl into the air (16<sup>18</sup>). As thunder is the audible effect of that which we see as lightning, and always follows it, the thunders probably record the effect of the seven final lightning strokes, or bowls. This brings us to the coming of the kingdom. The next vision is retrospective, going back to the middle of Daniel's seventieth heptad.

worshipping demons and idols of gold and silver and copper and stone and wood, which are not able to be observing nor to be hearing <sup>21</sup> nor to be walking—and they repent not of their murders, nor of their enchantments, nor of their prostitution, nor of their thefts.

10 And I perceived another strong messenger descending out of heaven clothed with a cloud, and the rainbow on his head, and his face as the sun, and his feet as pillars of

And when he cries, the seven thunders speak with their own
<sup>4</sup> voices. And when the seven thunders speak, I was about to be writing. And I hear a voice out of heaven saying: "Seal what things the seven thunders speak", and "You should not be writing them."

<sup>5</sup> And the messenger whom I perceived standing on the sea and on the land lifts his right hand to <sup>6</sup> heaven and swears by Him Who is living for the eons of the eons, Who creates heaven and that which is in it, and the earth and that which is in it, and the sea and that which is in it, that there will <sup>7</sup> be no longer delay, but in the days of the seventh messenger's voice, whenever he may be about to be trumpeting, the secret of God is

Throne Section—The Two Witnesses

7 Surely Adonai Jehovah will do nothing but He revealeth His secret unto His servants the prophets (Amos 3<sup>7</sup>).

9 Compare this action with Eze.29:3-14.

9 The eating of the scroll, corresponding to the digesting of its contents, was very sweet to John, for it assured the ejection of the usurpers and the establishment of the kingdom. But it also involved much more bitter judgment which he had not yet apprehended.

11 Concerning, literally on (Lu12<sup>52-53</sup>).

1 The rod or mace is the shepherd's means of defense against the sheep's enemies. The crook is for the sheep. It is the symbol of power and as such may be called a sceptre (Heb.1<sup>8</sup>). To shepherd with an iron club will be the reward of the conqueror in Thyatira (2<sup>27</sup>), the place of the male son (12<sup>5</sup>), and the White Horse Rider (19<sup>15</sup>). To measure with a mace is significant of the fact that Israel's Shepherd will maintain these measurements by force. The sheep will be safe within them.

1 The temple seems to be a sanctuary for the faithful. The period of forty-two months (measured by the moon, a symbol of the powers of darkness, 12<sup>1</sup>) measures the career of the "wild beast" (13<sup>5</sup>). The same length of time expressed in days (measured by the sun, a symbol of God's glory, 12<sup>1</sup>) marks the duration of the ministry of the two witnesses (11<sup>3</sup>) and the period during which the star-crowned woman is nourished in the wilderness (12<sup>6</sup>). The same period is called, after the Hebrew of Dan.12<sup>7</sup>, "a season, seasons, and half a season" (12<sup>14</sup>). This period is probably the last half of Daniel's seventieth heptad (Dan.9<sup>27</sup>). The prince that shall come makes a treaty with the majority of the Jews, but breaks it after three and a half years, causing the sacrifice and gift offering to cease, leaving the period here spoken of, in which he insists that all worship must be directed to him.

It appears from this that the worship of Jehovah will be stamped out of the earth except in the temple in Jerusalem, which will be preserved with divine power, and in the wilderness, where the woman (the faithful inhabitants of Jerusalem) is sustained by miraculous means.

consummated also, as He evangelizes to His own slaves and the prophets.

8 And the voice which I hear out of heaven speaks again with me, and is saying: "Go, get the tiny scroll which is opened in the hand of the messenger who stands on the sea and on the land." And I came away to the messenger, saying to him to give me the tiny scroll. And he is saying to me, "Take it and devour it; and it will be making your bowels bitter, but in your mouth it will be sweet as honey."

10 And I took the tiny scroll out of the messenger's hand, and devoured it. And in my mouth it was sweet as honey. And when I ate it, my bowels were made bitter.

11 And they are saying to me: "You must prophesy again as to peoples and nations and languages and many kings."

11 And a reed like a rod was given me, saying: "Rouse and measure the temple of God and the altar and those worshiping in it. And the court outside of the temple cast outside—and you should not be measuring it, seeing that it was given to the nations, and they will be treading the holy city forty-two months. And I will be endowing My two witnesses and they will be prophesying a thousand, two hundred sixty days, clothed in sackcloth. These are the two olive trees, and the two lampstands which stand before the Lord of the earth. And if any one is wanting to injure them, fire is issuing out of

<sup>4</sup> The two olive trees remind us of Joshua the high priest and Zerubbabel (Zech.3-4), who witnessed for Jehovah in a former apostasy.

The ministry of the two witnesses has much in common with the ministry of Elijah. Both cause a great drought for three and a half years (1 Ki.17<sup>1</sup>). Both kill their enemies by miraculous fire. The prophet Malachi predicts this ministry (<sup>45</sup>): "Lo! I send you Elijah the prophet before the great and fearful day of Jehovah comes." John the baptist came in the spirit and power of Elijah, but they did not receive him (Mt.17<sup>10-13</sup> 11<sup>14</sup> Lu. 17<sup>7</sup>), hence he is still to come as was foretold. As he did not die, but was taken up into heaven in a whirlwind (2 Ki.2<sup>11</sup>), and as he appeared with Moses on the Mount, speaking of the Lord's exodus which He was about to accomplish at Jerusalem (Lu.9<sup>30,31</sup>), he would make an excellent witness to the Lord's life and death. Some think that Moses, because his place of burial is unknown (cf. Jude<sup>9</sup>) and because he, too, appeared on the mount, is the other witness. Others prefer Enoch (Gen.5<sup>24</sup>).

<sup>6</sup> These judgments are just and salutary, for men reject the testimony to the blood of Christ and the blessing that it brings. They are taught that their souls depend upon the abiding efficacy of His death.

<sup>7</sup> Just as the two witnesses will be invulnerable until their testimony is complete, so it is with every slave who is doing God's will. Nothing in heaven or on earth can hinder the witness which has God back of it. And when it is finished the enemies of God will be confounded even in their death.

<sup>11</sup> The short space of time—three and a half days—allowed for the news of the death of the two witnesses to travel over the earth, besides giving time for them to celebrate and send gifts, would seem to be a great difficulty to early students of this prophecy. It would take months and years to do this a century ago. Yet we have come to a time when this would be a matter of course. Everything will move with incredible swiftness when the judgments of God are in the earth. Let us not doubt God or judge His word by our own ignorance.

their mouth and is devouring their enemies. And if any one should be wanting to injure them, thus must <sup>6</sup> he be killed. These have authority to lock heaven, that there may be no showers of rain for the days of their prophecy. And they have authority over the waters to be turning them into blood, and to smite the earth with every calamity
<sup>7</sup> whenever they will. And whenever they should be finishing their testimony, the wild beast which is ascending out of the abyss will be doing battle with them and it will be conquering them and killing <sup>8</sup> them. And their corpse will be at the square of the great city, which, spiritually, is being called Sodom and Egypt, where their Lord, also,
<sup>9</sup> was crucified. And those out of the peoples and tribes and languages and nations are observing their corpse three days and a half, and they are not letting their corpses
<sup>10</sup> be placed in a tomb. And those dwelling on the earth are rejoicing over them and are making merry, and will be sending oblations to one another, seeing that these two prophets torment those dwelling on
<sup>11</sup> the earth. And after the three days and a half the spirit of life out of God entered into them and they stand on their feet. And great fear falls on those beholding <sup>12</sup> them. And they hear a loud voice out of heaven saying to them: "Ascend here!" And they ascend into heaven in a cloud, and

Throne Section—The Kingdom Comes

<sup>13</sup> This earthquake, coming so near the end of the judgment period, may be a precursor of the one under the seventh bowl (16<sup>18</sup>). It seems to affect Jerusalem principally—the city in which the two witnesses testify and where they will be killed.

THE TEMPLE SECTION

CHRIST AS PRIEST

The "opening" of the temple (4<sup>1</sup> note), giving a view of the covenant, is the key to the first division of the Temple Section (11<sup>18-154</sup>). The covenant and the divine ritual are the exclusive prerogatives of one nation, Israel (Ro.9<sup>4</sup>, etc.). Jehovah remembers His covenant with them, to fulfill it. In awful contrast with this is the opening of the second division of the Temple Section (15<sup>5</sup>). There the tabernacle of the testimony is opened and the law is exposed. The first division is filled with blessing for the faithful in Israel, the second with terrible judgments for those of them who apostatize. This division centers around the faithful city Jerusalem; the next division is much concerned with unfaithful Babylon.

This section gives us the religious aspect of judgment, as viewed from the standpoint of the temple. Just as the books of Kings and Chronicles present <sup>13</sup> their enemies beheld them. And in that hour occurred a great earthquake, and a tenth of the city falls, and there were seven thousand names of the men killed in the earthquake. And the rest became affrighted, and give glory to the God of heaven.

<sup>15</sup> And the seventh messenger trumpets. And loud voices occurred in heaven, saying: "The world kingdom became our Lord's and His Christ's, and He shall be reigning for the eons of the eons! Amen!"

<sup>16</sup> And the twenty-four elders who are sitting on their thrones before God fall on their faces and worship God, saying, "We are thanking Thee, Lord God Almighty, Who art and Who wast, seeing that Thou hast taken Thy great power and dost reign. And the nations are angered, and Thy indignation came, and the era for the dead to be judged, and to give wages to Thy slaves the prophets, and to the saints and to those who are fearing Thy name, the small and the great, and to blight those who are blighting the earth."

<sup>19</sup> And the temple of God which is in heaven was opened, and the ark of God's covenant was viewed in His temple, and lightnings and voices and thunders and an earthquake and a great hail occurred.

Temple Section—The Male Son

the same historical events from two sides, Kings from the human, Chronicles from the divine, so this section reviews the period which has already been presented in its relation to the throne. These two sections correspond to the two great missions of the chosen nation (Ex.19<sup>6</sup>). They were to be a royal priesthood (1 Pt.2<sup>9</sup>). The Throne Section gives them the sovereignty of the nations. This section recovers their priestly functions. In that they will rule the nations for Jehovah: in this they bring them to Jehovah. The theme is no longer the political redemption of the earth. The dragon, the wild beast and the false prophet demand divine honors. They want worship. This is refused by the faithful in Israel. The apostates, especially those in Babylon, with all the rest of mankind, join the great confederation to blot out the worship of Jehovah from the face of the earth.

<sup>1</sup> This woman is in contrast with the false woman, the city of Babylon (18), hence is a sign of the faithful city of Jerusalem. Clothed with the sun indicates the possession of authority to rule in the day of Jehovah. The law, which reflects God's glory and controls her walk, is under her feet. The twelve stars signify the twelve apostles, who will administer the kingdom. Her condition is like that of the nation in Isa. 26<sup>17</sup>. Unparalleled persecution will be her portion. This is directed especially against a select company out of her, which seems to correspond to the 144,000 who were sealed in the previous section (7<sup>3</sup>). They seem to have a safe asylum in the temple (11<sup>1</sup>) on Mount Zion (14<sup>1</sup>) while the woman flies into the wilderness. They are celibates (14<sup>4</sup>), hence are called male sons.

<sup>12</sup> And a great sign was viewed in heaven: a woman clothed with the sun, and the moon underneath her feet, and on her head a wreath of twelve stars. And, being pregnant, she is crying, travailing, and being tormented to be bringing forth.

<sup>3</sup> And another sign was viewed in heaven, and lo! a great fiery-red dragon, having seven heads and ten horns, and on its heads seven diadems. And its tail is dragging a third of the stars of heaven, and cast them into the earth. And the dragon stands before the woman who is about to be bringing forth, that it should be devouring her child whenever she may be bringing forth. And she brought forth a son, a male, who is about to be shepherding all the nations with an iron club. And her child is snatched away to God and to His throne. And the woman fled into the wilderness, there where she has a place made ready by God, that there they may be nurturing her a thousand two hundred sixty days.

<sup>7</sup> And a battle occurred in heaven. Michael and his messengers battle with the dragon, and the dragon battles, and its messengers. And they are not strong enough for him, neither was their place still found in heaven.

<sup>9</sup> And the great dragon was cast down, who is the ancient serpent called Slanderer and Satan, who is deceiving the whole inhabited earth. It was cast into the earth, and its messengers were cast with it. And I hear a loud voice in

its Messengers*

7 When the dragon attacks Jerusalem it comes into conflict with Michael, one of the chief princes (Dan.10<sup>13</sup>), who is Israel's prince (Dan.10<sup>21</sup>) in God's government. Prince Michael and his messengers eject the dragon and its messengers out of heaven.

9 Satan is Hebrew, meaning adversary. This is a common term applied to the angels of Jehovah (Nu.22<sup>22,32</sup>), David (1 Sa.29<sup>4</sup>), the sons of Zeruah (2 Sa.19<sup>22</sup>), etc. Later, when used in its untranslated form in Greek, it always seems to refer to the personality whose appellations are gathered together in this passage.

10 Michael's victory over the dragon secures the final overthrow of its power, though it continues for a short period, concentrated on the earth. Those still on the earth are warned that the fury of the Slanderer will be bitter because brief.

13 Compare Mt.24<sup>16</sup>. Our Lord counsels them to flee into the mountains of Judea, which are a wilderness, when they see the abomination of desolation (Dan.9<sup>27</sup>) standing in the holy place. This fixes the time as the middle of the last heptad. The season and seasons and half a season (counted by harvests, as their sustenance is in question) corresponds to the last half of the seventieth heptad.

14 The great griffon vulture of Palestine has enormous strength and swiftness of wing. Unlike the eagle, it is bald (Mic.1<sup>16</sup>), and it congregates in flocks. It was held in highest esteem by the ancients. Assyria and Persia and Rome adopted it for their ensign. This has been followed by some modern nations.

The aptness of this figure lies in the fact that these vultures inhabit the inaccessible cliffs (Jer.49<sup>16</sup>) where no human hand can touch them. Thus the inhabitants of the city of Jerusalem will find an asylum in the impenetrable fastnesses which abound in the vast mountainous wilderness not many miles from the city. There they will be sheltered and sustained until their Messiah is manifested in power.

heaven saying: "Now came the salvation and the power and the kingdom of our God, and the authority of His Christ, seeing that the accuser of our brethren was cast down, who was accusing them before our God day and night. And they conquer him through the blood of the Lambkin, and because of the word of their testimony, and they love not their soul, unto death. Therefore, make merry, O heavens, and those who are tabernacled in them! Woe to the land and the sea, seeing that the Slanderer descended to you having great fury, being aware that the season he has is brief."

13 And when the dragon perceived that it was cast into the earth, it persecutes the woman who brought forth the male. And the two wings of a large vulture were given to the woman that she may be flying into the wilderness into her place there, where she is nurtured a season and seasons and half a season from the face of the serpent. And the serpent cast water as a river out of its mouth behind the woman that she should be carried away by its current. And the earth helps the woman, and the earth opens its mouth and swallowed the river which the dragon cast out of its mouth. And the dragon is angry with the woman, and came away to do battle with the rest of her seed, who are keeping the precepts of God and who have the testimony of Jesus.

Temple Section—The Wild Beast

<sup>1</sup> The beast from the sea (which is the equivalent of the abyss) has hitherto enacted the rôle of a deceiver and is known as the false christ (Mt.24<sup>5</sup> cf. Un.61,<sup>2</sup>) and the white horse rider. That was in the political sphere. This is the religious section. Here the figure is a wild beast and corresponds to the antichrist.

The wild beast is a composite of the four beasts of the seventh of Daniel:

1. Lion .....	1 heads	0 horns
2. Bear .....	1 “	0 “
3. Leopard .....	4 “	0 “
4. Nondescript ...	1 “	10 “
The Wild Beast..	7 “	10 “

Here we have the same wild beasts seen by Daniel after the nondescript has devoured the other three.

The Chaldee k'd'm, before, refers to position, not time (Dan.7<sup>7,10</sup>), and may have the sense of east as in Hebrew. In that case the ten-horned beast is a confederacy of western powers and the other three beasts are eastern powers.

It will be noted that worship rather than rule is the dominant note here. These beasts bring before us kingdoms and confederacies bound together by a common religion. The western beast will be confederate Christendom. The ten horns will be ten Christian military powers. There are, in the East, three great religions, Brahmanism in India, Buddhism in Japan and China, Islamism or Mohammedanism in Turkey and the adjacent countries. These will form three great eastern combinations which will be, in time, conquered by Christendom, and absorbed into the one great world religion which will worship the dragon and the wild beast. Thus a confederacy of the whole world's religious powers will be concentrated against the few Jews who remain faithful to Jehovah.

<sup>7</sup> This world empire will not be limited to any ancient boundaries but will include every tribe and people and language and nation—all who dwell on the earth—not only the Roman empire.

<sup>10</sup> As the beast is to conquer the saints during its period of forty-two months,

And it was standing on the sand
<sup>13</sup> of the sea. And I perceived a wild beast ascending out of the sea, having ten horns and seven heads, and on its horns ten diadems, and on its heads blasphemous names.

<sup>2</sup> And the wild beast which I perceived was like a leopard, and its feet were as a bear's, and its mouth as the mouth of a lion. And the dragon gives it its power and its throne and great authority.
<sup>3</sup> And one of its heads was as it had been slain to death, and its death blow was cured, and the whole earth marvels after the wild beast.

<sup>4</sup> And they worship the dragon, seeing that it gives authority to the wild beast, and they worship the wild beast, saying, "Who is like the wild beast?" and "Who is able to battle with it?" And to it was given a mouth speaking great things and blasphemies. And to it was given authority to do what it wills forty-two months. And it opens its mouth in blasphemies toward God, to blaspheme His name and His tabernacle, and those tabernacled in heaven. And to it was given to do battle with the saints and to conquer them. And authority was given to it over every tribe and people and language and nation. And all who are dwelling on the earth will be worshiping it, everyone whose name is not written in the scroll of life of the Lambkin Which has been slain from the disruption of the world.

*Temple Section—The Second

the saints are warned not to commit any acts of violence during this period. They are exhorted to endure to the end.

<sup>11</sup> The second wild beast emphasizes the religious character of the first. It is called a prophet (16<sup>13</sup>), and makes every effort to get worship for the beast. The calling down of fire from heaven was the test of deity in Elijah's day: "the God Who answers by fire, He is God" (1Ki.18<sup>24</sup>). Hence this will be a "strong delusion" (2 Th.2<sup>11</sup>) like the giving of life to the image.

There is a marked similarity between the career of the first beast and Christ. As the Lord was crucified and raised again, so the wounded head descends into the abyss and is recalled to life by the dragon. Before that he will be a deceiver. The second beast is also patterned after Christ, for it points to the first, even as Christ points to the Father.

<sup>15</sup> Spirit is the source of life. "The spirit is that which is vivifying" (Jn. 6<sup>63</sup>). So that, giving spirit to the image results in its manifesting signs of life. This is man's poor imitation of Christ, Who is the Image of God (Col. 1<sup>15</sup>). But God's Anointed was given God's spirit, not only to speak, as this image, but to give life. This image cannot give life, but causes all who do not bow to it to be killed. After centuries of civilization and culture and religion, mankind will actually descend to the worship of an image because it has miraculous powers!

<sup>16</sup> The "mark" of the wild beast will be the emblem or flag or symbol of the world confederation. It must be worn, or be branded, in a most conspicuous place so that any one may be able to tell at a glance if any one is not a worshiper of the beast. Such a mark or badge has often been used to indicate political or religious affiliations, and usually consists of some appropriate and significant design expressive of the character or purpose of the unity which it represents. As all who belong to the body of Christ will be in heaven by this time, all the world will gladly receive this badge as the pledge of their allegiance to the world federation of religion, except the few Jews who will be faithful to Jehovah.

<sup>10</sup> hear. If any one is for captivity, into captivity he is going. If any one will be killing with the sword, he must with the sword be killed. Here is the endurance and the faith of the saints.

<sup>11</sup> And I perceived another wild beast ascending out of the land, and it had two horns like a lambkin, and it talked as a dragon.

<sup>12</sup> And it is exercising all the authority of the first wild beast before it, and making the earth and those dwelling in it to be worshiping the first wild beast whose death blow was cured.

<sup>13</sup> And it is doing great signs, that it may be causing fire, also, to descend out of heaven into the

<sup>14</sup> earth before mankind. And it is deceiving those dwelling on the earth because of the signs which were given it to do before the wild beast, saying to those dwelling on the earth to make an image to the wild beast which has the blow of

<sup>15</sup> the sword and lives. And it was given to it to give spirit to the image of the wild beast, that the image of the wild beast should be talking also, and should be causing that whoever should not be worshiping the image of the wild beast may be killed.

<sup>16</sup> And it is causing all, small and great, and rich and poor, and free and slaves, that an emblem may be given them on their right hand, or

<sup>17</sup> on their forehead, and that no one may be able to buy or sell except the one having the emblem of the wild beast, or its name, or the number of its name.

Temple Section—The 144,000

18 All will be obliged to have one of three marks to indicate their worship of the wild beast: either its symbol, its name, or its number. The number, we are told, is the number of humanity. This has nothing to do with its name. The number seven, which is used throughout this scroll, is significant of sufficiency, completion. This is its meaning in Hebrew. The number six comes one short of this. It is significant of insufficiency. This entire era is marked by man's supreme attempt to attain perfection apart from God. All his achievements fall short of the divine standard. He accomplishes the federation of mankind—except a few Jews. He unites all the world under one religion—except a handful in Judea. He conquers all who oppose—except Christ. In everything humanity falls one step short of its goal. Hence its number is 666. This is the summit of all man's efforts.

1 This is the same company of 144,000 who are sealed in the Throne Section (7<sup>3-8</sup>). There they are slaves, here they are worshippers, standing on Mount Zion, where the temple is. The seal on their foreheads (7<sup>3</sup>), the names of the Father and the Lambkin, take the place of the name of the wild beast (13<sup>17</sup>), which the unfaithful receive. This is the time of the harvest and these are the first fruits (Lev.23<sup>10</sup>) before the full harvest, which is represented by the vast multitude (7<sup>9</sup>). They will be, literally, celibates, whose worship is in marked contrast to the sensuous ritual which will characterize the worship of the wild beast.

6 The eonian evangel is not for this day. It is for the hours of judgment. In the midst of wrath He remembers mercy. But it does not call upon them to believe, as the gospel does today, for that is adapted to a time of undiluted grace (Ro.4<sup>16</sup>). It is not even repent, for that is the door into the kingdom before the hour of judgment has struck (Ac.2<sup>38</sup>). It is fear—fear for God in His most elemental character as the Creator. It is a demand that no one be worshiped but the One Who created the universe. This is His answer to the demands of the false prophet that all worship the wild beast and the dragon (cf. Ac.17<sup>24-31</sup>).

8 This notation fixes the time of Babylon's overthrow, which is greatly 18 Here is wisdom. Let him who has a mind calculate the number of the wild beast, for it is the number of mankind, and its number is six hundred sixty-six.

14 And I perceived, and lo! the Lambkin standing on mount Zion, and with It a hundred forty-four thousand, having Its name and Its Father's name written on their
2 foreheads. And I hear a sound out of heaven as the sound of many waters and as the sound of loud thunder, and the sound which I
3 hear is as lyre singers playing on their lyres. And they are singing a new song before the throne and before the four animals and before the elders. And no one was able to learn the song except the hundred forty-four thousand, who have been bought from the earth.
4 These are they who were not polluted with women, for they are celibates. These are they who are following the Lambkin wherever It may be going. These are bought from mankind, a firstfruit to God
5 and the Lambkin. And in their mouth falsehood was not found, for they are flawless.

6 And I perceived another messenger flying in mid-heaven, having an eonian evangel to preach over those situated on the earth, and over every nation and tribe and language and people, saying with a 7 loud voice, "Fear ye God and be giving glory to Him, seeing that the hour of His judgment came; and

The Temple Section—The Emblem of the Wild Beast

expanded in the next division of this section, where God deals particularly with the apostates of the chosen nation. It falls just before the final judgments which usher in the priestly kingdom. This makes it clear that the Harvest and the Vintage follow Babylon's destruction and that, when we take up the next division of the Temple Section we must go back in time to a period prior to these announcements.

<sup>11</sup> The torment spoken of in this prophecy is of various lengths and limited to specific classes. All of mankind who have not the seal of God on their foreheads will be tormented five months by the locusts, under the fifth trumpet (9<sup>5</sup>). Satan and the wild beast and the false prophet will be tormented (20<sup>10</sup>). The fumes of the torment of those here spoken of last for the eons of the eons. These are the supreme sinners from among mankind, hence suffer the severest doom. No others will share this fate with them.

<sup>13</sup> "Happy are the dead who are dying in the Lord henceforth" can only be applied to this particular crisis. The reason is clear. No one, unless especially protected by God, can remain true to Him when they cannot buy or sell, or have any intercourse with their fellow men unless they have the emblem of the wild beast. It will mean certain death to accept the eonian evangel and worship the Creator.

THE HARVEST

<sup>14</sup> The One like a son of mankind is, most probably, Christ Himself, hence the words "son of mankind" do not refer to Him directly but indirectly, for He is like him.

The harvest is the result of the eonian evangel. The darnel has been gathered into bundles; now the wheat is to be gathered into His barn (Mt. 13<sup>30</sup>). This division of the Temple Section is based on the covenant with Israel, hence ends in the blessing of His people and the destruction of their enemies. These are accomplished in the Harvest and the Vintage.

worship the Maker of heaven and the land and the sea and springs of water."

<sup>8</sup> And another, a second messenger, follows, saying, "It falls! It falls!—Babylon the great has made all nations drink of the furious wine of her prostitution!"

<sup>9</sup> And another, a third messenger, follows them, saying with a loud voice, "If any one is worshipping the wild beast and its image, and is getting the emblem on his fore-

<sup>10</sup> head or on his hand, he, also, is drinking of the wine of God's fury, which has been blended undiluted in the cup of His indignation, and he will be tormented in fire and sulphur before the holy messengers
<sup>11</sup> and before the Lambkin. And the fumes of their torment are ascending for the eons of the eons. And they are having no rest day and night—those worshipping the wild beast and its image, and if any one is getting the emblem of its name.

<sup>12</sup> Here is the endurance of the saints, who are keeping the precepts of God and the faith of Jesus."

<sup>13</sup> And I hear a voice out of heaven, saying, "Write: 'Happy are the dead who are dying in the Lord henceforth! "Yea," the spirit is saying, "that they will be resting from their toil, for their acts are accompanying them." "' "

Temple Section—Harvest—Vintage

THE VINTAGE

<sup>20</sup> A stadium was 600 Greek feet, 625 Roman feet, or 125 paces, or one-eighth of a Roman mile. This is about 606¼ English feet. The race course at Olympia was this length. From this standard length, it became the usual name for a race course (1 Co.9<sup>24</sup>).

From Harmageddon down through the valley of Jehoshaphat (Joel 3<sup>1,2,9-16</sup>) to Bozrah (Isa.34<sup>6-8</sup>31<sup>6</sup>) is a line about this length. It is likened to an enormous trough for treading grapes such as was found in almost every vineyard in Palestine. The grapes were cast in and trodden with the feet, the juice running into the vat below.

The Vintage is referred to again in the next division, when the Rider on the white horse treads the wine trough of the furious indignation of God the Almighty (19<sup>15</sup>). Joel seems to fill in many details of this scene (Joel 3<sup>9,16</sup>). After a proclamation inviting the nations to battle in the valley of Jehoshaphat, the account proceeds:

"Send forth the sickle, for the harvest is ripe:

The vats run over;

For their evil is much.

Throngs in the vale of decision!

For the day of Jehovah is near in the vale of decision!"

It is called The Vale of Decision, for here the controversy between Jehovah and the nations is finally decided.

Compare also Zeph.3<sup>8</sup>Isa.34<sup>1,8</sup>.

THE SEVEN BOWLS

Before the seven bowls are poured out we are given a vision which is the counterpart of the souls under the altar (6<sup>9</sup>). They are bidden to rest until their number is completed. Here we have all those who suffer on account of their loyalty to God standing on a glassy sea. This is the laver. Only the altar and the laver stood in the temple court. Instead of cleansing, the glassy sea speaks of their permanent purity for resisting the worship of the wild beast and its image, and refusing to wear its emblem.

<sup>15</sup> sharp sickle in His hand. And another messenger came out of the temple crying with a loud voice to Him Who is sitting on the cloud, "Thrust in Thy sickle and reap! for the hour came to reap, for the harvest of the earth is dried."

<sup>16</sup> And He Who is sitting on the cloud cast His sickle on the earth and the earth is reaped.

<sup>17</sup> And another messenger came out of the temple which is in heaven, he, also, having a sharp sickle.

<sup>18</sup> And another messenger came out of the altar, having jurisdiction over the fire, and he shouts with a loud voice to him who has the sharp sickle, saying: "Thrust in your sharp sickle and pick the clusters of the earth's grapevine, for its

<sup>19</sup> grapes are dead ripe." And the messenger cast his sickle into the earth, and picks the grapevine of the earth, and he casts them into the great trough of the fury of God.

Temple Section—The Bowls

<sup>3</sup> That these are saints out of Israel is evident, for they sing the song of Moses (Deut.32:1-43), which rehearses God's dealings with Israel throughout their history, and forms the ground upon which the judgment of the bowls is based. The song testifies against them. It vindicates God in pouring out the judgments upon them. To this they add the song of the Lambkin, which anticipates the results of His just awards.

<sup>5</sup> The temple of the tent of the testimony must be carefully distinguished from the temple of God with the covenant in view. The covenant calls upon God to fulfill His obligations, which He does in the judgments of the Harvest and the Vintage. These are directed against the confederation of the nations who oppose the worship of Jehovah and the priesthood of His people. In this section the testimony or law is in view. These judgments are specially directed against the apostates of the nation, especially the city of Babylon.

<sup>7</sup> The bowls were shallow basins used in the service of the temple. Before they are poured out those who are faithful in Israel have been killed or are in refuge. While they follow the same general course as the trumpets, being poured out upon the land, the sea, the water and the sun, they differ from them in intensity and character, corresponding to the different objects to be attained. The trumpets are usually limited in their effects to a third; the bowls seem to have no such limitation. The trumpets are a political measure and close with the sovereignty of the earth in the hands of Christ. The bowls are distinctly religious. They are poured out on the worshippers of the wild beast and on those who shed the blood of the saints and His prophets. The seven messengers who trumpet "stand before God" (8<sup>2</sup>). Another messenger is at the altar (8<sup>3</sup>). The seven messengers who have the bowls come out of the temple. A voice out of the temple bids them perform their duty. No worship is possible while these judgments continue.

There is no reason why these inflictions should not be as literal as the plagues of Egypt, which they resemble (Isa.11:16).

they are singing the song of Moses, the slave of God, and the song of the Lambkin, saying,

"Great and marvelous are Thy acts,
Lord, God Almighty!

Just and true are Thy ways,
King of the eons!

<sup>4</sup> Who ne'er may fear Thee, Lord,
And glorify Thy name?

For Thou only art benign,
For all the nations will arrive
And worship before Thee,

For Thy just awards were made manifest."

<sup>5</sup> And after these things I perceived, and the temple of the tabernacle of the testimony was

<sup>6</sup> opened in heaven. And the seven messengers, who have the seven calamities, came out of the temple, dressed in clean, resplendent linen, and girded about the chest with

<sup>7</sup> golden girdles. And one of the four animals gives to the seven messengers seven golden bowls brimming with the fury of God, Who is living for the eons of the eons.

<sup>8</sup> (Amen!) And the temple is dense with the fumes of the glory of God and of His power. And no one was able to enter into the temple until the seven calamities of the seven messengers should be consum-

<sup>16</sup> mated. And I hear a loud voice out of the temple, saying to the seven messengers, "Go and be pouring out the seven bowls of God's fury into the land."

<sup>2</sup> And the first came forth and pours out his bowl into the land. And an evil and malignant ulcer came upon those of mankind having the emblem of the wild beast, and those worshipping its image.

Temple Section—The Bowls

<sup>4</sup> The third trumpet (8<sup>10</sup>) affects a third of the rivers and springs in the same way as the third bowl. The first plague of Egypt (Ex.7<sup>17-21</sup>) is a limited sample of this very judgment.

<sup>5</sup> "The messenger of the waters" gives us a glimpse into the divine economy. The various departments of nature seem to be under the guidance and control of special executives who are responsible for their operation. The messenger of the waters acquiesces in this infliction on the ground that the blood of God's witnesses whom they had slain demanded such a retribution. This is echoed by a voice from out of the altar, where the souls of the martyrs are waiting for this very action (6<sup>9</sup>). They call for vengeance on their enemies. This is right, in its place, but must not be imported into the present economy of God's grace. Our only recourse is to heap coals of fire on the heads of our enemies by returning good for their evil (Ro.12<sup>20</sup>).

<sup>8</sup> The fourth bowl, like the fourth trumpet (8<sup>12</sup>) affects the sun, but in an opposite way. Then a third of the sun and the moon and the stars were eclipsed. Now the heat of the sun is greatly intensified. This is one of the signs in the sun foretold by our Lord (Lu.21<sup>25</sup>). This is the day that burns as an oven (Mal.4<sup>1</sup>) and its inhabitants are burned (Isa.24<sup>4225</sup>). Yet they do not obey the evangel and repent (14<sup>7</sup>).

<sup>12</sup> In view of the reason given, the drying up of the Euphrates must be a literal event. Only so can it have any effect on the mobilization of the oriental armies. It is always best to interpret literally unless that is impossible. There is nothing contrary to fact here.

<sup>3</sup> And the second pours out his bowl into the sea. And it became blood as if of the dead, and every living soul died which is in the sea.

<sup>4</sup> And the third pours out his bowl into the rivers and the springs of water. And they became blood.

<sup>5</sup> And I hear the messenger of the waters saying: "Just art Thou, Who art, and Who wast, Benign One, seeing that Thou judgest these, seeing that they shed the blood of saints and prophets and Thou dost give them blood to drink —they deserve it!" And I hear one from the altar saying: "Yea, Lord God, Almighty, true and just are Thy judgments!"

<sup>8</sup> And the fourth messenger pours out his bowl on the sun. And it was given to him to scorch mankind with fire. And men are scorched with the great heat, and they blaspheme the name of God, Who has the jurisdiction over these calamities, and they do not repent, to give glory to Him.

<sup>13</sup> may be made ready. And I per-

The Temple Section—Harmageddon

<sup>15</sup> The best text reads "I am coming". The reference seems to be to the watchers in the temple at Jerusalem, in view of the great army coming against it. The inspector of the guard was wont to take away the cloak of any one found napping. Christ is not coming for us as a thief (1 Th. 5<sup>4</sup>). He is coming with a shout (1 Th. 4<sup>16</sup>).

<sup>16</sup> Har Megiddon, the mountain district of Megiddo, overlooks the great plain of Esdraelon, about forty miles north of Jerusalem. Here Barak defeated the Canaanites (Jud. 5<sup>19</sup>), Gideon the Midianites, and the Egyptians Josiah (2 Ki. 23<sup>29</sup>). There will be no battle of Armageddon. It is the place where the armies of the earth will mobilize for the battle with the Rider on the White Horse (19<sup>10</sup>). The battle line will extend from Esdraelon down to Bozrah, a distance of about 184 miles. The battle which follows is described later (19<sup>11-21</sup>) when the Rider on the White Horse mobilizes His heavenly army and fights them with the sword which issues out of His mouth. This battle is also referred to in the Vintage (14<sup>17-20</sup>), where the battle line is compared to a long winetrough and the blood to the juice of grapes.

<sup>18</sup> Does not this imply that there have been such seismic disturbances before mankind was on the earth, thus confirming the facts of geology? And do not the very strata of the earth's surface prove the possibility of such upheavals? There have been violent local earthquakes during the tenancy of mankind, but this one will be far more destructive and terrible than any in the experience of the race hitherto.

<sup>21</sup> This hail is like one of the plagues of Egypt (Ex. 9<sup>18-26</sup>). The stones will weigh over eighty-five pounds each. The effect of the earthquake and the hail will be like the springing of a mine beneath and a bombardment from above. It will be terrific.

ceived, out of the mouth of the dragon, and out of the mouth of the wild beast, and out of the mouth of the false prophet, three unclean spirits, as if frogs (for they are spirits of demons doing signs), which are going out to the kings of the whole inhabited earth, to be mobilizing them for the battle of the great day of God Almighty.

<sup>15</sup> ("Lo! I am coming as a thief! Happy is he who is watching and keeping his garments, that he may not be walking naked and they may be observing his indecency!") And they mobilized them at the place called, in Hebrew, "Harmageddon".

<sup>17</sup> And the seventh messenger pours out his bowl on the air. And a loud voice came out of the temple of God, saying, "It has occurred!"

<sup>18</sup> And lightnings and voices and thunders occurred. And a great earthquake occurred such as did not occur since mankind came to be on the earth, a quake prodigious, it is so great. And the great city came to be divided into three parts; and the cities of the nations fall. And Babylon the great is brought to remembrance before God, to give her the cup of the wine of His furious indignation.

<sup>20</sup> And every island fled, and the mountains were not found. And hail large as a talent weight is descending out of heaven on men. And men blaspheme God as a result of the calamity of hail, seeing that great is its calamity—tremendous!

The Temple Section—The Scarlet Woman

1 The following chapters (17-19<sup>s</sup>) are a detailed expansion of the announcement of Babylon's fall in both the first and second divisions of the Temple Section (14<sup>s</sup> 16<sup>19</sup>). We know the fact and the time; now we are told the reason and the circumstances which lead up to it.

3 The false woman is in contrast with faithful Jerusalem (12<sup>1</sup>). The true woman is arrayed with heavenly splendor, ready to take her place in the kingdom of God. The false is decked with earthly ornaments and is supported by the wild beast (13<sup>1</sup>), which is a composite of all the false religious powers of the world, organized and energized by Satan.

The secret consists in the fact that the unfaithful woman—apostate Israel—attains to world supremacy and blessing altogether apart from Jehovah or His Christ. By their own efforts the Jews have amassed untold wealth. When their capital is combined they will be able to dictate to any government on earth. Covetousness is idolatry. They worship wealth, and all the world has bowed down at the same shrine. The love of money leads to every other form of evil. It has been a fruitful source of earth's ills.

5 Babylon is the only city which has been the capital of a world empire in the past. Here Nebuchadnezzar had his capital, Medo-Persia made it theirs, and Alexander of Greece made it his after conquering the world. No other city has ruled the whole earth. The decree of Cæsar Augustus, that the whole inhabited earth should be registered (Lu.2<sup>1</sup>) was a vain pretense. It could not be enforced in Babylon itself, for the Romans could not conquer it.

The present ecclesia is nowhere called the "bride of Christ", so present apostasy is not presented under the figure of marital unfaithfulness.

7 Babylon is supported in her ascendancy by the united religions of the earth. No wonder John marvels that, while God's saints are being slaughtered, the unfaithful should attain to almost millennial bliss!

8 This is a note of time. After the wild beast is recalled from the abyss by the dragon (13<sup>1</sup>) it no longer supports the woman.

17 And one from among the seven messengers who have the seven bowls came, and he talks with me, saying: "Hither! I shall be showing you the sentence of the great prostitute who is sitting on many waters, with whom the kings of the earth commit prostitution, and those dwelling in the earth are made drunk with the wine of her prostitution." And he carries me away, in spirit, into a wilderness. And I perceived a woman sitting on a scarlet wild beast, replete with blasphemous names, having seven heads and ten horns. And the woman was clothed with purple and scarlet, and gilded with gold and precious stone[s] and pearls, having a golden cup in her hand, brimming with the abominations and uncleannesses of the prostitution of her and the earth. And on her forehead is written a name:

OF THE EARTH

6 And I perceive the woman drunk with the blood of the saints and with the blood of the witnesses of Jesus.

And perceiving her, I marvel at the great marvel. And the messenger said to me: "Why do you marvel? I shall be declaring to you the secret of the woman and of the wild beast which is bearing her, which has the seven heads and the ten horns. The wild beast which you perceived was, and is not, and is about to be ascending out of the abyss, and to be going away into destruction. And those dwelling on the earth, whose names are not written on the scroll of life from

The Temple Section—The Wild Beast

<sup>12</sup> In Daniel's vision (7) the western wild beast had ten horns, hence the ten horns probably stand for ten western military powers in Christendom. In a federation of many governments it is easily seen how they could temporarily delegate their powers to the head of the world league. When the call goes forth for an international force to destroy the rebellious Jews in Jerusalem the federation of the West as well as the kings of the East will mobilize at Armageddon. There they will be slain by the Rider on the White Horse (19<sup>18-21</sup>). This is their end. But before this they are used in the destruction of Babylon.

<sup>15</sup> The Jews in Babylon will be supported principally by the toil of the great masses in the western nations. The enormous interest on the national debts will make the people comparative slaves of those to whom the interest is paid. When it becomes known that the greater part of this money is used by the Jews in Babylon for their luxurious magnificence, it will arouse the hatred of the peoples and the governments who are under a perpetual tribute, as there is no possibility of paying off the principal. This hatred will lead to the unanimous opinion that Babylon must be destroyed. The wild beast upon which Babylon rests, after being obsessed by the dragon, becomes her implacable enemy. This is God's means of destroying the apostates in Israel.

<sup>17</sup> By a bold figure of speech God is said to have an "opinion". The ten horns pride themselves in forming their own opinion and in carrying it out, when, as a matter of fact, they are obliged, by the purpose of God, to think and act as they do. Man is moved by ulterior motives. God provides these and men, conscious only of their own selfish aims, accomplish His end. God wants Babylon destroyed: they gladly do it for their own sakes, not for Him.

the disruption of the world, will be marveling, observing the wild beast, seeing that it was, and is not, and will be present.

<sup>9</sup> Here is the mind which has wisdom. The seven heads are seven mountains where the woman is sitting on them, and they are seven kings. Five fall, one is, the other came not as yet: and whenever he may be coming, he must remain briefly. And the wild beast which was, and is not, it is the eighth, also, and is from among the seven, and is departing into destruction.

<sup>12</sup> And the ten horns which you perceived are ten kings—those who obtained no kingdom as yet, but are obtaining authority as kings at one hour with the wild beast. These have one opinion, and they are giving their power and authority to the wild beast. These will be battling with the Lambkin, and the Lambkin will be conquering them, seeing that He is Lord of lords and King of kings, and those with Him are called and chosen and faithful."

<sup>15</sup> And he is saying to me, "These waters which you perceived, where the prostitute is sitting, are peoples and throngs and nations and languages. And the ten horns which you perceived, and the wild beast, these will be hating the prostitute, and they will be making her desolate and naked, and they will be eating her flesh, and they will be burning her up with fire, for God imparts to their hearts to form His opinion, and to form one opinion, and to give their kingdom to the wild beast, until God's words will be accomplished.

The Temple Section—Babylon's Fall

<sup>18</sup> The basic law which underlies all figures of speech pleads with us to make this city a literal fact. No one presumes to make the woman literal. She must be figurative. The city, however, explains to us what the woman represents, and must be taken as a literal city. If not, there is no end to the "explanations" which may be offered, each of which may, in turn, be further explained.

<sup>18</sup> The city is Babylon, on the Euphrates, which will be rebuilt in due time. But, instead of being a gentile city, as in time past, it will become a Jewish city, composed of the apostates of Judaism. When the Jews return to Palestine, many will find that place unsuited to their genius for trade and commerce, or for the beautiful city which they plan for themselves, so they move over to the plains of Shinar and build Babylon, making it the commercial and financial center of the world. At this time the vision of the Ephah (Zech. 5<sup>5-11</sup>) will have its fulfillment. The ephah was a measure used in commerce. This is a symbol of the Jews throughout the earth. They are merchants. A woman was cast into the ephah and swiftly borne to the land of Shinar, as Babylonia was called. There she will be established and take her toll of the traffic of the West with the East.

<sup>2</sup> Babylon has never fallen as is predicted in the prophets (Isa. 13, 47, Jer. 50-51). Its final overthrow will be sudden (Isa. 47<sup>11</sup>) and it will become a desolation without any inhabitants (Jer. 51<sup>29</sup>). No Arabian will pitch his tent there. Yet hitherto it has gone into gradual decay until, of recent years, it is being restored. Peter lived there (1 Pt. 5<sup>13</sup>). To this day there has always been a considerable town in the center of its site. Moreover, its destruction is to be in the day of Jehovah (Isa. 13<sup>6</sup>), when there are signs in the heavens (Isa. 13<sup>10</sup> Un. 6<sup>12</sup>), and when the sons of Israel and Judah come and seek the Lord their God (Jer. 50<sup>4</sup>).

<sup>4</sup> Some of God's true saints will be in the city before her destruction. These are warned to come out of her.

<sup>18</sup> And the woman whom you perceived is the great city which has a kingdom over the kings of the earth."

<sup>18</sup> After these things I perceived another messenger descending out of heaven, having great authority. And the earth is illuminated by his glory. And he cries with a strong voice, saying, "It falls! It falls! Babylon the great—and became the dwelling place of demons and a jail of every unclean spirit and a cage of every unclean and hateful bird, seeing that all nations have fallen as a result of the furious wine of her prostitution. And the kings of the earth commit prostitution with her and the merchants of the earth are rich as a result of her ability to indulge."

<sup>4</sup> And I hear another voice out of heaven, saying, "Come out of her, My people, lest you should be participating in her sins, and lest you should be getting her calamities, seeing that her sins are piled up to heaven, and God remembers her injuries.

<sup>6</sup> Be paying as she also pays, and double the doubles, in accord with her acts. In her cup in which she blends, blend double for her.

<sup>7</sup> As much as she glorifies herself and indulges, so much torment and mourning be giving her, seeing that she is saying in her heart, 'I am sitting a queen, and am no widow, and mourning I may never see.'

<sup>8</sup> Therefore in one day her calamities will be arriving—death and mourning and famine—and she

Temple Section—Burning of Babylon

<sup>11</sup> Because of their enormous wealth the Jews in Babylon will import every luxury which their heart desires, so that it becomes the best market for the most valuable commodities of all kinds. This will employ ships and merchants who will make large profits. They will mourn and lament, not out of sympathy with the suffering city, but because their means of gain is gone.

Babylon is not on the sea coast, but the Euphrates can easily be made navigable for large ships as far up as the site of the ancient city. It is notable that most of the great ports of the world have been inland on a river or bay. London, Antwerp, Hamburg, and New York, are all some distance from the open sea. The greatest maritime centers are on sheltered inland waterways to an open roadstead on the coast. Engineers are already at work on vast irrigation enterprises, to control the waters of the rivers. When there is a market, the Euphrates can easily be dredged to Babylon.

<sup>14</sup> Fruition, literally the "juice hour", is an expressive term denoting the time when fruit is fully ripe. Figs are insipid and the white juice which exudes from them is poisonous but a few hours before it becomes sweet as honey. There is typical teaching in this. Israel is the true fig tree. Babylon seeks to take her place and establish the kingdom and thus realize the blessings promised by the prophets, which is suggested by the delicate sweetness of the fig's syrup. Instead they eat the bitter, unpalatable poison, but a little while before the true kingdom is established.

shall be burned up with fire, seeing that strong is the Lord God Who is judging her.

<sup>9</sup> And the kings of the earth who commit prostitution and indulge with her will be lamenting and grieving over her whenever they may be observing the smoke of her conflagration, standing afar off because of the fear of her torment, saying, "Woe! Woe! that great city! Babylon, the strong city! seeing that in one hour your judgment came."

<sup>11</sup> And the merchants of the earth are lamenting and mourning over her, seeing that no one is buying their cargo any more—a cargo of gold, and silver, and precious stone[s], and pearls, and cambric, and purple, and silk, and scarlet, and every kind of citron wood, and every ivory utensil, and every utensil of the most valuable wood, and of copper, and of iron, and

<sup>13</sup> marble, and cinnamon, and ginger, and incense, and attar, and frankincense, and wine, and olive oil, and flour, and wheat, and beasts, and sheep, and horses, and coaches, and bodies, and human souls. "And the fruition for which your soul yearned passed away from you, and all that is sumptuous and splendid perished from you, and they will be finding them nevermore." The merchants of

<sup>15</sup> these things who are rich through her will be standing afar off because of the fear of her torment, lamenting and mourning, saying, "Woe! woe! the great city which was clothed in cambric and purple

Temple Section—Babylon's Destruction

<sup>16</sup> "Gilded" seems to be a figure for all mere outward show, for it is with gold, and precious stones and pearls.

<sup>23</sup> The rapid rise of the power and influence of wealth has made it possible for riches to rule. Not only locally does the man of means control the government, but the policies of nations are determined by their financial obligations. In this way will the merchants of Babylon become the great men of the earth. Holding its weal in their hands, being the creditors of many nations, they will be able to dictate to them in any matters which affect their interests. By means of their capital they will conquer all nations. Kings will cringe before them, for they alone will be able to buy their bonds. Nations will slave for them, for they must pay the interest. The world will be theirs in spite of Jehovah's frown. He purposes to bless His people by making them a blessing to the nations. They obtain the desire of their souls by becoming a curse. They are the head of the new despotism—the autocracy of capital. Money rules the world far more really than emperors or kings or the public. The great confederacy which seems certain to arise out of the present world crisis, will have all political power, but will preside over a bankrupt world. Above them will be this woman—faithless, apostate Israel—and she will have dominion over the kings of the earth. No wonder they conspire to slay her rather than pay her the enormous tribute which her bonds demand!

<sup>24</sup> Just as the Jews of our Lord's generation were held guilty of crimes committed long before (Mt.23<sup>35</sup>), so Babylon is charged with all previous bloodshed.

and scarlet, and gilded with gold and precious stone[s] and pearl, seeing that in one hour so much riches were desolated."

And every navigator, and every one who is sailing to the place, and mariners and as many as are working on the sea, stand afar off, and, observing the smoke of her conflagration, they cried, saying, "Is there any like the great city?"
<sup>19</sup> And they cast soil on their heads, and cried, lamenting and mourning, saying, "Woe! woe! the great city, by which all who have ships on the sea are rich, as a result of its preciousness, seeing that, in one hour, it was desolated."

<sup>20</sup> Make merry over her, O heaven, and ye saints and apostles and prophets, seeing that God passes your sentence upon her.

<sup>21</sup> And one strong messenger lifts a stone, as large as a millstone, and cast it into the sea, saying that "Thus Babylon, the great city, will be hurled down, and she may be found in her nevermore. And the sound of the lyre singers and entertainers, and flutists and trumpeters shall be heard in you nevermore; and every artisan of every trade may be found in you nevermore; and the sound of a millstone shall be heard in you nevermore; and the light of a lamp may be appearing in you nevermore; and the voice of the bridegroom and bride shall be heard in you nevermore; seeing that your merchants were the magnates of the earth, seeing that by your enchantment all nations were deceived."

<sup>24</sup> And in her was found the blood of prophets and of saints and of all

<sup>7</sup> We are first introduced to the bride of the Lamb by John the baptist (Jn. 3:28-30). She was composed of those in Israel who acknowledged Him to be Jehovah's Lamb for their sins. Just as the water blushed into wine at Cana of Galilee (Jn.21-11), so He will transform the law into brimming cheer when this marriage comes. It was the custom for the festivities to last for seven days or a fortnight. The wedding of the Lambkin will last for a whole millennium.

Israel is often presented under the figure of the wife of Jehovah. At Sinai He became her Husband (Jer.31<sup>32</sup>). He puts His comeliness upon her (Eze. 16<sup>8-14</sup>). But she forsook Him to go after other lovers (Hos.2<sup>6-13</sup>). So He gave Israel a bill of divorce (Deut.24<sup>1-4</sup>). They were sent into captivity. According to the law they can never be His again. Nevertheless He invites her to return (Jer.3<sup>1</sup>). He promises to wait for her and to keep her for Himself until the latter days. "You shall not have a husband, moreover I also am for you" (Hos.3<sup>3</sup>). He will call them back. "Return, sons of returnings," avers Jehovah, "for I own you," says Jeremiah (3<sup>14</sup>). When our Lord came He called them a wicked and adulterous generation, for they had forsaken Jehovah. But those who received Him became a part, not of the wife of Jehovah or the Lamb, but the bride of the Lambkin. Not a sad reunion in old age, but with youth renewed. The eastern bride was arrayed in the most gorgeous manner possible. Hence the prophet's question:

"Shall a virgin forget her ornaments?

<sup>19</sup> After these things I hear as it were the loud voice of a vast throng in heaven, saying, "Hallelujah! Salvation and glory and power is of our God, for true and just are His judgments, for He judges the great prostitute who corrupts the earth with her prostitution, and avenges the blood of His slaves at her hand." And a second time have they declared, "Hallelujah!" And her smoke is ascending for the eons of the eons.

<sup>4</sup> And the twenty-four elders and the four animals fall and worship God, Who is sitting on the throne, saying, "Amen! Hallelujah!" And a voice came out from the throne, saying, "Be praising our God, all His slaves, and those who are fearing Him, small and great."

<sup>6</sup> And I hear as it were the voice of a vast throng, and as it were the sound of many waters, and as it were the sound of strong thunders, saying, "Hallelujah! for the Lord our God, the Almighty, reigns! We may be rejoicing and exulting and will be giving glory to Him, seeing that the wedding of the Lambkin came, and Its bride makes herself ready." And to her it was granted that she should be clothed in clean, resplendent cambric, for the cambric is the just awards of the saints.

<sup>9</sup> And he is saying to me, "Write, 'Happy are they who have been invited to the wedding dinner of the Lambkin.'" And he is saying to me, "These are the true sayings of God." And I fall in front of his feet to worship him. And he is say-

Temple Section—The Great Dinner

<sup>11</sup> Contrast this scene with His entry into Jerusalem (Mt. 21:1-9 etc.). There He presented Himself as their King, lowly, and mounted as any poor peasant would ride. Now He comes seated on a white horse. In the East it is a mark of dignity to ride on a white animal, especially a horse. This is allowed only to those of high rank. There is another contrast between this Rider and the false messiah under the first seal (6<sup>2</sup>), whose conquests were followed by war, famine and pestilence. This battle is followed by a thousand years of peace and plenty and prosperity. The pseudo-messiah will be unfaithful and false, this Rider is Faithful and True.

<sup>11</sup> This opening is in contrast with the open door (4<sup>1</sup>) with which the Throne Section begins. Today there is no communication between heaven and earth. When the judgment begins it is still restricted, as is suggested by the figure of a door, but when this Rider comes forth, heaven itself is opened, showing that, at last, the barriers between heaven and earth are removed.

This is the glorious coming for which all His earthly people have longed, and concerning which the prophets have often spoken. Compare the passage in Isaiah (63:1-6), which reminds us of the Vintage (14:17-20), which seems to be another aspect of this same scene, for they are combined in the question:

"Wherefore is Thy clothing red
And Thy garments as the tread-er in the wine trough?"

<sup>14</sup> The armies in heaven have already expelled the dragon out of heaven (12:7-9). Now they are about to finish the judgment of the earth. This was foretold as early as the days of Enoch: "Behold, the Lord is coming with ten thousands of His holy ones to execute judgment upon all" (Jude 14, 15).

This is the full end of all man's misrule and the prelude to the reign of Christ and His saints. The so-called second psalm finds its fulfillment in this battle. He meets the vast international army which worships the beast and the dragon, and, by vanquishing it, establishes His own rule and the worship of Jehovah. Then He takes His true place at the head of all earthly sovereignty.

ing to me, "See! No! I am a fellow-slave of yours and of your brethren who have the testimony of Jesus. Worship God! for the testimony of Jesus is the spirit of prophecy."

<sup>11</sup> And I perceived heaven opened, and lo! a white horse. And He Who is sitting on it is called "Faithful and True," and in righteousness is He judging and <sup>12</sup> battling. Now His eyes are a flame of fire, and on His head are many diadems, having names written of which no one except Himself is

<sup>13</sup> aware, and He is clothed in a cloak dipped in blood, and His name is

<sup>14</sup> called "The Word of God." And the armies in heaven followed Him

<sup>15</sup> cambric, white and clean. And out of His mouth a sharp saber is issuing, in order that with it He should be smiting the nations. And He will be shepherding them with an iron club. And He is treading the wine trough of the furious indigna-

<sup>16</sup> tion of God, the Almighty. And on His cloak and on His thigh He has a name written: "King of kings and Lord of lords."

<sup>17</sup> And I perceived another messenger standing in the sun. And he cries with a loud voice, saying to all the birds which are flying in mid-heaven, "Hither! Be gathered for God's great dinner, that you

<sup>18</sup> may be eating the flesh of kings, and the flesh of captains, and the

Temple Section—The Thousand Years

<sup>19</sup> The name "wild beast" is given both to the world empire and to its last head. This head and the false prophet are evidently superhuman—the "supermen" for whom the world is already looking. Their fate is in accord with their deeds. The fact that the wild beast was once slain but was recalled to life by the dragon, and the fact that the false prophet imparted life to the image, seem to indicate that they cannot be killed as the rest, hence suffer in the lake of fire during the thousand years. Their fate is unique, and must not be taken as the lot of all who die out of Christ.

From the usage of this word it is clear that even the condemnation of the unbeliever is no mere exhibition of aimless rage, but is carefully calculated to right the wrongs of all concerned. The claims of God and Christ, and of the sinner himself are all as conscientiously considered as in the first judgment in Eden (Gen.3<sup>14-19</sup>), where the very curse put upon the ground was for man's sake.

flesh of the strong, and the flesh of horses and of those who are sitting on them, and the flesh of all freemen as well as slaves, and of small and great."

<sup>19</sup> And I perceived the wild beast and the kings of the earth and their armies gathered to do battle with Him Who is sitting on the horse and with His army. And the wild beast is arrested, and with it the false prophet who does signs before it, by which he deceives those getting the emblem of the wild beast, and those worshiping its image. Living, the two were cast into the lake of fire burning with sulfur. And the rest were killed by the saber which is coming out of the mouth of Him Who is sitting on the horse. And all the birds are satiated with their flesh.

<sup>20</sup> And I perceived a messenger descending out of heaven, having the key of the abyss and a large chain in his hand. And he lays hold of the dragon, the ancient serpent, who is the Slanderer and Satan, and binds him a thousand years. And he casts him into the abyss and locks it, and sets a seal upon it (lest he should still be deceiving the nations) until the thousand years should be finished. After these things he must be loosed a little time.

Temple Section—The Former Resurrection

<sup>4</sup> Those who have suffered death for their loyalty during the great persecutions of the end time are especially included in the former resurrection. This is the time spoken of by Daniel (7<sup>22</sup>) when "the saints safeguard the kingdom". This is the resurrection of the just (Lu.14<sup>14</sup>) and the resurrection of life (Jn.5<sup>29</sup>), in contrast to the resurrection of judgment (20<sup>12</sup>). But those who suffer martyrdom or who endure to the end will have the added privilege of reigning with Him and will be His priests for the thousand years. Their trials have wrought an eonian weight of glory for them. They will be happy and holy indeed.

<sup>5</sup> The statement that "the rest of the dead do not live until the thousand years may be finished" was omitted in the best manuscript. As the same codex also omits the tribes of Gad (7<sup>5</sup>) and Simeon (7<sup>7</sup>) from the hundred forty-four thousand, too much stress must not be laid on any such omission. These tribes must go in to make up the required number (144,000) in that manuscript. If we accept the insertion of the tribes we must also accept the insertion of this statement, for it rests on the same evidence. It could easily have been overlooked by a copyist, for the preceding sentence ends with the same words as this one does—"the thousand years" (see the Greek text). It is easy, in copying, to skip from the first "thousand years" to the next, and thus omit the intervening statement.

<sup>7</sup> The loosing of Satan finds mankind as a whole unregenerate after the thousand years of peace. They are ready as ever to follow the deceptions of Satan and oppose the Christ of God. But they are given short shrift, for fire descends from heaven and devours them. The lake of fire was prepared for the Slanderer and his messengers (Mt.25<sup>41</sup>). Now he receives his doom.

<sup>11</sup> The Great White Throne judgment has no place for those who are Christ's, for they have all been made alive and have been enjoying eonian life for more than a millennium.

God, and those who do not worship the wild beast or its image, and did not get the emblem on their forehead and on their hand—they also live and reign with Christ a thousand years. (The rest of the dead live not until the thousand years should be finished.) This is the former resurrection.

<sup>6</sup> Happy and holy is he who is having a part in the former resurrection; over these the second death has no jurisdiction, but they will be priests of God and of Christ, and they will be reigning with Him the thousand years.

<sup>7</sup> And whenever the thousand years should be finished, Satan will be loosed out of his jail. And he will be coming out to deceive all the nations which are in the four corners of the earth, Gog and Magog, to be mobilizing them for battle, their number being as the sand of the sea. And they ascended over the breadth of the earth, and surround the citadel of the saints and the beloved city. And fire descended from God out of heaven and devoured them. And the Slanderer who is deceiving them was cast into the lake of fire and sulphur, where the wild beast and where the false prophet are also. And they will be tormented day and night for the eons of the eons.

<sup>11</sup> And I perceived a great white throne, and Him Who is sitting upon it, from Whose face earth and heaven fled, and no place was found for them.

Temple Section—Jerusalem

<sup>12</sup> This is not a "general" judgment, though it approaches nearer to it than any other. Only the dead appear before this throne. Those who are Christ's will have been made alive at His presence more than a thousand years before (1 Co.15<sup>23</sup>). Those who are His will not die during the thousand years, nor can they be hurt by the second death. Hence only those who have not believed in Christ appear in this judgment. They will all receive their just deserts, according to their acts, during the period between their resurrection and second death. Hence they are condemned, for all fall short of God's standard. They are not vivified, or made alive, as the saints are, by a better resurrection, hence they die again.

<sup>13</sup> Thus all evil is segregated in the lake of fire, where Satan and the wild beast and the false prophet already are (20<sup>10</sup>). "This is the second death" defines the lake of fire. Those who have been raised from death return to the same state in the second death. The only immunity from condemnation lies in having a place in the scroll of life.

SECOND TEMPLE SECTION

<sup>1</sup> In this section we enter a new eon. Peter, in his second epistle (3<sup>7</sup>) tells us that the present heavens and earth are a storehouse of fire, and that they will pass away with a rushing noise and the elements be dissolved with fervent heat. The earth and the works in it shall be burned up by reason of the coming of the day of God. Isaiah (65<sup>17</sup>) has promised a new heaven and a new earth. Righteousness rules during the thousand years. It dwells in the new creation.

<sup>2</sup> The new Jerusalem is heavenly as to character, but will be located on the earth. It comes down "out of heaven". The present heavens and earth are not the first. There was an earth before the present (2 Pt.3<sup>5</sup>). The world that then was perished by water (Gen. 1<sup>2</sup>). The present is the second earth. The one in this vision is the third.

<sup>3</sup> That these are not final scenes is indicated by the temporary nature of God's habitation (Heb.11<sup>9</sup>). Though all are His peoples, and He comforts all, He does not as yet,  dwell  amongst His creatures.

<sup>12</sup> And I perceived the dead, great and small, standing before the throne. And scrolls were opened, and another scroll was opened, which relates to life. And the dead were judged by that which is written in the scrolls, in accord with their acts.

<sup>14</sup> And death and the unseen were cast into the lake of fire. This is the second death—

<sup>15</sup> the lake of fire. And if any one was not found written in the scroll of life, he was cast into the lake of fire.

21 And I perceived a new heaven and a new earth, for the former heaven and the former earth pass away, and the sea is no more.

<sup>2</sup> And I perceived the holy city, new Jerusalem, descending out of heaven from God, having been made ready as a bride adorned for her husband. And I hear a loud voice out of the throne saying, "Lo! God's tabernacle is with mankind, and He will be tabernacled with them, and they will be His peoples, and God Himself will be with them. And He will be brushing away every tear from their eyes. And death will be no more, nor mourning, nor clamor, nor misery: they will be no more, seeing that the former things passed away."

<sup>5</sup> And He Who is sitting on the throne said, "Lo! I am making all new!" And He is saying, "Write,

Second Temple Section—The Holy City

<sup>6</sup> "The Origin and the Consummation" gives Him His true place in creation and redemption. God begins with Him and He brings all God's purposes to fruition.

<sup>10</sup> This is the city for which Abraham looked (Heb.11<sup>10</sup>). Since the capture of Zion by David (2 Sa.5), Jerusalem has been God's choice to rule over the nation and over the whole earth. The city descends out of heaven to the earth and seems to be shaped like an enormous mountain. Jerusalem and Zion are almost always described as a mountain. The contrast with Sinai (Ga.4<sup>24-26</sup> He.12<sup>18-22</sup>) implies as much, while Ezekiel's vision of a very high mountain (40<sup>243</sup><sup>12</sup>) may refer first of all to the millennial city, yet it is suggestive of the shape of the new Jerusalem.

No other shape could very well have its length and breadth and its height equal and be surrounded by a wall much lower than the city itself. The millennial city, as measured in Ezekiel, will be about twelve times as great as Jerusalem in the past, while the new Jerusalem of this vision will raise it to the seventh power. Ezekiel's city has twelve gates, named after the twelve tribes (48<sup>31-34</sup>). There is a river, flowing from Jehovah's house, descending about three and a half feet per mile. If the throne be at the summit of this glorious city, such a river could wind about it with no greater descent than that in the millennial scene.

<sup>11</sup> The word here used for luminosity, or light bearer, is applied to the sun and the moon (Gen.1<sup>14,16</sup>). It is used figuratively of believers (Phil.2<sup>15</sup>). But the sun and moon are not needed, for the glory of God illuminates the city (21<sup>23</sup><sup>225</sup>) and its Lamp is the Lambkin (21<sup>23</sup>). Natural light was excluded from His habitations.

for these sayings are faithful and true." And He said to me: "I have become the A and the Z, the Origin and the Consummation. To him who is thirsting I shall be giving of the spring of the water of life gratuitously. He who is conquering will be enjoying these things and I shall be his God and he will be a son of Mine. Yet the timid, and unbelievers, and the abominable, and murderers, and paramours, and enchanterers, and idolaters, and all the false—their part is in the lake burning with fire and sulphur, which is the second death."

<sup>9</sup> And one of the seven messengers who have the seven bowls brimming with the last seven calamities came and talks with me, saying, "Hither! I shall be showing you the bride, the wife of the Lambkin." And he carries me away, in spirit, on a mountain, huge and high, and shows me the holy city, Jerusalem, descending out of heaven from God; having the glory from God; her luminosity is like a stone most precious, as a crystalline jasper gem; having a wall, huge and high; having twelve portals, and at the portals twelve messengers, and their names inscribed, which are the names of the twelve tribes of the sons of Israel. From the east are three portals, and from the north three portals, and from the south three portals, and from the west three portals. And the wall of the city has twelve foundations, and on them the twelve names of the twelve apostles

<sup>18</sup> Gold, if subjected to intense heat, may be made permanently transparent. When the city has passed through the fiery crucible which introduces the new earth (2 Pt.3<sup>10</sup>), the gold which now exists in considerable quantities in a diffused state, will be precipitated and refined and emerge with crystal-line clarity.

<sup>22</sup> Six temples "made with hands" are indwelt by Jehovah in the eons. The first was the Tabernacle in the wilderness (Ex.25<sup>8</sup>). The second was erected by Solomon (2 Sa.7<sup>13</sup>). It was destroyed by Nebuchadnezzar (2 Ki.25<sup>9</sup>). The third was built by Ezra at the command of Cyrus (Ezra 6<sup>3</sup>). Herod's temple is the fourth. The fifth is called "the temple of God" (2 Th.2<sup>4</sup>) and is measured in this scroll (11<sup>1</sup>). The sixth is described by Ezekiel (40-43). It is intensely interesting to note the development of the truth in the first, second and sixth. Here we have the true Temple, God Himself, with the true Sacrifice, the Lambkin.

<sup>15</sup> of the Lambkin. And he who is talking with me had a golden measuring reed, in order that he should be measuring the city, and

And he measures the city with the reed—twelve thousand stadia [1378.97 miles]. Its length and

<sup>17</sup> breadth and height are equal. And he measures its wall, a hundred forty-four cubits [about 200 feet] of a man, which the messenger's measure is. And the buttress of its

<sup>18</sup> wall is jasper, and the city is clear gold, like clear glass. The founda-

<sup>19</sup> tions of the city's wall have been adorned with every precious stone, the first foundation with jasper, the

sardonyx, the sixth carnelian, the seventh topaz, the eighth beryl, the <sup>21</sup> ninth peridot, the tenth chrysoprase, the eleventh amethyst, the

one of the portals was respectively of one pearl. And the city square

<sup>22</sup> is gold, clear as translucent glass. And I perceived no temple in it, for the Lord God Almighty and the <sup>23</sup> Lambkin are its temple. And the city has no need of the sun nor of the moon that they should be appearing in it, for the glory of God illuminates it, and its Lamp is the Lambkin.

SECOND THRONE SECTION

<sup>24</sup> The vision has ended. John now is back again in Patmos and tells what will be in the days of the vision. It is not that the common and abominable will be outside the city, unable to enter. Then all will be God's people and misery will be no more (21:4). But those who are false before—these have no hope of entering into the city. In Israel, this is a reward.

<sup>1</sup> The river of living water can be traced from the laver of the tabernacle (Ex.30:18) through the ten lavers and the molten sea of Solomon's temple (2 Chr.42:6) and the waters which flowed from the threshold of Ezekiel's house (Eze.47) to the crystal stream here described.

<sup>3</sup> The "curse" is not yet gone or the leaves of the trees were useless. But there is no more anything devoted to God for destruction. His way with men has changed.

<sup>5</sup> Though the temple and priesthood are gone, they continue to reign for the eons of the eons. This corresponds with the Hebrew scriptures, for the temple with its ritual lasts "for ever" (for the eon) but the kingdom continues "for ever and ever" (for the eons of the eons).

SECOND PROPHETIC SECTION

<sup>6</sup> This section should not be referred to the far future which John has been describing. He reverts to the time when the prophecy was given to him. Hence the era is impending, the Lord is still to come, the sayings of the prophecy may still be kept.

<sup>24</sup> And the nations will be walking by means of its light, and the kings of the earth are carrying their glory into it. And its portals should under no circumstances be locked by day (for there will be no night there). And they will be carrying the glory and the honor of the nations into it, and under no circumstances may anything contaminating, or one who is making an abomination and a lie be entering into it, except those having been written in the Lambkin's scroll of life.

<sup>22</sup> And he shows me a river of water of life, resplendent as crystal, issuing out of the throne of God and the Lambkin. In the center of its square, and on either side of the river is the tree of life, producing twelve fruits, rendering fruit appropriate to each month. And the leaves of the tree are for the cure of the nations. And there will be no more any doom, and the throne of God and the Lambkin will be in it. And His slaves will be offering divine service to Him. And they will be viewing His face, and His name will be on their foreheads. And night will be no more, and they have no need for lamp light and sun light, seeing that the Lord God will be illuminating them. And they will be reigning for the eons of the eons.

<sup>6</sup> And He said to me, "These sayings are faithful and true: and the Lord, the God of the spirits of the prophets, commissions His messenger to show to His slaves what must occur swiftly. And lo! I am coming swiftly! Happy is he who is keeping the sayings of the prophecy of this scroll."

Second Prophetic Section

<sup>10</sup> It is God's will that this prophecy should be known by His slaves: Daniel was commanded to seal up his vision because much was to intervene before its fulfillment. As this era is impending—there is nothing between the present and this prophecy—it is time for it to be studied and understood.

Nothing (except a knowledge of the special epistles written for the present) will help us more in estimating the true trend of present day movements than a clear conception of their outcome in the great judgment period just ahead. All of the factors of the end time are rapidly taking on the form which they will have in that day. Israel is going back to the land. The nations are forming the great confederacy. The religions of the earth are uniting. In it all God is given no place.

<sup>12</sup> As in the first chapter (1<sup>s</sup>), the Lord Jesus suddenly intervenes and closes the prophecy with His own august declarations. The three-fold title, the A and the Z, the First and Last, and the Origin and the Consummation, are most appropriate after the revelation of the marvelous jeweled city and the glories of the new earth. At present He has only begun: then He will finish. The A and the Z suggests that He is the whole alphabet of God's revelation, the First and the Last, His place in the times in which it is accomplished, and the Origin and Consummation, His place in the purpose which underlies it.

<sup>16</sup> The night is darkest just before the dawn. His earthly people will long for the Morning Star to herald the approach of day. Then He, from Whom David sprang and Who descended from David, will fulfill all the promises which God made to Him.

<sup>17</sup> Come! All who know Him and His will cannot but obey this last request. The hearts of all saints should well up into one grand shout to urge His speedy return. There is no other help, no other hope. Come! Lord Jesus!

'Come, then, and, added to Thy many crowns,
Receive yet one, the crown of all the earth,
Thou Who alone art worthy! It was Thine
By ancient covenant, ere Nature's birth;
And Thou hast made it Thine by purchase since
And overpaid its value with Thy blood.
Thy saints proclaim Thee King; and in their hearts
Thy title is engraven with a pen
Dipped in the fountain of eternal love.'

COWPER, in The Task

<sup>8</sup> And I, John, am the hearer and observer of these things. And when I hear and observe, I fall to worship in front of the feet of the messenger who is showing me these things. And he is saying to me: "See! No! I am a fellowslave of yours and of your brethren the prophets, and of those who are keeping the sayings of this scroll: worship God!" And he is saying to me, "You should not be sealing the sayings of the prophecy of this scroll, for the era is near. Let him who is injuring, injure still; and let the filthy be filthy still; and let the just do righteousness still; and let the holy be hallowed still."

<sup>12</sup> "Lo! I am coming swiftly, and My wage is with Me, to pay each one as his work is. I am the A and the Z, the First and the Last, the Origin and the Consummation. Happy are those who are rinsing their robes, in order that it will be their license to the tree of life, and they may be entering the portals into the city. Outside are curs, and enchanters, and paramours, and murderers, and idolaters, and everyone fondling and fabricating falsehood.

<sup>16</sup> I, Jesus, send My messenger to testify these things to you in the ecclesias. I am the Root and the race of David, the resplendent Morning Star. And the spirit and the bride are saying, 'Come!' And let him who is hearing say 'Come!' And let him who is thirsting be coming. Let him who is wanting it take the water of life gratuitously.

<sup>18</sup> I am testifying to everyone who is hearing the words of the prophecy

Conclusion—Warning—His Coming

<sup>18</sup> It is one of the saddest commentaries on the frailty of mankind to find that this warning has about seven variant readings in the three manuscripts we consult. Who would not suppose that these lines would be most anxiously and scrupulously copied by the scribe? Surely no transcriber would dare to add or subtract a single letter! Yet there is not only one transposition, but four additions and three omissions in a passage fearfully denouncing such a practise. May God forgive if we, unwittingly, have failed to restore or expunge these mutilations!

<sup>20</sup> The desire for the coming and presence of the Lord is the truest test of spiritual condition. The saints long for Him, not merely for their own happiness but for the manifestation of His glories and the blessing of all creation.

of this scroll: If ever any one may be appending to them, God will be appending to him the calamities which have been written in this scroll. And if ever any one should be eliminating from the words of the scroll of this prophecy, God will be eliminating his part from the tree of life, and out of the holy city, which are written in this scroll.

"Amen! Be coming, Lord Jesus!"
